A CHANCE

For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways-of-doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. "Big Guns" of the Future

As one looks over the senate to see where the men of great prominence in the future are to be found, he realizes that it is probably unnecessary to discuss presidential timber. President Soule will doubtless go back next year, and, unless he goes to congress, the year following. Should he be elected to succeed Congressman Greene, the presidency of the senate would lay between three men—Senator Jones of Malden, Melrose district; Senator Howland of Chelsea, and Senator Manning of Worcester. President Smith, who served up to the present year, was elected after a service of only one year in the upper branch, and it may be that some man to be elected next fall will be President Soule's successor. The present chairman of the judiciary committee, Henry C. Attwill, is said to be slated for district attorney for Essex county in the near future. Senator Chamberlain of Brockton has been considered a very probable candidate for congress not many months hence. Senator Currier, who lives in Methuen and is a Democrat, has congressional aspirations. This is true of Senator Gardner of the Cape Ann district, also. Senator Marsh of Springfield, the veteran of three wars, has had such phenomenal success, serving in the house a single year, and immediately going to the senate, that his future cannot easily be outlined. He has the making of a fine county commissioner in him. Senator Williams of Wayland leaped over the house from private life into the senate, and must be reckoned with in coming years. Senator Sparks of the Lowell district is a Democrat, but one of the sort who gets there, and it would be wise for General Butler's grandson, Colonel Butler Ames of Lowell, who is looking toward Washington, to keep an eye on him. Senator Post of the Berkshire and Hampshire district, a hard-headed, commonsense country lawyer, is one of the sort of men who should be kept in the senate indefinitely. Senators Blodgett, Fletcher, Holt, Williams, Nutt, Porter and Sprague are the sort of men who go to make up a body which carries it burdens lightly, and permits very few foolish measures to get as far as the governor.

O'Leary—Lennon.

John D. O'Leary, of Winchester, and Miss Emma E. Lennon, of Arlington Heights, were married Wednesday morning, June 26, at St. Agnes' church with a nuptial high mass celebrated by Rev. John M. Mulcahy at 10 o'clock. The church was well filled with relatives and friends of the happy pair. Miss Florence May Barstow, of Winchester, was bridesmaid and John F. O'Connor was best man. The ushers were Robert J. Douglass, jr., and John O'Neil. The bride was dressed in white liberty silk over white tafieta. The waist was a mass of tucks and a beautiful yoke of honiton lace with a chiffon fichu around the shoulders. The skirt had a deep flounce of tucked liberty silk and honiton insertion and was cut en train. Her veil, reaching nearly to the end of the train, was held in place by a coronet.

The bridesmaid, Miss Barstow, was dressed in pale blue muslin, with lace yoke, and a large blue picture hat, and carried bride roses. The flower girls were tastefully dressed in white muslin with white ribbons.

At 11 o'clock there was a reception to Mr. and Mrs. O'Leary at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Lennon, on Bow street. A wedding breakfast was served by Hardy. There were an abundance of presents for the young couple, including a chamber set from the bride's parents, a dining room set from the father and mother of the groom, a silver service, clock, a lamp, pictures, china, cut glass and silverware. The couple left during the evening for a short wedding tour, and will pass through Buffalo and Niagara and other places of interest. On their way to and from the house an abundance of flowers, including roses and sweet-Williams, were strewn in their pathway. Upon their return to Arlington they will live on Bow street with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lennon.—[Arlington Enterprise.

Cure for Cholera Infantum--Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. For sale by Young & Brown.

Mr. Roland E. Simonds is again serving as a fireman on the Boston & Maine or the summer.

GAS RANGE.

A Gas Range will do all the work that the best coal range will do and it will save you money. It also does away with much work and worry.

The Economy of the Gas Stove is show below in a few tests:

COMPARISON OF PERCENTAGE IN LOSS AFTER COOKING.

GAS.		COAL.
Cost 35 cents. Product 28 1-2	—FISH—	Cost 35 cents. Product 24 3-4
Loss 6 1-2 cents.		Loss 10 1-4 cents.
Cost 166 1-2 Product 138 3-8	—BEEF—	Cost 169 7-8 Product 117
Loss 23 1-8 cents.		Loss 52 7-8 cents.

Saving of Gas Stove over Coal range, ... 24 3-4 cents.

The saving in food on Fish and Roast Beef for one Dinner was 28 1-2 cents.

This shows a great saving in food cooked by Gas Range and as this occurs in nearly every dish that is cooked the saving in pounds of food in the course of one year, is something enormous. A Gas Range will do its work a great deal quicker than a coal range and does not heat the house when cooking. A Gas Range can be run so that nearly all the heat generated can be put into food being cooked. The difference in labor between working over a coal range in a hot kitchen and Gas Range in a Cool Kitchen, is worth more than the price of either coal or gas.

We can put an attachment on your hot water bath, that can be run independent of either coal or gas range, that will give hot water all over the house in a few minutes, so that Hot Water can be used in Bath at any moment if there has not been a fire in range for 12 months.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

Unjust Man is Hated.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you please print in the STAR the following extract taken from the baccalaureate sermon preached by Pres. W. J. Tucker of Dartmouth College?

"I doubt if men care to be equally rich. It is evident they do not care to be equally intelligent. What human nature cannot endure is that one man should be rich at the price of another man's poverty, or intelligent at the price of another man's ignorance.

"The man whom everybody hates is first the unjust man, and the man who, without being actually unjust, is willing to thrive upon organized injustice.

"The man whom society values most is the man who is able to insure justice. The dominant man everywhere is the man who is persistent and determined. The captains of industry belong to this class. The kind of will power which secures the present triumphs of industrialism is not necessarily of the first order. The men who in succession rule Wall street, might, and probably would, fail to reform New York.

"There ought to be no reason why the higher interests of corporations should not coincide with the higher interests of the state. In the long run I believe that it is good business policy to work toward the people rather than away from them."

Y. P. S. C. E. Committees.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational Church have elected the following committees for the coming half year, July to December, inclusive:

Lookout—Miss Mabel W. Stinson, Miss Maggie J. Sands, Mr. C. Willis Currier, Mr. Robert S. Adriance, Miss Louise M. Hill.

Prayer Meeting—Miss Marion L. Simonds, Mr. Wm. Allin, Mr. Francis P. R. Hill, Mrs. F. G. Stearns, Miss Gertrude Cameron, Miss Helen E. Stinson.

Social—Mr. Lorenzo E. Waite, Mrs. May A. Beohmer, Miss Bessie B. Luce, Miss Cassie E. Sands, Mr. Herbert L. Vose, Mr. Walter H. Adams.

Music—Miss Flora M. Schaffer, Mr. Erastus B. Badger, 2d, Mr. Robert S. Adriance, Miss Gertrude B. Carter, Miss Elizabeth Browning.

Missionary—Mr. Herbert L. Vose, Mrs. E. O. J. Allen, Miss Ida M. Sands, Miss Lillie C. Mitchell, Miss L. Jean Bisbee, Miss Laura Studley.

Flower—Miss Annie E. Stinson, Miss Edith Browning, Mr. Howard A. Newton, Miss Elizabeth J. Bisbee, Miss Alice L. Sands.

Elliot—Skanks.

The wedding of Miss Georgie Skanks of Winchester and Mr. George Elliot of Woburn took place in the Baptist church Woburn, on the evening of June 26, the Rev. Mr. Scott officiating. The bride, who was one of the most popular young colored ladies in Winchester, was gowned in white satin with trimming of applique insertion, and a train three yards long. She wore a veil and carried brides roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Shine Stewart, Miss Dulphie Tendall and Miss Mary V. Russell were gowned in white organdie with silver spangles.

Mr. Blunt of Boston was best man. A reception took place immediately after the wedding at the bride's residence on Swanton street. Among those present were: Mr. Skinner, Miss Walden, Mr. Daniel Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Esley, Mr. and Mrs. Knight, Mr. Skanks from Lynn, Miss Dunnelly, Mr. Glenn, Mr. Wm. Russell, Miss Carrie Birch, and the Misses Winbush. Mr. Haggerty, Mr. Al White and Mr. Jones acted as ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Elliot will take up their residence at 137 Montvale avenue, Woburn.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The tax rate of Stoneham is $19.80 on $1000. Many of the inhabitants thought it would be $20 or $25. The rate for Winchester will not be announced for several weeks yet, but is not expected to exceed that of last year.

The State Tax

The committee on ways and means of the house has reported, and the general court has passed to be enacted a bill imposing a state tax of $1,750,000. In a period of more than 30 years, there has been but one year, 1879, when the tax has been less than $1,000,000. In that year it was $500,000. During war times it was necessarily large, rising to $5,000,000 in 1867. In 1880 it was $1,500,000, and lingered in that vicinity until 1887, when it was $2,250,000. In 1894 it was $2,000,000, and was then cut down to $1,500,000 in 1895. Since that time it has been $1,750,000, with the exception of 1898, 1899 and 1900, when it was $1,500,000. As has been before observed in this correspondence, it is a remarkable thing under all the circumstances that the state tax will be no larger this year, and indicates not only great financial wisdom on the part of the governor, but the very earnest desire on the part of the treasurer, the auditor and the general court to carry out his wishes.

About Printing.

The STAR does not pretend to do better printing than is done in Boston, but fully as good, and at as low a price is all we claim. We are ready at all times to submit figures and guarantee satisfaction even to the extent of meeting the wishes of the most fastidious. We have done business in Winchester for many years and expect to for a long time to come, therefore it is to our interest to do good work at moderate prices and promptly. All that is asked is an opportunity to bid on your printing.

Theories Pulictured

A word as to the senate of 1901. Like the upper branch of each general court, it has its idiosyncrasies, chief among which is a penchant for throwing down schemes evolved in the lower branch which have anything in them which suggests freakiness. The senate is very apt to be a reflection of the spirit of the presiding officer. In looking back over a series of years, this point is very easily proved. President Soule of the senate is a man who has had a most thorough business training. He is not only the head of a large shoe manufacturing concern, known all over the country, but he has important investments in cotton mill property, and at the present time a great cotton factory bearing his name is being erected in New Bedford. President Soule naturally approaches the questions which relate to the control of corporations and similar matters from the standpoint of a trained business man. His mind punctures mere theories at once, and when two propositions are suggested bearing on the same point, he is very likely to unceremoniously reject the one of the two which is visionary, and tie up to the one which is practical. He does this, however, in a manner which is apt to be somewhat facetious, for no man can see the humor in a situation more quickly than he. The foregoing description of the attitude of President Soule's mind is a close description of the attitude of the senate of 1901 in dealing with the schemes of the house. The longer the lower branch discusses a measure, and the more difficulty it has in getting it into shape, the less likely is it to be treated with respect by the senate, unless it has a basis of absolute merit. The gas commissioners warned the legislature through the governor that there was danger of the consolidation of the Boston electric light interests by a method that would mean stock watering. The warning was committed to the big committee composed of two committees of 15—manufactures and mercantile affairs. These committees sat day after day and for weeks, holding frequent conferences with the gas commissioners and the attorney general, and finally evolved a bill to permit the Boston electric light companies to consolidate through the purchase of the Boston company by the Edison company, without the intervention of J. P. Morgan, or any other great financier who might desire to form an unincorporated association to hold the stock and issue the securities thereon. Not content with this, the committee also reported a bill to restrict combinations by electric light companies without the approval of the board of gas and electric light commissioners. The first proposition was concrete, and the senate could understand what it was driving at; the second proposition was visionary, dealing with an assumed situation, which did not really exist, and whieff called forth from the attorney general the terse comment that this "restrictive" bill was not restrictive, but permissive. After many weeks the bill got through the house and came up to the upper branch. The alleged "restrictive" consolidation bill was rejected without even the courtesy of a word of debate. The bill to permit the two companies which desired to combine to consolidate was passed.

The Laziest Man.

The laziest man in North America discovered himself the other evening in the swell bachelor apartments not far from Lafayette square where he lives. He was lying on a couch in his lounging room, smoking a cigar, when the cigar went out—that is to say, the fire at the end of the cigar departed. The man raised himself on one arm with great effort, and snapped the messenger bell that was installed over the couch. Then he reclined and waited. After about ten minutes there was a knock at the door, and a messenger boy entered.

"D'jou ring, sir?" asked the boy.

"Yes, son," said the laziest man in the western hemisphere. "Just gimme a match off that table there, will you?"

The boy handed the man on the couch a match and waited. The man relighted his cigar and smoked on.

"D'jou want me to go somewhere, sir?" asked the boy, fidgeting.

"No, that's all," said the man. "Take that half dollar on the table."

Then the boy went out, grinning.

That man ought to be on some government "commission" to investigate something somewhere.—Washington Star.

BOLTON'S LAST YEAR.

The Way He Spent It Preparing For His Death.

"Billy Bolton, the Lansingburg brewer, was a very rich man and one with a host of friends," said an up state man to the New York Sun. "His brewery in Lansingburg was a profitable concern and he practically owned about all the saloons in that town.

"One day after a consultation his physicians told him that he had Bright's disease and that he surely would not live more than a year.

"Billy took their word for it and made up his mind to make the fur fly while life was left. He had never traveled much, and so he decided to go around the world.

"He took with him a congenial friend and plenty of money, and away they went. They left a trail of fire and ashes through all the capitals of Europe and the queer and strange places of Asia and Africa. After nine months they came back, and Boltonh brought with him the most marvelous collections of souvenirs and presents that any man not a professional collector ever brought into this country. The duties amounted to $3,000.

"Arrived in Lansingburg, Billy hired the town hall, sent his packing boxes filled with these oriental and European treasures up to the hall and had them all taken out and put on exhibition as though for a church fair. Upon each article he marked the name of some friend whom he wished to remember with a gift. There were hundreds in this category, but Billy had presents for them all.

"On the day appointed for the presentation he invited his army of friends to the town hall. To each he turned over the present selected for him, and amid the cheers of his grateful and admiring fellow townsmen the hall was stripped of its beautiful things.

"When the last present had been placed in the hands of its recipient Billy went back to his home and lay down to die. Within the year his physician's prophecy came true and the town gave him the finest funeral that any man ever had."

Harvard bridge is to be paved with wooden blocks similar to that recently put down on Tremont street. The bridge was not built strong enough to carry stone pavement and the annual replanking is expensive and unsatisfactory. The blocks are to be laid close with the grain vertical, directly on the planking and are to pe driven together as tightly as possible at every sixth row. Proper expansion joints at curbs. The joints are then to be filled with dry screened sand and rammed or rolled until the surface presents a firm, uniform and unyielding surface The joints are then to be filled with creoresinate mixture heated. The surface of the paving when completed is to be covered with a dressing of screen sharp sand. It is thought that this paving ought to wear well and give good satisfaction.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial, for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. Bear in mind that every bottle is warranted, and if it does not prove beneficial the money will be refunded to you. For sale by Young & Brown.

Town Should be Surveyed.

Winchester is handicaped to a great extent in the matter of taxes on real estate, caused by the lack of plans giving the area of the holdings of land. It is a conservative estimate to state that in five years the town loses in taxes more than it would cost to survey every lot in town. When it is understood that it has always been thus, it will be seen that a great deal of money has been lost. This does not include what is paid out annually to the Registry of Deeds at East Cambridge by the Tax Collector for descriptions of land liable for non-payment of taxes. A few years ago Wakefield had every parcel of land surveyed, so that now that town has a correct record, which is of great assistance to the Assessors and Tax Collector. Other towns have done the same thing.

Winchester now has a town engineer, and, given assistants, there is no reason why every parcel of land on every street should not be surveyed and a plan made. After this is done, all that will be necessary to keep the plans up to date will be the resurveying of lots that have been cut up into smaller parcels and sold to other parties. One thing is certain, it is poor policy to continue groping in the dark in this matter which is of so much benefit and importance to the town.

A Makeshift Proposition.

At the recent meeting of the special committee having the matter of a street from the centre across Black Ball pond to Swanton street in charge, a route by way of Main street, Blind Bridge street, under the railroad track, thence skirting the Beggs & Cobb property to Swanton street, was discussed. We think we but voice the opinion of all who have looked into the question of the purposes of this proposed street in stating that this route will not prove acceptable, in that it does not meet the requirements of that section. There are two points to be considered—easy and quick access to the freight yard to and from the centre and and also to the great number of residents. This route will only be of advantage in reaching the freight yard, but will not accomodate the people but little over the present method of getting to the centre of the town. The town has an example of an overhead railroad bridge on Cross street that should condemn this route, where the conditions are even worse for a proper drop under the tracks than now exist on Cross street.

There is only one satisfactory route to Swanton street, and that is across the pond, from Winchester place or railroad avenue and if this should ever be adopted, the time is not far distant when it will be carried through to Cross street at the Highlands. There should be no makeshift in this matter now, for later the original route is bound to come up and cause additional expense. Have the street direct, or not at all.

Need of Co-operation Between Town and State.

Many citizens of Winchester feel as Mr. Whitfield L. Tuck expressed himself in last week's STAR regarding the matter of perpetuating the old wooden Walnut street bridge. The bridge is not in the right place, it is not built to take care of the water in one stream as is desired by both the town and the state and to which no one has at present any objection, provided the water is properly taken care of at freshet time. It does not harmonize in the least with the work of the state on the neighboring parkway and playground. It does not meet the grade established by the state for the entrance to the parkway from the station. Above all it is a great clumsy bridge, made of wood which will always need expensive repairing as long as it stands.

What a chance has existed for co-operative treatment of the old bridge by the town and state in this case? If the two had put their heads and their money together, what a different result would have been attained than will be with the rebuilding of the old clumsy, out-of-date affair now going on wholly at the expense of the town! The town and the state formerly worked together in park improvements and the result speaks for itself. We are sorry to see the two do not now work together in all things and we are afraid the result will be bad. Co operation in the first instance between town and state in park improvements was largely brought about by the local park board acting as a go-between. Can not our local board wake up to its opportunity of great usefulness at the present time in bringing about co-operative work in the treatment of our river and bridges near the parkway? This was a field of action in which the late Mr. Manchester gained much of his reputation. Will not our local park board take up his work?

Winchester Would Like a Little of the Same Kind.

In advertising for bids for the construction of a new parkway along the banks of the Charles river from Beacon street to Watertown, the Metropolitan Park Commission stipulate that 40,000 square yards of the filling required for the work shall be taken from the river bed in order to improve its appearance and add to the natural beauty of the river drive. With a portion of the $50,000 specially appropriated to improve our parkway between Walnut street and Mystic Lake, it would seem as if a small portion of the amount should be used to improve the lower Aberjona. As pointed out in an able article in last week's STAR, this improvement would add greatly to the beauty of our parkway. The state has full control of all abutting river property along the way and the fact that the Park Commission recommend just such treatment of the Charles river indicates that such an improvement would be practical and desirable. Winchester citizens worked hard to obtain that extra $50,000 from the state legislature, not a single citizen of the state, except from Winchester, pleading for the appropriation and all were congratulated on the result as being an excellent thing for Winchester. Now let us have some of it! We commend the thought to our citizens generally and to our local park board in particular. If the latter can bring about the desired improvement they will merit the thanks of the whole community who were induced to put $65,000 into the original scheme which contemplated improving the river as well as the low lands below Walnut street. Give us a little of the same kind Watertown is taking, Mr. Commissioners, as it is Winchester's due.

Mr. Edward Cole met with a painful accident on Mystic Lake Sunday while swimming at the Medford float. He attempted to take what is known as a turtle dive from the spring board, and in doing so caught his right leg on a large, rusty iron spike on the underside of the board, tearing a gash about five inches long. He was cared for by the Medford boys until Dr. Mowbry of Medford, who was summoned by messenger, arrived, when he was taken to his home in Winchester in a carriage. The wound required eleven stitches to draw it together.

Miss Alice Crawford arrived home last week from the Bridgewater Normal school.

The legislature passed an act compelling town treasurers and town clerks, whenever they make a remittance to the county treasurer to accompany the same by a printed form as prescribed by the controller of the county accounts. The ridiculousness of such legislation is apparent when a town of our size requires but a single remittance annually from the town treasurer and two from the town clerk, yet a printed form must be gotten out for each as they differ in kind. What nonsense!—[Wakefield Item.

Mr. Geo. H. Hazeltine and family of Stratford Road went this week to Winthrop Beach for the summer.

The Melrose citizens who have been agitating the question of a return to the town form of government have at least gained notoriety for their city. Ex-Attorney General Pillsbury made it the text for his address at the Newburyport celebration, last week. He said "that the general failure of the city government in this country stands confessed and that the town meeting is the best form of local rule ever applied to municipal affairs." Which is absolutely true.

The fence on the town Howe lot has been removed along the line of Washington street, next to the Parkway. The change is a great improvement but the bushes and rubbish which has accumulated back of the old fence should be taken away and the land graded properly to the street. It would be a very great improvement to this lot if the town and state would mutually grade the lot and parkway as if it were all one lot. This would be a good chance for co-operative treatment and the result could not help being good. The sharp corner of the Howe lot opposite Winthrop street could be especially improved by harmonious treatment of the right kind.

The 9.15 Electric car from Winchester to Medford in charge of motorman J. Flynn and conductor F. O. Cutler collided with a Swedish baker's team between Symmes corner and the Medford line, Wednesday morning. The car struck the team with a crash, throwing the driver, Oxel Linquist, of East Cambridge, to the ground, and severely bruising his face and breaking one or two ribs. The team was on the wrong side of the road and coming from Medford to Winchester. Witnesses claim that the driver was asleep. The car was about 40 feet from the team when the horse made a sharp turn, apparently with animal instinct to gain the right side of the road, when the collision occurred. The horse escaped injury but the team was badly smashed. Dr. Eaton appeared on the scene as quickly as possible and attended to the man's injuries. A team was summoned from Kelley & Hawes' stable and the injured man removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Not only are the buildings beautiful in line and color, but the stupendous electrical illuminations which at night decorate the great structure are most dazzling in effect.

From New England the lines of the Boston & Maine are the most direct to Buffalo. The service of this line is not only the quickest, but is the most complete and also the shortest. The route through Northern Massachusetts known as the Hoosac Tunnel or Deerfield Valley route is one of the most charming and picturesque in the country, and the rate to the Pan-American city or Niagara is exceptionally low. For tourists from Boston & Maine territory a particular advantage is the absence of a transfer across the city of Boston, for Buffalo trains depart from the North Union Station.

The General Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine railroad, Boston, has gotten out an attractive illustrated pamphlet on the Pan-American Exposition, which is sent free for the asking.

How the Fourth was Celebrated

The celebration of the Fourth in Winchester passed off without serious accident to any person. Of course there were the usual number who received blistered fingers, but this is to be expected. The same between cannot be said of the boy's and young men, who "cut up" perhaps more extensively than for years past. Two well built dummies were cut down from trees by the police, one near the junction of Main and Washington streets and the other at Symmes corner. They were taken to the police station and stood up in a corner of Chief McIntosh's office where they were visited and admired by many persons. A hay wagon was brought in front of the Blaikie building and overturned; a bicycle rack was taken from in front of Emus' drug store and thrown into the river, an old machine at the rear of the Whitney Machine shops was toppled over into the river, causing a damage of between $30 and $40 to shafting running to the rear building, Morrill, the grocer's awning, was somewhat burned, while signs innumerable were taken to new locations, besides many other escapades of this character. Winchester's historic cannon ushered in the Fourth on Highlnnd avenue at midnight and it "spoke" as well as it did when the old men of the town were boys.

An old telegragh pole was pulled down on Main street near Mr. Lee's house, Cutter's village. The pole fell across the street, and shortly after two men on a tandem bicycle ran in to it badly wrecking their wheel and they receiving a bad shaking up. This act of the boys was malicious mischief.

Scores of the inhabitants went to Boston and Woburn during the day to help out the celebrations in those places, so that Winchester was comparatively deserted.

In the evening there were many private displays of fireworks.

A Brilliant Affair.

The Winchester Catholic Total Abstinence Society held its annual lawn party on the Cullen estate Wednesday evening. A handsome pavilion had been erected for the dancing and was gaily decorated with lanterns and bunting. Dancing was carried on from 8 p. m. to 2 a. m. Fully 400 lanterns illuminated the grounds and also Sand Hill and White streets.

The evening was perfect and affairs were carried on with the greatest success. Numerous friends from Woburn, Stoneham, Wakefield and Medford attended the gathering. The refreshment booth was in charge of Mr. James Kenney and Mr. Thomas Donahue.

The director was Thomas K. Lynch, assistant, William H. Foley; aids: John F. Maloney, Dennis E. O'Neil, Frank E. Callahan, J. Joseph Foley, John F. Holland, Joseph M. Donahue, William H. Vayo, John F. O'Connor, Thomas C. Kelley, Edward M. O'Connor, James F. Foley, Daniel J. Daly, Benj. F. Cullen, Thomas C. Donahue, James D. Kenny, Hugh F. Skerry, Patrick T. Higgins, Fred C. To Stop the Litter Nuisance—Enforce the By-Law Against It.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The dropping of loam, litter or other undesirable material of any kind upon the highway is strictly forbidden by one of Winchester's late town by-laws. To stop the nuisance on Main street alluded to in the STAR's editorial of last week, is the work of the police department, whose business it is to enforce the by-laws of the town, as much as the laws of the state. The contractor who littered Main street should have been stopped when he committed the nuisance. It would be a good lesson to him or his men to fine him now or make him clean up the streets made foul by the carelessness of his teamsters.

Would it not be a good plan to read the town-by-laws to our police officers occasionally and tell them they must enforce the by-laws in every case of violation? What better work could our day patrolmen do than to see that they are enforced? In the instance the STAR has written about, a by-law was broken in mid-day, in the centre of the town under the nose of all the town officers and the result has been a direct loss to the town by injuring its highway. If the law governing this case cannot be enforced under the circumstances stated, then all the by-laws had better be repealed.

Another thing the policemen should attend to is the extensive stealing of fruit, which nuisance has begun for the year. A few arrests would stop much of this evil. There never was so much lawlessness among a certain class of boys in Winchester. Some of them should be taught a lesson and the police should be the schoolmaster to "lay it on" and the Selectmen in turn should "lay it on" to the policemen if they do not do their duty. Continue to call attention Mr. Editor, to all violations of public duty in Winchester and the STAR will be a Morning Star to usher in a better day for all its citizens!

ATTORNEY FOR THE PEOPLE.

Troubles of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, eruptions, boils, eczema, tetter, salt rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by Grover. Large bottles only 50c.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The condition of the Walnut street bridge showed conclusively that it had the kind of inspection that does not inspect, although the superintendent of streets said it was a continual worry in his last annual report. This bridge was rotten, and there should have been an article in the warrant for the annual meeting last spring to see about replacing it with an iron bridge. It is too bad that any more money should be spent on wooden bridges in this town.

It is as evident as can be that the people in one part of a city or town don't care four cents about nuisances in other parts of the place or what the condition of the streets, sidewalks, lighting, etc., is, and unless the residents in localtities that are not being treated fairly make a vigorous protest, things will not be improved although the neglected localities are usually the highest taxed, considering what they get.

As long as the new board of fire engineers cannot seem to be accommodated with fires to show off its abilities, it might use the mean time to good advantage by making an examination of all the hydrants in town, and find out their pressures and condition. There are some wrong and ridiculous things connected with our hydrant system and it is time they were remedied.

For the information of those who have been arguing the matter I will state that the electrics began running from Stoneham to Winchester May 7, 1896, and from Winchester to Arlington July 4, 1897. The Woburn and Medford road was equipped with electricity in the Fall of 1896.

Have we got to make a specific appropriation for an arc light on the common in order to have one there? Everybody wants a light there and so far as the money is concerned the town voted enough.

If the school committee had finished up the grounds in the rear of the Wadleigh schoolhouse as tastefully as it did in front it would have made the building and surroundings look very much better than that sand heap there now. But perhaps it is to be a kindergarten sand garden, if so it is well designed.

Winchester, one of the wealthiest towns in the Commonwealth, celebrated the 4th by tolling the bells.

Boat Club News.

The sailing canoe cup now has a new owner, C. Gerry Johnson. The race Saturday afternoon was the second for the cup and Mr. Paul Butler, who won it on May 30th, was badly handicapped by Johnson, who had 13 minutes start over him. Johnson sailed a fine race and was never headed after he crossed the line at the start. His time was 11 m. 35 sec. faster than Butler and 12 m. 45 sec. ahead of Murphy, who finished third. Paul Butler and Hermann Murphy were scratch, Farnum Dorsey and Wm. Corey had 4m. 10 sec. handicap and Gerry Johnson had 13 m. Owing to the heavy wind some of the other boats were obliged to give up the race and Corey did not finish, as his boat became water-logged. Johnson now has the cup and he was challenged for it immediately after the race. As he goes to England with Mr. Murphy tomorrow he will be obliged to forfeit it and it will be raced for by the canoeists when the four weeks are up.

The 4th on Mystic lake as observed by the Medford Boat Club proved very attractive. In the afternoon and evening the pond was covered with boats and canoes and the races were carried off without a hitch. The sailing canoe race was won by Wm. C. Corey, over Farnum Dorsey, H. D. Murphy and C. Gerry Johnson. In the afternoon events, the Winchester team, Murphy, Dorsey, Johnson and Locke, did not get a place. Most of the events went to the Lawrence Canoe Club, which has some very fast men. E. W. Vose of this town, a member of the Medford club, captured the hurry-scurry and swimming races. In the evening there was a band concert and fireworks. The canoes looked very pretty, many being decorated with lanterns.

THE STAR

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

During the coming months many readers of the STAR will undoubtedly go to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo to revel in the great sights, and for the benefit of those persons we will give our impression of a week spent there under the most favorable conditions for sight seeing.

Of course it would be the height of folly to attempt to see everything in a day for it simply can't be done. There is too much to be seen and studied into if you would desire a true conception and understanding of the many wonderful things exhibited.

One ought to calculate to spend at least a week "doing" the Pan-American. That is little enough time. There is enough in it to keep one occupied all summer, if one could take the time to study the exhibits and learn thoroughly what is here taught. Still, if one has only a short time, a great deal can be seen and enjoyed within that period, on account of the convenient arrangement of things and the compact and condensed character of the whole Exposition. My advice is, however, don't weary yourself in doing the Exposition. Don't make too much of a business of it. This is an Exposition to be enjoyed. You ought to make up your mind to drink in its beauties slowly, appreciatingly; not gulp them down in a single swallow.

Get your first view in the morning, when the day is young and the dew is on the grass. Enter the Elmwood gate, or better still if you don't mind the walk, at the Lincoln Parkway gate, leaving the car at Forest avenue. In either case you come into the Rainbow City through the woodland and flowers, getting glimpses of fountains, pretty landscape and a stretch of water called North Bay and Gala Water. You see the marble New York Building here and the U. S. Life Saving Station and you pass before French's statue of Washington, which has very appropriately been placed at the entrance to the approach leading to the main court. Then you pass on through that truly grand Triumphal Causeway, and come into the heart of the Exposition.

The architecture, the sculpture, the fountains, the flowers, the color and the general effect of festivity and enjoyment stimulate the imagination and carry one away from himself and all sordid cares until he is a child again and this is fairyland.

However critical the visitor may be when he begins his inspection, he can not fail to be completely captured after he has reveled in all this beauty for a day; and in the dusk of the evening the Rainbow City is transformed into a City of Light. The transformation is not sudden. It comes not in a single blinding flash, but gradually, almost imperceptibly, like the dawn, the lights steal from nothingness into their full glory and the illumination is before you in all its grandeur. Then the thousands sitting in the Esplanade and along the border of the grand basin in the Court of Fountains give vent to their enthusiastic approval of the triumphs of the electricians in a burst of applause which sweeps from the Propylaea to the Triumphal Causeway.

We are now moving about in the land of stars, twinkling, scintillating stars. They say there are 40,000 of them on the Electric Tower. I did'nt count them. The looked like 40,000,000.

At no previous expositionhas electricity played such important parts as at the Pan-American. It is the very life of the big show, not only by night but also by day. At night the presence of the transmitted energy of Niagara is made manifest in the beautiful illumination which has won for the Pan-American the name of the City of Golden Light. This name is well deserved, for it is not only reflective of the hope of humanity, but it also defines the nature of the brilliancy that is winning such unstinted praise from every person who sees it.

There are numerous motors at work about the grounds, and the current that operates them comes from Niagara Falls. There is work by day as well as by night for the energy of Niagara, and thus it is demonstrated that the power supply of Niagara is ever constant. There is no eight or twelve-hour shift with the force of this wonderful river, but hour after hour, day after day, week after week, month after month, and year after year, as unceasing as has been the flow of the current of the river, this modern power of Niagara is always on tap. Centuries will roll on, and generation after generation will find the same response from the throwing of the switch that controls Niagara's force as is found and enjoyed today in the grounds and buildings of the Pan-American Exposition.

Just now the greatest spectacle ever created by the electric energy of the Falls of Niagara is being praised and applauded in Buffalo, but there is no telling where next a similar feature will demand as much if not greater admiration, for electrical science has successfully operated a power transmission line a distance of 140 miles. Buffalo is 25 miles distant from the generating station at Niagara, but the results achieved by the application of the electric force are wonderful.

While inspecting the wonders in the Machinery Building, we came up against Mr. Fisher of this town, the inventor of the Chapman ball bearings, a wonderful development of the 20th century, who has charge of the interesting exhibit which attracts considerable attention from all visitors.

BABY INCUBATOR.

An interesting place to visit on the Mid-way is the infant incubator building. Strange as it may seem the incubator is the salvation of infants prematurely or weakly born. Statistics show that only 25 per cent. of that class of babies ordinarily live; by means of the incubator about 85 per cent. are saved.

In individual cases, the incubator is a Godsend. It finishes the work the mother was too weak to perform and saves her happiness and the child's life. From the scientific and the sentimental points of view, the incubator babies are highly entertaining.

In a pleasant room well lighted by stained glass windows stand a dozen metal cases that look like show cases. They are elevated from the floor on steel rods so that they are about the right height for the ordinary observer. The chamber in which the baby lies sleeping is glass-covered, so that the little mite is plainly exposed to view. He is suspended on a bed of woven wire, soft-covered with appropriate padding and linen. Dressed like an ordinary infant except that his little legs and feet are pinned up in swaddling clothes, after the German fashion, there is usually nothing except his size to indicate that he was handicapped at the start in the race of life.

Above each incubator is a card on which are stated the child's initals, the date of birth, its admission to the incubator, the circumstances that make artificial care advisable, his weight, and any other details of significance. The boys are distinguished, French fashion, by blue ribbons, the girls by pink ones.

The most important consideration for a child prematurely born is temperature. The temperature of the incubators is kept uniform by means of an automatic contrivance. At the side of each case is a metal boiler which holds about two gallons of water that may be heated from below by either a Bunsen burner or an ordinary lamp. Through the proper introduction of cold water, the circulation is controlled in the pipes that heat the incubator in the same manner in which it is done in a home heated by hot water. If the heat rises above or falls below the required standard, an automatic spring inside the incubator regulates the supply as it should be. A Centigrade thermometer at the front of the incubator is a constant guide as to thermal conditions.

Fresh air is introduced into the incubator through a large pipe which communicates with the outside world. The air passes first through an antiseptic fluid which destroys any germs that may be lurking in it, then through cotton, which takes up any physical impurities, is warmed, and finally introduced into the chamber where the baby lies. A pan of warm water under his undulating couch keeps the atmosphere humid, and the amount of moisture is registered by a small hydrometer at one side of the incubator.

Every two hours the babies are taken out and brought to wet nurses who supply them with nature's food. There were at the time of our visit five babies and four wet nurses in the little institution. Graduate nurses are also in attendance to oversee all the details of the nursery. The theory is that babies are only little animals and if they cry it must be because they are hungry, uncomfortable, or in pain. "Mothering" is something not considered necessary at this tender age; scientific care is thought to be an improvement on old-fashioned coddling.

One of the little girls began to cry as she lay in her glass cage. She stretched her tiny arms, shook her miniature fists, puckered up her Lilliputian face and and howled. Judging from the noise she emitted even through that glass case, her lungs are quite out of proportion to her size. An attendant bundled her up and carried her off. When she was brought back, her small features bore the look of contentment that rightly belongs to well conditioned infancy and she settled down to a deep and peaceful slumber, her thumb in her mouth.

Twin girls, eleven days old, are two of the most interesting inmates of the institution. They were prematurely born and their combined weight at birth was only seven pounds. When we visited the incubator they weighed ten pounds, showing a gain of about a pound and a half apiece in eleven days.

In a little glass room back of the incubator, the workings of the model nursery may be seen. There is the tiny bath tub where even the littlest baby is daily tubbed, the scales where they are daily weighed, the hanging cribs where they are laid after a two month's course in the incubator. Every article is beautifully artistically clean.

There are many other interesting sights to be seen in all parts of the Exposition, in fact you are running into them from morning until night. But if you would arrive at a true conception of the greatness of the Exposition, you will have to take a trip to Buffalo. Excursion rates over the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine Railroad have been placed at a very low figure. This route opens up to you the beauties of the Deerfield Valley, Hoosac Tunnel, etc., and brings you into Buffalo early in the morning in time for breakfast.

A Fair and Concise Proposition.

A. S. Hall, Esq., is counsel for the Wakefield Water Co. There has been considerable friction in Stoneham and Wakefield in regard to these two towns buying that portion of the plant lying within their borders. For a fair and concise proposition, we print below a letter to the Selectmen of Wakefield:

Boston, Mass.,
June 20, 1901.

At a meeting of the directors of the Wakefield Water Company duly called and holden this day the following vote was unanimously passed:—

Voted: That whenever the town of Wakefield desires to acquire the property of the Wakefield Water Company, said company is ready and willing to sell the same. If, upon any negotiations between the town and the company, they are unable to agree upon a price to be paid and received therefor, the company will agree to submit the same to three arbitrators to be agreed upon by the parties, and if not agreed upon, to be appointed by the Supreme Judical Court, the Superior Court or the Probate Court for the County of Middlesex. The company will enter into an agreement to abide by the decision of said arbitrators, and will join the town in any procedure which may be found necessary to carry out a sale by the company and a purchase by the town.

Attest,
A. S. HALL, Clerk.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers, to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form. No family should be without it. I keep it in my house at all times." For sale by Young & Brown.

Come to the Door.

Come to the door with a greeting,
Come with a smile on your face,
When 'tis a friend you are meeting
Worthy a hearty embrace.
Treat not unkindly or coldly
Those whom to lose you'd deplore,
But still delightedly, boldly
Show a glad face at the door.

Many a joy will go by you,
Many a pleasure you'll miss,
Simply because you've neglected
Making concessions like this.
So if you would the old friendships
To their old footing restore,
Give them a heartier welcome,
Coming yourself to the door.

When from his wanderings dreary
Homeward the traveller returns,
For the dear faces so cherry
By his own fireside he yearns;
And if they joy at his coming,
Glad that the parting is o'er,
They will be ready to greet him
'Ere he's in sight at the door.

Only to think of the greeting
Ready at close of the day,
Only to think of the meeting,
Oh! how it shortens the way,
Trials and troubles perplexing,
Troubles the spirit no more,
When we are met with caresses
From a dear one at the door.

Home is the symbol of Heaven,
Here is the sweetest content,
All the years unto us given
May be delightfully spent
It we are honest and faithful,
If we are true to the core,
Letting love stand like an angel,
Always in charge of the door.

Baptist Lawn Party.

The June social of the Baptist church was held in the form of a lawn party at the home of Mr. Fred A. Newth on Winthrop street, June 27, from 7.30 to 11 p. m. The grounds were tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns which made a very pretty display in the evening. A very large number of people attended, some one hundred and fifty being present.

A special feature of the evening was the ice cream and lemonade tables which were fully appreciated and largely patronized. A delegation of thirty of the Good Templars were present. Among those who were present were: Rev. H. E. Hodge and wife, Mr. F. A. Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Palmer, Mr. William Caldwell, Mr. Charles Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lund, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gosselin, Mrs. J. P. Freeman, Mrs. A. J. Freeman, Mr. C. E. Blackwell, Miss J. Crawford, Miss A. Crawford, Miss Jennie Crawford, Mr. Philip Crawford, Mr. J. A. Hersey, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Weld, Mr. F. D. Smith.

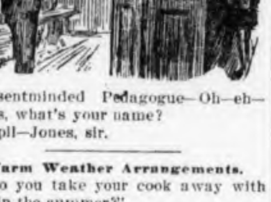

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heart burn may be avoided. HORTICULTURE EXHIBIT.

Will Be One of the Principal Features of the Exposition.

Horticulture, viticulture and floriculture are linked together in one great class. In the midst of a country of orchards and vineyards the Pan-American Exposition will have abundant material close at hand and of the finest quality from which to make an exhibit worthy of the great event. The extensive floral decorations of the grounds constitute a rich display in floriculture, and several acres, including hundreds of beds, are devoted to the exhibits made by leading florists of the country. Flowers in profusion will welcome the earliest visitors and breathe out their fragrance and display their incomparable beauty the season through. Thousands of trees and shrubs flourish throughout the grounds. Double rows of thrifty trees surround the principal buildings. Foliage and flowers there will be in great profusion. In the horticultural embellishment of the grounds the Pan-American will far surpass the efforts of all former expositions.

In the handsome and commodious Horticultural Building all the popular fruits of the different countries represented in the Pan-American Exposition will be displayed. With a suitable refrigerating room upon the grounds, it will be possible for the management to make a daily fresh display of fruit. Throughout the term of the Exposition, when certain fruits are at their best, special displays will be made of certain varieties. The exhibit from southern California will be particularly large, and New York and other states will be represented befittingly. Bottled productions will also have a place here, the wine growers of the Chautauqua, central New York and Hudson river regions having applied for space for extensive exhibits. The opportunity for a timely display of choice native fruits will be improved. Dried and preserved fruits will be exhibited here. Articles and appliances used in horticulture will also be shown in this division.

The exhibits of nursery stock, including orchard and ornamental trees, shrubs and evergreens, will be unquestionably among the finest, if not the finest, ever made. The most prominent nurserymen in the country have interested themselves and will aim to outdo any former show of the kind. No less interest is taken by the leading florists, who are arranging exceptionally fine displays. Many large beds of flowers were planted some months ago, and they will aid in beautifying the scene from the early days of the Exposition.

THE MOTHER SONG.

Mother, oh, mother, forever I cry for you!
 Sing the old songs I may never forget.
Even in slumber I murmur and sigh for you—
 Mother, oh, mother,
 Sing low, "Little brother,
 Sleep, for thy mother bends over thee yet!"

Mother, oh, mother, the years are so lonely,
 Filled but with weariness, doubt and regret!
Can't you come back to me, for tonight only,
 Mother, oh, mother,
 And sing, "Little brother,
 Sleep, for thy mother bends over thee yet!"

Mother, oh, mother, of old I had never
 One wish denied me nor trouble to fret;
Now—must I cry out all vainly forever,
 Mother, sweet mother,
 Oh, sing, "Little brother,
 Sleep, for thy mother bends over thee yet!"

Mother, oh, mother, must longing and sorrow
 Leave me in darkness, with eyes ever wet
And never the hope of meeting tomorrow?
 Answer me, mother,
 And sing, "Little brother,
 Sleep, for thy mother bends over thee yet!"

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Mr. Tompkins' Will

Did the Spirits Carry Out the Wishes of the Dying Man?

"I never was what you may call superstitious," said a lawyer from the country as he sat in the courtroom awaiting the judge, "but I had an experience once that has ever since induced me not to scoff at what is called the supernatural. Mr. Tompkins was one of the first clients my father, who was a lawyer, ever had. He was wealthy and had, as was supposed, never been married. He lived in an old homestead not far from a well known city up the state, and his wants were attended to by an elderly housekeeper and several servants, male and female. After I became a lawyer it was my duty to see Mr. Tompkins quite frequently in relation to his property and so forth. He was a kindly man, somewhat reserved, and, when I first knew him, probably 65 years of age. He had a strong personality both as to appearance and character. He was over six feet and stout in proportion. His face was always clean shaved, and he wore his hair long. When I knew him, it had turned to gray, but was as abundant as ever. His carriage was erect, and his general appearance was such as, if once observed, could not well be forgotten.

"Mr. Tompkins was in the habit of spending a good deal of time away from home, and the impression of my father and myself was that he was recuperating in Florida. He went and returned without notice, and his domestics, being used to his ways, never troubled themselves at his absence, while at the same time they were exceedingly careful to have everything ready for his reception whenever he might return. Neither to me nor to my father did he ever utter any explanation of his absences from home or make any allusion to them whatsoever.

"One day Mr. Tompkins came to our office and asked for my father. He was not in just then, and Mr. Tompkins sat down and talked with me. He asked me how I had spent my time at college and about my associates and my age and many other things. After a pause which lasted some moments he said:

"'You have reached that age when you should marry. The best thing in the world for you is to get a wife as soon as you can take care of one. A man is safer when he marries early.'

"I looked out of the window and saw my father coming toward the office.

"'My father is coming,' I said.

"Mr. Tompkins arose and glanced toward the street. Then he stepped to one side and appeared to me to be brushing something off his coat sleeve. The next instant he wheeled right round, staggered and fell. My father entered just at the time, and both of us hastened to raise Mr. Tompkins and place him on a chair. We sent for his physician right away, and when he came he said that Mr. Tompkins was suffering from an attack of apoplexy. He was conveyed to his home, and the best attendance was procured for him.

"My father's impression was that his client had come to see him on some important business, for he never visited the office unless a matter in which he was deeply and anxiously interested impelled him to do so. His usual custom was to send his carriage for my father when he desired to consult him. What the subject could be which induced Mr. Tompkins to visit the office that morning neither my father nor I could divine.

"We talked over the incident long and carefully, and in the course of the conversation I mentioned to my father some facts which it had not struck me before were of sufficient importance to mention. It was not often that at that time in my history I visited New York. In fact, up to the time of which I speak I had been to the city only twice. It was a circumstance which occurred on my last visit that I mentioned to my father. The business that took me to the city was in relation to some documents affecting wooded lands up the state in which a client was interested. I met an old college friend, and one day he and I went down to Long Branch together. After taking in the sights we were naturally hungry and went to the best hotel we could select. Seated at a table near to us was a party consisting of an elderly gentleman and lady and several young people of both sexes, ranging from 5 to 18 years. The gentleman was seated with his back to me, and it struck me that I was familiar with the contour of the head. I tried hard to get a sight of the face, but did not succeed until I was leaving, when I so managed as to procure a pretty good view of the gentleman's countenance.

"'Why,' said I to my friend, 'that is Mr. Tompkins, an old client of my father.'

"I faced round and looked the gentleman square in the eye, but he never winced or gave the slightest indication of recognition. Then I went away with my mind in a turmoil. If I had been called upon to swear to the man's identity in a court of law, I would have done so without hesitation but for the fact that, though returning my glance with one as prolonged and steady as my own, he had shown no sign of recognition.

"Now, I needn't tell you how my father and myself began to speculate or what thoughts were exchanged. Suffice to say that none of our surmises approached the truth.

"And now, to go back to Mr. Tompkins' sudden seizure and the events which followed. Of course our inquiries after the sick man were frequent, and my father called several times, but Mr. Tompkins did not for some time recover consciousness. At length he began to evince some slight intelligence, and my father or myself was thereafter with him day and night, so that if he recovered his senses we might be ready to do anything for him he might desire in relation to the arrangement of his affairs. He had no relatives near at hand and, in fact, none with whom he ever directly communicated. He had a younger brother who had disgraced himself and been a convict and was occasionally helped through us by Mr. Tompkins, but always in so indirect a manner as to prevent his discovering the whereabouts of his benefactor. So far as we knew, Mr. Tompkins had made no will, and yet we knew that he must be worth over $1,500,000.

"But I will come to the occurrence to which I alluded at the outset. I was sitting in the sick man's room one night reading before the fire. He grew restless, and I arose and saw that he was moving and struggling as though trying to rise. I spoke to him, and he tried hard to respond and gripped my hand with extraordinary vigor for so sick a person. Seeing that he was using every exertion to sit up in bed, I helped him as well as I could, but just as he had acquired an apparently upright position his frame relaxed, and he fell back. I stood by him for some minutes, and, as he seemed to be breathing easily, I resumed my place at the fireside, once and again casting a glance at the bed.

"Suddenly I experienced a strange sensation, and, on looking up, I saw a spectral figure standing right opposite me. I rose with an exclamation of surprise and approached the form, wondering how the sick man could have left his bed and passed me without my having observed him. I did not lose my presence of mind, but took a step toward the dimly outlined figure. Then I saw that one hand was pointing toward a small, old fashioned desk which stood on the top of a bookcase. As my eye followed the direction indicated the form disappeared. I turned, expecting to see the figure moving toward the bed. Nothing, however, was visible. I went to the bed and gazed upon a corpse!

"The man was dead beyond question. I summoned the housekeeper and other attendants, and when the body was properly disposed all of us quitted the room. I locked the door and gave the key into the custody of the housekeeper, directing her to allow no one to enter the room until my father came next day with the undertaker.

"Next morning I accompanied my father to the house. I had already informed him what had occurred, and as soon as some other matters were arranged my father took the desk, and we retired to another room. On opening the desk there was apparently nothing in it but a quire of note paper. We made a close examination; but, as it was simply a desk to be carried in the hand or in a trunk, we found nothing that would indicate any secret drawer. I took up the note paper and carelessly turned over the sheets. A surprise was in store, for on the inside sheet there was writing. It turned out to be the holographic will of the deceased—that is, a will wholly written by himself. It bore date the very day when he last visited our office and was struck down by apoplexy.

"The will left all in trust to a certain woman for the benefit of the testator's five children, mentioned by name, with their places of abode. The name of the trustee I cannot, of course, mention, nor would it be right to give the address. The will was duly admitted to probate. The trustee did not bear the name of the testator, but all the children did.

"How do I account for the spectral form? Well, I think he had felt symptoms of the attack which carried him off and wrote the will and came directly to our office, intending to inform my father of the fact of its existence. At the point of separation from the body the spirit obeyed the last impulse of the dying man."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Children and Rivers.

"One of the hardest things I have to do," says a Boston schoolteacher, "is to get into my children's heads the notion that the streams rise in the mountains and flow toward the sea. It is next to impossible to make some of them comprehend anything about it. They see no reason why the river should not rise in the sea and flow into the mountains. Most of them have never seen a flowing stream. Many of them have seen the Charles river, and if they have noticed anything about it they have observed that it is just as apt to flow from the ocean as toward it.

"A babbling brook running down over little slopes and rapids or tumbling from the hill to the plain in cataracts is unknown to them. I have to resort to all sorts of images and illustrations to make them comprehend the idea of springs gushing from the hills, descending, joining, still seeking a lower level, and at last finding the sea. And then they don't comprehend it!"

A Unique Introduction.

One day when calling upon Gambetta I found him vastly amused over a visit which he had received a few minutes previously from the late General Meredith Read, who for a number of years was United States envoy at Athens.

Then general, who until that time had been a perfect stranger to the great French statesman, had entered the latter's presence, carrying in his hand a volume entitled "Men of the Time," or some work of the kind. This he opened, without saying a word, and laid on Gambetta's desk before attempting to greet him or to explain the purpose of his call.

Then, pointing to a column which contained a very eulogistic biographical notice of himself, he exclaimed, "Kindly read that," and when Gambetta, who read English with the utmost facility, had, in compliance with the request, cast his eye over the page in question, General Read rose from his chair, and with a bow to Gambetta pointed to himself, exclaiming in tones of pardonable pride, "C'est moi."

Then, and not until then, did he extend his hand to the great tribune, who, having meanwhile risen from his chair, expressed his pleasure at making the acquaintance of so distinguished an officer, who had rendered such valuable services to the United States.

Gambetta informed me that in the whole of his long experience of public life he had never known a man to introduce himself in so delightfully original a manner.—Chronicle.

Must Have Had Experience.

When Dr. Thompson, a distinguished Scotch clergyman, was minister of Markinch, he happened to preach from the text, "Look not upon the wine when it is red in the cup," from which he made a most eloquent and impressive discourse against drunkenness, stating its evil effects on the heart, head and purse. Several of his observations were leveled at two cronies with whom he was well acquainted who frequently poured out libations to the rosy god. At the dismissal of the congregation the two friends met, the doctor being close behind them.

"Did you hear, Johnnie?" quoth the one.

"Did I hear't? Wha' didna hear't? I ne'er winked an e'e the haill sermon."

"Aweel, an what thought ye o't?"

"Adeed, Davie, I think he has been a lad in his day, or he couldna sea weel about it. Ah, he's been a slee hand, the meenister." — Kansas City Independent.

BLIND, OH, SO BLIND!

Isn't it strange how people
 Gaze with enraptured face
On the cunning work of the painter
 Limning sweet nature's grace,
And yet with eyes that see not
 Nor souls that beauty find,
Live in the world the painter paints,
 Blind, oh, so blind?

Isn't it strange how people
 Thrill in the keenest way
To the stories of life and its living
 Told in book or in play,
And yet, with darkened vision,
 To naught of their charm inclined,
Live in the world where the stories live,
 Blind, oh, so blind?

THE BOSS DREW THE LINE.

Trading With a Corpse Was Not Allowed In His Camp.

The boss of the lumber camp refilled his pipe and lighted it.

"Yes," said he, "I drew the line on that.

"We had a man die in camp this winter. He lived just over the boundary. Nice feller he was, too—thrifty and all that. Every one liked him. Sorry to have him go. But after he was gone we did the best we knew how. Fixed the body up and sent two of the men out with it.

"He had bought a new pair of boots at the wongan camp two weeks before he died, and we thought it would be only right to put those boots on. So we did. The men started away and came back in three days. One of the men was wearin them new boots. The other feller gave it away. Said that just before they got to the house with the deceased the critter pulled them boots off the corpse and swapped. Other feller didn't like it, and said so. But the critter allowed that he had had some talk with the corpse about swappin a few days before he died. Corpse had allowed that the new boots hurt his corns and said that a pair that had been broken in would do better. Critter said that he couldn't bear to think of deceased bein buried in a pair of boots that hurt his feet. He said that he should wake up in the night, suttin, and think about the thing.

"Waal, course there was somethin in what he said, but as there warn't no way of gettin at the deceased's side of the matter, I concluded that I wouldn't let that trade stand. There's a good many things that go in this camp all right, but dickerin with dead men ain't one of 'em. I draw the line right there, and draw it sharp. I made that feller send them boots back. The deceased has still got the critter's old ones. The feller had to go to the wongan and get some new ones. And that's so much more for the company and a commission for me. 'Twarn't bad all round. When the feller got to jawin about the thing I told him he could still have the comfort of knowin that deceased wasn't wearin tight boots."—Lewiston Journal.

Harder to Say No Than Yes.

He was a most worthy young man, with a fondness for discussing sociological and moral questions, and once started on his hobby he could scarcely be headed in any other direction. He had been quite devoted in his attention to one young woman for as much as six months, but she had been unable to bring him to his senses, though she was willing to confess that she had tried repeatedly to do so. Of course she had done it in the delicate ways women have in those matters, but what he needed was a club.

Not a great while ago he was calling as usual, and as usual he was neglecting sentiment for something that only made a girl tired. This time he was moralizing on the temptations of life and the proneness of people to yield without making the proper effort against them in whatever form they might appear.

"However," he said in conclusion, displaying a commendable spirit of charity for the weak, "it is a very difficult thing for any one to say 'No.'"

Here was an unexpected chance for her.

"And conversely," she responded slowly so he could get the full force of it, "it should be very easy for one to say 'Yes.'"

He looked her straight in the eyes at last, and a hush fell upon the scene.

"Um-er-um," he hesitated, "Miss Kate, am I a chump?"

"It is very difficult for one to say 'No,'" she said with a pretty little smile, and later she found it quite easy to say "Yes."—Washington Star.

His Genial Reception.

General Starr, a gallant old soldier, had an irrepressible dislike for young lieutenants fresh from West Point. In 1874 General Starr was in command at Fort Riley, and one day an orderly came to his quarters with the message that Lieutenant Morrison, just from West Point, was at the post ready to pay his respects and report for duty. In response to this message the old general was starting for his office, when his wife, a motherly old soul, plucked him by the sleeve and said, "Now, general, promise me that you won't be rough with that young man."

"Rough?" said the old man, smiling amiably upon his matrimonial companion. "Why, I'll be peaches and cream unless the young dog riles me."

Reaching his office, the general was confronted with a dapper little fellow as spick and span as though he had just come from the hands of his barber and tailor, while he had the half supercilious air that seems inseparable from the first stages of military education.

Looking the young lieutenant over for half a moment, the old general said with great dignity: "How do you do, Mr. Morrison. I am pleased to see you." Then as a flush gradually mounted over his weather beaten features he added: "I am always glad to see you young men from the Military academy. You—you—(here the general ended with a roar) you think yourself so hanged smart!"—Kansas City Journal.

Tired Metals.

It is a fact of comparatively recent discovery in chemical metallurgy that metals lose their vitality from repetitions of shocks and strains and may be said, as the expression is, to suffer from fatigue—that is, they may be worked till their molecules fail to hold together.

As is familiarly known, bars of tin, rods of brass and wires of any metal will separate owing to fatigue if bent backward and forward continuously. But by careful experiments, however, the fact is made to appear that a remedy exists for this condition of metals if the overstrain does not border on rupture, and this remedy is very much like that which is applied in the case of an overworked human frame—namely, rest.

Feather edged tools recover their vitality better than any other. Of course the length of time required for this rest varies with different metals and the amount of strain to which they have been subjected.

Hard metals, such as iron and steel, use up one and two years' time in the process. On the other hand, soft metals, like lead, retain their cohesive force longer and also require less rest.—Pearson's Weekly.

It Dazzles the World.

No discovery in medicine has ever created one quarter of the excitment that has been caused by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. It's severest tests have been on hopeless victims of consumption, pneumonia, hemorrhage, pleurisy and bronchitis, thousands of whom it has restored to perfect health. For coughs, colds, asthma, croup, hay fever, hoarseness and whooping cough it is the quickest, surest cure in the world. It is sold by Grover who guarantees satisfaction or refunds money. Large bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free.

A Practical Joke.

He was a wag and was passing a large draper's shop in Manchester. There, drawn up, were three or four vehicles, and among them was a closed brougham with the driver fast asleep on the box. Evidently the mistress was inside the shop. Without a word the wag stole quickly up and, opening the carriage door, carefully slammed it to. In an instant the coachman straightened himself up and gazed up the street as if he had never seen anything more interesting to look at in his life. Then he stole a look over his shoulder and saw the wag standing, hat in hand, apparently conversing with some one inside the carriage.

"Thank you, yes. Good morning," said the practical joker and bowed himself gracefully away from the door, turning as he did so to look at the coachman and say, "Home!"

"Yes, sir! Tch! Get up!" and away went the brougham "home."

Where that "home" was, who the mistress of the carriage was or what she did or said when she came out of the shop or what the coachman did or said when he stopped at the door of "home" and found the carriage empty—all that only the coachman and the lady know.—London Tit-Bits.

Notice to Wheelmen.

There's positively no need to endure discomfort by reason of chafing, sunburn, insect stings, sore and perspiring feet or accidental bruises. You forget these troubles in using Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Infallible for pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and piles. Sold by Grover, 25 cents.

NATURE'S CURE

It Makes Restful Sleep.

Sleeplessness almost invariably accompanies constipation and its manifold attendant evils—nervous disorders, indigestion, headache, loss of appetite, etc. To attempt to induce sleep by opiates is a serious mistake, for the brain is only benumbed and the body suffers. Celery King removes the cause of wakefulness by its soothing effect on the nerves and on the stomach and bowels.

LESSON I, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 7.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. i, 1 to ii, 3. Memory Verses, 26, 27—Golden Text, Gen. i, 1—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

It is very refreshing to turn after so long a time in our studies to the beginning of this heavenly book, God's own beginning of His own book, but how to say just a little of what ought to be said on so large and important a portion in so brief a space is difficult. The Bible begins and ends with a perfect condition of things on earth (Gen. i and ii; Rev. xxi and xxii), no sin, no curse, no sorrow, no suffering, no devil visible. Gen. iii introduces us to the adversary, and Rev. xx tells of his final destiny.

1. A sublime and simple statement of how the world was made. Compare Ps. xxxiii, 6, 9; Jer. xxxii, 17. As to the one by whom God did it all see John i, 1-3; Col. i, 14-16. The word here translated God is a plural word, and we may see here the Trinity. Not only find comfort in the power of our Lord and Saviour, but what you cannot begin with God do not begin at all, whether a book or letter or transaction.

2. Waste and void and darkness (see R. V.) are not suggestive of God, and Isa. xlv, 18, R. V., says that God did not make the earth a waste. The first verse is a dateless verse and tells us of what God did perhaps tens or hundreds of thousands of years ago. The second verse tells us of how things were some 6,000 years ago when God began to bring order and beauty and fruitfulness out of the chaos and darkness. The interval between the first and second verses gives room for all the geological periods which may be desired.

3-5. The words "and God said," used ten times in this chapter, tell us of the word of God by which or by whom all things were made. The Spirit of God is the great worker and the word of God is the great instrument by which God accomplishes all things. So the two phrases, "the Spirit of God moved" and "God said," tell how God does all His work in nature or in grace. As to light coming by the word, see II Cor. iv, 6; Ps. cxix, 130, and on the division between light and darkness see II Cor. vi, 14..

6-8. The second day's work is a firmament or expanse, not something solid, but something thin or rare, dividing waters above from waters below. I am willing to believe that these six days were six ordinary days, as any simple person would suppose from Ex. xx, 11, and that God did on each day just what He says He did. The simplest way of reading Scripture is the best (Math. xi, 25). The practical lessons for the heart and life all through this portion are very simple and helpful. Verse 2 describes the heart and life of every unsaved person, and the first day's work is suggestive of the new birth and the division that at once begins to be made manifest in the life. The second day's work suggests how the life is to be nourished not by waters below, but by waters above, and is illustrated by Jer. ii, 13; John iv, 13, 14; Rev. xxi, 6; xxii, 17.

9-13. On the third day the dry land is made to appear, and He covers it with grass, herbs and trees. The suggestion for the believer is that of a resurrection life and fruitfulness and is set forth in such passages as Col. iii, 1-4; Phil. i, 11; iii, 10; John xv, 1-11. The seed and fruit after his kind whose seed is in itself reminds us that flesh produces only that which is fleshly, and the spiritual can only come by the Spirit. Grapes do not grow on thorns, nor figs on thistles (John iii, 6; Math. vii, 16). The association of the third day and resurrection is seen in the stories of Isaac and Jonah and the marriage in Cana (Gen. xxii, 4; Math. xii, 40; John ii, 1), also in Hos. vi, 2.

14-19. On the fourth day the sun, moon and stars are appointed for signs, seasons, days and years, to be lights in the firmament and to rule over the day and night. We think of them in connection with seasons, days and years, but are not apt to consider that they are signs, and when attention is called to Jer. xxxi, 35, 36; xxxiii, 20, 21, and that Israel is always a nation before God some people are greatly astonished. The sun turns our attention to the Lord God as our sun and shield and to the time when the righteous shall shine forth as the sun (Ps. lxxxiv, 11; Math. xiii, 43). The moon, which is said to be a ruin of nature and reflects upon us the light of the sun, tells us how we are to let our light shine that God may be glorified, by living in His light and abiding in His love, by seeing Jesus only.

20-23. The fifth day shows us the waters and the air, with abundance of fishes and fowl, and command given them to be fruitful and multiply and fill the waters and multiply in the earth. The fifth day is associated with blessing and abundant multiplication, for here the words are first used, and we cannot but think of Prov. x, 22, R. V., "The blessing of the Lord maketh rich, and toil addeth nothing thereto;" of His blessing which gave Israel a three years' crop in the sixth year and fed abundantly 5,000 men with five loaves.

24-31. On the sixth day cattle and creeping things and beasts of the earth are made, and man in the image of God, male and female, to have dominion over all; man made of the dust of the earth, a full grown, perfect man, and woman made of a part of man's body and given to him to be a helpmeet for him; and He called their name Adam (chapters ii and v, 1, 2). The Spirit tells us by Paul in Eph. v, 30-32, that Adam and Eve are typical of Christ and the church, and the Spirit elsewhere teaches us that as Eve was builded out of Adam by his sleep (Gen. ii, 21, 22, margin), so by virtue of the death and resurrection of Christ, the true Eve, the church is now being builded out of Him, and, when completed, shall be brought to Him, and there shall be a marriage and then the kingdom (Rev. xix, 7; Dan. vii, 27).

ii, 1-3. This portion tells us that on the seventh day God ended and rested from His work and blessed the seventh day and sanctified it. We have the practical teaching in Heb. iv, where we learn that we can only enter into rest when we cease from our own works as God did from His. Thus we may daily enjoy a constant Sabbath while we wait for the rest that remaineth. As to keeping one day in seven wholly for God, I know of no better instruction than Isa. lviii, 13, 14. In this section of Genesis the only name of Deity is God used just 35 times, or 5 by 7, signifying abundant perfection, and when God becomes all in all in us, as He is in this portion, we shall be abundantly perfected.

A MOTHER IN ISRAEL.

THE MOTHER OF "BEN HUR" DIES FULL OF YEARS AND HONORS.

A Woman Who Was Beloved in the North, South, East and West—Her Views on Women's Sphere and the Movement for Equal Suffrage.

Mrs. Zerelda G. Wallace, from whom Gen. Lew Wallace says that he drew the portrait of the mother in "Ben Hur," has just died at the age of 84.

In sincerity, in unselfishness, in moral earnestness, in broad views, and a lofty conception of life, she stood head and shoulders above the mass of her contemporaries. Her character had about it a certain antique majesty, which was yet compatible with the most perfect simplicity, modesty, and kindness. She seemed to tower above the average of frivolous and thoughtless humanity like a cedar of Lebanon above the dwarf pines that the Japanese grow in flower-pots. Gentle and unassuming in her manners, plain and often unfashionable in her dress, she yet impressed every one profoundly by something which they would probably have found it hard to define, but which was the granite strength and genuine nobility of her character.

She brought up two large families of children, her own and those of her husband's first wife. How well she did it her step-son has shown to the world in his famous novel. After the nestlings were grown and flown, and she was free to devote herself to other work, Mrs. Wallace became one of the most effective lecturers in America on equal suffrage and other reforms. She traveled all over the country, everywhere finding her welcome prepared in advance by the beautiful picture that General Wallace had drawn of her ideal motherhood, in a book which everybody had read. Double weight was given to her plea for women's public duties by the knowledge how admirably she had performed her own private duties. Legislatures, immense gatherings of conservative Southerners, great audiences of all sorts, listened to her with reverence, and applauded her words with enthusiasm.

She dealt with almost every argument of the opponents of equal rights. To the shallow fallacy lately revived by Mrs. Caroline F. Corbin, that equal suffrage means antagonism between men and women, Mrs. Wallace answered:

"I think the animus of this movement for woman's freedom has been largely misunderstood, through the idea that it meant competition between women and men. To my thought, it simply means co-operation in the work of the world."

To the argument of Dr Lyman Abbott that women cannot fight, Mrs. Wallace replied:

"This is a mistake; women can fight. They have led armies. But it is in no degree necessary that women should fight. It is good to have some element in government which does not fight. Such an element will help on the supremacy of spiritual power over brute force, and help usher in the realization of the beatific vision of Isaiah, when a little child shall lead the forces which will find better work to do than cutting each other's throats. Woman's ballot will increase the tendency toward arbitration between nations, and thus hasten the time when they shall learn war no more.

"A gentleman once asked me almost sneeringly, 'What have you women ever done for the State that it should give you the ballot?' We were in a parlor with a company, and I did not care to be drawn into a discussion; but he persisted, till at last I said: 'Napoleon realized fully the value of women to the State when he said, "The great need of France is mothers." If women do not fight, they give to the State all its soldiers. A woman who goes down into the valley of the shadow of death every few years, who gives up her health, her beauty, her means of improvement, her social pleasures, that she may furnish soldiers for the State, certainly does as much for the defence of the State as the father who buys bread and shoes for the children.'"

To the assertion that women can do whatever they wish through their influence upon their sons, Mrs. Wallace said:

"To deprive woman of the right to express her thought with authority at the ballot-box puts a mark of imbecility upon her at once. So far as the government is concerned, we are held in perpetual tutelage—we are minors always; and while good men will act justly toward women in spite of this, it is an excuse for every bad and foolish man to oppress woman, and for every unfledged boy to make a butt of her.

"Think of the effect of this dishonor upon the boys of the land. The mother tries to teach her boy that he must be pure and temperate and honorable, that he must control his passions, and walk as a man among men, if he would succeed in life. That boy goes out from his mother, and the first thing he meets with neutralizes and gives the lie to all his mother's teachings. He says to himself, 'Why, mother says so and so;' but he finds men in high places violating all those teachings, and he begins to conclude that his mother does not know much about it. From that moment that boy discounts his mother's judgment, and though she must still have a hold on his affections, she does not have a hold upon him in any other way. There is where you wrong us, gentlemen, and cripple us in training men who will make the statesmen of this nation.

"It may be said of this beautiful country, 'United we stand, divided we fall.' It is the same with men and women. Women without men would be frivolous and vain, and men without women would go back to barbarism. But if we work together, not in competition, but in co-operation and in harmony, we shall bring the race to its ultimate inheritance."

What Russia Is Like.

In Russia everything is large and everything is loud. Moscow is like an immense village, and everything in it is built broad, not high, because there is so much space to cover. The public squares, unpaved and surrounded by a little rim of cobbles, are as big as meadows. The arcades and passages, with their cellars below, their shops above, their glass roofs, are so enormous that they could hold the Passage des Panoramas and the Burlington Arcade and the galleries at Milan without filling more than a corner of them.

Colors shriek and flame; the Muscovite eyes sees only by emphasis and by contrast; red is completed either by another red or by a bright blue. There are no shades, no reticences, no modulations. The restaurants are filled with the din of vast mechanical organs, with drums and cymbals; a great bell clashes against a chain on all the trams to clear the road; the music which one hears is a ferocity of brass.

The masons who build the houses build in top boots, red shirts and pink trousers; the houses are painted red or green or blue; the churches are like the temples of savage idols, tortured into every unnatural shape and colored with glaring color. Bare feet, osier sandals and legs swathed in rags pass to and fro among the top boots of the middle classes, the patent leather boots of the upper classes, like the inner savagery of a race still so near barbarism, made evident in that survival of the footgear of primitive races.—Saturday Review.

The Senate's Hole In the Wall.

When the nineteenth century was as yet only half grown, senators applied customarily for their toddies at the so called Hole In the Wall, a small circular room just off the postoffice of the upper house. The latter body, as will be remembered, then occupied what is now the chamber of the supreme court, and the postoffice was across the main corridor of the building on the same floor. When a wearer of the toga found himself in need of a "shifter," he had only to cross over to the mails department and pass through it to the little circular room aforesaid, which was about the size of a pantry.

The Hole In the Wall was the first senate restaurant, and the bill of fare for edibles was short, though to the point. There were ham, guaranteed to have been smoked for six months, a veritable sublimation of the pork product; likewise corned beef and bread and cheese, but very little else. They served, however, as an accompaniment for the fluids, and when the Hole was crowded, as was often the case, senators ate their sandwiches outside, in the postoffice.—Washington Post.

Paternalism.

"What do you think of this idea of government ownership of everything?"

"I don't like it," answered the apprehensive citizen. "It's paternalism."

"And paternalism is particularly objectionable to you?"

"Yes, sir. I have the highest admiration and respect for this government, and when I think of the superior ways of young people who have just been educated I must say I don't want to see it treated like a father."—Washington Star.

Cure for Cholera Infantum—Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. GAS RANGE.

A Gas Range will do all the work that the best coal range will do and it will save you money. It also does away with much work and worry.

The Economy of the Gas Stove is show below in a few tests:

COMPARISON OF PERCENTAGE IN LOSS AFTER COOKING.

GAS.		COAL.
Cost 35 cents.	—FISH—	Cost 35 cents.
Product 28 1-2		Product 24 3-4
Loss 6 1-2 cents.		Loss 10 1-4 cents.
	—BEEF—
Cost 166 1-2		Cost 169 7-8
Product 138 3-8		Product 117
Loss 23 1-8 cents.		Loss 52 7-8 cents.

Saving of Gas Stove over Coal range, ... 24 3-4 cents.

The saving in food on Fish and Roast Beef for one Dinner was 28 1-2 cents.

This shows a great saving in food cooked by Gas Range and as this occurs in nearly every dish that is cooked the saving in pounds of food in the course of one year, is something enormous. A Gas Range will do its work a great deal quicker than a coal range and does not heat the house when cooking. A Gas Range can be run so that nearly all the heat generated can be put into food being cooked. The difference in labor between working over a coal range in a hot kitchen and Gas Range in a Cool Kitchen, is worth more than the price of either coal or gas.

We can put an attachment on your hot water boiler, that can be run independent of either coal or gas range. that will give hot water all over the house in a few minutes, so that Hot Water can be used in Bath at any moment if there has not been a fire in range for 12 months.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WHEN DOGS ARE SICK.

The Way to Give Medicine to These Highly Sensitive Patients.

In all treatment of a sick dog remember you are dealing with a highly sensitive and nervous patient. Be very gentle, avoid roughness or anything likely to alarm him. In giving him any liquid medicine do not open his mouth, but, placing him between your knees, with his face looking in the same direction as your own, gently raise his jaw and, pulling his lips away from his teeth on one side of his mouth, to form a cup or funnel, very slowly pour from bottle or spoon the quantity he is to have into it.

Keep his head raised for a minute or two and if he does not swallow the dose insert a spoon between his front teeth. This will have the effect of drawing off his attention from the medicine and he will usually swallow at once. If the dose is a pill, bolus or anything solid, hold his head the same way as before mentioned, but with the left hand under lower jaw, press firmly on each side with thumb and finger at the junction of upper and lower jaws.

This will usually cause him to open his mouth, when the dose should be put into the mouth as far back as possible over the tongue (or he will spit it out) and close the jaws somewhat sharply, and in most cases the deed is done. If any trouble arises with the action of his front paws this may be got over by wrapping him round with a shawl or coarse apron.

When once you have got into the way of it, you will be surprised how simple it is. I am quite sure a practiced owner or kennelsman would dose a dozen dogs while a novice was making a bungle over one.—"All About Dogs," by Charles Henry Lane.

THE COLLAR BUTTON.

Its Blessings Realized Only by Those Who Have Lived Without It.

"In looking over a trunk full of old truck the other day," said the elderly man, "I came across a lot of old shirts with the buttons sewed on, and as I looked at them I realized anew what the collar button means to humanity. There have been greater inventions, surely, but not many that have conferred a more unmixed blessing on mankind.

"The younger person of today, accustomed to the collar button always, cannot realize what it was to be without it. He can never know what it was to have shirts with the buttons sewed on—or not, as the case might be. Not so very many years ago, when the collar button was yet comparatively new, before persons had come to keep, as everybody commonly does now, a lot of buttons on hand, the man who had lost his collar button thought himself entitled to the sympathy of his fellows, but wrung as he might be by that loss he could not even guess at the anguish that in the sewed on button days filled the heart of the man who, when he came to put on his last clean shirt, found that key button, the one on the collar band, most important one of all, gone entirely or only just hanging by a thread!

"I knew a man once who had this happen to him and didn't swear. That was the only great thing he ever did, but I have always thought that that alone was enough to stamp him as a most extraordinary man."—New York Sun.

Ditched the Bishop.

"I remember once driving across the country with Bishop ——," writes Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady of "A Missionary In the Great West" in the Ladies' Home Journal, "while discussing the nature of the soul. That is, the bishop was discussing. I was only prompting by a question now and then. We were on the rear seat of a wagon, with the driver on the front seat. It was a very dark night. In the middle of the bishop's exposition the wagon took a wild plunge, there was a crash, and over we went into the muddy ditch.

"'I beg your pardon, gents!' said the driver, who had retained control of the horses as we scrambled to our feet. 'I was so interested in hearin the man discussin my immortal soul, which I hardly ever knowed that I had one before, that I clean forgot where we was and drove you plump into the ditch.'"

Economy.

"What's this?" exclaimed the young husband, referring to the memorandum she had given him. "One dozen eggs, one pound of raisins, a bottle of lemon extract, a tin of ground cinnamon and half a pound of sugar—what do you want with all these things, Belinda?"

"I've got a stale loaf," replied the young wife, "that I'm going to save by working it up into a bread pudding. I never let anything go to waste, Henry."—London Fun.

One of Mozart's Outbreaks.

Mozart, being once on a visit at Marseilles, went incognito to hear the performance of his "Villanella Rapita." He had reason to be tolerably well satisfied, till, in the midst of the principal aria, the orchestra, through some error in the copying of the score, sounded a D natural where the composer had written D sharp. This substitution did not injure the harmony, but gave a commonplace character to the phrase, and obscured the sentiment of the composer.

Mozart no sooner heard it than he started up vehemently, and, from the middle of the pit, cried out in a voice of thunder: "Will you play D sharp, you wretches?"

The sensation produced in the theater may be imagined. The actors were astounded, the lady who was singing stopped short, the orchestra followed her example, and the audience, with loud exclamations, demanded the expulsion of the offender. He was accordingly seized, and required to name himself. He did so, and at the name of Mozart the clamor subsided, and was succeeded by shouts of applause from all sides.

It was insisted that the opera should be recommenced. Mozart was installed in the orchestra, and directed the whole performance. This time the D sharp was played in its proper place, and the musicians themselves were surprised at the superior effect produced. After the opera Mozart was conducted in triumph to his hotel.

Too Much Burns.

Charles Mackay once told this story in connection with a Burns memorial: Mackay had promised to collect shillings for some monument to the honor of Burns, and he applied with confidence for a subscription to an Englishman who had represented in parliament for many years a certain Scottish borough.

"No," said Mr. Fortescue Harrison. "I am no longer in parliament, and I have now much pleasure in refusing to subscribe the shilling which in former days I should have been obliged to give. What I have suffered through Burns heaven alone can tell! First, I had to praise him in the most fulsome manner, without having read his works. Then I had to learn to recite portions of his poems by heart, and in doing so to give the verses as much as possible with a Scotch accent. I have had to walk without my hat and with the rain pouring down upon my unprotected head as leader of a procession in honor of Burns, and under these circumstances I refuse with genuine delight to give a shilling or any smaller sum to the object you have in view."

Why Franklin Did Not Write It.

"It has always been a curious puzzle why Franklin, the man of ripe age, of commanding distinction and of approved literary skill, was not selected to write the Declaration instead of Thomas Jefferson, then only 33 years old and comparatively unknown," says John Gilmer Speed in The Saturday Evening Post. "It could not be that Franklin was passed by because he had done everything in his power to avert the war and reconcile the differences between the colonies and the mother country, for all wise men in the colonies did all that honor permitted in that direction until the die was cast. No; it was not a fear of Franklin's earnestness in the cause of the colonies. It was probably the fear of Franklin's humor.

"He was not only the greatest man of his time, but he was one of the greatest humorists of any time. And so his associates were possibly afraid that he would put a joke in the Declaration and passed him by and selected the lank young Virginian with the freckled face.

"As it was, Franklin did have his joke, for when the members of congress were about to sign the Declaration Hancock, whose earnestness is expressed in the bold signature which comes first, said in his own earnest way: 'We must be unanimous. There must be no pulling different ways. We must all hang together.'

"'Yes,' replied Franklin; 'we must hang together, or we shall be pretty sure to hang separately.'"

A Divinity Student Routed.

"One day we were traveling across the plains in the caboose of a freight train," writes Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady of his experiences as "A Missionary In the Great West" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "A young divinity student was with us. He was one of the ambitious kind of divinity students who wreck a parish or two when they begin and finally drift upon the ecclesiastical bargain counter. He was ready to argue about anything with anybody.

"A greasy, dilapidated looking tramp came into the caboose at one of the stations at the end of a division and presently engaged in a heated discussion with the young theologue on the disadvantages of education. He maintained the affirmative—that the less a man knew and the less education he had the happier he was—with so much skill and adroitness and showed such mastery of logic and literature that he routed the poor boy—horse, foot and dragoons—so effectively that the young man rose and went out on the platform to hide his chagrin, leaving the supposed tramp chuckling over his pipe in huge enjoyment at his easy victory.

"The bishop had listened without saying a word, and when the student left he turned to the man and inquired sharply, 'What college do you come from, sir?' 'Yale!' answered the man without thinking. The unlucky admission destroyed the man's argument, for he was a living example of the fallacy of his own proposition."

No Joke In That.

"You Americans," said the London young man as he stopped sucking his cane, "are always insinuating that we Englishmen don't know what a real joke is. Now, just hold your sides while I go over this one which I read in a home paper a week ago:

"'The Countess—M'lord, you were at the grand dinner last night, were you not? Just awhile ago I heard one of those vulgar Americans make the remark that this morning you had a big head.

"'The Duke—But, m'lady, there's nothing in it.'"

The American looked as sober as a criminal court judge.

"Well?" he asked.

"Don't you see," explained the disgusted Britisher, poking the other in the ribs with his cane, "the countess says some one accused her companion (ha!) of having a big head (ha, ha!), and he declares (p-ah, ha!) there's nothing in it!"

"Yes, but"—

"Blarsted idiocy, but what?"

"Her companion was a duke."

"Yes."

"And not any different from the rest of the English nobility?"

"No. But the joke, the joke! It is so adroitly put. In apparent inadvertence (desperately) the duke admits there is nothing in his head! Now, do you see?"

"Well, it's a little strange that the duke could make such a frank and candid admission, but—where does the joke come in?"—Brooklyn Life.

Rapid Progress.

"I must say, doctor, that in the past ten years the science of medicine has made no progress at all."

"Excuse me—no progress? Formerly I got only $1 per visit, and now I get $3."

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial, for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. Bear in mind that every bottle is warranted, and if it does not prove beneficial the money will be refunded to you. For sale by Young & Brown.

Can Reciprocate.

Representative S. W. Twombly has been the recipient of congratulations from many of Medford's prominent citizens for his work in the House and particularly for looking after that city's interest. Wards three and five of that city, who have the choice of the next representative from this district, can reciprocate by nominating Mr. Twombly. Such action would be pleasing to Winchester, and also, no doubt, to that gentleman.

Increase in Travel by Electrics.

Only a short time ago the cars on the No. Woburn electric railroad were run half hourly, with plenty of room for passengers. Sundays and holidays the time is fifteen minutes, two cars at a time, and on many of the trips the running boards are not sufficient to accommodate the overflow. It is only a question of a short time when it will be found necessary to have double tracks on this road and also on the Arlington and Winchester to handle the increased business.

A Good Samaritan.

There are scores of people in Winchester, who, by experience, are familiar with the great benefits of the Visiting Nurse Association, and stand ready to pronounce it one of the best institutions the town ever had. These people are unquestionably right, for the association is a grand good thing, especially for the poor who cannot afford the continuous services of a nurse. It is in emergency cases, perhaps, where the best results are attained. Last week when a man was thrown from his wagon in a collision on Main street with a trolley car, one of the nurses of this association, Miss Enholm, was early on the scene with Dr. Eaton, ministering unto the unconscious man. The ability and intelligence displayed by this nurse in the treatment of the injured man was remarkable. After he had been attended to temporarily, he was placed in a carriage and, accompanied by the nurse, was taken to the hospital in Boston. But before starting on the journey Miss Enholm took with her a supply of water, towels, stimulants and other necessaries to sustain the badly injured man during the long ride to the hospital. This showed rare thoughtfulness on the part of the nurse, and causes one to wonder what would have been the suffering of this man and the prospect of his recovery had there been no association in this town. This however, is only one instance of it's benefits—they are constant, and as a rule the public hears but little of the work of the nurses. We were prompted to write the above that the public might know of the superior intelligence of these trained nurses.

The Walnut Street Bridge.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Walnut street bridge has been up three weeks and is likely to be up another week according to present indications. No one has been particularly troubled, but suppose a building being moved had obstructed travel at the same place and for the same length of time, what a cry of distress would have been made! The Selectmen's attitude toward obstructing the highway with building moving a few years ago, led to the old Unitarian lot being littered with small houses, which will always disfigure the locality, when there might have been a nice large house moved upon the lot, which would have been an ornament to the neighborhood. The town fathers do not seem to worry much about the Walnut street bridge obstruction, which makes one think it makes a difference who does the obstructing, in reckoning up the enormity of the act.

Miss Ann M. Morton.

Miss Morton passed away Sunday, July 7th, from her home on Eaton street. Although her health had been failing nevertheless valvular heart trouble caused a sudden death.

Funeral services were at the house Tuesday, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. H. E. Hodge, singing by the Schubert, formerly Tremont Quartet of Boston. There were many flowers, two beautiful wreaths and a ivy pillow with the word "Auntie" written upon it, the name by which she was familiarly known. Her early life was at South Paris, Maine, where she is now laid at rest, but for the last twenty years she has resided in Winchester with her niece, Mrs. Edward H. Rice.

She devoted her thoughts, all her energies, in fact her entire life to the comfort of those about her. With the watchful care of a mother she brought up Mrs. Rice from babyhood and likewise her grand-niece, Miss A. Laura Tolman. She leaves in her immediate family two brothers, one in Chicago and the other in South Paris, her former home.

The Schubert Quartette, formerly the Tremont Quartette of Boston, sang several selections. The singing was tender and the voices harmonized to perfection, and it will linger in the memory of all who attended the last sad rites of this lovable woman.

For the Two Most Intelligent Horses in Massachusetts.

To obtain information on this subject "The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals" hereby offers two prizes of fifty and twenty-five dollars to the owners of the most intelligent, un-docked, kind, road or working horses in Massachusetts as shown by signed statements of owners, with photographs of the horses. These statements and photographs must be received by the undersigned on or before October 1, 1901, and will then be referred for decision to a committee of which Arioch Wentworth, Esq., of Boston, has kindly consented to act as chairman, and which is composed of Mr. Wentworth and four other Boston gentlemen deeply interested in promoting the kind treatment of horses.

It is the intention of the Massachusetts Society to print a part and perhaps all the accounts received, with photos of the horses, in cheap book form for wide gratuitous distribution.

Take Them In.

Quite a considerable interest has been displayed by the horse men of New England in the summer meeting of the Breeders' Mile Track Association which is to be holden at Old Orchard July 16 to 18. The purses offered are of sufficient size to attract the fast horses hereabouts and the entries are well filled. The Old Orchard track is in fine condition and with good weather there is every reason to believe that this series of races will be as good as any ever held at Old Orchard.

For those who have never visited this famous resort it is quite in line to say that it is one of the finest beaches on the American coast.

There are ample accommodations of first class order and the modes of amusements are entirely up to date. The Boston and Maine R. R. has placed low rate tickets on sale for this meet, which will include an admission to the races. Ask your ticket agent about them.

Boat Club News.

Mr. H. C. Jealous' boat "Louise" while out on the big pond last Thursday afternoon filled and sank to a level with the water. The boat was towed to the club house by Mr. Chas. Bacon's launch and pumped out. The heavy wind had opened the seams and Mr. Jealous has had her recorked.

The following house rules have been posted at the club house:

"Members must be suitably dressed with shirt and trousers when at the club house.

Running suits and rowing shirts cannot be worn.

Members are also expected to wear street costumes when on the roof garden and in the social hall."

Mr. Edgar N. Metcalf and Mr. Frank Stacey have received new canoes.

The club has purchased a new 16 foot Carlton canoe for the use of the members. There are now six canoes and two skiffs for the use of members.

There will be a meeting of the directors of the Winchester Boat Club this evening to consider a list of applicants for membership.

The work of relaying the worn out rails of the No. Woburn electric road was commenced yesterday at Symmes corner, and is being carried towards the centre. When this is done the rails will be laid from the corner to Medford.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers, to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form. No family should be without it. I keep it in my house at all times." For sale by Young & Brown.

In the afternoon there was a mixed foursomes competition, 18-hole handicap, medal play, which was won by Miss Kennedy and G. L. Huntress, Jr., with a net score of 106.

About a fortnight ago it was reported at these headquarters that the Winchester Boulevard, or Mystic Parkway, from West Medford to Wedgemere, running close to the velvety margin of fair Lake Mystic, the apple of Winchester's eye, was in a semi-ruinous condition, and rapidly becoming one of the things that were. It don't seem possible! But if this one gives out Winchester will have another, or perish in the attempt.—[Woburn Journal.] The parkway was never in better condition than it is today nor as popular. There is only one thing lacking and that is a connection with Woburn.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bradstreet have returned from Newburyport after a most delightful visit among relatives and old friends.

Several gentlemen have asked the STAR this week when Judge Littlefield was going to commence his annual trolley excursions. What can we say, judge?

Mr. H. N. Allen, for some time foreman for Mr. Dexter Blaikie, the carpenter and builder, is now settled in Los Angeles, Cal., where he is overseeing the construction of new buildings. He writes that he likes his new home and that he is happy and prospering.

Monday Mr. W. T. Dotten, Supt. of the Water Department, met with a bad accident and a narrow escape, from his horse becoming frightened on Highland avenue just north of Fells road at that portion of the avenue where it crosses the deep gully. The horse in shying ran into and smashed the wooden fence and fell over into the ditch, taking Mr. Dotten and the carriage with it. The animal was badly cut on the knees with barbed wire, and was also hurt by falling on a boulder. Mr. Dotten was severely shaken up, but fortunately escaped without any bones being broken. Mr. Dotten and the horse are now able to attend to business. The fence has been repaired and strengthened by the Street Department.

Mrs. E. A. Thwing of Hillside avenue has gone to Kennebunkport, Me. ,for the summer.

Mr. Geo. S. Rice and family are at Lands End, Rockport.

Mrs. E. H. Robinson and Mrs. Selina L. Baker are at Kent Lodge, Wolfville, N. S.

The Selectmen transacted no business of public interest Monday evening. This is a reminder that we are now in the midst of the dullest period of the year, and when almost everyone has gone to the mountains, country or seashore.

The Board of Selectmen have ordered the Chief of Police to destroy all unlicensed dogs and to prosecute the owners.

Miss Grace E. Twombly, the thirteen-year old daughter of Mr. Fred W. Twombly and grand-daughter of Mr. S. W. Twombly, was awarded a handsome prize in the form of a bound volume in the Boston Journal painting contest. Miss Twombly is an exceedingly bright young lady, a tasty painter and quick to learn.

The new Grover drug store will be one of the handsomest in this section of the State when the work of renovation is completed.

There is great opportunity in the way of entertainment by the members of the Winchester Boat Club. The new house looks very pretty when illuminated at night.

Attention is called to the notice in another column of the liberal offer of a building lot by Mr. S. C. Small. Anyone with a little push can get a nice lot free.

It is reported that in a few days there will be through cars on the N. Woburn Railroad to Lowell via Wilmington.

Izeria Vienot, a painter in the employ of Mr. Boomer, while at work on a house for Mr. Patrick Holland on Swanton street, Wednesday afternoon, fell from a ladder a distance of 20 feet and broke his leg.

The so-called brown tail moth was seen on the Main street side of Brown-Stanton block and also on the side walk Thursday in large numbers. The moth was white.

Mrs. Mary E. Stanwood is at Beachmont, Me.

Mr. D. B. Badger and family are at Clifton, Mass.

Mr. Preston Pond and family are at Beach Bluff.

Before going on your summer vacation see that you have a supply of paper, pens and ink. Wilson, the stationer, has a complete supply which will meet the wants of everyone. Pleasant street.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Monday, at the Collector's office, Town Hall, a sale of estates for the non-payment of taxes took place. The purchasers were Messrs. Harlow S. Rogers, Selwyn Lynde and Willard Welsh. There were only a few sales, as most all the delinquents had paid their taxes previously.

Edgar J. Rich, Esq., sailed for the old country Wednesday.

A number of business men in the centre are considering a fishing trip for the near future. Last year they had a fine time with plenty of fish.

During the week, the Metropolitan Water Commission have had a party of surveyors taking levels from Mystic dam to Main street, Winchester, to determine how far and how high their dam flows and holds water, the water over which the Commission holds jurisdiction extending as far as their dam flows it. With so much state guardianship, it would seem that the pretty Aberjona could be better taken care of than it is at present, especially at the Winchester end. In their day, Charlestown and Boston took much better care of the Aberjona than Massachusetts has since she adopted her. She has been rather neglected lately and she shows it.

Mrs. W. B. Clarke of Melrose is spending two weeks at Locust Cottage, the guest of Miss Myra Butters.

Mrs. Sarah Butters is passing two weeks at East Norton, at the home of her daughter.

Mr. J. Butterworth has added a fine new awning to his store corner of Main and Swanton street.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. F. H. Nourse is critically ill at his home on Church street. He had a very comfortable night, and his condition is about the same this morning.

On the play-ground an approach to a new bridge to be erected over the Aberjona has been nearly completed this week. The bridge is to be erected near the Walnut street bridge and is to be constructed of iron. It will consist of one single arch and will no doubt put to shame the homely town bridge now under reconstruction. What a pity the town and state could not unite on one good iron bridge for this locality! One good bridge in the proper position would be enough for both town and state.

No seashore resort on the Atlantic coast has a greater regular clientele than Old Orchard. It is remote from the great centres and yet the distance is not so great but what it can be reached easily. Old Orchard is a strange yet delightful mixture of forest and seashore. On one side are deep groves of green pines, on the other a measureless sea view. Where the Camp Meetings are held is a most fascinating spot and the meetings like that of the Christian Workers, which by the way is to be held July 17 to Aug. 1, are over the source of unlimited value from an educational standpoint. Those who have these meetings in charge aim to make them interesting and that they are successful is determined from the vast throngs that attend them. For this series of meetings the Boston & Maine railroad has arranged the usual low rates and information regarding them will be gladly furnished by your ticket agent.

When a Kiss Was Valuable.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsars the custom was kept up, but only for a time. These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters. Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his wordly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.—Frank H. Vizetelly in Woman's Home Companion.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Should not some effort be made by the authorities of the cities and towns to stop the driving of teams over the highways by sleeping and drunken drivers? It is safe to say that every day in the year dozens of teams with the drivers in such conditions are driven over such highways as Main street to the danger of the general public, and accidents frequently occur from this criminal carelessness. Why should not the police give attention to this?

When the celebration of the 4th is left to private clubs and ignored by the public, it looks as if the latter needed a tonic; and the annual town meeting of 1902 will be a good place to diagnose the case. Can it be possible that the refusal to put the article in the warrant this year was because it was thought a public celebration would interfere with private ones?

Now that the seats are not put out along Common street why should they not be placed upon Manchester Field? Many people would enjoy them and there seems to be no good reason why they should not be placed there.

Some teamsters complain that upon certain streets they are in danger of being wiped from their seats by limbs of trees, Mt. Pleasant street has been mentioned particularly. This would seen to be for the Tree Warden to look after.

Where does the Metropolitan Park Board get its grass seed? Judging by the fine crop of weeds coming up on Manchester Field the hay crop will have to be used for bedding.

Have you noticed the beauty of the pond and its surroundings from the Pleasant street bridge? A rich green and mock turtle soup mixed water, shrubbery like unto Turkey swamp, a peninsula of washings from the brook and a handsome rockery. Then go down to Main street bridge and view from there—a runway full of rocks, logs and any old thing that happens to float along, the same kind of water as above, a broken, crooked fence and bulging wall along Walnut street, now the Parkway and then ask yourself why is this thus. Probably it is so because nobody cares. Do you?

The midsummer madness is indicated in considering and having estimates made for a pile bridge across the pond. This is only waste of time; the town never will vote a dollar for any such nonsense. But very likely this is only one of the moves of the game of bluff that has been played all along in connection with this matter. The next thing will be a chain ferry, like as not.

Those who wish to enjoy (?) riding over the very worst piece of street railroad in Massachusetts should hurry up and ride to Medford before the new rail is put in. Riding on a harrow over a plowed field would be comfortable compared with this crazy tramway.

T. W. Lawson's Large Stable.

The largest stable in Massachusetts is now in process of erection at Egypt for Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston millionaire and turf patron. Egypt is below the Scituates, on the South shore of Massachusetts Bay, and the Lawsons have for some time made their summer home at Cohasset, located just this side of North Scituate. This stable will consist of a main building termed the "head house," with a long wing on either side. The head house will, in itself, be larger than the average private stable, being 40 feet across the front and 76 feet in depth. With the wings, the entire frontage will be 1800 feet. The contract calls for 100,000 feet of spruce framing, 30,000 feet of hard pine, 75,000 feet of hemlock and 100,000 feet of North Catolina sheathing, while 600,000 shingles will be required to cover the outside walls.—[Hingham Journal.

Precocious Youths.

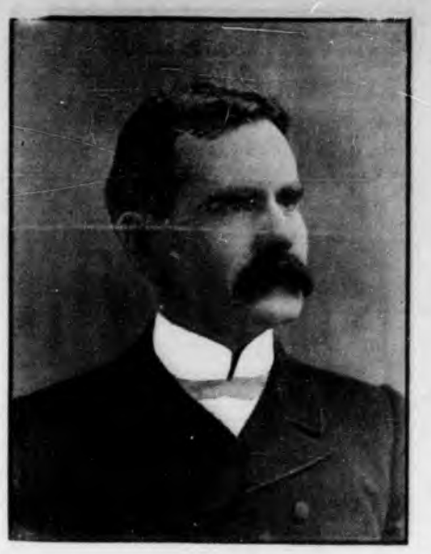

"Little fire at one end and little fool at the other."

We were forcibly reminded of the schoolgirl definition of a cigarette while riding in one of the "L" cars last Sunday. Two lads at the tender age of sixteen and seventen years both lighted cigarettes and began to puff away like real men. The ladies all began to look at them with disgust, and one gentlemen who had his back partly turned from them and toward whom the smoke was blowing, quickly looked up with alarm as if expecting an explosion, but was speedily relieved as soon as he discovered the source from which the smoke came. "Young man," he said pleasantly, "this is not a smoking car." "Ah, ha, is that so," the young man replied with an air of bravado. "If you continue to smoke I shall be obliged to speak to the conductor." Seeing so many eyes fixed upon them, they began to look very sheepish and slyly extinguished their cigarettes and as quickly as possible left the car at the next station.

Question of Sunday Trains.

Mayor Baxter of Medford has issued an official statement regarding the non-success of his effort to get the railroad commissioners to order a restoration of Sunday trains on the Medford branch of the Boston & Maine railroad. The commissioners contend that they have absolutely no authority over the railroad companies in the matter of continuing Sunday trains, that they can simply grant permission for the running of such trains. Mayor Baxter believes that when such permission is granted, the commissioners have general control of the running of such trains and he proposes to ask the next legislature to take some action on this matter, so that the people can obtain some redress when a railroad company embarasses them by discontinuing trains which it claims do not pay expenses, but which benefit the public convenience. Just at present the Medfordites must take the electrics or remain home on Sundays, and that the latter seems to be the favorite choice, is shown by the protests of several clergymen who want the Sunday trains restored in order that they may preach to their usual congregations.

Troubles of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, eruptions, boils, eczema, tetter, salt rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bittters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by Grover. Large bottles only 50c.

The Hello Girl.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am not a hello girl now, but I was. I lost my patience and my temper, and I grew thin and couldn't sleep nights for fear that I could not please everyone on the morrow. Won't you please print the following pen picture of the troubles of the girls who try to answer a dozen questions at one time and have every line open for every user of the telephone the instant he wants it?

"Hello! Hello! Give me 3427-3. Hello! Hello! Why in thunder don't you hurry up? Say, have you gone to sleep, or what's the matter? Hello! Confound it, do you suppose I want to stay here all day? The line is busy? Well cut them out, for I'm in a hurry. Hello! Where's my party? Hello! Hello! Hello! What number? I gave it to you half an hour ago; are you deaf? 3427-3. They don't answer? Well, try 'em again. Say, are you sure you rang the right number? Well, call me when you get them and—" Such is the sample of language hurled at the telephone girls, everywhere, every day in the year, and more especially in hot weather, and yet telephone subscribers who consider themselves ladies and gentlemen and who would never allow themselves to be disrespectful to a young lady whom they meet upon the street, continue to hurl abuse at the hello girls just as if they were responsible for business troubles, for the weather or a toothache.

That's right. If your line is noisy, blame the telephone girl. If you can't get your party just when you want to, blame the telephone girl. If your call is not answered the moment you ring the bell, blame the telephone girl when you get the chance, tell her she is slower than cold molasses, and that the service is the poorest you have ever seen. Talk to her just as you would to a little dirty yellow dog, and if she cuts you off and you find you are talking to yourself and the receiver, ring her up again and attempt to finish the conversation. Keep it up, pile on the abuse, be as impolite as possible, swear a little if things do not suit you and always expect to receive soft answers. Kick if you don't. Be very careful not speak pleasantly to the operator, for the surprise she might receive would possibly be fatal. If your first ring is not answered at once, make a long ring next time, for the girls can't hear the bell as you can, and your effort is wholly lost in consequence. Don't bother yourself to look up the number of the person you wish to talk with, but call the operator a dunce if she does not happen to know the number of the four hundred and more subscribers. Never trouble yourself to ring off after talking, even though the rules so read, for it will put you to so much trouble. Above all things, never think there is any other subscriber on the exchange who may be using the line you want, and never consider the feelings of the young lady operators in directing your conversation to them.

Do not risk a visit to the central office, for if you should call and see the amount of work those same hello girls are doing, should see how quick they work when the drops fall thick and fast announcing the rings of subscribers, you might wish to take back some words you said the other day, and in the future you would never have the fun of venting your spite on the hello girl. So stay away. But if you should still have a curiosity to see the operators at work, and be willing to forego the pleasure of finding fault with them when you are not feeling well yourself, just drop in to the office for a moment. Don't stay long, but you will be pleasantly received and old scores will pass unnoticed.

Such is the story of the telephone girl in many towns and cities, but not so in Arlington. It is not claimed there are no subscribers who would not be included in the list of offenders, but it is claimed there are yey few, and from reports from subscribers themselves, there are good reasons why this is so. The operators at the Arlington exchange are particularly proficient in their work, quick in answering calls, and very accommodating.—[Arlington Enterprise.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heart burn may be avoided. For sale by Young & Brown.

Take in the Sights at Niagara Falls.

When you go to visit the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, be sure and take in the sights at Niagara Falls. Every few minutes you can board an electric car that will carry you to Niagara at express speed, the fare for the round trip being only 50 cents. At Niagara, electrics can be taken which will give a splendid view of the falls and the rapids their entire length on both the Canadian and American shores. The cars pass within a few feet of the river, and the sight is grand and impressive.

Passengers are allowed to stop over and see the whirlpool rapids, the devil's hole, the Cave of the Winds, etc.

Also visitors should not miss going to that grand spectacular show the Battle of San Juan Hill, on the Riverside. Our townsman, Dr. H. G. Farr, is the manager of the show, and in addition to the true and realistic scenes of this battle, he has many other interesting features. Notably among these is a horse, a handsome animal, that performed the unheard of feat of crossing over the suspension bridge one dark night last November This bridge is 1085 feet long and 245 feet above the water of Niagara, is used by the steam railroad, and the only footing for the horse was the railroad ties. While on its perilous journey the horse passed a train, and the engineer says the horse was going at a high rate of speed. The only injury the animal sustained was to one of its hoofs which was partly torn off together with the shoe. An examination of the bridge the next day showed by the marks of the shoes that the horse had stepped fairly on each tie the entire distance with but one exception and that was undoubtedly where he lost his shoe. As it would be almost impossible for a man to walk over this bridge on a dark night without stepping between the ties, the feat performed by this horse is indeed remarkable. This is one of the show pieces of Niagara, and was purchased by the Doctor for a large sum.

State House Highwaymen.

In speaking at Cambridge last week Senator Chamberlain mentioned certain lobby evils. The senator is quoted as saying: "There is a lobby, and there is a lobby. There are men whom we are always glad to meet, such as Pillsbury, Burdett, Benton and Elder. They bring out facts at the hearings, which enable us to decide matters with great satisfaction. On the other hand there are those who have no right to live, politically speaking.

"In one case, this year, three lobbyists caused to be introduced a bill abolishing the nuisance caused by the sale stables on Portland and adjoining streets in Boston. They knew it would not pass. Then they went to the stable keepers and told them that they could 'fix' the committee on cities (of which Mr. Chamberlain was a member). The dealers paid $50 each. When the bill came to us, we saw that it was a matter purely for the city of Boston, and we reported against it. Now we have the reputation of being bought on that matter.

"Again, a lobbyist heard a senator, in conversation in the reading room, say that he was in favor of a certain bill. The lobbyist went to some one who was interested in the passage of the bill and said: 'Senator So-and-So is opposed to this measure, but if you will give me $100 I will fix him for he wants only $50.' The money was paid and the senator voted as he had always intended to, yet the man who gave the money thought he was buying the senator. In this case, we traced the matter and told the man his error. These are only two of the many cases which have happened during the year. This year, however, has been a poor one for the lobbyists They have had poor picking and most of them have gone home poor men."

Noncommittal.

"Fritz, dear, you love me more than anything else in the world, don't you?"

"Sure!"

"And you wouldn't give me up for $100,000?"

"H'm! Well, has anybody offered that?"

Did you know that the Deerfield Valley and Hoosac Country traversed by the Boston & Maine Railroad is one of the most beautiful regions in the country?

As a scenic paradise it has no equal. On every side the scenes change with panoramic swiftness to the intense delight of the beholder.

Then, too, there is no little historic interest attached to the territory journeyed through.

This interior country is a delightful vacation ground, and on every hand there is to be found unlimited accommodations for the vacationist who delights in a rural out-door life. Another pleasureable feature is its accessibility from not only the whole of New England, but from New York and the West as well.

The Boston & Maine has just issued a book bearing the name "Hoosac Country and Deerfield Valley," which is a delightfully written story of the country, and after reading it you will want to visit the region. Send a two-cent stamp to General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine System, Boston, for Book No. 15; you will enjoy reading it.

A Puzzler.

An ancient epitaph in Latin in the chateau of Chantilly, France, may be translated thus:

Aelia Laelia Crispis
Neither man, nor woman, nor hermaphrodite,
Neither infant, young nor old,
Neither chaste, depraved, nor modest,
But all these.
Removed neither by hunger, sword or poison,
But by all,
She lies neither in the sky nor in the water, but everywhere.
Lucius Agatha Crispis.
Neither husband, lover nor friend,
But all these.
Neither weeping nor rejoicing,
But both.
Has erected this, neither a mausoleum, a pyramid nor a sepulcher,
But all three,
Both knowing and not knowing to whom he hath erected it.
This is a tomb that holds no body,
This is a body held in no tomb,
But is its own body and its own tomb.

The answer is not known, and so every nimble wit is invited to exercise itself on the tough old puzzle.

Minerals at the Pan-American.

Minerals will be fully represented, comprising every production, both useful and ornamental, mined from the earth. All parts of the United States and every country of South and Central America, Canada, Mexico and the islands of the sea will contribute specimens for the exhibit. All kinds of machinery used in manipulating ores will be exhibited. The great advantages that the Americas have over the rest of the world in the wealth of their minerals in connection with climatic conditions, accessibility, etc., will be clearly illustrated. While the exhibits will be under the auspices of the various Governments, many individuals and mining companies will be represented by individual displays, representing their special interests.

A Vacation Recreation Place.

Northern New England is the summer pleasure and vacation ground for the world. No other section can boast of scores of lakes, a hundred beaches and a whole mountain range within the meagre boundaries of a hundred square miles, yet this is what New England has, and, though there are thousands of tourists annually at these resorts, there can be accommodated hundreds of thousands more.

Every nook and corner of New England is an outing resort and the Boston and Maine lines reach all of the leading ones. If you are interested in or intend to take a vacation this season, you want a Boston and Maine Excursion Book. It's free for the asking. Send a postal to General Passenger Dept. (21), B. & M. R. A SILENT ESSENTIAL.

Oh, the man who pays the taxes—he's the poor forgotten elf
Whose biography must linger on oblivion's dusty shelf!
There are pomp and celebration, there are poetry and song,
But the man who pays the taxes lingers out among the throng.
Nobody asks about him, and nobody prints his name;
He never gets a blast when people sound the trump of fame.
There's glitter and there's glory, plaudits echoing far and near,
But the man who pays the taxes never gets a single cheer.

There's a big, resounding whistle on the engine when it toils;
None thinks about the water as it bubbles and it boils.
There is buzz, and there is bustle, and the people love to gaze
As the prodigy goes onward in its unresisted ways.
We quite forget, while watching all the beauty of the scheme,
That somewhere out of sight is pent the mighty force of steam;
But despite this lack of splendor 'tis agreed by men of wit
That if the steam were wanting the machinery would quit.

WHITE FEATHER.

A Coward That Was a Hero.

There is no need to mention the name of his regiment here. That is a secret that belongs to the army alone.

Suffice it to say that his comrades are proud of his name.

He should never have entered the army at all, much less a hard riding cavalry regiment which had a reputation to sustain by a yearly tribute of broken necks and collar bones.

His proper vocation was that of a linen draper's assistant, and he had filled that occupation very satisfactorily till one evil day he had fallen in love with a girl, a silly, shallow girl, at whom no practical man or boy would have taken a second look.

He adored her, and she adored soldiers. In their walks abroad she would direct his steps toward the Horse guards or Wellington barracks, that she might gaze in admiration at the fine, strapping soldiers who were to be seen there, and every time she pinched his arm and exclaimed, "Oh, Jack, look at that lovely soldier!" his heart gave him a pang at the thought that he was only a draper's assistant, with nothing in common with the military but the handling of red cloth! He was a dreamer by nature, and falling in love did not lessen his weakness in this direction. Dreaming is pardonable in a poet, but an unpardonable crime in a linen draper's assistant, and as he stood at his counter his mind was far away from his work. Instead of listening to the "Forward!" of the shopwalker he could only hear the short flung word of command and the blare of the bugles that sounded through his dreams; wherefore it was not long before he came into conflict with his practical chief. A few sharp words passed. He threw up in three seconds a position it had taken six years of hard, unremitting labor to attain. Then he enlisted.

He gained his title on his first display in the riding school, where, after a short ride on the neck of the riding master's pet buck jumper, he turned deathly pale and cried aloud that he might be allowed to dismount.

The horse at once gratified his desire by throwing him on to the tan, where he lay trembling in every limb, much to the diversion of a couple of rough riders who were standing by. They were quick to inform their respective squadrons, and, his former occupation being known, he was promptly christened White Feather.

In those dark days it was the joy of the more hardy recruits to take him aside solemnly and request the service of threepence 3 farthings' worth of white feathers. Any morsel of down or fluff that might float into the barracks was promptly captured and presented to him with due ceremonies by Trumpeter Pipes, the low comedian of the regiment.

The older men forbore to join in with these somewhat tiring repetitions of a stale joke. They remembered their own experiences in the riding school and recognized that White Feather was a quiet and inoffensive fellow, devoid of the impudence and bad manners peculiar to recruits and respectful and helpful to his seniors.

The sergeant instructor, too, after a time took a fancy to his timid recruit and took extra trouble to learn him how to keep his heels out, his hands down and his head up.

"I've made smart cavalrymen out o' bigger duffers than you," he used to remark encouragingly as he flicked White Feather's horse into a canter, "and I'll make a rider o' you, or I'll break your neck!" White Feather's neck remained unbroken, so it is to be presumed that the sergeant instructor fulfilled his word.

Presently he began to lose the hangdog look of suppressed terror with which he had been accustomed to enter the riding school and to acquire the easy swagger of a cavalryman. His chest contracted by long hours at the counter, developed under healthy training. Fresh air and much exercise helped White Feather's development, which had been sadly retarded by the heavy, gas laden atmosphere in which he had lived. His nerves acquired tone, and he learned to take a tumble now and then as a matter of course and to fire his carbine without shutting his eyes and blanching at the explosion of the cartridge.

"Blow me, if he isn't going to shape into a man at last!" quoth the sergeant instructor.

Then a great blow fell upon him. He received one morning a letter from the girl to tell him that she had given him up in favor of a shopwalker who had expectations of being set up in business by his father. She admitted that she had adored soldiers and that she had caused him to enter the army for her sake. But she had omitted to state that the soldiers she adored were soldiers who possessed the queen's commission and who wore stars instead of a worsted stripe.

If poor White Feather was a physical coward, he was a moral hero. There is no chance of a display of feeling in a barrack room; so, like the Spartan boy of old, he hugged his trouble to him, slipping the cheap little engagement ring with which he had sealed his troth into his pocket without a sign beyond the twitching of his white lips. Then he lit his pipe with the letter, not out of contempt, but because there is little privacy accorded in the correspondence that comes to the barrack room, and a private soldier is not provided with a desk wherein to keep his faded flowers and other sentimental tokens of the past.

The blow was a very heavy one, for White Feather was without the worldly knowledge that should have told him long since that he had fixed his affections upon a vulgar, selfish and brainless flirt, and he still believed in her.

For her sake he had learned to overcome his physical cowardice. He had dreamed of a possible commission in the dim future and had rejoiced in the recently acquired promotion as a step toward her.

For her sake, too, he received the news cheerfully when the word passed through the barracks that the regiment was ordered to South Africa to meet the Boers. He knew that he was by nature a coward, but for the memory of her he swore an oath to himself to do his duty without sparing himself in the coming fight.

* * * * * * *

"Look 'ere, old chap, we ain't going to call you White Feather no more!" said Trumpeter Pipes as they lay together behind the shelter of a large bowlder, against the face of which the Boer bullets were pattering like a heavy rain.

In full sight of the whole army their squadron had crossed the Boer front amid a hail of bullets which had brought 20 men to earth.

White Feather's horse had been shot under him, and, at the risk of his life, he had carried the wounded trumpeter into the shelter of the bowlders. He was unhurt, but trembled in every limb from fear and great exertion.

From between two bowlders he peeped out and saw, amid the bodies of men and horses that littered the plain, a wounded man crawling on his hands and knees amid a spatter of bullets that were kicking puffs of dust from the dry earth all around him.

It was his captain.

White Feather watched him for a moment; then he saw him stop and lie down on his side despairingly. He could crawl no more.

"I will, for her sake!" he murmured between his clinched teeth, and, rising from the shelter of the rock, he faced the hail of death that pattered to the earth around him.

As he walked into the open a faint cheer reached his ears from the British troops half a mile behind him. The Royal artillery backed him with a shrieking flight of shrapnel, which whistled for a moment overhead, then burst over the Boer lines a quarter of a mile away in a shower of bullets that for a moment quelled the storm around him.

He reached the wounded man, lifted him on his back and returned step by step to where Trumpeter Pipes lay hidden.

The trumpeter gave him a faint "Bravo!" as he staggered and fell with his burden into the kindly shelter of the rock.

That was White Feather's reward.

On a distant hill the British commander shut his fieldglasses with a snap.

"Tell the general to keep down the fire on the right there and to get those men in from behind those bowlders," he said to his aid, "and bring me that man's name. If he is alive, tell him that I saw it all and that I'm going to recommend him for the cross.

"Never saw a finer show of fire discipline in my life!" added the commander to himself as his aid galloped off.

White Feather's eyes glistened as he received the message and heard the cheer that swept along the lines as he was carried in.

"Perhaps I shall get that commission after all," he said to himself; "then she will think more of me!"

An Interrupted Feast.

There dwell in one of the handsome residences of Tioga an elderly lady and her daughter. The mother recently went out of the city for a few days' stay. On the day she left the daughter informed the colored cook early in the morning that she would visit a friend and would not return until 9 o'clock at night.

But the friend was not at home, and the daughter came to the city to shop and returned home at 6 o'clock instead of three hours later. She found ten colored couples in the parlor, and the table in the dining room was set for 20 persons, with the silver pieces and best china in evidence. In the kitchen the cook was busy preparing a feast. When her eyes fell upon her young mistress, the servant exclaimed in horror: "Good gracious, you done come home so soon! Why, I'se inwited mah friends to dinnah. 'Deed I didn't expect you."

The young woman said she was sure of that. Result: Colored friends left the house hungry; cook, too; girl invited neighbors in, and all enjoyed the feast; new cook next day.—Philadelphia Record.

Sugar In the Human System.

Sugar is a substance that dissolves easily and in considerable quantity in water. When in solution it easily passes through animal's membrane by osmosis, and so the question of its absorption seemed simple enough. The disease diabetes showed, however, that sugar might exist very plentifully in the blood and yet the nutrition of an individual suffer very much for the lack of it. Something else besides its mere presence in the system was necessary to secure its consumption by the tissues.

Bernard thought that the liver was active in the consumption of sugar and that disease of this organ caused diabetes. He therefore secured some of the blood going to the liver of a living animal and some of the blood that was just leaving it. To his surprise, the blood leaving the liver contained more sugar than that entering it.

After assuring himself that his observations were correct, he tried his experiments in different ways. He found that even in the blood leaving the liver of an animal that had been fed only on substances containing no sugar, sugar could be demonstrated. Even in a fasting animal the liver itself and the blood leaving it showed the presence of a form of sugar.

The only possible conclusion from this was that the liver was capable of manufacturing this form of sugar out of nonsugar containing material, or even from the blood of a fasting animal.—Catholic World.

Maid Worth Having.

The Mistress (entering the kitchen)—Jane, didn't I hear a dish break a minute ago?

The Maid—I hope you did, mem; it made noise enough. If you hadn't heard it, I should have thought you were getting deaf, and that, you know, would be awful.—Boston Transcript.

Jimmy's Plight.

"Where's Jimmy?" excitedly exclaimed the mother, breaking into the kitchen.

"We've been playing 'blizzard,'" answered her eldest, "and he's been caught in the worst of it in the ice chest."—Philadelphia Times.

With an Eye to Business.

The old man was smoking his pipe on the front porch as the young man left the house.

"Things have changed since I was a lad," suggested the old man.

"How so?" demanded the young man.

"In my day, when we went courting, we didn't burn one gas jet, let alone two."

"Possibly," suggested the young man pointedly, "if you had fallen heir to some gas trust stock about that time it would have made a difference."

Thereupon the old man went into the house and told his daughter that when it came to a question of getting a real good business man in the family she could have his consent at any time.—Chicago Post.

Counting His Chickens.

"Before I give my consent to your engagement to my daughter what is your annual income?"

"Counting everything, sir, about $4,000, as near as I can tell."

"Yes—hm—and added to this would be the $3,000 income which I have promised to settle on her, which would"—

"Yes, sir, yes—that is, if you don't mind, I've already counted that in."—New York Times.

Ingenuous.

"What kind of punishment do you think would be proper and effective in your case?"

"Well," answered the eminent Mongolian, "you know the Chinese are famous for their curious ideas about things. Nothing is supposed to hurt our feelings more than being under obligations to an enemy. I would suggest that you humiliate us by forcing us to take money."—Washington Star.

Schedule For Hubby.

De Kanter—I tell you my wife was mad when she let me in last night.

Lushman—I suppose you promised to come home earlier hereafter.

De Kanter—No; she made me promise I'd stay out an hour or so later, so the servant girl could take me in with the milk.—Philadelphia Press.

His Ardor Checked.

He—Miss Frost, I can no longer repress the warmth of sentiment your charms have kindled; there is a passion burning within me—

She—Ah, then I had better call father! He is a fire insurance agent.—Richmond Dispatch.

Back Action.

"Do you believe in the efficacy of lucky stones?"

"Of course. The man's in luck who has too much sense to buy one for a dollar."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sympathetic.

"You ought to think more of others."

A Clever Blind Man.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat tells of a blind man in a southern city who goes to the postoffice every day carrying a small, light riding whip, which he holds slightly inclined to the front, with the tip just touching the pavement. His sense of touch has become so delicate that the whip is almost an artificial eye. When the point encounters anything, he makes a few swift passes over the surface and generally determines the exact character of the obstacle. It is done so quickly and deftly as to attract no attention, and few passers have the least suspicion of the old man's infirmity. When he reaches the postoffice, he turns unhesitatingly, mounts the middle stairs, walks over to the lock boxes and without any feeling around thrusts a key into the right aperture.

Mr. Gooph—I tell you, Blithersby's wife is a jewel.

Mr. Wooph—Is that so?

Mr. Gooph—I should say so. Why, he went fishing yesterday and came home with an empty jug, a can of salmon and two salt mackerel, and she complimented him on his luck.—Baltimore American.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON II, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 14.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. iii, 1-15. Memory Verses, 14, 15—Golden Text, Rom. v, 20—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1-5. This is our introduction to the great enemy of God and man, that old serpent, the devil and satan (Rev. xii, 9; xx, 2), the prince of this world, the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience (John xiv, 30; Eph. ii, 2). He would come between God and man, he would break up their fellowship and rob man of his inheritance, and to do this he comes in the guise of a friend, using the wisest and perhaps the fairest of all the beasts of the field as his medium, for it is evident from verse 14 that it was something new, and the result of the curse, for the serpent to go upon his belly and eat dust. From this chapter to Rev. xx we see the devil in conflict with God and man, yet tolerated by God until the time shall come to put him in the pit and later in the place prepared for him—the lake of fire. We are taught to resist him, to give him no place, to stand against him (I Pet. v, 8, 9; Eph. iv, 27; vi, 11), but we cannot well do this if we are ignorant of his devices. Therefore we are here and elsewhere made acquainted with him and his ways that we may recognize him and resist him and overcome him with the shield of faith and the sword of the Spirit even as our Lord Himself did in the wilderness. In his first recorded utterance, "Yea, hath God said?" we see that he questions the word of God, and when any one from that day to this questions the word of God he is for the time being in the service of the devil. He questions the love of God, suggesting to the woman that if God loved them He would not keep from them even the fruit of one tree.

6-8. In the company of and listening to the adversary the woman quickly becomes deceived and blinded and led astray. She adds to the word of God (verse 3) and actually seems to think that her evil counselor is right and God is wrong, and she desires the fruit which now seems to her so pleasant, and she took it and ate it and gave it also to her husband, and he ate it. Thus by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin and by the disobedience of one many were made sinners (Rom. v, 12, 19). Their fellowship with God was broken, they were afraid of Him and sought to hide from Him, they lost their glorious garments of light and made for themselves as a substitute aprons of fig leaves. As to their being clothed with light, they were made in the image of God, and Ps. civ, 2, says that God covers Himself with light as with a garment. This does not conflict with Gen. ii, 25, for as to putting on clothes they were naked. How seemingly small, but how great and farreaching, their sin, affecting all mankind, for "in Adam all die" (I Cor. xv, 22).

9. "And the Lord God called unto Adam and said unto him, Where art thou?" The first recorded question of God in Scripture shows Him to us seeking the lost that He may forgive and restore them. It was evidently His custom to walk and talk familiarly with Adam and Eve in Eden, but a change came over man because of sin, and we have the sad and sorrowful sight of the creature seeking to hide from his loving Creator. Man's sin only makes more manifest the love and loveliness of God, and we see Him who afterward came to earth as God manifest in the flesh to seek and save the lost (for every manifestation of God is through His Son, John i, 18), lovingly seeking His erring ones. He is still doing this, and His question to each one still is, Where art thou? Happy are those who can gratefully reply, In Christ, redeemed by His precious blood.

10-19. The man, the woman and the serpent each are brought before Him, and He pronounces judgment upon the serpent, the woman and the man, but in His word to the serpent He tells of a coming deliverer. In this verse (15) we have the new birth (enmity with the devil), the conflict between the unrighteous and the righteous (thy seed and her seed), the humanity of the Saviour (the seed of the woman). His sufferings (thou shalt bruise His heel), His divinity and glorious victory (He shall bruise thy head)—at least a fivefold abundant statement of the great redemption. In the sentence upon Adam the earth is included, and thorns and thistles grow as a result of the curse. Thus the creation was made subject to vanity not willingly; it had no voice nor choice in the matter, and it shall yet be delivered and made to rejoice in the liberty of the glory of the children of God (Rom. viii, 20, 21), for our Lord wore a crown of thorns, and the curse shall in due time be removed from the earth (Rev. xxii, 3). As a result of the work of Christ the whole earth shall yet be filled with righteousness and peace and the glory of the Lord (Num. xiv, 21; Isa. xi, 9; Hab. ii, 14; Isa. xxxii, 1, 17). If we would see and share this glory, we must be able to say from the heart at least the first four clauses of Isa. lxi, 10, and we cannot do this unless we see the significance of verse 21 of this Gen. iii and profit by it. See then the Lord God with His own hand, by the shedding of the blood of the sacrifice, providing redemption clothing for Adam and Eve typical of the garments of salvation which He has provided for us by His great sacrifice, taking our place and dying in our stead. Adam and Eve, with their fig leaf aprons, represent all sinners in their sins, having nothing but their own morality, if any, or fancied righteousness, which if they cling to are like those in Rom. x, 3. The Lord God Himself without any help from mortals provides the righteousness He demands and offers it freely to all who are willing to drop their fig leaf aprons (Rom. iii, 24; viii, 1; x, 4). Eden was preserved after man was driven from it, and we have every reason to believe that it continued till the deluge. The flaming sword points on to Zech. xiii, 7, and to Golgotha, where the sword was satisfied and the way opened to enter paradise. The cherubim tell of the future glory of he redeemed when the whole earth shall be an Eden. See their song in Rev. v, 9, 10. Since Adam was driven from Eden no one has been born in Eden, and the only way into it is by Him against whom he sword awoke. In chapter iv we have the two religions set forth in Cain and Abel—man's way of self righteousness and bringing what he calls his best and God's way of putting away sin by sacrifice, which latter way Abel accepted (Heb. ix, 22; xi, 4).

SHE LIKES IT.

THIS MASSACHUSETTS GIRL TRIED COLORADO AND IS NOW A VOTER.

Daughter of Secretary of Navy Long Says That in Colorado the Best Women Vote and It Does Not Hurt Them—What They Have Done by It.

Miss Margaret Long, a daughter of Secretary of the Navy Long, gives in a recent letter her views on the much-discussed question of equal suffrage in Colorado. Miss Long and her sister have been living for the past year or two at Colorado Springs, and they voted at the presidential election. Her observation of equal suffrage has impressed her decidedly in its favor. Miss Long writes:

"The women of Colorado are a power in State politics. They always cast their votes for the candidate of highest principle and best moral character. It is very simple to register and cast a ballot, and it cannot be said that voting demands a great deal of a woman's time. The women who vote in Colorado are the educated and refined women, and they, with many men who originally voted against extending the suffrage, admit that it is a success."

This recalls the fact that a summary has lately been made of the laws and ordinances in Colorado enacted in consequence of equal suffrage. At a recent legislative hearing in Massachusetts, Mr. Frank Foxcraft challenged the advocates of equal rights for women to name any good results of women's voting in Colorado. Always glad of a chance to answer such questions, the suffragists promptly drew up and published the following list:

Colorado owes to her women the laws prohibiting child labor, raising the age of protection for girls to eighteen, establishing a State Board of Arbitration, a State Industrial School for Girls, and a State Home for Dependent Children; removing the emblems from the Australian ballot, making fathers and mothers joint guardians of their children, enlarging women's property rights, and providing an annual appropriation to buy books for the State library; also, in Denver, ordinances placing drinking fountains in the streets, forbidding expectoration in public places, and requiring smoke-consuming chimneys upon all public and business buildings. Equal suffrage has made the polls more orderly, improved the primaries, made it harder to elect bad candidates, and increased the interest and intelligence of women in regard to public affairs. It has more than quadrupled the number of no-license towns in Colorado, and has greatly increased the number of women serving on charitable and educational boards.

This is a pretty good record for eight years of equal suffrage. To it must now be added the fact that the women have secured the abolition of licensed gambling in Wyoming and Idaho.

An Elastic Yardstick.

Opponents of equal suffrage have made a wonderful invention—an elastic yardstick. By a judicious use of it they propose to prevent women from voting. Whenever any woman does an unwise thing, they charge it against the whole body of women, and gravely affirm that all women are unfit to vote. A few days ago some of the daughters of the American Revolution, in a contested election, lost their temper and got into a verbal scrimmage, which was telegraphed from Maine to Mexico as an evidence of women's unfitness for self-government. The Boston Daily Herald, with owl-like gravity, in a leading editorial, said:

"The Washington action does not render it probable that women with full suffrage rights would be a success in public affairs, since if women are to have the suffrage all women must be admitted to it. The misbehaving Washington women must come in as well as the more properly conducting woman suffragists."

Yet, the same day, the Herald recorded the fact that a number of Irish members of Parliament refused to obey the authority of the Speaker, and had to be forcibly removed by a squad of policemen. Whereupon the Herald remarks:

"The rumpus may be taken as proof that the Irish factions are even more thoroughly united than was supposed, and are starting out to follow the tactics laid down by their great Parliamentary leader, Parnell."

Here is the elastic yardstick applied respectively to the Irishman and the woman. The Herald does not propose to disfranchise all Irishmen.

That very day the Herald chronicled an assault committed by Senator J. H. Geiger, of Montana, upon A. B. Keith:

"Lash night the men met in the lobby of the Senate chamber at the close of the extra session. Geiger rushed at Keith, who struck him a heavy blow on the forehead with a loaded cane. The Senator was stunned. Before he recovered Keith had walked away. Senator Geiger is now searching for Keith with a revolver, having threatened to kill him on sight. A shooting affair is regarded as certain when they meet."

But the editor does not suggest the disfranchisement of all the men of Montana; not even of the Montana Senator. Again the elastic yardstick.

Five days before, "a fierce fisticuff fight" was chronicled between the German and Czech deputies in the Austrian Reichsrath. But nobody suggests that all Germans and Czechs should forever be disfranchised.

Mrs. Nation enforces Kansas law by smashing illegal saloons. She is cited as an awful example of "women in politics." But no one has proposed to disfranchise the illegal liquor dealers, or the county officials who refuse to enforce the laws of Kansas.—Henry B. Blackwell.

STICK TO SIMPLE FOOD.

The American Business Man's Pace Demands Easily Digested Dishes.

"There was in the old days far less wear and tear upon the nerves, and, under such conditions, digestion was more completely performed," writes Mrs. S. T. Rorer of "Why I Am Opposed to Pies," in The Ladies' Home Journal. "The mothers of today must look more carefully to the building of their bodies and brains than their mothers and grandmothers did. Indeed at the pace at which we Americans are going we use our brains at full speed nearly all the time. What man can build brain and brawn on pies, layer cakes or preserves or any other mass of material which from its very complexity requires labor and time for digestion, drawing the blood from the brain to the stomach during his working hours? Observe those who eat their complex foods carelessly and hastily and you will see at a glance the conditions that necessitate a complete rest every now and then, or an early nervous breakdown.

"In my close observation in the last 20 years I find very few people in our common struggle for existence who can for any length of time eat carelessly of complex foods. At 40 or 50 a man may perhaps have accumulated wealth, but not health, and of what earthly use is the first without the second? Many persons in the generation gone before have eaten pies at least once a day, but they have not had meat three times a day, nor have they rushed at our pace. They gave more time to the digestion of the pie. People who recommend these rich foods rarely know anything of their complex conditions and still less of the complexity of digestion."

HAM SMELLING A BUSINESS.

Peculiar Occupation For Which Only Few Are Qualified.

The ham smeller's only tools are a long steel trier and his nose. He stands in a barrel to keep his clothes from being soiled by the dripping brine, and the hams are brought to him, and he plunges his sharp pointed trier into them, withdraws it and passes it swiftly beneath his nose. The trier always goes down to the knuckle joint.

In testing meat in that manner the man with the trier judges by the slightest shade of difference between the smell of one piece of meat and another. The smell of the meat is almost universally sweet, and that is what he smells. The slightest taint or deviation from the sweet smell is therefore appreciable. It is not the degree of taint that he expects to find, but the slightest odor that is not sweet.

When he detects an odor, he throws the meat aside, and if it is not unwholesome it is sold as "rejected" meat, but if it is tainted it goes to the rendering tank. The ham tester smells meat from 7 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock at night, and his sense must never become jaded or inexact or his usefulness would be at an end.

Ham testing is not a pursuit dangerous to the health, as tea testing is supposed to be, but the ham smeller with a cold in his head is like a piano player who loses his arm in a railroad wreck. —Kansas City Star.

A Test of Accuracy.

Drawing from memory is one of the most difficult things in the world to do. Even professional artists find that they must rely largely upon hasty jottings made upon the spot as suggestions for their pictures. Those who are not artists need to look keenly and closely at what they wish to recollect, for they must depend upon their memory to bring details back to them. It is an excellent corrective of superficial observation to sketch a scene as we think we saw it and afterward return to the scene and take another view. It is a training both in accuracy and humility, for we learn how easy it is to deceive ourselves as to what we have remarked.—Florence Hull Winterburn in Woman's Home Companion.

Cure for Cholera Infantum--Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. GAS RANGE.

A Gas Range will do all the work that the best coal range will do and it will save you money. It also does away with much work and worry.

The Economy of the Gas Stove is show below in a few tests:

COMPARISON OF PERCENTAGE IN LOSS AFTER COOKING.

GAS.		COAL.
Cost 35 cents. Product 28 1-2	—FISH—	Cost 35 cents. Product 24 3-4
Loss 6 1-2 cents.		Loss 10 1-4 cents.
Cost 166 1-2 Product 138 3-8	—BEEF—	Cost 169 7-8 Product 117
Loss 23 1-8 cents.		Loss 52 7-8 cents.

Saving of Gas Stove over Coal range, ... 24 3-4 cents.
The saving in food on Fish and Roast Beef for one Dinner was 28 1-2 cents.

This shows a great saving in food cooked by Gas Range and as this occurs in nearly every dish that is cooked the saving in pounds of food in the course of one year, is something enormous. A Gas Range will do its work a great deal quicker than a coal range and does not heat the house when cooking. A Gas Range can be run so that nearly all the heat generated can be put into food being cooked. The difference in labor between working over a coal range in a hot kitchen and Gas Range in a Cool Kitchen, is worth more than the price of either coal or gas.

We can put an attachment on your hot water boiler, that can be run independent of either coal or gas range, that will give hot water all over the house in a few minutes, so that Hot Water can be used in Bath at any moment if there has not been a fire in range for 12 months.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A BACHELOR'S BLESSING.

It Is Sure to Be a Boon to the Unmarried Man.

The display at the fancy goods counters of the "bachelor's blessing" solves to a great extent the fair young shopper's problems as to what she shall give at Christmas to her brothers—and other girls' brothers. This handy little case of silk, canvas or leather, containing cottons, needles, needlebook, etc.,

BACHELOR'S BLESSING (SHUT).

is of particular value to the traveling man, who often must needs sew on the refractory buttons that will persist in coming off at inopportune moments.

Dainty Ways to Fix Gifts.

The clever maiden will do up her Christmas gifts in the daintiest way possible. There isn't a woman who does not dote on receiving an odd looking package—something that will appeal to her curiosity because of its individuality. And to make the holiday present perfect by reason of its dainty doing up requires but a little forethought and a few shekels.

The true Christmas colors are the hues of the holly, and they may be used admirably in making a dress for the Christmas gift. For instance, one may go to the man who makes boxes and buy a dark green box tied with a big scarlet bow of ribbon, or vice versa. Instead of this desirable color combination in the box and bow a plain white box may be utilized with a bow of ribbon which has the holly design woven in it. Still another idea is to use the white box and ribbon—suggestive of snow—and in the generous bow fasten a small spray of the green leaves with scarlet berries.

For Your City Friend.

It is a wonder that more country people do not appreciate how much they can do with what they have. There are few city people who would not appreciate the gift of a box or bag of chestnuts, walnuts, hickorynuts, butternuts, hazelnuts or beechnuts. Still fewer are there who would not delight in the arrival of a small rustic fernery filled with fine ferns, mosses and tiny evergreens and brightened by the scarlet berries of the Mitchella. All these may be dug up in the woods a few weeks before Christmas. Usually, too, such dainties as a few jars of pickles or preserves or a few glasses of jelly may be spared from the country store closet and are a boon to the city housekeeper.

Presents For the Servants.

The problem as to how we may most acceptably and at the same time most wisely make a choice of Christmas gifts for our servants is ever a perplexing one, says The Ladies' Home Journal. Little additions to the bureau, a pair of decorated linen covers to be used alternately, a pretty pin or hairpin cushion, a brush and comb case, a whisk with ornamental holder and, as an incentive to tidy habits, a linen laundry, shoe or duster bag, an umbrella pocket or an ornamental scrap basket, for the servant who has no pride in her surroundings is more liable to be careless and less likely to spend much of her leisure time in her room. Servants, as a rule, feel complimented at any endeavor on the part of the mistress to make a useful gift; also an ornamental one.

In our thoughts for the cook it would be wise to discover her imperative needs. A warm wrapper or any garment ready made, a set of aprons, both ornamental and useful, can hardly fail to please, while a purse containing money always proves the right thing at the right time.

The Gifts They Prefer.

Women prefer some fluffy gift which, despite its delicacy, is useful, while men like a little severity mixed with prettiness.

About Printing.

FALLING HAIR

Does this illustrate your experience? And are you worried for fear you are soon to be bald?

Then cease worrying, for help is at hand. You need something that will put new life into the hair bulbs.

You need a hair food, such as—

Ayer's Hair Vigor

It brings health to the hair, and the falling ceases.

It always restores color to gray hair. You need not look at thirty as if you were fifty, for your gray hair may have again all the dark, rich color of youth.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

"I am a barber by trade and have had a great deal to do with your Hair Vigor. I have found that it will do everything that you claim for it. It has given me the most complete satisfaction in my business." HENRY J. GEORGE, March 22, 1898. Kansas City, Mo.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. Address, Dr. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

Confiscation In Morocco.

It is a custom in Morocco that all the property of an official reverts at death to the crown. The logic which leads to such a result is simple, for the government argues that all fortunes thus accumulated consist of moneys illegally retained by the authorities. A governor when appointed is probably possessed of no considerable fortune. When he dies, he may be a millionaire. Whence came his wealth? Squeezed most certainly from the tribes under his authority and therefore amassed only by the prerogatives of the position in which the sultan had placed him.

It has never struck the Moorish government that these great fortunes might more honorably be returned to the people from whom they were stolen. The result is entire confiscation to the crown, including often such private property as the governor may have been possessed of before his appointment and not seldom, too, of the property of his relatives.

When the mighty fall in Morocco, the crash brings down with them their families, even uncles and cousins and all connected with them, and it is not seldom that the sons of great governors, who have been brought up in the luxury of slaves and horses and retinues of mounted men, have to go begging in the streets.—Blackwood's.

A Horse's Blinders.

A horse's blinders are usually concave on the inside. True, the surface usually is a dead black, but not absolutely so, so that a glimmer of light may be reflected from them. By constant cleansing this dead surface is made more or less smooth if not actually glossy and shiny. Moreover, the blinders are usually set at an angle, so that as a result of the law of reflection rays of light concentrated by the convex surface are reflected into the eyes, not directly in the axis of vision, but more or less transversely or obliquely, the result being even more injurious. As a result of this reflection the vision is weakened if not destroyed.

Moreover, the mirrorlike blinders not only reflect sunlight, but they reflect objects as well, so that a "blinded" horse sees not only objects directly ahead of him, but has a more or less blurred vision of other objects, intermixing with and confusing the image of objects directly before him, and as a consequence he is rendered uncertain in his movements and is easily scared. No further proof of this is needed than the fact that a nervous horse with a reputation for shying and running away often becomes tractable if the blinders are removed, because he can then see distinctly what before he could only see indistinctly and confusedly.—Our Animal Friends.

He Crushed the Hecklers.

The man who asks questions and insists on their being answered is a familiar presence at all party meetings. He is known as the heckler. The speaker is not allowed to disregard him. If a statement is disputed, it is the orator's place to make it good. Any member of the audience may rise to his feet and shout out a contradiction whenever he feels like it, and by the custom of English public life the speaker is expected to make some reply on the spot.

Mr. Chamberlain was always a dangerous man to cross in debate, but the personal feeling against him was so bitter for years after his withdrawal from the ranks of the separatists that many an unhappy man was driven to tilt against his shield. It was delicious to watch Mr. Chamberlain's handling of the situation. He would pause when the interruption grew serious and give the heckler a chance to make himself well heard. "Now if you will allow me I will ask that gentleman to get upon a chair that we may all have the pleasure of seeing him." A dozen anxious hands would hoist the objector into unwelcome prominence. "Now, sir," came the clear, passionless voice, "will you kindly speak up? I should be sorry if any one missed what you have to say."

The heckler, now quite unnerved, would stammer out something, and Mr. Chamberlain, listening with a malicious smile, would quietly readjust his eyeglass and, turning to the audience, fling out a reply—cool, cutting and decisive.—Sydney Brooks in Harper's Magazine.

Character In Thighs.

A man's thighs interest me in any mood and at any time. While you may get a man's character from his face, you can, if you will, get his past life from his thigh. It is the walking beam of his locomotion, controls his paddles and is developed in proportion to its uses. It indicates, therefore, a man's habits and his mode of life.

If he has sat all day with one leg lapped over the other, arm on chair, head on hand, listening or studying—preachers, professors and all other sedentaries sit like this—then the thigh shrinks, the muscles droop, the bones of the ankle bulge, and the knee joints push through. If he delivers mail or collect bills or drives a pack mule or walks a towpath, the muscles of the thigh are hauled tight like cables, the knee of knots—one big bunch just below the strap of his knickerbockers, should he wear them.

If he carries big weights on his back casks of salt, as do the stevedores in Venice; or coal in gunnies, as do the coolies in Cuba, or wine casks or coffee in bags—then the calves swell abnormally, the thighs solidify; the lines of beauty are lost, but the lines of strength remain.

If, however, he has spent his life in the saddle, rounding up cattle, chasing Indians, hunting bandits in Mexico, ankle and foot loose, his knees clutched tightly, hugging that other part of him, the horse, then the muscles of the thigh round out their intended lines—the most subtle in the modulating curving of the body.—F. Hopkinson Smith in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The Sin Eater.

One of the most important figures at a Gaelic funeral of the old style is the sin eater. It falls to his lot to consume all the sins resting on the soul of the dead, and thereby enable the latter to rest easy in his grave.

In remote Wales and the highlands of Scotland a funeral is not always complete without this functionary. He is necessarily a poor, unfortunate person, for under happier circumstances he could not be persuaded to accept the responsibility of his post, and his part in the ceremony is taken seriously by himself and everybody else.

A loaf of bread and a jug of beer are laid upon the corpse. These are symbolic of sins committed during life. The sin eater is introduced and with much solemnity eats the bread and drinks the beer. As he is frequently a hungry man with a well developed taste for malt liquors, the part is usually played with zest a little out of keeping with the dreadful nature of the obligation assumed, for it is firmly believed that in thus eating and drinking the sin eater actually burdens his soul with the sins of the deceased.—Kansas City Independent.

The Dogskin Wouldn't Go Round.

Hungary swarms with barristers. It is the greatest ambition of the Hungarian peasant to make one of his sons an advocate.

The son of a small farmer in the neighborhood of Budapest was sent by his father to the law school of that town, but, either from lack of parts or the necessary application, he was plucked in the qualifying examination.

Not daring to return to the paternal abode empty handed after all the money that had been spent on his education, he conceived and executed the plan of forging a legal diploma. The father was not, however, so ignorant as not to be aware that such diplomas are always written on parchment—kutya-ber (dogskin)—in Hungary.

"Why is your certificate not made out on kutya-ber?" asked the old man.

"The fact is, father," coolly replied the youth, "there are more barristers than dogs in Hungary, and so there is not enough kutya-ber to make diplomas for us all."—London Answers.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial, for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. Bear in mind that every bottle is warranted, and if it does not prove beneficial the money will be refunded to you. For sale by Young & Brown.

A Faithful Official.

McIntosh is one of the best Chiefs of Police in the State.—[Woburn Journal.] Chief McIntosh is always on the alert and full of business, and we believe that no town in this section has a more faithful official.

A Good Mayor.

Mayor Davis of Woburn is liked for his stiffed-back qualities. The citizens of Woburn know where to find him, so, too, do the spoils seekers and schemers. He has done a great deal toward placing his city in the front ranks of municipalities, and if the citizens are wise they will keep him in office as long as they possibly can.

Hon. J. B. Holden for Congress.

Hon. J. B. Holden announces he is a candidate for Congress from the new Boston district. He has many friends in Winchester and Woburn, and at one time cast alluring glances at the seat of Congressman McCall in the old Eighth District. The new field has given him a clear road for his ambition. He would make a good Congressman as he is possessed of ability and the right kind of training. His friends here hope for his nomination.

Anything to Beat Senator Woods.

In the Middlesex-Essex Senatorial district politicians are discussing E. J. Gihon of Wakefield as a candidate for Senator Woods' place. Major Gihon made a good soldier, but what kind of a senator would he make? He is a Democrat, but that seems to make no difference with the Republican enemies of Senator Woods of Woburn.

Taxes on the Increase.

We have noticed in the returns so far as heard from the cities and towns in this section of the state that there has been an almost universal increase in tax rates. This is due to a large number of causes. The increase from new buildings and the natural advance in land valuations have been healthy and satisfactory, but in the matter of the illusive and uncertain personal estate there has been a general falling off. Indeed this form of taxation has been growing less year by year, so that almost the entire burden falls on real estate. Other causes are larger state and county taxes, water, sewer and park assessments and a desire on the part of cities and towns for improvements in school buildings, roads and many other things which a few years ago were not considered essential. Of course no one after having experienced the benefits of this higher form of living would care to go back to the old system. Yet these are causing the higher tax rate. The demand for improvements and large expenditures is not confined solely to towns and cities, but includes the state and county, so that it will be seen that in order to meet the various outlays there must be an expensive marking up of valuations to keep the rate down, or else there is certain to follow an increased tax rate.

A gentleman informed us this week that the rate in this town ought to be brought down to $12 on $1000, which if done would bring here a large increase in permanent personal property. Of course every taxpayer in town would welcome this reduction, but how can it be brought about? There is no body of men who would welcome such a condition of affairs as our assessors'

During the past ten years the expenditures have nearly doubled. Only a few years ago $6000 was thought sufficient for the care of the streets, now more than three times that sum is spent annually. Then as regards the schools. One does not have to go back very far to find out that $20,000 was sufficient to meet the expenses. This sum has now been nearly doubled, and so on down the list we might continue and show the great increases in cost of governing the town. There is no fault to be found with the larger expenditures of money, but has the wealth of the town moved upward as fast? It has just about kept pace with it, but no more, and to expect a $12 rate with the present demand for improvements is beyond hope. It is nothing less than remarkable that the figures have been kept down to where they have been for the past two years.

This year the rate will be close to $16, while a year hence it will probably be higher on account of the sewer tax which will amount to about $6000. Winchester's tax rate is below the average, and if it continues to occupy that place its growth over the towns having a larger rate is assured.

Boat Club News.

Mr. Geo. Hudson and Mr. Geo. G. Kellogg have exchanged boats, Mr. Kellogg now being the possessor of the sailing dory "Squaw" and Mr. Hudson a St. Lawrence skiff.

The Boat Club is to be congratulated upon its House Committee. The ordinary club member knows when the machine runs smoothly and things are convenient and comfortable about the club house, but only the officers know how much work it takes to keep things in this desirable condition. The labor involved in finishing the house and all its appointments in time for the opening was very great and only an unusually efficient committee could have done it. There is a general feeling among officers and members that especial credit is due to the chairman of the committee, Mr. J. H. Dwinell, for the successful carrying out of the work. Mr. Dwinell has peculiar qualifications for such a task, combining energy, sound judgment, good taste and a genius for details, together with the tact, suavity and unruffled temper so necessary as a part of the outfit of every house committee-man. The other members of the committee declare that without his devoted and untiring labors they could not possibly have presented the house to the members at the appointed time all finished and in complete working order.

There will be music at the Medford Boat Club House Saturday evening, from seven-thirty to ten.

A "float" night is to be given under the auspices of the Winchester Boat Club on Mystic Lake on Saturday night, July 27. The affair is in the hands of the following committee who are making the necessary arrangements and a meeting will be held this Friday evening when judges will be selected: D. M. Belcher, W. C. Corey, E. R. Rooney, T. P. Wilson, jr., John Blank, jr., E. E. Cole, F. F. Dorsey, E. N. Wills and William Hyde. E. R. Rooney is secretary.

Hoodlumism the Night Before the Fourth.

Hoodlumism on the night before the Fourth showed itself in various communities and Wakefield was not free from its manifestations, but for wanton destruction of other people's property some of those who celebrated the nation's birthday in Stoneham seem to have gone to extreme limits. The chief of police has been quietly gathering evidence and some of Stoneham's hoodlums are being given the opportunity for paying for damages inflicted with the alternative of suffering the penalty of the law. It is to be hoped that it will prove a lesson to these young men. Rowdyism has showed itself in other ways in this and our neighboring town and when one of these smart young men are caught the penalty should be made to fit the crime.—[Wakefield Citizen and Banner.

From the above and reports from other places there appeared to be an epidemic of hoodlumism the night before the Fourth, including Winchester.

A Singular Find in the Streets of Boston.

A rather singular thing happened last week by the finding in the streets of Boston of the original plan of the Nancy Howe lot, which was deeded to the town some few years ago. The gentleman who found the plan gave it to Mr. E. P. Whitney of the Metropolitan Park Board and he placed it in the hands of Mr. Woodbury, Secretary of the Board, who sent it to Mr. Arthur E. Whitney, whose name was on it, and who in turn sent it to Engineer Fletcher. It is the original plan of the lot and was made in 1855, and is believed to be the only lay out of the lot in existence. The plan is of value to the town and its being found on the street of a neighboring city is indeed a singular incident.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. W. E. Taylor is making repairs on one of his houses on Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Saddler are the parents of a son, born Saturday.

We had the pleasure of an introduction to Chief McDermott of the Woburn police force last week at his office. The conditions were auspicious and no compulsion was used in bringing the introduction about, although we were accompanied by Judge George S. Littlefield. The chief showed the editor over the court buildings — the judge's, court and counsel's rooms, the tramp's quarters and cells — and the conclusion reached was that the building is well adapted to its uses. An improvement over our station is that the cells for prisoners are separated from the room devoted to the tramps. This is a glaring defect in our station, where the tramps and cells are in one room and where conversation can be carried on uninterrupted. Chief McDermott is a very genial gentleman, and from conversation with him he is fully able to meet the many issues that are likely to arise through Woburn's becoming a no license city.

The engagement is announced of Miss Annie I. Barnard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lawrence Barnard, formerly of this town, to Mr. Will Stewart of Livermore Falls, Me. Her many friends in town offer their congratulations.

Mr. Geo. D. Rand and Mrs. M. G. Webb, both formerly of this town, were married at Auburndale, and will reside there in a fine house recently built for them.

Capt. and Mrs. William A. Snow of Ridgeway are spending two weeks at Bourndale, Mass.

Mr. Sydney B. Snow is spending his vacation with Mr. Frank A. Kennedy's family at Windsor, Vermont.

Alfred S. Hall, Esq., has joined the legal fraternity of the town who take pleasure in driving, and is now seen with a fine pair of horses.

Mr. Hugh McCraven, the veteran carriage driver, who has passed through a long and tedious illness, has much improved and hopes to mount the box of his hack again.

Mr. Maurice Ginn was united in marriage to Miss Van Renessalaer of Dallas, Tex., Wednesday, the ceremony taking place in that city. After a wedding trip they will take up their residence at 55 Bacon street, this town.

Mr. Hubert Decelle is painting one of his houses on Main street.

Mr. John W. Price, our well known barber, has received an increase in his pension.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hemingway of Winchester park are the parents of a daughter born last week. She has been named Grace Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. William Keyes are the parents of a baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Holt are the parents of a son, born last week.

The Assessors have issued the yearly list of poll tax payers in pamphlet form. The names are issued by streets and it makes a good directory of the town. Copies can be had free at the Assessor's office, Town Hall, also at the STAR office, Young & Brown's and Grover's drug stores.

Peabody's tax rate is $19, an increase of $1.60 over last year. There was a net loss of $215,750 in personal property.

Supt. of Streets Spates will follow along the work of relaying the rails of the No. Woburn railroad on Main street by rebuilding the street. The stone crusher in the centre has for some time been at work crushing the stone.

The sewer department made connection with the main trunk of the Metropolitan sewer at Vine street this week. Work was commenced Monday laying the sewer on Mystic avenue. A syphon will have to be built under the Aberjona river at the foot of the street to connect with the main pipe along side the railroad and the Metropolitan Water Board will be asked to assist by drawing the water of the upper Mystic Lake a little so that the pipe can be laid across the river.

Any person having plans that are likely to be of interest to the town and which they have no use for, are asked to send them to Town Engineer Fletcher who will carefully preserve them. He would also like to make copies of those plans which owners do not care to part with permanently. It is proposed to have the plans numbered and indexed and placed in the fireproof vault at the Town Hall, and where they will be open to inspection by anyone.

Some years ago, Mr. A. C. Bell purchased a tract of land at Winchester Highlands from the late Eli Cooper. Previous to becoming the owner, Mr. Bell's attention was called to the fact that a brook or ditch passing through the land contained trout. Sure enough the fish were plainly to be seen swimming about. The deal was made forthwith. Later three trout were caught, and none have been seen in the brook since. The question then came up: was the ditch "salted" and were the fish responsible for the sale?

At the McKay factory there is a well organized fire department, and practice drills are held every Saturday shortly after the noon hour. There are signals blown on the whistle giving the floor on which there is supposed to be a fire. In response to an alarm the men are quick to respond, and every one thoroughly understands the duties to be performed by him. Monday noon the fire fighters were given a real chance to show the effect of their training when an alarm was blown for a fire in the forge shop. It was quickly and intelligently extinguished and but for the prompt attention given might have resulted in a serious fire before the town department could have arrived.

Cuts and bruises are healed by Chamberlain's Pain Balm in about one-third the time any other treatment would require, because of its antiseptic qualities which cause the parts to heal without maturation. For sale by Young & Brown.

A. S. F. Kirby's House Ransacked.

Mr. A. S. F. Kirby's house was ransacked Tuesday afternoon at about 5 o'clock, and as a result John Guy, colored, and Alexander Hendrickson, boys about 13 years of age, have been arrested. They entered the house at the rear by breaking in a screen window and smashing the glass near the fastening. They were frightened by the ice man entering the house, and took flight from the front of the house, and as they came out were seen and one of them identified by Miss Anna Littlefield. The police were notified and the arrest and confession of the boys quickly followed. In court Wednesday morning their cases were continued to Saturday.

The boys made havoc with the contents of the house, bureau drawers being emptied and closets searched in a vain attempt to find money, which they admitted they were in search of. They succeeded in getting away with some fish lines and boy's trunks, while some silverware was laid out, but was not taken because of the boys evidently becoming frightened. The refrigerator was also entered and food taken and eaten.

They All Agree To It.

He who takes himself to the shores of Northern New England for a season of rest and recreation, finds many peculiar characteristics unknown to other sections of the country. The climate is ever delightful, the recreations of great variety and the scenic display of a magnificence beyond description. The visitor is delighted with the seclusion which penetrates the region and a remarkable feature of the New England Coast resorts is that its patronage includes tourists from every state and country as well as from every walk in life. The hotels are without exception commodious and finely appointed hostelries and nothing remains undone that will add to the comfort of the summer sojourner.

The Boston & Maine Railroad reaches every part of Northern New England and the train facilities it offers to all points includes fast and frequent trains equipped with modern Pullman cars. Horse and Carriage Stolen.

At about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a horse and carriage belonging to Mr. Nathaniel A. Richardson was stolen from his stable on Washington street. Mr. Richardson was at work in the field back of his house, when two men entered the stable, harnessed the horse, and after hitching the animal to his carriage drove away. When the loss was discovered he immediately reported to Chief of Police McIntosh, who has taken every precaution to recover the stolen property. The names of the men were found to be Erastus Mead and a man by the name of Holland, both coming here from Boston. The police authorities of every city and town within 20 miles of Winchester have been notified to be on the lookout, and as the men are known they are certain to be arrested. The horse is a valuable one and Mr. Richardson is afraid it may be injured by over driving.

Mr. Richardson has recovered the horse and carriage. Wednesday he received a postal card from one of the men stating that the outfit might be found at Peabody's stable, Church street, Lowell. It is only a question of time when the men will be arrested.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers, to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form. No family should be without it. I keep it in my house at all times." For sale by Young & Brown.

WEDDING OF MISS HILDA M. EKENDAHL AND MR. ANDREW P. LUNDBORG.

An Event in the History of Worcester.

Andrew P. Lundborg and Miss Hilda Maria Ekendahl of Winchester were married last night in Mulberry street Lutheran church. The wedding was the largest and most elaborate that Swedish Worcester has known.

Not only were the members of this, one of the largest of the Swedish churches in this city, there in force, but there were large delegations of guests from the other denominations in the nationality, and among the Swedish Lutheran clergymen from within and without the city were mingled a large number of other pastors. It was a tribute to the worth and character of the bridegroom that for the first time on such an occasion differences of creed and method were forgotten.

The church was elaborately decorated. About the walls stood green saplings artistically arranged. Every window sill had its share of bright bouquets, while flowers, ferns, palms and laurel in many designs from arches to lattice work made altar and chancel a veritable bower. And below in the vestry, where the reception was, similar care was taken with decorations.

It was under a high arch of laurel with roses entwined and immediately beneath a great bell of more than 300 white pinks that the ceremony was performed by Rev. Erik J. Nystrom, pastor of the church. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Hilma Nystrom, organist of the church, the bridal party moved up the aisle led by the two flower girls in white silk muslin, Helga Nystrom and Margaret Nystrom. Behind came the best man and bridesmaid, P. A. Anderson and Miss Julia Swanson. The latter wore blue silk with cream colored lace and white silk trimmings. Mr. Lundborg and Miss Ekendahl followed. She was gowned in white silk and on her head was a crown of myrtle and orange blossoms, from which flowed a white veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony the wedding train marched down the aisle and passed to the vestry, which was also decorated. On the steps of the platform the bride and groom stood together and received congratulations.

Among the many who went to offer their congratulations were the following Swedish Clergymen:

Rev. Frans A. Engstrand, pastor of Quinsigamond Lutheran church; Rev. C. A. Cederberg, pastor of Thomas-street Methodist church; Rev. J. Alfred Anderson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of Brockton; Rev. Henry E. Whyman, pastor of Quinsigamond Methodist church; Rev. Rubert Swanson, in charge of the parochial school of Quinsigamond Lutheran church; Rev. Victor Witting, the aged pioneer of Swedish Methodism in this country and Sweden, and Rev. Henry Kullander, temporary pastor of the Finnish-Swedish Lutheran church.

Following the reception was a supper. This supper was in charge of Mrs. John Olson and young ladies from the Young People's Society served.

Speeches followed, as is the Swedish custom, Rev. Erik J. Nystrom acting as master of ceremonies. The different departments of work, both secular and religious, in which the bridegroom has been a leader, were taken as the subjects by the different speakers.

All the speeches were witty, and the applications were pointed in many places to the merriment of all. The end came with the reading of telegrams of congratulations by Rev. Mr. Nystrom.

This noon Mr. Lundborg and bride leave for Belle Plain, Minn., the groom's old home, and will be absent 16 days.

Return will be partly by the lake steamers as far as Buffalo, where the Pan-American exposition will be visited. Mr. Lundborg and wife will live at 20 Elizabeth street.

The large number of presents included gifts from every Swedish clergyman in Worcester and Swedish pastors outside the city, also from a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. George H. Gilbert of Winchester sent an oak cabinet for holding hand painted china, and Mr. Edward H. Gilbert of Ware, Mass., a dozen solid silver spoons.—[Worcester Daily Telegram, July 10.

Edmund Sanderson.

Mr. Edmund Sanderson passed away Thursday morning at one o'clock at the residence of his son in-law, Mr. Henry A. Emerson, Cambridge street. Mr. Sanderson had been slowly failing for some time, but it was not until the excessive heat during the latter part of June that he was forced to keep to the house. His death was due primarily to old age. During the last two days of his sickness he failed to recognize those in attendance. He was 84 years of age on the 17th of June last.

The ancestors of Edmund Sanderson came from Ipswich, England, in 1635, and settled at Piety Corner, which is now a part of Waltham. The original lands have never passed out of the possession of the Sanderson family.

He was born in Lunenburg, Mass., June 17, 1817, and attended the public schools of that town and came to Winchester as a young man to work for Mr. Samuel S. Richardson at turning knobs. A few months later he went to Cutter's mill to continue the same line of work, where he remained until 1845, when he went into business, keeping what was then called "a country store" with Mr. Alvin Taylor, under the name of A. Taylor & Co., in the building now occupied by Adams' grocery store, and later moved into Richardson's block, corner of Main and Park streets, where he carried the same line of goods.

In connection with his store he established the first express business in town, which later led to a separation of the business, Mr. Taylor taking the store and Mr. Sanderson the express business, which he carried on alone for four years, then took in Mr. Alanson Winn of North Woburn as a partner.

After remaining two years in the express business with Mr. Winn, Mr. Sanderson sold his part of the business to Mr. Winn, bought the store business of Mr. Richardson and remained in the old corner building for many years, where later his late son Charles joined him.

Here the business of groceries and hardware was carried on until 1889, when they sold the grocery business to Mr. B. F. Holbrook and moved into White's brick block, where they continued in the business of hardware, paints and oils until 1898, when Mr. Sanderson, selling to his son Charles, retired from business. Mr. Sanderson was one of the oldest and most respected men in the town. He had been a trustee of the Winchester Savings bank from its incorporation. He was interested in the growth and prosperity of the old Winchester Historical society, and took a deep interest in its welfare. He became a member of the First Congregational parish in 1850 and united with the church at the time of the great revival in 1858, and his attendance continued as long as his health permitted.

He was married April 4, 1844, to Miss Lydia E. Kendall of Tyngsboro, Mass., and in 1894 they observed their golden wedding. His wife passed away on the 3rd of July, four years ago.

They had five children, three of whom are now living—Mrs. H. A. Emerson, Mrs. W. B. Simonds and Miss L. J. Sanderson. He has a brother, George, at present residing in Minnesota, at an advanced age, and he is the last of the family.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. H. A. Emerson, Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heart burn may be avoided. For sale by Young & Brown.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The latest report about the pond bridge is that the present town engineer found 42 feet of mud where the previous one found only 12 feet; also that the Whitney estate will ask $2000.00 damages for interference with the flowage of the water. Well, between mud and water it looks as if this would be an ample place to dump the town surplus for many years if the above are facts. But it looks as if the committee was wasting time on this bridge project, which is rather surprising as it was supposed to be enthusiastic for the street. Possibly enthusiastic is too strong a word.

Why don't the stay-at-homes start some entertainments while the other half are at the seashore and mountains? Band concerts naturally suggest themselves first and why should not the towns have the right to appropriate money for them as well as the cities? It is a good thing to give the people entertainment—the monarchies of Europe recognized that long ago.

The Water Board is painting its shop on Vine street and as soon as the spirit moves again it will have the long delayed blinds hung at the North reservoir house. Next will come the addition of 50 feet more fire hose at the latter place perhaps, so that a fire in the westerly side of the house can be reached; it has 100 feet there now so that three sides of the house are safe anyway.

Apparently the only thing to do about fixing up the Mill pond, river, etc., is to appoint a special committee to investigate and report. Certainly the Park and Selectmen's boards have had time enough to straighten these things out, but they don't even make progress.

The continual digging up of the macadam streets continues as if they were common dirt streets. It does not improve them.

The Water Board began Tuesday to hang the long looked for blinds on the town house at the north dam and judged by the appearance of the half dozen hung when all are on they will add about a thousand dollars' value to the neighborhood.

There are three crossing men at the centre, one of whom can just as well be on the easterly side of the tracks when trains are passing as not, and a word from the Selectmen would bring it about. Why wait until another accident occurs before taking action?

Although the tax rate will be about a dollar less than last years rate, 'tis said it will go up again next year. This will probably be so unless a good deal of care is given to the appropriations, but if an appropriation committee is appointed that will carefully consider and investigate the rate can be kept down and perhaps even lowered some. There has been a very large amount of improvements made in our town in the last few years and it is time property benefited should return some of the betterment. Then, no money should be raised for new macadam construction by taxation, but by loan. If there should be any balance from water rates above interest on the water bonds and maintenance it should not be appropriated to construction as has been done in the past, but should remain in the treasury until used to decrease the water debt or the rates. Fire insurance seems a foolish thing to appropriate money for decidedly, but it might be well to establish a sinking fund to cover it, although even that seems unnecessary. Probably few departments can be cut down much if any as the town will continue to grow, but a special effort should be made to keep the rate down and lower it if possible.

I wonder if any of our base ball teams have applied for the first date on Manchester Field? If they don't look out some out of town club will steal a march on them. Remember, it is the Metropolitan Park Board and not the local board that has the say about it.

What could the Selectmen have been doing at their meeting last week if as reported "it was nothing of public interest?"

The Republican party's state convention appears to be all fixed for a glorification of the administration, but the people will show what they think of it in the congressional elections next year.

What did we establish a sewer system for anyway? I am informed that right in the centre of the town are a dozen vaults some of which have not been cleaned for five months and they are on almost adjoining properties. Where is the Board of Health? Even the people passing on the street notice it.

Street Across the Pond.

Engineer Fletcher has made a survey of the bottom of Black Ball pond covering the route of the proposed new street to the Plains. An iron rod was forced down in the mud and soft dirt to a depth in one place of 40 feet, but this was the extreme as other points showed solid bottom at less distances. This work was done at the instance of the Selectmen and a special committee of citizens appointed by the town to look into the cost of the proposed street. It will take a lot of filling to make the street, but if the suggestion of former Engineer Thompson is carried out the dirt can be procured from the Sanborn land adjoining Swanton street and the railroad tracks, which he favored purchasing and making over into a town yard. He claimed that the filling taken from this land would practically pay for its cost. The suggestion has also been advanced of the town's procuring a right of way across the pond and utilizing it as a dumping place. The street department annually throws away about $1000 worth of material gathered from the streets and this with the private refuse, would in a few years go a long way toward building the street.

A pile bridge has been considered by the committee, but this is not as yet seriously contemplated. A route around the pond with an entrance adjacent to the Episcopal church has also been talked of before the Board. Nothing definite however will be known in regard to the matter until the committee submits its report at the meeting of next March.

Mrs. Margaret Lafleur.

Mrs. Margaret Lafleur passed away Wednesday at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. John McNally, Winchester place. She had been ill since Decoration Day with a complication of diseases. She was one of the older residents, having lived here for over fifty years, or previous to the incorporation of the town. She leaves one son and a daughter. Funeral services were held at St. Mary's church this morning, the interment being in Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

Troubles of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, eruptions, boils, eczema, tetter, salt rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by Grover. Large bottles only 50c.

Mrs. Alice Fletcher Whitney.

Mrs. Alice Fletcher Whitney, wife of Arthur E. Whitney, passed away Monday, July 15th, of heart disease, the result of long years of acute rheumatism. Mrs. Whitney was well known in Winchester circles especially so before being crippled by disease. Sickness and pain could not dim the brightness of her mind and disposition, and from her wheeled chair her daily life shed an influence for good not often equaled. She will be sadly missed by the community who knew her so well. Mrs. Whitney was a talanted musician in her earlier years before rheumatism closed her hand in its inexorable grip, and her talants were always at the disposal of the public for any good cause. She was an appreciative lover of all forms of natural and artistic beauty as well as of good music. Symphony concerts and good pictures, mountains, trees and rivers were her great delight. The serenity and cheerfulness with which she gave up her sources of enjoyment one after another, knowing well that her world was growing smaller and smaller, has been an object lesson of holy living to all who knew her. Pain and suffering, disappointment after disappointment in discovering that her physical troubles were incurable, could not keep her from being cheerful and happy or prevent her from bearing the burdens of others and lightening their loads as much as possible. In her home life and in her relations to every living thing, she loved her self last. Even the birds will miss her loving hand and her friends the helpfulness of a cheerful loving sister whose faith in God's goodness never faltered no matter how much or how great her own personal trials and afflictions. Her life has been a living example of holy living, her death is a sweet benediction and holy influence which will work for nobler living in the hearts of all who knew her.

Mrs. Whitney was born in Charlestown, Mass., but spent her childhood days in Hallowell, Maine. She finished her education at Abbott Academy, Andover, and in 1872 assisted her mother and sister in conducting a small boarding and day school for children in the present home of Thomas Lawson. Her particular part was in teaching music. The school continued for a few years, or until the marriage of Mrs. Whitney and her sister, Mrs. Harrison Parker. Mrs. Whitney was married in 1878 to Arthur E. Whitney, and their union has been a blessed and happy one. Two children, Robert and Harold, were born to them and are now living.

Funeral services were held from her late home Wednesday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, the house being crowded. The display of floral tributes was profuse, and these tender reminders testified mutely to the love and esteem in which the deceased was held. The Schubert Male Quartette of Boston sweetly sang several selections. Rev. William I. Lawrance, pastor of the Unitarian church, conducted the services, and in his reference to the many noble qualities of Mrs. Whitney, spoke in part as follows:

That "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin" is doubly true when that touch is of pain. For all suffer, at times and in various degrees; but when one suffers long and much, that one becomes near to all, by the common bond. And so it is that we gather not so much as neighbors and friends, as we do as brothers and sisters to her who has here found blessed release. We will not speak of her pain and limitations; she wished others not to do so while here, and rarely mentioned such things herself. And then, that is all past. No more anguish, no more limitations. The lame leaps as an hart, and the tongue sings. Nor shall we wrong her with praise. Could her voice be raised today it would forbid; we will not take advantage of her silence. Nor is there need. The heart knows,—we all can testify. This word, written but now by a loving friend, might be said by any of us:

"It was an inspiration every time I saw her. Her room, her presence, her strength of character, made up an influence which never left me. I needed her. She always helped me, and through all her suffering she was a constant wonder to me."

The best art conceals itself. In its very completeness there is such naturalness that there seems no effort. But art is not all in making statues and pictures, music and poems. The finest art is the art of life. It consists in meeting the conditions which confront us, as they should be met. He who does that makes of his life a triumphant success, and this is what our friend did. But it was done so well as to conceal the effort required. It is at least possible that one blindfolded, or lacking the sense of sight, might have been in her presence often enough to establish an intimate acquaintance and yet have been wholly ignorant of what would seem to an observer the chief fact about her. She had no complaints to make, was hopeful and cheerful, accepting her lot and glorifying it. Here is success; here is art at its highest; here is a life triumphant!

It is known to many that during the last months of her life she was engaged in a work, playfully kept as a secret until it should be completed. This work I have had in my possession for a day—a rare privilege. At first glance it seems merely a few sheets, upon which pictures have been pasted, and then bound together. Even so, the pictures are the best, and mounted with a neatness that is astonishing under the circumstances. But that is only the beginning; these pictures are all symbolic, and constitute what she has called an "autobiography." Between the picture-leaves are others containing extracts of great beauty and remarkable aptness, all transcribed with pains, and under what difficulties we all know. The whole is sparkling with wit, and in reading it smiles and tears constantly mingle. It is a voice all her own that salutes us, as I read a few of these, concluding with a poem of hers also found in the book, which, taken in connection with the circumstances of her life, is touching and significant.

"Crab apples may not be the best kind of fruit; but a tree which every year bears a great crop of crab apples is better worth cultivating than a tree which bears nothing." Anon.

"Patience makes that more tolerable which it is impossible to prevent or remove." Horace.

"He surely is in want of another's patience who has none of his own." Lavater.

"A sunny temper gilds the edges of life's blackest cloud." Guthrie.

TO INVALIDS AND THEIR GUESTS.

It one cannot walk
It is possible to talk
And look on the bright side still;
There's always something left
Even to a person bereft
Of all but a tongue and a will.

Perhaps a rheumatic
May make it emphatic,
After an experience of years,
Why it is better
By call, or by letter,
To spare an invalid tears.

Do not speak of disease
But of something to please,
Like music, or sunsets, or books,
And when you depart
'Twill cheer your own heart
To note a change in the invalid's looks.

Never enter with a frown,
Or corners of mouth down;
Talk of something bright and clever.
Pardon it if I say it—
Try and obey it—
To speak of "God's Acre," never.

In conclusion let me say
Without further delay
(None needs it more than I)
To be happy and kind
And contented in mind,
The Golden Rule, each must apply.

A. F. W.

Pathetic beyond power of words to tell was it to see life closing in upon her—pain upon pain, limitation after limitation. Ah, the deepest cleft may yet be open to the sky, and if we look up through it we may see the Infinite. That was here the sustaining vision. We shall be dull indeed if we do not learn the lesson—that a triumphant life needs not pleasing conditions, but may be lived under precisely those conditions, however adverse, which meet us. And we shall be dull of heart if we be not moved to patience and courage, resolved to forget our "insect miseries" and to make the world the better for our living—uncomplaining, gentle, courteous, long-suffering, Christlike.

An Enjoyable Fishing Trip.

Tuesday morning 37 gentlemen enjoyed the pleasure and excitement of Charles A. Lane's eighth annual fishing trip, which left Winchester on the 6 a. m. train. The day was a delightful one from start to finish, not only because of the stirring incidents of the trip, but also from the refreshing coolness of the salt water breezes which were in contrast with the great heat in the city. The trip, if for no other reason than to escape the heat, was well worth the trouble and slight expense. Another feature of the excursion was that every gentleman who promised to go was on hand when the boat was ready to start, with the single exception of A. S. Hall, Esq., and his failure to be there right on time was due to his posting a letter in the Union Station and thereby missing the train for Swampscott on which the party had taken passage. When Mr. Hall discovered that he had been left he took the next train for Lynn, where, by persuasion and a promise of a bounty he induced a carriage driver to take him to Swampscott in the hope of catching the boat. The horse was put to a gallop and the beach was reached in a short time, when it was discovered the boat, which was at a considerable distance from the shore, was just weighing anchor. Two fishermen, just pulling off from the shore, were pressed into service and double oared the last real struggle began, and just as the "Letter D" was filling away to the stiff breeze, Mr. Hall succeeded in attracting the attention of members of the party. The schooner was brought up into the wind, when Mr. Hall stepped aboard. A singular thing was that he had not been missed from the party after the Winchester train reached Boston, and probably would not until Mr. Lane began to count up noses.

As in former years, the "Letter D," and the trusted and knowing old salt, Capt. John Haley, were selected. The trip to the fishing grounds was a delightful sail, the time being occupied in satisfying the cravings of appetites from numerous baskets and hampers, and in telling stories and joking, some of the latter being of the practical kind. With Edward F. Jones, H. T. Dickson, A. H. Richardson and Dr. F. H. Harding there was no time when fun was dull, although many missed the genial company of George Adams Woods.

While the boat was bowling merrily over the seas, Mr. Lane collected money for prizes. This was divided into three grand prizes, for the first fish caught, the largest fish and for the greatest number. In the course of the day when a change of grounds took place, there were other prizes for those who succeeded in catching the first three fish.

The denizens of the deep did not bite as well as in past years, although the total was some 125 fish, not counting the "door mat," justly named as such by Mr. Hall, and which was pulled over the side of the boat by Rev. S. W. Adriance. It was a skate and weighed over 50 pounds.

When the horn was blown by Mr. Lane, the 37 lines struck the water instantaneously, and hardly had they reached bottom before Mr. Richardson began to pull up the first fish, a large cod, thus entitling him to first prize. He was none too soon, as two more were soon floundering about the deck. After an hour or more a change of grounds was made as it was not thought the fish were biting frequently enough. When the boat had been anchored for the second time, the first fish and a prize was awarded to T. P. Wilson, the second to C. A. Lane and the third to H. T. Bagley. The next change of anchorage, gave first prize to E. F. Jones, second to H. J. Winde and third to Mr. Bagley. The last change of ground found John Abbott first, followed by Walter F. Symmes and Mr. Bagley again.

In the meantime the contest for the grand prizes was continued in earnest, and up to the middle of the afternoon Mr. C. T. Main was at the top for the largest fish, a cod weighing ten pounds. His hopes were shattered when F. N. Kerr pulled in a 10 1-2 pound pollock which eventually took first prize for the largest fish. There was an interesting struggle for the honor of "high line" which at the close was captured by Rev. Mr. Newton who had a total of seven fish to his credit, others with six following him closely.

The anchorage was reached at about 5 o'clock, when barges were taken for the Swampscott station.

A delectable feature of the trip was the chowder served on the boat. If you are a lover of this dish, then try one as prepared by Capt. John Haley with fish fresh from the water. Men in the party who are known for their moderate appetites, passed their plates for more, two and three times.

In closing the account of this trip, great credit is due Mr. Lane. Every arrangement was admirably conceived and carried out on trains, barges and boat. Indeed nothing was left undone that could add to the enjoyment of those who attended, and the hope was expressed by all that they might be present at Mr. Lane's 9th fishing trip next summer.

Following are the names of those who made up the party:

O. C. Sanborn, W. F. Edlefson, W. P. Nickerson, D. P. Blaikie, Rev. S. W. Adriance, Dr. F. H. Harding, C. T. Main, Edw. F. Jones, C. A. Lane, W. F. Symmes, A. S. Hall, J. H. Winn, H. T. Bagley, Geo. Telephone Service.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am glad to see by reading the STAR that there are those who consider the Winchester telephone service a satisfactory one. My experience has been to the contrary, and the number of mistakes and delays is inexcusable. My telephone is on a line with other subscribers and there is hardly a day that I am not called up by mistake and after coming to the telephone have the satisfaction of hearing "I wanted number so-and-so." Repeatedly I have called out from Boston and have received the assurance of the telephone girl that the telephone bell had been rung again and again, and no answer could be obtained, while as I afterwards learned the bell had not been rung at all. Annoyances at night are especially frequent and "line is busy" or "I've rung them and can't get any answer" seem to be the popular replies. However, I am glad that there are others who get adequate service, if I can not.

Truly yours,
TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBER.

Electrics to the Fells.

A correspondent of the Stoneham Independent has the following to say on electric cars to the Fells:

At a recent town meeting, held in Stoneham, a committee was appointed to interview Gen. Bancroft in relation to extending a line of the Elevated Electric Railway through Middlesex Fells, past Spot Pond to Stoneham. When this committee interviewed the "L" officials, it is reported that Gen. Bancroft said to them, "Gentlemen, do you know what it means for the Boston Elevated Railway Company to extend its lines to Stoneham? It means 17 miles for five cents!" If Gen. Bancroft made this remark, it seems to me that he made it without due consideration. The fact that a passenger, or a number of passengers, might be carried 17 miles for 5 cents, ought not to enter into the consideration at all, for this, without anything else as an argument, seems to me to be a very weak point indeed. While a very small number of passengers might be carried 17 miles for a nickel, a very large number would only be carried a very short distance. Thousands of people, especially ladies and children, get into the cars to ride only from one street to another. I witness such cases every time I ride in a street car, and I ride nearly every day, sometimes several times a day. What matter if a few passengers happen to ride 17 miles? would not the vast number who ride only a short distance many times compensate for the few who only ride for pleasure and go the whole length of the line? It seems to me there are many important considerations in this matter, which the "L" officials would do well to look after.

It is my opinion that if the Boston Elevated Railway Co. should extend its line to Stoneham through the Fells past Spot Pond, that it would be the best paying investment it ever made or ever will make. Why? Because thousands and thousands of people from Boston and the surrounding cities and towns would ride out into the Fells to get a breath of fresh, cool air, and see the delightful sights which Providence and nature have provided in the woods and around one of the most beautiful lakes in the Commonwealth! Who would not be glad of the chance to pay a nickel, or a number of nickels, for such a ride, if he could, on such terrible hot days as we have had the past week?

The Boston Elevated Co. cannot afford to let this matter stand idle long. Some company will take hold of it soon, and the company which is fortunate enough to get a line of street railway through the Fells to Boston, will get a prize.

The people are anxious to go into the Fells and to Spot Pond since the state has made such wonderful improvements. Many who would gladly go cannot walk and cannot afford to hire a team. The few who can keep a team or who can afford to hire one, are much delighted with and benefitted by their trips into the Fells, while the great mass of the people are obliged to stay at home or walk or wish. For my part I wish we now had a line of street cars running through the Fells.

The August Smart Set.

The Smart Set can never be accused of dullness. In its 160 pages of stories, verses and witticisms there are surprises and delights for the most blasé reader. The August number opens with a novelette of remarkable power and originality, entitled "Miss Sylvester's Marriage," written by Cecil Charles.

The highly diverting history of a social struggler is related in "Ghosts in Naumkeag," by W. B. Cohen, and other stories of exceptional interest are "The Price of Admission," by Felicia Goddard; "The Sunflower Girl," by Justus Miles Forman; "Orchards or Arbutus?" by Katrina Trask; "In the Matter of a Watchman," by Guy Somerville; "Taken at the Flood," a $100 prize story, by Beulah Downey Hanks; "In Regard to Madras," by H. Knapp Harris; "Mr. Poltroon," by Charles Stokes Wayne; and "Le Commissionaire," a tale in the original French, by S. Boucherit. Edgar Saltus contributes a brilliant and amusing essay, entitled "De l'Amour." Of the conspicious poems may be mentioned "Pierrot's House," by Bliss Carman; "The Mirthless Princess," by Guy Wetmore Carryl; "Escapade," by Josephine Dodge Daskam; "Afterglow," by Myrtle Reed; and "Roses," by Clinton Scollard.

Hillcrest Happy Workers.

In the "Uncle Tom's" department of the Boston Sunday Journal of last week appeared the following:

Hillcrest, Winchester, Mass.,
June 30, 1901.

My Dear Uncle Tom:

Last Wednesday I was asking our dressmaker, who was sewing at our house, what we girls could do to pass away the time during the summer. She asked me why we did not form a club and sew for poor children. I thought this would be a nice thing to do, so I talked it over with two of my friends. We decided to form a Sewing Club consisting of four members. Our first meeting was held Friday, June 28, on my grounds at 2.30 p. m. We elected for president, Emma Berry; vice-president, Bessie Leach; secretary, Lillian Fisher; treasurer, Claire Wyman. After a short business meeting we began to repair some clothing which a kind neighbor, having heard of our club and the cause we were working for, gave us. Since then we have either obtained money or clothing from other neighbors who have heard of our work. We could not decide then what we would name our club, but my mother thought of naming it "Hillcrest Happy Workers." Our next meeting will be held at the home of our treasurer, Claire Wyman.

Yours truly,
LILLIAN FISHER,
Secretary.

To Buffalo It Is.

Barnum's great circus was called the greatest show on earth, and even with its carefully worked out details it is not comparable to the Pan-American Exposition which is now showing at Buffalo.

The buildings are beautiful to behold, the electrical effects nothing short of marvellous, the exhibits of a character interesting and instructive, the grounds truly a bewildering paradise, the midway without exception, the most complete ever opened for public visitation, and all this in one of the finest cities in the country.

The Boston & Maine R. R. will carry you to Buffalo from any New England point, over a variety of routes either one of which is picturesque and worth traversing. The car service is complete and the equipment of Pullman parlor and sleeping cars is of a high standard of excellence. The trains are fast ones and the rates low enough to attract every tourist. If you are going to do the Pan-American, send your address to General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine R. R., Boston, for the forty-page Exposition Book.

MR. BOWSER'S GAME.

HE GIVES HIS WIFE A FEW POINTERS ABOUT POKER.

It Was to Have Been an Enjoyable Evening, but Her Wonderful Luck Made Him Suspicious and Brought About a Calamity.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

It was one of Mr. Bowser's good nights. He came home looking cheerful and happy, and when Mrs. Bowser met him in the hall and announced that the new cook was incompetent and the dinner was spoiled he kindly replied:

"Well, we won't worry about that. I guess you can scrape enough together to make some sort of a meal."

There was plenty of occasion to find fault, but he ate what was set before him and continued to smile. When

"WHAT DO YOU DO?"

Mrs. Bowser told him that he must order a ton of range coal in the morning, he did not charge her with selling half the last ton to buy caramels, and when he saw the gas bill for the last month he actually complimented her on keeping down the family expenses. As they reached the sitting room he found a hairpin on the floor, but he had nothing to say about reckless extravagance and the poorhouse, and when she told him that the clock had stopped for want of cleaning he beamed on her instead of asking whether she had punched it with a crowbar or battered it with an ax. Mrs. Bowser looked upon these signs as ominous, but she couldn't tell whether he was going to spring a new fad on her or suggest a spelling bee. In hopes to avert a calamity she suggested a call on a neighbor, but he looked at her in a loving way and said:

"Not this evening, dear. I wish to remain at home and take solid comfort. All the way home I was saying to myself that I had the nicest wife and the pleasantest home in the world."

"That was good of you," she replied, delighted at the compliment and forgetting her fears for a moment.

"Yes, the nicest wife and the pleasantest home, and I want you to understand that both are thoroughly appreciated. If all men were as well off as I am, there would be very little in this world to complain of."

Mrs. Bowser murmured her gratification, and the family cat came down stairs and rubbed against Mr. Bowser's be scooped blind in two hands in a regular game. A pair of aces or kings is not worth much of a bet. I warn you to look out for me, and I'm going to raise you five."

"I'll see you and raise you ten!"

"What! Where did you pick up those expressions? And, by the way, let me tell you that this is no baby business. What you lose comes out of your pin money on Saturday. If I lose, I'll pay at once. That's the only way to learn how to play poker. Do you want to take it all back and bet 10 cents?"

"I think I would rather bet $10."

"All right. That's two weeks' pin money. I'll call your hand."

Mr. Bowser laid down two big pairs with a sugary smile around his mouth and was going to ask if she had ever heard of bluff when she showed a flush of hearts and held out her hand for the money.

"How—how did you get any such hand?" he demanded as his face grew red and he regarded her with deep distrust.

"You dealt it to me. When I stood pat, you ought to have known that I had a good hand."

"But how did I know that you knew anything about pat hands? It was all an accident, however, and it won't happen again. Deal away."

This time Mr. Bowser got a pair of aces to draw to, and Mrs. Bowser got only queen high. He got a small pair with his three cards, and she had the luck to draw two more queens. He was determined to crush her at a blow, and he said:

"No baby business now. I'll bet $10 on this hand."

"I will raise you five," she calmly said.

"But how can you?" he shouted. "You only held up one card."

"I know it, but I'll raise your bet just the same."

"You will, eh? Well, I'll see the raise and call your hand, and if you ain't the sickest woman in this town"—

But Mrs. Bowser maintained her health. When he laid down two pairs, she laid down threes, and his chin was shaking as he exclaimed:

"There's skulduddery here somewhere, but I shall soon get on to it! No human being ever held two such hands running. Give me the deal."

Wonderful luck attended Mrs. Bowser's hands. On the third deal she got a straight, while Mr. Bowser got threes. When she announced that she'd stand pat again, he looked at her for a minute and made up his mind that she had heard of "bluffs" somewhere and was trying it on him. He didn't better his hand, but he thought threes good enough to see her bet of $5 and raise her ten. She came back at him, and there was supposed to be $50 in the pot when he got scared and called.

"Woman, you—you stole that hand!" he shouted as soon as he could find his breath.

"But how could I?" she protested.

"You stole 'em all and have swindled your own husband! Think of it! I sit down here to give you a few pointers, and you deliberately go at it to defraud me! By thunder, I won't stand it!"

"Mr. Bowser, you know it was fair. You had two deals to my one. You owe me"—

"Not a cent—not a red cent! I have not only been robbed by my own wife leg and said to herself that there'd be an explosion in that house before the evening was over. There was silence for two or three minutes, and then Mr. Bowser said:

"If you know how to play poker, we'd run into Green's some evening. He says they have a little party there almost every night. It's just a neighborly game, you know, with a penny ante and a 2 cent limit, but still one ought to know a little something about poker to take a hand in. Hasn't it ever occurred to you to learn?"

"I—I have played a few games," she replied, realizing now what was coming.

"Yes, come to think of it, I believe you have, and it won't be much trouble to post you up. I'll get the cards and give you a few pointers."

"I think I would rather wait until some other evening, if you don't mind. You haven't read the paper yet."

"Never mind the paper, and it will be no trouble to explain things to you. Draw up your chair, and I'll take the first deal."

Mrs. Bowser looked at the cat and sighed, and the cat looked back at her and shook her head in a pitying way.

"There's your hand," continued Mr. Bowser, "and if you don't want to stand pat, as they call it, you can discard and draw. If you have a pair, retain them. What do you do?"

"I—I think I'll stand pat."

"Oh, you will? That's either cheek or ignorance, of course, but we'll see. What's your bet?"

"I should like to bet as much as $5."

"Five dollars! Why, woman, you'd in my own house, but my evening has been turned into a hollow mockery. Woman, you can sit with your conscience, and I will go down to the club. They may rob me there, but they will not grieve my soul."

She began to protest and entreat, but he hustled down the hall for his hat and bounced outdoors. Five minutes before, but unknown to the players, three dogs had chased a cat into the open vestibule, where she turned at bay and defied them. They were standing on the steps, waving their tails and showing their teeth, and the cat had her back up and her claws ready, when Mr. Bowser walked out on the quartet. His advent precipitated a climax. His yell of surprise was answered by a screech from the cat and a growl from each canine, and by the time Mrs. Bowser reached the door he was lying on the sidewalk and cat and dogs were leaping over him as they fought. The Bowser cat ran down and took a hand, and it was not until a policeman came up and used his club that a rescue was effected. Then Mr. Bowser crawled up the steps and tottered into the hall, and as he leaned against the wall for support and panted for breath he managed to say:

"It only needed this! Robber of her husband and would be assassin—tomorrow—tomorrow!" M. QUAD.

PLEASANT PRISONS.

THE SPECIAL ONES IN THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT.

They Are Intended Particularly For Members and Other Persons Who Violate Parliament's Own Dignity, Rules and Customs.

Few persons are aware that England's parliament has its own special prisons within its own precincts which are intended particularly for its own members and persons who violate its own dignity, rules and customs. Of course these prisons seldom are used now, but they have been in the past, and not so very long ago, and may be again. The house of commons has one set and the house of lords another.

The commons prison is a little way up in the Clock Tower. Here are two sets of prisons, intended only for the accommodation of one prisoner each, one set being a little higher up in the tower than the other. Each set consists of a sitting room and two bedrooms, the former being a nice, comfortable room about three by five yards, with a neat carpet and chairs good enough for anybody. The extra bedroom is not intended for the prisoner or for any friends whom he might desire to put up for the night, but is the sleeping apartment of the official who looks after him during his incarceration. This man is usually the supervisor of badge messengers, and, besides looking after his man, he is also his servant for the time being, and waits upon him just like any other. He never need worry himself much upon the question of the possibilities of the prisoner's escape, for the sergeant-at-arms is responsible, and inasmuch as the only way of getting to and from the prison is by way of this sergeant's house and through it, the risk of such a thing ever happening is practically prohibitive.

While he is there the prisoner really has a good time. No restrictions as to hours are placed upon him, and he may rouse himself from his slumbers just when he feels most inclined and return to them in the same way. Practically the only thing he cannot do is to walk about outside just as he pleases, but he is permitted to take an hour and a half's exercise each morning and an hour in the afternoon on the terrace of the house, and the terrace, broad and long and with its splendid outlook upon the river, is by no means a bad place to take exercise. If he were left entirely unguarded, the prisoner might dive into the river and swim away, or, what would be simpler, hail a passing boat. So, just for precaution's sake, a couple of officers accompany him while he takes these breaths of fresh air.

He goes on Sunday to the church in Vincent square, and on these occasions also he has a couple of innocent looking attendants.

Moreover, there is no question of so many ounces of bread and meat, but if he has the money to pay for it he may feed himself upon the choicest viands that the most cultured palate could suggest. The house of commons has a first class restaurant, where the hungry M. P. may dine as well as he could anywhere in London. Each day the dishes which the kitchen has prepared are indicated on a menu which is brought up to the prisoner, and he ticks off anything for which he feels a fancy, and it is brought to him. The only drawback from his point of view is that the bill is presented to him just as it would be anywhere else, and in the event of his refusing to pay up he would eventually be served with a court summons.

Among the occupants of the Clock Tower have been the late Charles Bradlaugh, who found himself consigned thither on account of a little difference with Mr. Speaker on the subject of the parliamentary oath. When Northampton returned Mr. Bradlaugh to parliament, he was not allowed to take the oath nor the substituted process known as affirmation. Mr. Bradlaugh, however, secured a New Testament and took a self administered oath, after which he proceeded to the next step of signing the roll. He refused to withdraw when the speaker requested him to do so, and consequently the sergeant-at-arms took charge of him, and to the Clock Tower prison he went.

When the erection of the Tower bridge was being considered, a statement was made that the Tower bridge bill committee was subject to bribery and corruption—a serious charge. Two men responsible for it were pronounced to have committed a breach of privilege, for the house is very sensitive upon such matters, and the speaker issued a summons for their appearance. One of them, Mr. Ward, gave himself up without delay, and he got seven days in the Clock Tower prison. The other offender, after a little delay, was captured and was for a brief period housed at Newgate.

The first M. P. imprisoned in the present house of commons was W. Smith O'Brien. One day in 1846 he committed contempt of the house by declining to sit upon a certain committee. Consequently he was sent to prison during the few weeks that the committee deliberated. This time, however, he was not sent to the Clock Tower prison, which was not finished, but did his durance in the cellar of the house.

How Twain Introduced Hawley.

"Only once did Mark Twain appear in public as a political speaker," says Will M. Clemens in Ainslee's. "As a conscientious Republican in his political preferences Mr. Clemens took an active interest in the presidential campaign of 1880. While visiting in Elmira, N. Y., in the fall of that year he made a short speech one Saturday night, introducing to a Republican meeting General Hawley of Connecticut. In the course of his remarks Mr. Clemens said:

"'General Hawley is a member of my church at Hartford and the author of "Beautiful Snow." Maybe he will deny that. But I am only here to give him a character from his last place. As a pure citizen I respect him, as a personal friend of years I have the warmest regard for him, as a neighbor whose vegetable garden adjoins mine, why—why, I watch him. As the author of "Beautiful Snow" he has added a new pang to winter. He is a square, true man in honest politics, and I must say he occupies a mighty lonesome position. So broad, so bountiful is his character that he never turned a tramp empty handed from his door, but always gave him a letter of introduction to me. Pure, honest, incorruptible, that is Joe Hawley. Such a man in politics is like a bottle of perfumery in a glue factory—it may moderate the stench, but it doesn't destroy it. I haven't said any more of him than I would say of myself. Ladies and gentlemen, this is General Hawley.'"

Truth Unvarnished.

"Can I buy insurance here?" asked the visitor to the great fire insurance office, and the gay young clerk told only the truth when he answered, "Not on your life."—Philadelphia Press.

LESSON III, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 21.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. viii, 1-22. Memory Verses, 20-22—Golden Text, Gen. vi, 8—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

As next week's lesson will take us to Abram, we may be said to have but one lesson on the first 2,000 years of the world's history, for the previous two lessons kept us at the beginning of the story. Cain and Abel represent the two great lines leading on to antichrist and to Christ, Cain being of the devil and Abel of God (I John iii, 12). The Bible does not give us any record of Adam's numerous posterity, but just the two lines of the righteous and the unrighteous, mentioning some prominent men in each, Abel, Seth, Enoch and Noah being among the righteous of these first 2,000 years. The tendency in all ages since sin entered is away from God, not toward God, and after the first 16 centuries the testimony of God was that all flesh had corrupted his way on earth and that the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of man was only evil continually (chapter vi, 5-12). He instructed Noah to build an ark for the preservation of himself and his family and some of all living creatures from the impending judgment, revealing to Noah His determination to destroy all others, both man and beast, from off the face of the earth. Noah did just as he was told, and probably during the space of 120 years (vi, 2), with no signs of a coming storm, continued to build his vessel far from any sea and doubtless amid the scoffs and jeers of an ungodly world. We have the manner of their speech recorded in Job xxii, 15-17; Jude, 14-16. In due time the ark was finished just as God had commanded and therefore perfectly fitted for that which God intended. The limit of His mercy was reached, the time of judgment come. He called Noah and his family unto Him into the ark and then brought in unto Noah all the creatures He intended to save alive and shut him in, and after seven days the storm began.

1-9. This brings us to the beginning of the chapter assigned for our lesson, and in the fourth verse we read that the ark rested upon the mountains of Ararat just five months after the flood began. After this the waters decreased continually until on the first day of the tenth month the tops of the mountains were seen, and 40 days later, which would be the tenth day of the eleventh month, Noah sent forth a raven and afterward a dove. The raven, being an unclean bird (Lev. xi, 13-15), could rest on any floating dead carcass, and therefore returned not to the ark; the dove, a clean bird, finding no resting place, returned to the ark and makes us think of the Holy Spirit as a dove, finding His first perfect resting place on Christ at His baptism. Have you the spirit of the raven or the dove?

10-12. Seven days later he sent forth the dove again, and in the evening she returned with an olive leaf in her mouth; so Noah knew that the waters were abated. That would be on the seventeenth day of the eleventh month, or just nine months after the waters began to come upon the earth. He waited yet other seven days and sent forth the dove for the third time, and she returned no more.

13, 14. One month and more did Noah still wait before the surface of the earth was dry and nearly two months longer before the earth was dry enough to have him leave the ark. On the twenty-seventh day of the second month of the six hundred and first year of Noah's life was the earth dried, so that, counting the seven days that Noah was in the ark before the rain began (chapter vii, 10), he was in the ark altogether one year and 17 days, or seven months after the ark rested on the mountains of Ararat. What faith and patience he had opportunity to display! What quiet waiting with God! The Lord had said, "Come thou into the ark" (vii, 1); so the Lord was the first to enter the ark, and He was with Noah in the ark. Happy are those who find their joy in God and in His presence and are glad to abide with Him anywhere and as long as He pleases! What matters it whether we are going or staying, shut up in the ark or roaming the earth, if only we are where He wills?

15-17. At the command of God Noah builded the ark, at the command of God he entered the ark and not until God commanded did he leave the ark. He and all the living creatures with him are brought forth upon the new earth that they might be fruitful and multiply. It is a new beginning, for in II Pet. iii, 6, we read, "The world that then was being overflowed with water perished." The people had perished, but Noah came forth upon the same earth, perhaps changed as to its configuration.

18-20. "And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord." His first act was one of worship in God's appointed way—by sacrifice; not the way of Cain, but of Abel. God had commanded him to take into the ark two of every kind of living creature to keep them alive upon the earth (vi, 19, 20), but Jehovah (God in relation to man as his Saviour and righteousness) had said that he should by sevens take of all clean beasts and birds (vii, 1-3), and thus he had abundance for sacrifice. The thought of sacrifice takes us back for a moment to chapter vi, 14, where we read that the ark which preserved Noah and all creatures was covered within and without with pitch, this, of course, to make it to float safely and preserve all in it. But the word translated "pitch" and only here so translated is the very word elsewhere translated "atonement" or "reconciliation" and is surely suggestive of the great truth that there is no safety from coming judgment but by the great sacrifice of Christ.

21, 22. "And the Lord smelled a sweet savour" (margin, "a savour of rest"). In the next chapter we have a full statement of the everlasting covenant with Noah and his seed and all creatures, of which brief mention is made in these two verses, and also of the token of the covenant, the bow in the cloud. When we see the bow, we should remember that God looks upon it, too (ix, 16), and will never again bring a flood upon the earth. But see II Pet. iii, 7-13, and say if you believe these things or are you, like the people of Noah's time, among the scoffers? The many who helped Noah to build the ark and could have told all about it perished because they were not in it. You may understand fully God's plan of redemption and be able to tell it and teach it and perhaps be active in some kind of so called church work, but if you are not in Christ by His blood you are lost.

TO SAVE THE CHILDREN

Dr. Parkhurst Appeals to the Mothers of New York.

Dr. Parkhurst says in a recent letter to the New York Tribune:

"I could wish that for one year all our churches might be closed, if in their place could be substituted a campaign of moral enlightenment sufficient to convince parents, Protestant, Catholic and Hebrew, that, so far as the children are concerned, this city, as now administered, is the foreporch of hell.

"In particular, why do not New York mothers arouse to the horrible seriousness of the crisis? They have an indefinite idea of what is going on; why do they not get a definite idea? I once said to a lady in this city: 'Why do you not study into the case and do something?' She commenced studying into the case, but gave it up after a little, saying: 'It is too horrible, I can't.' If the situation is a little too horrible to study into, isn't it a good deal too horrible for young souls to wade into and rot in? Mothers, why not move in the matter? Why not associate yourselves with other mothers, and fling your concerted challenge to the official vultures that are growing fat on the bodies and souls of boys and girls? The women of New York can save New York, if from now till November they will combine to proclaim the truth that New York boys and girls have a right to grow up untainted; and it is not clear that any other means of ransoming our city from Croker and Satan now remains."

Commenting on this, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton writes:

"Dr. Parkhurst's eloquent appeal to the mothers of the race to help in combating the terrible social evils rampant in this metropolis, is as aggravating as pathetic, seeing that woman's influence for good is hopelessly crippled by her political, civil, and social disabilities; by law, custom, and discipline in Church and State. Reading the strong appeal of the reverend doctor, and appreciating the helpless condition of woman herself, I thought of one of Shakespeare's plays, in which rude men seize the king's daughter, cut out her tongue and cut off her hands, and then bid her go call for water and wash her hands.

"In order to abolish the evils in a great city by her influence, woman must have a voice in regard to the laws and the officials who administer them. The ballot is a citizen's tongue and hands. Without a ballot, and the dignity and power that sceptre gives, the moral influence of the city mothers is essentially crippled in combating the evils of society. If educated, intelligent, and virtuous women had the right of suffrage, our best men would always find in them a reserve moral power to establish a safe and stable government. If Bishop Potter, Bishop Doane, and Dr. Parkhurst would join the Woman Suffrage Association, they would soon arouse women to their duty, and thus restore the equilibrium of sex in the moral and material world."

Lieut.-Gov. Bates on Women.

Lieutenant-Governor Bates, of Massachusetts, was recently given a reception and banquet by the City Point Equal Suffrage League. Several hundred persons sat down to dinner, and there were speeches afterwards by the Hon. Rufus A. Soule, president of the State Senate, and other prominent men. Lieut.-Gov. Bates said, in part:

"Consider how rapid has been the progress of women already. The deeds in the registry office show that in the early part of the 18th century 60 per cent. of the women who were property-owners could not sign their names. It was not till fifty years after the revolution that elementary schools were opened for girls; not till 1855 that the first permanent high school was opened in Boston for them; not till 1878 that the Girls' Latin School was started. A few months ago, at Smith College, where I addressed 1,200 girls, I was told that Sophia Smith was led to found the college and devote her whole fortune to it because, as a child, she had had to sit on the doorstone of the school house and listen, with vain longing, to what the State was freely furnishing inside to its boys. Even the suffrage is advancing rapidly. If we do not see progress, it is because we are following in the rear of the procession, like the blind man, instead of marching in front with the vanguard.

"I look upon this not as a question of women's rights, but of the rights of humanity. In time to come, people will wonder how any one could ever have opposed it, as they wonder now how any one could have opposed women's education.

"The limitations laid upon women have been a distinct loss. How many Frances Willards, Harriet Beecher Stowes, Julia Ward Howes, and Clara Bartons have been lost to the world because of the restrictions thrown around women in the past! It is in the interest of humanity that this last barrier should be thrown down, by admitting women to the ballot."

Compulsory Voting.

A bill for a compulsory voting law has been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature. It requires every qualified voter to cast his ballot at all primary and general elections, under penalty of five dollars' fine or ten days' imprisonment. The only excuse admitted is illness or absence from the county. There is no chance that the bill will pass. The vast majority of men hold that every qualified male voter should have the option of voting or not, as he chooses; that he should neither be compelled to vote because the majority of men wish to do so, nor debarred from voting, if he is the only man in town who wants to cast his ballot. Why not apply the same reasoning in the case of women?—Woman's Journal.

In the Belgian Parliament, Hector Denis, deputy from Liege, has introduced a bill giving suffrage to all women who possess the qualifications repuired of men.

"FORGETTIN."

The night when last I saw my lad
His eyes were bright and wet.
He took my two hands in his own,
"'Tis well," says he, "we're met;
Asthore machree, the likes o' me
I bid ye now forget."

Ah, sure, the same's a thriftin thing;
'Tis more I'd do for him!
I mind the night I promised well,
Away on Ballandim,
An every little while or so
I thry forgettin Jim.

It shouldn't take that long to do,
An him not very tall;
'Tis opare the way I'll hear his voice,
A boy that's out o' call,
An whiles I see him stand as plain
As e'er a six foot wall.

Och, never fear, my jewel!
I'd forget ye now this minute,
If I only had a notion
O' the way I should begin it,
But first and last it isn't known

THE KING WAS BETTER.

But the Doctor Got Little Credit For His Efforts.

A story illustrating the good sense and humor of the late King Humbert is told at the expense of his physician, Dr. Saglione. Sometimes the king, from his hunting lodge of Castle Fusano went to the sea and amused himself by shoveling sand into a cart. "Take care, your majesty," said Saglione one day, "not to perspire too much." "Ah, my dear Signor Doctor," answered the king, resting his chin on his two hands that grasped the handle of his spade, "this muscular exercise does me much more good than your prescriptions." "Yes, but one must abuse nothing." "But I tell you that I feel very well, and you are afraid you see in this poor shovel a competitor." And, laughing heartily, the king finished filling his cart.

However, by exposing himself in every way without exercising any care, the king contracted bronchitis, which took a chronic form and gave him a rather troublesome cough. This cough was a source of anxiety to the faithful doctor, as he could not convince his patient of the necessity for taking medicine. Occasionally the doctor was even sent away abruptly by the king, who would say, "I have not called you. Why did you come? You may go. I thank you very much."

One evening, however, the doctor thought he had gained his point, and he prepared for the king in his bedroom the powders he was to take during the night. The next morning Dr. Saglione rose very early, being very anxious to know the effect of his medicine. He was received in the bedroom and at once asked, "Well, how does your majesty feel this morning?"

"Much better—I may say quite well," was the response.

"Ah," observed the doctor, rubbing his hands with satisfaction, "you see the results of listening to reason."

"What do you mean?" asked the king.

"The powders!"

"Bravo!" shouted Humbert. "Go into the next room and see what you can find."

The powders were in the waste paper basket.

"Why do you not eat your apple, Tommy?"

"I'm waiting till Johnny Briggs comes along. Apples taste much better when there is another kid to watch you eat 'em."—What to Eat.

Cure for Cholera Infantum--Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. GAS RANGE.

A Gas Range will do all the work that the best coal range will do and it will save you money. It also does away with much work and worry.

The Economy of the Gas Stove is show below in a few tests:

COMPARISON OF PERCENTAGE IN LOSS AFTER COOKING.

GAS.		COAL.
Cost 35 cents. Product 28 1-2 Loss 6 1-2 cents.	—FISH—	Cost 35 cents. Product 24 3-4 Loss 10 1-4 cents.
Cost 166 1-2 Product 138 3-8 Loss 23 1-8 cents.	—BEEF—	Cost 169 7-8 Product 117 Loss 52 7-8 cents.

Saving of Gas Stove over Coal range, ... 24 3-4 cents.

The saving in food on Fish and Roast Beef for one Dinner was 28 1-2 cents.

This shows a great saving in food cooked by Gas Range and as this occurs in nearly every dish that is cooked the saving in pounds of food in the course of one year, is something enormous. A Gas Range will do its work a great deal quicker than a coal range and does not heat the house when cooking. A Gas Range can be run so that nearly all the heat generated can be put into food being cooked. The difference in labor between working over a coal range in a hot kitchen and Gas Range in a Cool Kitchen, is worth more than the price of either coal or gas.

We can put an attachment on your hot water boiler, that can be run independent of either coal or gas range. that will give hot water all over the house in a few minutes, so that Hot Water can be used in Bath at any moment if there has not been a fire in range for 12 months.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

SCARFPIN ROLL.

It Is a Very Attractive Gift For a Man.

To make a pretty scarfpin roll, line with silk and fill with a cotton wadding and bind the edge with a silk cord. Two inches from one side fasten to the lining a felt belt half an inch in width, as shown in the illustration. The belt is made of two thin pieces of felt. At intervals of three-quarters of an inch tack the belt down with two rows of stitches a quarter of an inch apart, making openings through which the scarfpins are to be inserted. Ribbons are fastened at one end to tie the roll. Close the roll like a book, roll it up and tie with the ribbon. It should then be four inches long and one inch in diameter.

Pins should always be inserted in the belt with their heads toward the middle, where they are covered with the flap, so that when closed up they will not fall out. For greater safety two flaps may be used, but it is not necessary. The same thing will serve to keep a lady's stickpins if it is not needed as a gift for a gentleman.

A SONNET OF WORK.

Whereto our labor and our bitter sweat?
The seed we sow we trample in the dark;
The flame we strike; our own tears quench the spark;
The white that we would purify we set
Our grimy print upon, and we forget
Thy ways and thoughts are not ours and hark
Toward what we take to be some heavenly mark
And find we serve the devil to abet;
Then do thou blind us that we may not see
The measure of our own futility
Lest, seeing, we should cease to work and die,
Or give us sight that we may know thereby
How through our labor, whatso end it meet,
We reach toward thee who knowest no defeat.

"Won't you please deliver a message to Miss Clara?"

Delighted at the prospect of carrying a message that might result in giving her some insight into the relation that existed between her sister and the young man at the other end of the line, she answered:

"Why, certainly, with the greatest of pleasure."

A Charmed Life.

The scenery along the Kentucky river above and below Harrodsburg has been justly compared to the highlands of the Hudson. Towering cliffs hundreds of feet in height impress the beholder. In "Historical Sketches of Kentucky" an incident is told of one of the highest of these.

Jotham Strout was hoeing corn in the bottom just opposite the ferry, when his attention was attracted by a rattling noise above his head. Looking up, he was staggered at seeing a man tumbling down the fearful precipice, now touching and grasping at a twig, now at a root, without being able to check himself. Finally, with a crashing of limbs, he landed in the top of a buckeye tree about 50 feet above the general level of the bottom.

Mr. Strout ran to the place with all haste, dreading to find a dead man and not doubting he would be terribly injured if alive, for the distance the man had fallen was 170 feet, and from the last point where he had touched the rock to the top of the tree where he lodged was 45 feet.

Fancy Mr. Strout's surprise, then, to find the man standing erect at the foot of the tree, feeling of his arms and body.

"Are you hurt?" cried Mr. Strout.

"That's what I'm trying to find out, my friend," was the answer. "It's my impression that I am alive, but rather sore."

Not a bone was broken, and despite a few bruises the man seemed to be as sound as before the terrible fall.

"That fellow bore a charmed life," was Mr. Strout's remark whenever he told the story.

Leighton and the Poor Student.

Of Leighton's hearty, eager helpfulness many instances might be given. Here is one. After a certain prize day at the academy a student was passing through the first room on his way to the entrance. He looked the picture of dejection and disappointed wretchedness—poorly and shabbily dressed and slinking away as if he wished to pass out of the place unnoticed. Millais and Leighton, walking arm in arm, came along, pictures of prosperity.

Leighton caught sight of the poor, downcast student. Leaving Millais, he darted across the vestibule to him and, taking the student's arm, drew him back into the first room and made him sit down on the ottoman beside him. Putting his arm on the top of the ottoman and resting his head on his hand, Leighton began to talk as he alone could talk, pouring forth volumes of earnest, rapid utterances, as if everything in the world depended on his words conveying what he wanted them to convey. He went on and on. The shabby figure gradually seemed to pull itself together, and at last when they both rose he seemed to have become another creature. Leighton shook hands with him, and the youth went on his way rejoicing.

It is certain that if other help than advice were needed it was given. But it was the extraordinary zest and vitality which Leighton put into his help which made it unlike any other. He fought every one's cause as others fight their own.—London Telegraph.

Oxford's Witty Bishop.

Two stories are attributed in The Railway Magazine to the witty bishop of Oxford. He was once talking to some boys in a school and said to them: "Now, my boys, I dare say you think it's a very fine thing to be a bishop. But I assure you I'm a very busy man. I have to go about all over my diocese, and I haven't time to study like you have. In fact, nearly all my study has to be confined to only one book. It begins with a 'B.' Do you know what it is?" "The Bible, sir; the Bible," shouted the boys all together. "No," replied the bishop, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "It's called 'Bradshaw!'"

The other story is still better. On one occasion when he alighted from the train at Wheatley, the station for Cuddesden palace, an officious porter rushed up to him and asked, "Any articles in the van, my lord?" "Articles," said the bishop grimly. "Yes, 39 articles." Off hurried the porter and worried the guard almost out of his senses by the way he searched the van and detained the train. Presently he came back to the bishop with a crestfallen expression of countenance. "There are only seven, my lord." "Only seven? Ah, you're a Dissenter then, I should think."

Wonderful.

Two sailors noticed that a shark was following their ship. Not knowing how to get rid of it, they threw a chair overboard.

The shark swallowed this, but still followed.

The sailors then threw a box of oranges overboard to it.

The shark swallowed this and still followed.

The men seemed completely beaten for a moment what to do until one of them said that those on board should draw lots for who had to satisfy the shark.

It fell to an old woman. So the sailors tossed her overboard, and the shark ate her at one bite.

This did not content the fish, which still followed. So the sailors harpooned it and dragged it on board.

On opening it they found, to their surprise, the old woman sitting on the chair selling oranges "three a penny."—Pearson's Weekly.

Such Is Fame.

"There is bound to be a fly in the honey," said the disconsolate looking citizen. "There's always some small circumstance that prevents joy from being complete."

"What is the trouble now?"

"The leading paper of my community printed my picture the other day."

"That was nice."

"And it said that I was one of the people whom everybody knew; that my fame was such that it had spread beyond the confines of my native city and was carrying light into the regions beyond."

"Splendid!"

"Then they got a bit rushed in the office and put my friend Wiggins' name under my picture."

"That was a little unfortunate."

"It isn't the worst. Not a soul noticed it except my wife. And all she said was that she didn't think it looked much like Wiggins!"—Washington Star.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial, for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. Bear in mind that every bottle is warranted, and if it does not prove beneficial the money will be refunded to you. For sale by Young & Brown.

The Vacation Season.

Those persons leaving town for a week, a month or a year, can have the STAR mailed to them free of postage by leaving or sending word to this office. Addresses will also be changed as often as desired.

Passengers Should be Protected.

Judge Johnson of the Fourth District Court and Chief of Police McIntosh are determined to stamp out drunkeness and rowdyism on the electric cars. The language used on a North Woburn car last Saturday in the presence of a dozen or more ladies by a quarrelsome and drunken fellow was disgraceful in the extreme. Conductors on the cars can do much to protect passengers and make riding pleasant by ejecting such persons, and when they fail to do this as was the case last Saturday, then the road will in the end suffer in the loss of patronage.

Mutilating Shade Trees.

Deputy Tree Warden Allen Chamberlain has had signs tacked to numerous shade trees about the streets of the town warning teamsters and others against allowing the trees to be mutilated. There is a class of teamsters who supply the stores with goods who show a wanton disregard for the trees by allowing their horses to gnaw and mutilate them. Some of these men have been repeatedly warned, but have manifested no desire to remedy the evil. Now Mr. Chamberlain proposes to act in a vigorous manner by prosecuting any further infractions of the law. The citizens will sustain him in his efforts to protect the trees.

Many Candidates for Attorney Generalship.

Candidates for the office of Attorney General are springing up all over this part of the State, since the announcement that Hon. H. M. Knowlton will not again be considered for that office. A singular thing in this connection is that all the lawyer candidates are willing to abide by the decision of the bar as to their chances. Perhaps the politicians will have something to say later as to who will fill this office. We notice that of the lawyers mentioned, not one resides in Winchester, where there are more of the legal fraternity to population than any town in the State. Perhaps it is because they are satisfied they can do better by retaining their practice.

A Serviceable Water Pipe.

When the water system was first introduced into Winchester twenty-seven years ago, cement-lined pipes were laid to convey the water over the town. At that time it was somewhat of an experiment, but the then members of the Water Board had such faith in the durability of that kind of pipe that later they purchased a plant for its making. During all those years the pipe has done good service, and where necessary to replace it by iron, appears to be in as good condition as when first put into the ground. The life of cast iron pipe is about twenty years, so that the cement-lined pipe with its record of twenty-seven years will outlive its more popular competitor of the present day, and probably some of it will be doing service when the iron pipe being put down today has become worthless. The cement pipe is gradually being replaced by iron pipe in some parts of the town, not because it has become unfit for use, but because larger pipes are needed, and as the iron is as cheap now as the cement (which was not the case twenty or more years ago) the former is used. One reason for the long life and freedom from leakage of the cement pipe was because of the thoroughness of its construction by Supt. W. T. Dotten and the careful selection of the material. It may perhaps be of interest in this regard to state that some pipe recently removed after a service of thirteen years was given to the city of Woburn for use on repair work.

Irresponsible Abuse.

Editor Witherell of the Woburn News is right in protesting against the unjust imputations that are being heaped upon that city and its people by unreliable correspondents of outside papers. Woburn is, perhaps, as law abiding a community as there is to be found in the State, and no one who knows the inside history of that city will dispute Editor Witherell when he says: "We wonder how many communities can say with Woburn—not a known criminal character among our population. Our streets are free from drunkenness, and safe for pedestrians day and night. Rowdyism is conspicuous by its absence. Women can walk our streets without molestation or insult."

Woburn has had more than its share of irresponsible abuse, and the indignation of many of its citizens at its continuance is justified.

Good Templars.

Last Tuesday evening a large delegation of Wedgemere Lodge, I. O. G. T., attended the jubilee meeting at Faneuil Hall and came home with more respect for the order than they ever entertained before. The hall was packed. The meeting was presided over by the Grand Chief Templar, J. L. Hitchens. It was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the order and the guest of the evening was Joseph Malins, Grand Chief Templar of England, who gave a delightful description of his travels around the world in work wholly dedicated to the cause of temperance. During his discourse he told the audience that the laws of Massachusetts were the best of any state or nation. We are proud of that.

The jubilee meeting to be held in Winchester on Sept. 19 will be a very interesting meeting to the citizens of our town. The committee of arrangements are doing all in their power to procure good speakers and literary talent and it is hoped that the people of Winchester will turn out and see what the order is trying to do.

The meeting last night consisted of the regular order of business, admission of two new members, and a long list for good of the order, consisting of readings, recitations and a dialogue, filled out a pleasant evening. All streets lead to the Good Templars now and we expect this fall to exceed in numbers as well as deportment and social enjoyment all lodges in this or any other state.

The entertainment committee has another drama under way, better than the last. They are also booked for three engagements to play the "Rio Grande." Commencing in October, this bids fair to be a busy winter for this lodge. It is hoped the people of Winchester will help us out and have it said that Winchester excels in her I. O. G. T.

Hines-Squier.

The marriage of Miss Mary F. Hines, of Winchester, to Mr. George C. Squier, of Boston took place at the home of the bride, on Marion St., Thursday evening July 18. The bride looked very lovely in a delicate creation of white muslin, cut entrain with lace and insertion, she carried brides roses, and was given away by her brother, Mr. James Hines.

Rev. D. A. Newton, pastor of the Congregational Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride and groom were unattended, the marriage being private. A reception was held immediately after the wedding and the happy young couple were the recipients of many handsome and expensive presents, among them being silverware, cut glass, linen, a very beautiful picture, and a check of $200 which was presented to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Squier will reside in Boston on Blackwood St.

Among those present were, Mrs. Niver, mother of the groom, from Syracuse, N. Y, Mrs. E. Barker, of Boston, Mr. Williams, of Boston, Dr. Moran, of Boston, Mr. Klous of Brookline, Mr. Maguire, of Boston, Miss Emily Smith of Hamilton, Mr. Ronald Smith of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Corliss of Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron C. Bell, of Winchester, Mrs. John Parks, Mr. Clyde W. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Smalley and family.

Russell—Emerson.

Thursday night at 7.30 Mr. George Edmond Russell, of Woburn, Mass., and Miss May Emily Emerson, of Winchester, Mass., were quietly married by Rev. E. P. Tuller at his residence, 490 Third avenue. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Russell left for Cleveland. On their return from Cleveland they will reside at 190 Bagg street, Detroit, Mich. —[Detroit Free Press, July 21.

Newsy Paragraphs

Last week and this the water department has been replacing the water main in Pleasant street square with one of larger dimensions. When the work is completed all the pipe in the centre will be of iron. The job has been a heavy one, made more so by the excessive heat, but the men employed have made light of these trifles. These men are workers, as all can testify who have seen them at at their labors this week, and would put to shame the men of our neighboring city of Boston. It was noticed that the cement-lined pipe to be replaced showed signs of breaking at places after the dirt had been removed. The hard packed earth had formed a good jacket for the pipe, which had it become disturbed might have caused a bad leak and a flood in the centre.

Gen. S. C. Lawrence of Medford has had four men working steadily killing the brown-tail moths since July 8th. They have killed, by actual count, 59,500. They have found in their labors that the gypsy moth is by no means extinct, that in fact the gypsy bids fair to outnumber the brown-tail next season. He has a force of eight men now at work looking after that pest, and the next two weeks will be devoted to exterminating all that can be found.

Watertown's tax rate is $17—the same as last year. Medford's rate is $18.

Appreciating his good work in the last two Legislatures, many influential Medford people have asked Representative S. W. Twombly to accept a third election this fall. It is Medford's turn to select the candidate and she has many men who would ably represent the District, but among the Republicans the feeling seems to be quite unanimous in favor of the re-election of Mr. Twombly instead of a man of their own. They realize that he has won an honorable standing in the Legislature and ably guarded the interests of the District, therefore they prefer him to any new man that can be named.—[Woburn Journal.

Newsy Paragraphs.

The remarkable removal of the Boston Journal plant is one that appeals to all associated with a newspaper office, not only because of the brief time in which the herculean task was accomplished, but because of the freedom from interruption to the great business of this paper. But then every perplexing burden is as a feather when the end is a million dollar building fresh and new. Even during the process of moving, the pictures which the Journal's famous for, appeared to anticipate the coming of the new home with countenances beaming with happiness. When the always reliable Journal is in possession of its new home we shall all look forward to a more rapid march to prosperity, if such a thing is possible. Reliability and all the news worth printing are what has made the Journal so popular for so many years.

There is talk of a Trader's Day for Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Joshua J. Farrow went this week to Islesboro, Me., to their summer home.

A plug was forced out of the water main on Cross street Tuesday afternoon and for a short time those depending on that pipe for their supply of water were cut off. When the main was first laid the plug, which is cone shaped, was put into the pipe small end first; it should have been placed just the reverse, as then it could not be forced out.

Messrs. Piccolo and Volpe Bros. have purchased the ice cream and bakery business of L. A. Dakin, Lyceum Building. Play for the July cup offered by the Winchester Golf Club is in progress, though the scores are made under protest, as it were, because of the hot weather.

Auditor William C. Newell was in town Monday. He says his ankle is growing stronger, but that it will be three months or more before it will be entirely well.

Our genial townsman, John W. Hemingway, has been seen making hay during the heated spell. He can hold his own with any boy of considerably less years.

Mr. S. C. Small and H. Kirke Small will take their vacation in Maine, spending a month in camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Park, Norwood street, are at Winthrop Highlands for a few weeks.

The Arlington electric cars during the morning hours cannot accommodate the people who wish to go to Boston by this route. Fifteen minute time or larger cars are needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred DeBussey and family of Mt. Vernon street are at New Haven, Conn.

There is such a call for the popular and economical gas stove which is furnished by the Arlington Gas Light Co. that the company has been obliged to extend its pipes in many parts of the town. The demand for the stove is fully equal to the supply. Stoves can be seen in operation at Sanderson's hardware store.

Mr. H. C. Ordway and family are passing the warm weather at West Hampstead, N. H.

Mr. Charles White and family of Nashua, New Hampshire, are spending a few weeks at the home of his mother on Forest street.

Miss Matilda Thompson of Henry W. Bishop, 3rd, Training School for Nurses, expects to be at home for her vacation in September.

Before starting for the sea shore or mountains order your papers and magazines at 183 Main street. We also carry paper and cloth bound books. A. Wm. Rooney, "The Paper Store."

Miss Marion Sinclair, while out on Mystic Lake canoeing last Sunday, came near having a serious accident. She was attempting to change from one boat to another and was struck by the spar, but fortunately fell into the canoe instead of the water.

Misses Lucy and Adelaide, and Mr. Clifford Pratt have gone to Kingston, N. H., for a few weeks.

Rev. J. B. Gregg, D. D., of Colorado Springs, Colo., will occupy the pulpit of First Congregational church in the morning and evening of Sunday, July 28. Dr. Eversz will be unable to fill his appointment.

When you want a modern, up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price 25 cents. Samples free at Young & Brown's drug store.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Judge Littlefield's first trolley party of the season occurred Thursday. There was a delightful trip to Salisbury Beach where dinner was served. Owing to the threatening weather the party was not as large as it would otherwise have been. An account of the pleasant excursion will be given in the next issue of the STAR. Those who went were Judge George S. Littlefield, J. R. Newman, A. E. Whitney, T. S. Spurr, Arthur Littlefield, C. W. Bradstreet, G. H. Carter, G. W. Payne, J. H. Winn, Geo. H. Parker, T. P. Wilson and Selectman Henry R. Skinner of Watertown.

Mrs. W. I. Lawrance, Misses Ruth I. and Mary C. and Master Charles Lawrance sailed for Europe Wednesday. They will go to Hanover, Germany, where they expect to remain for a year.

Mrs. A. L. Wyman will pass next week at Rockport, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Hale sailed for Europe Wednesday where they will see the sights of the old world.

Mrs. Amanda M. Curry, widow of James E. Curry, died Tuesday aged 80 years. There were prayers Thursday morning at 10 Lagrange street. The funeral took place at her late residence, 141 Washington av., Chelsea, in the afternoon.

Miss Viola McLellan has returned home, after spending a week at the conference in Northfield.

Among those who were affected by the violent flash of lightning last Thursday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winn's household. They were out on their piazza enjoying the cool of the evening and watching the reflection of the lightning afar off, when suddenly a great ball of fire seemed to strike the field in front of the house. The shock was so great that it entirely paralyzed them for two or three seconds. Others in the vicinity saw, and were affected by the violent flash coming so suddenly.

Colson D. Allen of Cross street has been awarded a Humane Society medal and sum of money for gallantry in saving the life of a 6-year-old boy named Knowlton, April 13 last. He fell into the Aberjona river, when the stream was at freshet height, and would have drowned had not Allen jumped into the water and rescued him.

Dr. G. N. P. Mead sailed for England Wednesday. He will visit Liverpool, London, Cornwall, Devonshire, and other places, and expects to return home Sept. 15. A pleasant and safe journey to the Doctor.

Before going on your summer vacation see that you have a supply of paper, pens and ink. Wilson, the stationer, has a complete supply which will meet the wants of everyone. Pleasant street.

Miss Florence C. Park is at Shirley, Mass.

August magazines are nearly all in. Get yours at 183 Main street. A. Wm. Rooney, "The Paper Store."

Mr. John R. Newman's boat house on the upper Mystic lake was broken into Wednesday and a quantity of copper, oars and rope, etc., were stolen. Entrance was made from the front of the house and it is therefore supposed that the thief was in a boat. Attention is called to the advertisment in another column offering a reward for information concerning the same. Master Norman Hazeltine had his bicycle stolen in the vicinity of the boat house a few days ago and the thieves also stole a valuable row boat moored off the Shu-Shu-Ga club house. It is thought that the same party is responsible for all this thieving.

The Winchester High School baseball team made a good showing during the season of 1901, although greatly hampered because of poor weather and the lack of a good field upon which to practise. The team played fifteen games, winning 8 and losing 6, and one tie. They scored 207 runs to their opponents 129; 105 hits to their opponencts 101; 67 errors to their opponents 82.

Mr. Timothy Noonan returned Tuesday from a trip to New York. He was on board the steamer Tremont when the collision between that boat and the steam yacht Wild Duck occurred.

A Narrow Escape.

Mr. Roy Richardson who is in Toronto, Canada, was attempting to cross a river in the vicinity, with two companions, in canoes. Being unfamiliar with the nature of the river, they were whirled into the rapids. The canoes capsized and one of the young men was drowned. The others clung on to the canoes until a boat came along and picked them up. Mr. Richardson said he could not have clung on to the canoe a minute longer.

The Vampire Bat.

South America, especially Venezuela, is the home of the vampire bat, that horrible animal whose blood sucking propensities are so well known. In Venezuela the vampire when caught is often made the subject of an experiment that is as curious as it is cruel, though in connection with such a loathsome animal as this giant bat the cruelty is rather naturally lost sight of by the people who have to suffer from its ravages.

The vampire is captured in a thick cloth. It is then taken out, and through its two extended wings nails are driven, securing the animal to a door or a wooden paling. A cigarette is then lighted and placed in the bat's mouth. At once the animal's eyes shine strangely, and it begins to puff the smoke in and out with frenzied gasps, its actions being exactly those of the most hardened smoker, keeping firm hold of the cigarette the while between its sharp, deadly teeth. When the cigarette is nearly finished, a blow on the head puts an end to the animal's existence.

The extraordinary part of the experiment lies in the fact that the bat does not at once reject the cigarette, as he is of course at liberty to do. There are many who affirm that the bat really does enjoy the tobacco. The probability is that the animal is so maddened by fear and pain that he puffs away unreasoningly and fiercely, his instinct telling him that in the properties of the tobacco lies oblivion.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If the Metropolitan Water Board is to hold the ponds and rivers in Winchester as a source of water supply let it keep them clean and in presentable condition. The City of Boston used to do this but its successor has done nothing since it has had control.

The street department is finding out that the thorough and general street repairing it is doing this year will take very much more of its appropriation than was first estimated. Nevertheless in no way can the money be expended to better advantage than in this work, even if not much new macadam construction is done this year. These expensive macadam streets should not be allowed to get out of repair much of any.

The Armstrong News Co. does not improve the appearance of things about the railroad station by throwing its newspaper wrappings about.

A boy who walked under the gates Monday afternoon had a narrow escape from the express train at 5.15 and yet a word from the Selectmen would be sufficient to have the street railroad switchman stand on the easterly side of the tracks to warn people in such cases.

Judge Johnson and Chief McIntosh are evidently determined to stop drunken rowdies from insulting passengers on the street cars, as a fine of fifty dollars for one of them this week shows. A few such fines as this will have a wholesome effect on these nuisances.

How long will the people put up with the present arrangement of the elevated stations at the North station, being obliged to climb up and down stairs and also get across Causeway street through all the crowd of people and teams to and from the railroad station? When the Atlantic avenue elevated line is completed it will have a direct connection with the South station. Why should there not be one with the North station?

The Tree Warden's attention is asked for the poplar trees on Church street, many of which have dead branches on them and look unsightly. Teamsters are much obliged for the prompt attention to the overhanging branches on Mt. Pleasant street.

I am glad to hear that the Boat Club is to have a band instead of an orchestra at its illumination parade Saturday night. An orchestra out of doors is like unto a person talking through a blanket and has a very sleepy sound.

If anybody will tell of what use the Fells are to the people at large, I think people would like to hear it. Even for driving the Metropolitan Park Board makes no effort worth talking about to improve it and many of the most interesting old roads it has allowed to become obliterated with bushes. The short piece of road from Bear Hill to the North dam which would add greatly to that drive it has done nothing about building, apparently having forgotten it.

Boat Club News.

Mr. Farnum Dorsey this week performed a feat which we think has not yet been equalled. He took a passenger in his sailing canoe, and that too when there was a good sized gale blowing. The passenger, his brother Mr. Arthur Dorsey, sat on the floor of the cock-pit, and although the boat went over twice, it was not due to any fault of Mr. Dorsey but extremely heavy squalls. It is quite a thing for one person to manage a sailing canoe in heavy weather, but when two go out it is extraordinary.

The Medford boys are planning to take a trip down the harbor in the near future. They hope to have a crowd and the Winchester boys will be welcomed.

Twenty additional lockers have been placed in the boat house. This will give a total of 90 lockers. There are about 60 paddling canoes and ten sailing craft that hail from the club house.

The West Medford correspondent of the Medford Mercury, in commenting on the new rules of the Winchester Boat Club regarding wearing apparel in and about the club house, says:

"Comment on the lake with regard to these rules is varied, interesting and at times quite caustic. Even the Medford Boat Club men have become interested in the matter and have discussed it to a considerable extent. There are some members who feel that the custom of wholesale bathing on fete days when many women are present ought to be modified, and in support of their position review the afternoon of the Fourth of July when the floats were crowded with women and when swimmers in bathing trunks and and shirts circulated freely through the crowd. On the other hand many club men say there is nothing out of the way in it and scoff at the rules of the Winchester Boat Club bearing upon the subject."

Messrs. F. A. Parshley and H. S. Underwood have purchased new St. Lawrence skiffs.

Steward Morris has invested in a new row boat, purchasing it from Mr. Passano.

The club will have a "float night" this Saturday evening. The grounds and house will be illuminated and the Woburn Brass Band will furnish music. The judges who have been chosen to award the prize to the best decorated canoe are Mrs. D. N. Skillings, Mrs. H. S. Underwood, Mrs. H. D. Murphy, Mr. J. Murray Marshall and Mr. S. J. Elder.

Members entering the procession must have tickets, which may be obtained of Edwin Rooney or steward Morris.

Sunday next it is reported there will be a contest for the Mystic challenge sailing cup. The race was postponed from last Saturday because of lack of entries.

The boys at the club house when desiring to go in swimming are in the habit of wearing their street costume over their bathing suits and when clear of the club house making their change in a canoe. While doing so last week Mr. Edward Wills lost a valuable watch overboard, and this week Mr. Harry Gray in a similar manner lost a watch and ring. Mr. Gray dove for the articles as soon as they dropped and succeeded in recovering the watch, which was in about 6 ft. of water and still going. The ring could not be found and is probably lost. Mr. Wills was less fortunate, his watch dropping into deeper water.

Mr. Chas. Fletcher has purchased a new Morris canoe.

HE SAW IT. WILL YOU?

Bewildering Sights on Every Hand.

One who has recently returned from the Pan-American at Buffalo opines thus:—"It would be difficult for the most gifted writer to adequately portray and describe this wonderful Exposition." In the choice of the site, a most ideal selection was made and the person who has not visited the grounds has but a slight conception of the marvellous beauty and colorings of the buildings. What was a barren waste is now a most artistic park land adorned with a wealth of foliage and innumerable fantastically designed beds of flowers. The part played by electricity in the mammoth show has never been equalled and the grounds and buildings are dazzlingly radiant with an electric illumination which is to the beholder almost bewildering. The Midway is the best yet, according to exposition goers, and in a few, all too short, hours one gets an inkling of the life of half a dozen countries. Uncle Sam has an exhibit which is the admiration of every visitor. Music, and there is music everywhere, and by fine bands and musical organizations, too. Every visitor gets his money's worth and ten times over at that. There are a thousand other features which might be mentioned, but you will see them when you get to Buffalo.

Did you know that the Boston and Maine has several routes to Buffalo? either one of which has attractive features galore; and if you are a Pan-American tourist, send to the General Passenger Department of the Boston and Maine Railroad (X), Boston, for the book "Pan-American Information." It's a corker, and you'll enjoy perusing it. It's free for the asking.

A New Terror on the Road.

A new terror to the driver or pedestrian on the country roads has loomed up in the person of the fellow with the fast motor carriage. The bicycle scorcher and the driver of the 2.20 road horse are bad enough to dodge, but the auto in the hands of men not entirely great on the handling of machinery is a very devil on wheels. The driver who sees one of these machines bearing down on him at a thirty-mile-an-hour clip can't tell whether it will pass him or smash into him and he's pretty sure it will rattle his steed. All he can do is to hang on to the animal, breathe a prayer, and hope for the best. When the auto hisses past in a cloud of dust and perhaps of steam he can thank his lucky stars that one more danger is avoided in life and can face the onslaught of the scorching cyclist with comparative equanimity.

A MERRY GROUP OF PICKNICKERS.

Almost a Serious Fire.

While standing on Church street near the Blaikie Building last Sunday night at about nine o'clock, Officer Hargrove had his attention called to a strong smell of smoke which appeared to come from that building. On investigating he found a fire burning briskly in the cellar of Patridge and West's provision store. He lost no time in getting to box 21, in the square, and sending in an alarm. The department responded promptly and on their arrival found a tough proposition before them. The smoke appeared to be coming from all parts of the building and for a few minutes it looked as if the entire structure was on fire. On opening the bulkhead of Patridge and West's cellar the seat of the fire was discovered in a pile of boxes while the rafters of the ceiling for almost the entire length were found to be burning briskly. The smoke was thick enough to cut with a knife, and to get at the blazing ceiling it was soon seen that the firemen would have to go down onto the floor of the cellar. There was no hesitation, however, and two or three of the men tumbled into the mass of flame and smoke with the hose. A few minutes were enough for these men, and when they could stand the heat and smoke no longer they were relieved by others, and so on until the fire was extinguished. The fire was just breaking through the partition into the next store when the department arrived, but this was easily taken care of by ripping off the baseboard and using the fire extinguisher. The fire was a stubborn one and required about an hour to subdue. All things considered the damage was extremely slight, there being no loss from water, and but little to the tenants from smoke. Patridge and West had some of their goods injured by the smoke as did also the F. L. Hall dry goods store. The floor timbers in the cellar of Patridge and West were badly charred and may have to be replaced, while the firm suffers injury to a newly painted wagon, which was in the cellar. There was damage to several doors and also from broken glass, but these will not amount to a great deal.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. West states that there was nothing in the cellar of a combustible nature and he is at a loss to account for it. The bulkheads of all the cellars were without locks or fastenings and afforded an opportunity for anyone to enter.

A great deal of praise is due Chief Engineer Fitzgerald and his firemen for the excellent manner in which the fire was handled. But few men would have cared to subject themselves to the risk from fire and smoke that had to be met in order to subdue the blaze as did the firemen. Their duty was done unflinchingly and they deserve credit, as all admit who were present and who have seen the start the fire had in the cellar. Had the discovery of the blaze been fifteen minutes later, by which time the fire would have reached the upper part of the building, there is but little room for doubt but what it would have been destroyed.

Some of the firemen are still suffering from the effects of the smoke, several being unable to go to work Monday.

A Fine Time Anticipated.

The announcement that the Big Ocean Park Assembly, at Ocean Park, Maine, on July 25th, begins its season and will continue to September 2nd, means a great deal to thousands who have anxiously awaited the time for this great mid-summer festival. Few places on the Atlantic Coast offer greater inducements for the camp-meeting attendant. There is everything there—a fine beach, a delightful climate, a camp-meeting ground without an equal, and a patronage of exceptional proportions. Old Orchard, of which Ocean Park is a part, is a beach semi-circular in shape and some eight miles long. The crowds at Old Orchard are orderly and visit Old Orchard for the good that a quiet outing affords. The diversions are several and include ocean bathing, fishing, boating, sailing and the numerous harmless amusements founds at the high class resorts. Old Orchard's big ocean pier is one of the chief attractions of the place and from the end of the pier which is more than a thousand feet from land, there is always a cool breeze. The Orchard Beach Railroad is a means of reaching the Saco River at Camp Ellis, where boat connection is made for Biddeford Pool. The Ocean Park grounds are delightfully arranged and the meetings held there are largely attended. There is plenty of good music, many interesting speakers, and all in all, few summer meetings can compare with it. During the meetings which continue from July 25th to September 2nd the Boston & Maine R. R. will sell tickets to Ocean Park at reduced rates and if you want a delightful and profitable outing go to Ocean Park.

Meeting of Committee on Wedge Pond Way.

The above committee met on the premises, Friday, July 19th, at 5.45 o'clock p. m., to consider a proposed change in the lines of the way heretofore decided upon. It was explained that prominent members of the parish and the Calumet Club desired to change the location of the way as laid out by the committee so that the parish could exchange land with the Club, the former thus saving land next to the parish land on Dix street and the Club taking in exchange land on the other side of the way next to the pond. As the town does not relinquish any of its rights by the proposed change, or the parish or Club gain possession of any rights or land at the present stage of the proceedings, the committee voted unanimously to level off the way on the new proposed lines as they seemed to be equally as good lines as the first adopted by the committee and no trees would be sacrificed in making the change. Of course the Parish, Club and Town have each a veto control on the permanent adoption of the way. The present action of the committee simply authorizes the building of the way on the lines proposed by the abuttors and to accomodate them, they to bring about the proper legal transfers after the way is built.

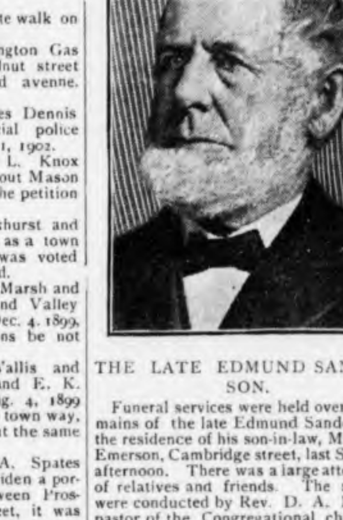

In proposing the above change, representatives of the parish, virtually abandon their first proposal to have a friendly suit between the parish and town and are now willing to allow a way to be built to the pond without a suit provided the lines are changed as above described. As the committee on the part of the town are anxious to avoid possible legal conflicts, the conciliatory course taken is probably the best under the circumstances for the town as well as for the parish.

After the new plan had been explained and debated, the following votes were unanimously passed: Voted, that the vote passed at the preceding meeting instructing the Selectmen to build the way on certain lines proposed by the town engineer and Mr. Pratt, be reconsidered. On reconsideration, the vote of instruction to the Selectmen relating to building the way on the lines proposed at preceding meeting was voted down.

The vote passed authorizing the proposed change in the construction of the way at present meeting was as follows: Voted, that the committee favor and advise the construction of a way to the pond, having its easterly end on land of the Calumet Club and its westerly end on land of the Congregational Society, such way to be essentially as planned by Engineer Fletcher but having its easterly terminus carried further to the south according to lines roughly drawn in pencil on the plan by Engineer Pratt.

The meeting adjourned at 6.30 o'clock. Members present, Messrs. Boutwell, Bradstreet, Taylor, Jones, Fitzgerald, Folsom, Coit, Barta and Whitney. It was promised by the Selectmen that the way, as now authorized to be built, will be finished at once.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY,
Secretary of Committee.

THE LATE EDMUND SANDERSON.

Funeral services were held over the remains of the late Edmund Sanderson at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. H. A. Emerson, Cambridge street, last Saturday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. D. A. Newton, pastor of the Congregational church, of which the deceased was one of the earliest members. The display of floral offerings was large and handsome. There was no singing and there were no bearers, the services being of the simplest character, typical of the life of this old resident. The interment was in the family lot at Wildwood.

The Best Remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers, to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form. No family should be without it. I keep it in my house at all times." For sale by Young & Brown.

Mind Cure for Mosquitoes.

We have not heard that Christian Science has as yet undertaken to prevent mosquito bites from itching as the effect of its mental process, but one of its votaries in Connecticut claims to have operated successfully upon the mind of the mosquito to the extent of preventing his biting. As the effect of his process he counsels as follows: "If a mosquito is troubling you just speak to him kindly and say, 'Look here, my friend, you leave me alone and I'll leave you alone.' Then believe that he won't bite you! Even if he does, his sting won't hurt. I have done this for years, and now enjoy having the pretty little things around and listening to their musical buzz." This, of course, is less Christian Science than moral suasion. It is a great deal better to argue with the mosquito than it is to crush him, as the crushing process often comes only after he has sent in his sting; it is to be noted also that the mental process induces the mosquito to make his sting innocuous if it comes; but as a matter of mind cure the process seems to be more roundabout in the mosquito instance than is quite consistent with the doctrine of Christian Science.—[Boston Herald.

Who Lost the Plan? Where did It Come From?

In last week's STAR, we alluded to a plan made in 1855 of the present Howe property, now belonging to the town of Winchester. Further investigation shows that it was picked up in the streets of Boston and no one seems to know where it came from but it got into safe hands when Mr. Arthur E. Whitney of Winchester got hold of it and deposited it in the town engineering department, a department by the way, Mr. Whitney is the father of. The following correspondence explains how the plan got landed at last where it seems to belong.

Metropolitan Park Commission,
Boston, Mass., 1901.

Mr. A. E. Whitney,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

Mr. E. P. Whitney of this Commission has handed me the enclosed plan. As I understand it, someone picked it up in the street and left it at his office supposing it to belong to him.

Will you please inform me if it is your property and, if so, retain it.

Very truly yours,
John Woodbury, Secretary.

Winchester, Mass., July 13th, 1901.

John Woodbury, Esq.,
Sec. Metropolitan Park Commission, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

The plan of the Zachariah Symmes homestead, Winchester, which you kindly mailed to me has been received. The estate described in the plan now belongs to the town of Winchester. Most of the northerly line of the property, marked "Joel Whitney Est." is the southerly line of the old Whitney Est., once belonging to my father and myself but taken a few years ago by the state for parkway purposes and at present under the control of your commission.

I presume the plan belongs to the town of Winchester as a part of the property bequeathed to it by Mrs. Nancy Howe, a daughter of Zachariah Symmes. As chairman of the Board of Selectmen at the time of Mrs. Howe's death, I accepted the property from the executor in behalf of the town. I do not remember that any plan was received or tendered with the bequest, but I feel that the plan should go with the property and be filed in the office, of the town engineer. With your permission, I will leave the plan with Mr. Fletcher, town engineer, for the present. If you think I had better return it to you, however, I will do so.

Thanking you for your intended personal favor, Very truly yours,
Arthur E. Whitney.

Metropolitan Park Commission,
Boston, Mass., July 18th, 1901.

Mr. Arthur E. Whitney,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

Referring to the plan of the Symmes Estate, I thank you for your letter of July 13, and am glad that you have deposited the plan where it belongs. * * *

Very truly yours,
John Woodbury,
Secretary.

On receiving the plan from Mr. Arthur E. Whitney, Town Engineer Fletcher mailed to Mr. Whitney the following receipt:

Winchester, Mass., July 13th, 1901.

Received from A. E. Whitney, Plan, entitled, "Plan of the late Zachariah Symmes Homestead in Winchester," Surveyed, Aug., 1855, by C. Bancroft. Scale 40 ft.=1 inch. (Original Plan).

Elmer D. Fletcher,
Town Engineer.

At the time of the transfer of the Zachariah Symmes Estate to the town, no plan was known to exist of the property and later, for the purpose of recording the transfer of interests certain missionary societies had in the estate, Engineer Thompson at the expense of the town made a plan according to "existing walls and fences." It is certainly strange that any one should care about owning such an old original plan of public property as the 1855 Bancroft plan without letting the present owner, the town of Winchester, know at least that such a plan was in existence. It is hoped that the plan will stay where it is for the future.

Want to Tap His Barrel.

Certain politicians of Boston are seriously talking of Thomas W. Lawson for mayor. There is not the slightest indication that he wants the place or could be induced to accept a nomination, but the talk is going on all the same, and sooner or later it will reach such a stage that Mr. Lawson will have to take notice of it.

Mr. Lawson is or has been a resident of Winchester, but his supporters for mayor say that he is in such a position that he can claim a residence in Ward 11, if he so desires, and they feel confident that he will be induced to claim it.

What these politicians want is a candidate who is so wealthy that he will spend all kinds of money to win, and they want the handling of the money. Mayor Hart is a thrifty soul, and he devoted so many years to piling up his fortune that he has not had time to acquire the habit of letting go. With Lawson it is different. He made his money easily and quickly, and he has shown himself to be liberal and effusive in his liberality.

The fact that he has just bought the triangular lot of land on the corner of Beacon street and Bay State Road is pointed out as evidence that he has his eyes on honors in Boston. This is the lot which certain wealthy men wanted the city to buy for the purpose of protecting their own interests, and that is the plan which Mayor Hart endorsed, his closeness in money matters not being exhibited in transactions which the taxpayers must settle for. It remains to be seen what Lawson will do with his purchase. It has cost him more than $200,000 already to build and float a yacht which few beside himself believe to be in the championship class. For less than that he could be elected mayor of Boston, and there would never be a shadow of a doubt as to the result. Neither Hart nor Collins could stop him. He would defeat Hart in the convention and Collins at the polls. Boston is a commercial city, as far as its politicians are concerned.—[Practical Politics.

Not the Opinion of the City Papers.

All recognizing the true import of the great strike between the Steel Trust and its union employees cannot—if they entertain the spirit of wisdom and of Justice—refrain from sympathizing with the strikers and hope for their success.

The question of whether the laboring class shall be allowed to combine is at issue and defeat means a serious blow to their future prospects. Far-seeing men of this and recent decades have looked upon a war of bloodshed between capital and labor as inevitable because it is apparent that capital is profiting by the fruits of labor more than labor itself. The denial of the right to organize takes away the only protection of labor against the tyranny of capital. If denied this—and this is certainly the point upon which the present strike centers—the penalties of defeat will be submitted to manfully until the trusts—with the knowledge of the completeness of their control—eventually grind down the workingman until he is forced to a rebellion which will result most seriously. One way seems to continued peace, the other exposes the country to the dangers of insurrection years hence.—[Reading Chronicle.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

UTILIZING COLLEGE COLORS

Try This on the Man Who Is Hard to Please.

The difficulty of providing gifts of home manufacture for one's male relatives must remain a difficulty in most cases, says a writer in The Ladies' Home Journal. It is easier to make dainty things and to be sweetly thanked for them than to induce the man in question to subsequently use them. One gift that proved acceptable to a man otherwise remarkably difficult to please was a pocket letter case. An ordinary flat common leather one of the size and shape he liked was bought, taken to pieces, carefully covered and lined, a stamp pocket added and a design embroidered on the front cover, with his initials inside. In making gifts for brothers at college effective and happy results can often be obtained by adapting their university colors for the purpose, and even trifles can thus be made of individual value and interest. Moreover, the colors are mostly very effective, the orange and black of Princeton, for instance, being sufficiently striking and the blue of Yale dainty enough for any taste, apart from their association.

Another pretty idea is to utilize the colors of your favorite college on a photograph frame.

To Make Tabourette Covers.

Dark table and tabourette covers, after the oriental styles and colorings, are now much in vogue. A square of dark garnet felt can be transformed into a beautiful table cover of any desired size. A fringe is made all around in slashes quarter of an inch wide and four inches deep. Above this make a brilliant border by placing brass rings (about quarter of an inch in diameter) along the lines, making them to touch and fastening them together with cross stitches of yellow spool embroidery silk. The effect is a marvelously attractive one and can be heightened by fastening a ring on the end of each slash, by looping it through the ring and fastening it on the under side. This ring work affords the woman with original ideas all sorts of opportunities, for the rings can be appliqued in many gay and fanciful designs.

She Didn't Mean That.

Mistress—Bridget, I cannot allow you to have your sweetheart in the kitchen any more.

Bridget—Oh, mum, it's very kind of you, but I'm afraid he's too bashful to come up into the drawing room!—Boston Herald.

A Scotch Custom.

In many parts of Scotland it used to be the custom to place on a man's tombstone the symbols of his trade. Thus a sugar cane would decorate the grave of a grocer; an ax and saw, with hammer and nails, would be found on that of a carpenter, an awl and a hammer on a shoemaker's grave, and so on.

The sorrow of yesterday is as nothing; that of today is bearable; but that of tomorrow is gigantic, because indistinct.—Euripides.

THE DESERTER.

A Story and Its Sequel All In a Nutshell.

One sultry day two students went to the river to bathe, selecting a secluded spot where the water was overshadowed with trees which formed the outskirts of a wood extending south toward a fine dwelling a mile or more in the upland. At the foot of one of these trees they left their clothes and plunged from the bank into the cool, refreshing stream. The river was deep, affording ample room for swimming and diving and for the exercise of all those aquatic evolutions in which vigorous young men are wont to indulge. Having swam some distance against the stream whose flow was gentle, they turned to swim back with the flow. On looking toward the spot where they had left their clothes they saw a man hastily disrobing.

"Somebody else getting ready for a swim," said one of them.

"Yes, but it is deuced strange he should select just that spot," the other remarked.

Keeping their eyes on the intruder, as they swam with a somewhat quicker stroke, they beheld him cast down his last garment and expected to see him take a plunge. Imagine their surprise when, after turning toward them and evidently fixing his gaze on them, they saw him coolly begin to invest himself in their raiment. Simultaneously they raised an outcry and struck out vigorously in order to intercept the depredator before he could escape. The distance between them and him was, however, too great, and he was too expert on donning their attire. Before they reached the place he had disappeared, and, on landing, they found that he had appropriated the principal articles of dress of the larger of them. They looked this way and that, but nothing was to be seen of the thief.

The one whose clothes had evidently been rejected, because too small, dressed himself and hastened back to the village for an outfit for his friend. On his return the other had somewhat of a surprise for him.

"Look," said he, pointing to a pile of clothes on the ground. "I found these a score of yards back in the bush."

The clothes were such as are known in the British army as fatigue dress, and the exclamation which came from each of the friends at the same moment was:

"He's a deserter!"

"But that isn't all," said the larger youth. "On the ground, under the clothes, was this pocketbook, and it contains 18 Bank of England £5 notes and over a pound in change."

The pocketbook was not such a one as we are used to nowadays. It was 6 inches by 4, of coarse brown leather, well worn, and tied with a string.

"Why, the fellow is a fool to turn thief when he had all this money in his pocket," said one of them.

"I don't know that," was the reply. "You see, his plan was to keep out of sight so long as he wore clothes that would betray him, whereas if he could only get rid of them in the way he has done his chances of escape were far better, even in stolen garments, than if he had worn his soldier's dress or attempted to buy new clothes. Of course there was the risk of being followed and caught, but the fellow was looking for just such a chance as we afforded him. Well, he has got off with about 30 shillings in my clothes and is therefore not without means of clearing out."

"But he certainly never intended to leave all this money behind him?"

"No, of course he didn't, but in the haste to be off he thought more of liberty than money and left this behind him."

"Well, I think you are entitled to what he has left, and in that case it is not a bad bargain."

"In a sense you are right. I am no doubt entitled to as much of it as will replace the money and the clothes with which he has decamped."

"Don't you think we ought to inform the authorities, so that he may be captured?"

"Poor devil! Let him go. He'll have a hard time of it as it is to keep out of the clutches of the corporal's guard, who, you may be sure, are after him by this time. As to the money, I'll take care of it for him, for who knows that I may not come across him one of these days?"

Three days later the young man whose clothes were appropriated received a letter from the thief, brief and to the point, thanking him for the temporary aid afforded by the use of his garments and asking him to accept the contents of the pocketbook as only too small an equivalent for the service rendered.

"He's an educated beggar, whoever he is," said the recipient of the letter.

"But how the deuce did he know your address?"

"He found one of my letters in the clothes."

I was well acquainted with both these young men and vouch for the facts as narrated. Furthermore, I can relate the sequel.

A few years after the occurrences herein narrated I met at a hotel in Birmingham a very sociable and agreeable gentleman about seven or eight years my senior. He seemed to take a liking to me and, after attending to his business during the earlier part of the day, invited me to drive out with him. Subsequently I dined with him and went to the theater with him in the evening. When we were parting, he urged me to call and see him whenever I came near R——. Shortly afterward, in the old coaching days, I was coming from Warwickshire to Yorkshire and had to pass through R——. When I learned we were approaching that town, I asked the coachman whether he knew where Mr. Blank lived.

"Half a mile farther on," was the reply. "I'll show you when we reach it."

He pointed out the place. It was a lonely dwelling on a hill about 300 yards from the road and half a mile from R——. When we reached that town, I determined to stay overnight and visit my friend the next day. I did so. He received me with the utmost kindness, and I spent two very happy days with him. I visited with him the extensive smelting works in the neighborhood, all of which he owned, and finally, on the night preceding the morning on which I was to depart, he told me his history.

"When I was about 18," he said, "I wanted to go to college, but my father, who was an austere man, bound up in work and rather despising bookmen, insisted that I should remain at home and acquire a thorough knowledge of the business which he had established after much labor and expense. I consented, but he placed me under the severest restraint. I was the only son, and my three sisters, all older than I, were married. They and their husbands were greatly disappointed at my father keeping me at home with the expressed purpose of leaving his business to me, a small portion of the profits to go to my sisters and the main part of them to be invested in the business, for his ambition was that the business should vie with the largest in England of the kind.

"Young as I was, I fell in love with a comparatively poor girl and married her. As I had given close attention to business and became almost as well acquainted with it as my father was, I presumed upon his knowledge of that fact and audaciously brought my wife here to this house and introduced her to him."

The speaker was deeply moved, and there was a pause of a minute or more.

"She was shortly to become a mother," he continued, "or I shouldn't have done it. My father grew frantic with rage. He struck me. He seized a walking cane and showered blows upon my head and body. I bore it all. But when he foully and brutally beat my wife with his cane and called her vile names I could stand it no longer. I knocked him down, and he lay at my feet bleeding.

"My poor wife was removed to a room, and a doctor was summoned. My wife was dead before daylight. I kept all the circumstances to myself, the doctor alone guessing at what had occurred. I buried my wife. My father lay at death's door for a week, and then he began to recover slowly.

"As for myself, I was crazy with grief. My sisters and their husbands accused me of having attempted to murder my father and used threats. In a moment of despair I left home and enlisted. But the life of the barracks was unbearable, and when I was informed by the parents of my dead wife that my father, overwhelmed with horror at having caused my wife's death, had committed suicide, I determined to desert. My wife's father came to the barracks and gave me money, and the first opportunity I had I fled. Mind you, every exertion had been used by my wife's parents to secure my discharge, but one of my brothers-in-law, who was a member of parliament and in with the party in power, frustrated every effort to that end. The excuse was that a great war was pending and that not a man could be spared."

What followed the reader may anticipate. My friend was the very man who appropriated the student's clothes, as narrated above. After doing so he returned home and found that his father had carried out his original purpose with regard to him, leaving his sisters, however, amply provided for. The whole affair, he said, was almost forgotten, and he and the rest of the family lived in comparative amity.

When I told him that I was well acquainted with the youths, one of whom he had deprived of his attire, and that I had heard the story narrated by them more than once, he laughed heartily and said:

"Bring them to see me some day, if you can, and I'll treat them as they deserve, for they acted in a manly and considerate fashion."—Exchange.

A SAD CASE.

The Drummer Lost Heavily, but Hoped to Pull Through.

"You must have played some great games of poker in your day," he said to the drummer who had been talking about luck at cards.

"Yes, I have," was the reply. "Yes, sir, I have had some great games."

"How large a bet did you ever make, may I ask?"

"One hundred thousand plunks."

"You don't mean it!"

"I certainly do. Yes, sir; I sat in a game in Denver once and bet $100,000 on my hand, and I had only one pair in it at that."

"What an awful bluff! The others laid down their hands, did they?"

"Oh, no! One of them called me. He had a full house, and of course I was beaten."

"And you—you lost $100,000!"

"I did. For the fraction of a second a feeling of faintness stole over me, and things looked wizzy wazzy, but then I pulled myself together and reached down into my vest pocket and handed him the money, with a smile."

"Great Scott!" sighed the querist as he mopped his brow. "Think of losing that much money on a turn of the cards! I suppose that is why you were forced to take to the road?"

"Well, no. The winner said that such cheek as mine ought to be rewarded, and he returned my money. I'd have been all right only when I got back to Chicago I put $900,000 with it and bet the whole pile on a horse race and lost by a nose. That reduced my fortune to less than $4,000,000, and so I had to take up this business to eke out my income. Of course it's a sad case, and I feel my position keenly, but with perseverance and integrity I hope to pull through in time to be able to pay the cook her wages again. Have you a match, please?" M. QUAD.

Mere Trifles.

"You won't buy anything but food with this penny, will you?"

"Nothin 'cept maybe a automobile or some other trifle like dat."—New York Evening Journal.

New Old Jokes.

"Is there any new joke under the sun?" asks George Augustus Sala, an English journalist and special correspondent.

"I doubt there being one very gravely," he answers and tells two anecdotes to support this skepticism.

An intelligent Greek who acted as Mr. Sala's guide while visiting Athens related to him as a modern Greek Joe Millerism the story of a lawsuit. A deaf plaintiff sued a deafer defendant before the deafest judge in all Greece. The plaintiff claimed so many hundred drachmas for rent that was due. The defendant pleaded that he never ground his corn at night. The judge in giving judgment observed: "Well, she's your mother, after all. You must keep her between you."

"When I got home I found," writes Mr. Sala, "this apparently up to date triad of ludicrous non sequiturs in a collection of ancient Greek epigrams."

There used to be told a story of Sheridan Knowles, the dramatist, who was a first rate hand at Irish bulls, meeting one of twin brothers and asking him, "Which of ye is the other?"

Mr. Sala compares this with the story of that very ancient jester, Hierocles:

"Of twins, one died. Skolastikos, meeting the survivor, asked him, 'Was it you who died or your brother?'"—Youth's Companion.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON IV, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 28.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xii, 1-9, Memory Verses, 1-3—Golden Text, Gen. xii, 2—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

In chapter x we have 70 descendants of Noah among whom the earth was divided, and Deut. xxxii, 8, says that God set the bounds of the people with reference to the number of the children of Israel, although such people were not then in existence except before God. From before the world was made both the church and Israel were real to God, and He clearly saw the end when through them He would rule the world in righteousness (Isa. xlvi, 9, 10). Chapter xi tells of man's degeneracy and union against God to make them a name. This is the beginning of the story of Babylon, the end of which is found in Rev. xvii and xviii, and the great feature of which is self glorification. "Let us make us a name." Here we have the beginning of languages because of this rebellion. Then follow the ten generations from Shem to Abram inclusive. In chapter v we had the ten generations from Adam to Noah inclusive, these 20 generations being on the line of the righteous and leading on to Christ. Man apart from God ever degenerates. Sin turned Adam and Eve from Eden, sin brought the deluge and destroyed all except those in the ark, sin brought the confusion of tongues, and now after 2,000 years sin again prevails, and from the idol worshipers beyond the river the Lord takes Abram that He may bless him and make him a blessing to all people on earth (Joshua xxiv, 2, 3).

1-3. I will bless thee and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing, and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. These are some of the words of the Lord to Abram while yet in Ur of the Chaldees, by which He would draw him from country and kindred and perform through him all His pleasure by separating him unto Himself and placing him in a land which He would in due time give him as an inheritance. Stephen said in his discourse that the God of glory appeared to Abram, and it is evident from another record that something more than the earthly inheritance was set before him, for he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God (Acts vii, 2; Heb. xi, 10). Notice in these opening verses of our lesson the fourfold "I will" of the Lord—"I will shew," "I will make" and the double "I will bless." The promises and assurances are all from God. Abram hears, believes, obeys. He died in faith, not having received the promise, for God gave him none inheritance in it, yet He promised that He would (Heb. xi, 13; Acts vii, 5).

4, 5. "Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran." In chapter xi, 31, 32, we read that his father, Terah, who served other gods (Joshua xxiv, 2), accompanied him so far as Haran. Abram tarried there until his father died, and then, taking with him Lot, his brother's son, they came into Canaan. Did Terah hinder Abram? Might he have gone on into Canaan if he had been willing? These are not as important questions as such personal ones as the following: Am I by a lack of faith or by an unwillingness to be separate from this present evil world, hindering any dear one whose heart is longing for a closer walk with God? Am I a Terah, saying that Haran is far enough?

6, 7. And the Lord appeared unto Abram and said, "Unto thy seed will I give this land, and there builded he an altar unto the Lord who appeared unto him." We do not read of any appearance of the Lord to Abram at Haran, for the first verse of our lesson refers to the Lord's appearance and message in Mesopotamia (Acts vii, 2, 3), but now, Abram having obeyed fully, the Lord appears to him a second time and confirms His promise. Until we obey fully up to the light we have we cannot expect further light or revelation. This is Abram's first altar in the land. By sacrifice he worships God in His appointed way. At this place Jacob afterward bought a piece of ground. There Joshua gathered Israel for his farewell address. There he buried the body of Joseph, and there Jesus talked with the woman at the well (Gen. xxxiii, Joshua xxiv, John iv). The land was already occupied by the Canaanites, and Abram must be content with his tent and altar and to be a pilgrim and a stranger until God's time should come to give him the land.

8. "There he builded an altar unto the Lord and called upon the name of the Lord." This is his second altar in the land, and it is between Bethel and Hai. The margin says the Ai of Joshua vii, 2. Bethel suggests Gen. xxviii, 19, and the story of God's gracious loving kindness to Jacob. But the principal truth and practical lesson are associated with the altar and the sacrifice. Happy is the man who, whatever be his home or dwelling place or surroundings, if it be a hut or a palace, in some heathen wilderness or in some great city, never fails to have his altar unto the Lord! Redemption by the blood of Christ and constant communion with Him—these are the two greatest things that any mortal can have, and they are possible to all who have ever heard of Christ and of His redemption. He is calling all who have heard His voice to separate themselves from this present world and live wholly for Him.

9. "And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south." It is good to be always going on in the way of the Lord. We read of David that he went on and grew great (margin, going and growing), and the Lord God of hosts was with him (II Sam. v, 10). An enlarging and a winding about is not out of place, if it be "still upward, still upward, still upward, by the midst" (Ezek. xli, 7). Peter would call it growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ (II Pet. iii, 18). But while on this present earth we are in an enemy's country, for even our Lord said that the devil is the prince of this world (John xiv, 30), and we need to watch and pray lest we fall into temptation. If there is one thing that the devil seems to hate specially it is to see a believer wholly separated unto God and walking humbly with God, living for and relying upon Him alone. The rest of this chapter tells of some sad wandering and stumbling on the part of Abram, even a compact between himself and his wife to lie in order to save his life, and a consequent rebuke from a heathen king. Abram's faith was a matter of growth, and it had not at this time reached to that implicit trust in God of later years.

WOMEN AND INDIANS.

"CRAZY SNAKE" AND DIGGER INDIANS SOON TO BE MADE VOTERS.

Alaska Indians to Share the Suffrage Also—Mrs. Ida Harper Thinks the Women Would Make More Intelligent Citizens.

It has been commonly supposed that when the government could persuade Crazy Snake and his tribe of snakes and the rest of the Choctaws and Apaches and Digger Indians to exchange their tomahawks for ballots, everybody in the United States of the male gender would be enfranchised, writes Ida Husted Harper in the New York Sun. It has been discovered, however, that up among the glaciers of Alaska there is a large body of males who, up to date, have taken no part in the government of the United States. It is singular that they should have been so long overlooked, but now no time will be lost in making them a part of the electorate.

The chairman of the Committee on Territories, William S. Knox, of Massachusetts, has introduced a bill providing for "the admission to citizenship of Alaskan natives now residing in that Territory, and their descendants, members of the uncivilized tribes."

When Chairman Knox, of Massachusetts, has succeeded in his laudable purpose, let us hope he will find time to cast his eyes in the direction of his own State in his search for the disfranchised. In not another section of the United States, perhaps, are there within the same area as many highly educated women; in none is there a larger proportion of women taxpayers. In no State have women been trying longer or more earnestly to secure the franchise.

How comes it, then, that he is so deeply concerned about the Esquimaux, deeply concerned about the esquimaux, and so utterly regardless of educated citizens of Massachusetts? If approached on this subject, he would probably make the hackneyed reply: "When the majority of women ask for the ballot, they will get it."

Have the majority of the Alaskan men asked for it? Have the various tribes of Indian men been enfranchised because the majority requested it? Did the majority of the Hawaiian men express a desire for it? Did a majority of the Porto Rican men insist upon being made voters? Is universal male suffrage provided for in the new Cuban Constitution because a majority of the men have petitioned for it? Is there in the whole history of our Government one instance where any class of men have had the franchise bestowed upon them because a majority demanded it? Not in one single case has this been done, and yet legislators, politicians, editors, ministers, lawyers, dismiss the plea of women for representation with the illogical remark: "When the majority ask for it, they can have it." If they are told that the petitions of the women of the United States for suffrage exceed those for this purpose of all the men in the county combined since the Government was founded, they simply answer: "The majority of women must ask for it." And then, when the hundreds of thousands who have asked for it and worked for it turn away in despair, the political drag-net is put forth again to gather in another catch of immigrants, negroes, Indians, Hawaiians, Porto Ricans, and Esquimaux, whose sole qualification for the exercise of the franchise lies in the accident of having been born of the masculine gender.

As women look upon this performance year after year, they may be pardoned if they repeat the prayer of Dr. Lyman Beecher: "O Lord, grant that we may not despise our rulers; and grant, O Lord, that they may not act so we can't help it!"

Victor Hugo on Morals.

In Victor Hugo's letters to his fiance, just published, it is interesting to see how vigorously the young author stood up for an equal standard of morals for men and women. On one occasion Adele wrote to him, "I am not sure about your keeping straight." He wrote in reply:

"I should regard as only a commonplace woman (that is to say, a person amounting to very little) a girl who would marry a man without being morally certain, from her knowledge of his principles and character, not only that he does keep straight, but also—and I purposely use the fitting word in its full force—that he is virgin, as virgin as herself. In my opinion, the solitary exception would be in case the young man, having committed a fault, confessed it to his betrothed with keen repentance and deep self-contempt. He would be an odious and contemptible traitor if he did not confess it; the girl, therefore, could not forgive him, or not without being, in my judgment, less worthy of esteem."

"Freak Legislation."

The last few months have been fruitful in proposals for "freak legislation." Pennsylvania has pending a bill decreeing that unless a man votes at every election he shall be punished with fine and imprisonment. In the Texas Legislature a bill has been introduced providing that a man may kill with impunity any one who slanders his wife or ny female relative. In the Connecticut Legislature it has been gravely proposed that every bachelor over forty years of age who wishes to marry must pay a hundred dollars into the State treasury; and the Wisconsin Legislature has actually imposed a tax on bachelors. If these bills had been introduced in any of the equal suffrage States, it would at once have been declared that this was just the sort of legislation which might have been expected from women. But they all originated in States where women have no voice in the law.—Woman's Journal.

GAS RANGE.

A Gas Range will do all the work that the best coal range will do and it will save you money. It also does away with much work and worry.

The Economy of the Gas Stove is show below in a few tests:

COMPARISON OF PERCENTAGE IN LOSS AFTER COOKING.

GAS.		COAL.
Cost 35 cents.	—FISH—	Cost 35 cents.
Product 28 1-2		Product 24 3-4
Loss 6 1-2 cents.		Loss 10 1-4 cents.
	—BEEF—
Cost 166 1-2		Cost 169 7-8
Product 138 3-8		Product 117
Loss 23 1-8 cents.		Loss 52 7-8 cents.

Saving of Gas Stove over Coal range, ... 24 3-4 cents.

The saving in food on Fish and Roast Beef for one Dinner was 28 1-2 cents.

This shows a great saving in food cooked by Gas Range and as this occurs in nearly every dish that is cooked the saving in pounds of food in the course of one year, is something enormous. A Gas Range will do its work a great deal quicker than a coal range and does not heat the house when cooking. A Gas Range can be run so that nearly all the heat generated can be put into food being cooked. The difference in labor between working over a coal range in a hot kitchen and Gas Range in a Cool Kitchen, is worth more than the price of either coal or gas.

We can put an attachment on your hot water boiler, that can be run independent of either coal or gas range. that will give hot water all over the house in a few minutes, so that Hot Water can be used in Bath at any moment if there has not been a fire in range for 12 months.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

A CHANCE
For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways of doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. For particulars call or write to NOWELLS' Photo. Studio, 396 Main Street Woburn. s8 tf

HOMEMADE PRESENTS

SOME OF THE PRETTY NOVELTIES THAT ARE BEING FAVORED.

The Suggestions Given Are All Simple Ideas That May Be Easily and Quickly Materialized—Some Acceptable Gifts.

At this season of the year everybody is busy with Christmas preparations, and the ladies are searching everywhere for ideas in fancy work. There really are a great deal of genuine satisfaction and pleasure in the exchange of gifts in one's own handiwork—a sort of true delight peculiar to the feminine fancy. The average woman resorts to her needle and embroidery silk for Christmas fancy work; some prefer to paint or sketch; others etch; many do exquisite china painting and not a few turn out some real gems in crochet work.

For the embroidery worker there are some pretty new things along the line of heavier work than was fashionable last season. Veil, glove and handkerchief cases, necktie folders, etc., are made of pique embroidered in conventional designs. One of these, a veil case, recently done by a girl of original ideas, had the flap worked about the edge with a plain, heavy scallop in red and a large monogram in solid red cross stitch worked in the center of the flap. A handkerchief case of pique is very elegant, with a border scallop of blue and a conventional scroll worked at the center of the cover in three harmonious shades of blue.

A simple way to make a catchall bag, one of those very handy adjuncts to the dressing table, is to cut from linen two pieces, 14 inches long, rounded at the bottom and to the casing for the gathering cord or ribbon. Above this allow three inches for the flaps, which will fall over the bag when drawn together. Stitch the two pieces together on the machine from the casing around to the casing, allowing a margin of one inch all around the edge. Do not stitch the pieces together above the casing.

Then embroider a plain scallop all around the margined edge, holding the two pieces together, but above the casing the scalloping is done on the single cloth to permit of an opening. Any naturalistic design of flowers to suit the worker's fancy can adorn the bag, and of course the ribbons should match in coloring.

SUGGESTION FOR GLOVE CASE.

Dresser scarfs of sheer material and ruffled about the edge are always appreciated things to receive, but there is a much newer idea that is irresistibly pretty. Fine and delicate mulle or even organdie is used and a sort of slip (like a pillowslip) made of suitable size, with both ends left open and finished with a deep hem and hemstitching. A fancy embroidery stitch can be added if desired. A pad of some dainty tint—pink, blue, lavender, yellow or green—is made of china silk, filled with one layer of cotton and scented with sachet powder. This is slipped into the case, and a large cabison bow of wide satin ribbon of the chosen color fastened in the lower left hand corner holds the pad in place.

Old Friends.

Snarley—Old friends are the best.

Yow—They are if they don't get rich before you do.—Syracuse Herald.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhœa so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an eleven month's old child, says: "Through the months' of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." For sale by Young and Brown.

THE HEDGE.

Fair neighbor of the thatched cot,
With gloire de Dijon clustered gable,
So star sweet, on from plot to plot
Thou trippest, like a nymph of fable.

So blithe thy smile, so soft thy tone,
Thy love so good a life to lead in,
I'd fain the hedge were overthrown
And our two gardens made one Eden!

But "No!" cries Wisdom. "Spare the fence,
The thorn, the ivy blackbirds nest in;
Leave something for the finer sense,
Some dream of joy to hope and rest in,

"Some glad surprise, some mystery
Of inconceivably sweet meaning!"
Wisdom is wise. My friend and I
Scarce press the topmost twigs by leaning.

NIGHTMARE.

The Sensation That Always Makes a Man a Coward.

"Strange that we are always so cowardly in nightmares," remarked a New Orleans lawyer who has a taste for the bizarre. "I don't believe anybody ever lived who stood up and made a square stand against the amorphous horror that invariably pursues us in such visions. When I have a nightmare and the usual monster gets on my trail, my blood turns to water, and my conduct would disgrace a sheep. I am beside myself with stark, downright fear, and I have no idea left in my head except to run like a rabbit. All pride, self respect, dread of ridicule and even the instinct of self defense are scattered to the winds, and I believe, honestly, I would be capable of any infamy in order to escape. I have no hesitation in confessing this, because, as far as I have been able to find out, everybody acts exactly the same way in the throes of nightmare, and I feel certain I would not make such a pitiable spectacle of myself in real life, no matter what might befall.

"I think that the explanation of the nightmare panic is to be found in the fact that the dream is almost invariably accompanied by a sense of suffocation. It is well established that choking—the 'shutting off of one's wind,' to use a homely phrase—has an effect upon the mind which is entirely distinct and different from that produced by any other form of pain or peril. It fills the victim with such horror and distraction that he is for the moment insane. He will do anything to get relief. This has been brought out on more than one occasion in the defense of men who have been choked and killed their assailants, and judges have held that the circumstances of such an attack should be given special consideration as extenuating the deed. In dreams the entire nervous system is relaxed, and it is natural to suppose that the mental effect of suffocation would be intensified. At least, that is the best apology I have to offer for my sprints through nightmare land."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Habit In a Horse's Work.

"When I retired from the contracting business a short time ago," said a well known man, "I had a number of horses that I was anxious to dispose of. Among them was one named Jerry, which for several years had been used to working on a drum. In such work a horse becomes accustomed to lifting his feet high to avoid striking the hoisting ropes. When the horses were put under the hammer, Jerry went to a Harlem grocer.

"About a week later the purchaser of Jerry called at my house and told me that he had a lot of trouble with the horse. He said that Jerry would go a short distance, when he would stop short and lift his feet high, and after doing this would go a little farther, only to repeat it again. I told the grocer why the horse stopped short and lifted his feet and also advised him to look up some contractor and sell the animal to him for hoisting purposes. He did so, notifying me that he received a larger price than he paid me for the horse."—New York Sun.

A PATRIOTIC SCHEME.

JERICHO WAS FOR HAVING A DECORATION DAY PARADE.

Pap Perkins, Postmaster, Tells How Horatio Sparrow Sprung the Idea on the Town and How Lish Billings Gave It Its Deathblow.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

It was about a week before last Decoration day that Horatio Sparrow come into the postoffice lookin as if he had sunthin on his mind, and as soon as he got the chance he whispered to me:

"Don't say nuthin to a livin soul, pap, but I'm comin around here tonight and shake the town of Jericho from center to circumference."

"In what way?" said I.

"Never you mind, pap. You jest git ready to feel the airth tremble, and tomorrow mornin you kin put $200 more value on your house and lot."

Horatio is a man who never gits excited when he wakes up and finds a cow in his garden, and I felt quite sure he had sunthin big on hand. He must hev told about 50 other people what he did me, as there was a big crowd at the postoffice at 7 o'clock in the evenin, and all expected to hear big news. Deacon Spooner took charge of things, as usual, and as the crowd got impatient he said.

"It is understood, feller citizens, that Horatio Sparrow is goin to launch a thunderbolt here tonight, and it is with more than ordinary interest that I call the meetin to order. Stand out, Horatio, and let's hear all about it."

Horatio stood out. He looked pale, but determined. He'd bin thinkin fur a week of what he was goin to say, and he started off as smooth as grease.

"The drums are beatin a wild alarm. There is a wavin of flags, a marchin of men and a wailin of women and children. War is upon the land. The life of a nation is at stake. It is an hour when men are called upon to give up their lives fur the sake of principle."

"By John, but that's flowery language!" exclaimed the deacon as Horatio paused. "If Horatio kin keep it up fur an hour; I'm fur 'lectin him to the next legislature."

"The farmer leaves his plow," continued Horatio, "the merchant his store and the mechanic his bench. They march away to find the enemy and fight him and die. Yes; they yield up their lives that we may live on in peace, and if we forgit the sacrifice we ought to wither away like a burdock in November."

"Gentleman," said the deacon as the applause had subsided, "up to the present minit Horatio Sparrow has knocked the socks off'n Henry Clay as an orator, and I am proud to know that he is a citizen of Jericho. Anything more, Horatio?"

"I jest want to call your attention to the fact that Jericho has never had a Decoration day parade," replied the orator. "We hev never paraded and never decorated, and I say it's a burnin shame and ought to be remedied at once."

"By John, but that's a strong p'int!" shouted the deacon. "Hang me if Horatio ain't knockin things endways! No, sir; we've never had a parade nor decorated any graves, and we ought to be ashamed of ourselves. Is it your suggestion that we celebrate the day this year, Horatio?"

"That's my p'int, deacon."

"And it's as strong as a log chain. Yes, sir; we'll celebrate the day, and in order to make it a howlin success I'll agree to take charge of the parade."

"But I object to that," said Horatio. "Hevin originated this idea, I think it's fur me to ride on horseback at the head of the purcession."

There was a painful pause, and then Abner Jones, who was in fireman's uniform, jumped off the counter and said:

"There shouldn't be no jealousy about this thing. Horatio would look purty fine on his spotted horse, and the deacon would be no slouch in his cocked hat, but if there's to be any feelin over it I'll take the job off their hands. As I'm foreman of the fire company it comes in my line anyhow."

"I don't propose to give up my rights fur nobody," said Horatio.

"And I'm thinkin I'm the man to boss things," added the deacon.

"I don't want to charge anybody with bevin too much cheek," said Squar Henshaw, "but it do look a leetle strange to me to see the way certain folks want to crowd to the front on public occasions. If there is a purcession, it's got to be headed by a man who knows how to boss things and can't be rattled. I bossed the parade the last time we had a Fourth of July, and you may remember that the newspapers said I managed it better than any we ever had."

"I'll allow that the squar did fairly well," said Enos Williams as he shut up his jackknife and got off the sugar bar'l, "but there are several other folks in this town of Jericho. For instance, I'm here myself. When anything has happened durin the last 20 years, I've bin pushed behind the currant bushes, as it was, and some one else has carried off the honors. I'm comin to the front on this occasion or know the reason why."

"Why, Enos, you don't purtend that you kin boss a purcession, do you?" asked the deacon.

"Of course I kin. Why not?"

"It appears to me," said Silas Lapham as he stood out and rubbed his hands together, "that we are not workin in complete harmony in this matter. It will be the event of the century. It will be known from Maine to California that Jericho has had a Decoration day, and there will be thousands of inquiries fur real estate. Let us sacrifice any selfish interests as individuals and work to make the affair a general success."

"That's powerful good advice," said the deacon as he rapped on the stove with his cane—"powerful good. I allus stand ready to sacrifice, and I hope the rest of you do. Any further p'int, Silas?"

"You may call it a p'int or not," said Silas, "but bein there seems to be a controversy here I think it better be settled by selectin me to boss things. I don't want it because I'm proud and want to show off, but purely in the interests of harmony."

"I'll never surrender my rights!" said Horatio Sparrow.

"Nor me!" added Deacon Spooner.

"Nor me!" yelled Abner Jones and Squar Henshaw in chorus.

It was evident that the meetin was on the p'int of breakin up in a row when Lish Billings come saunterin in as calm as could be. The deacon seen him and called out:

"Feller patriots, before this meetin breaks up in a row that will send the price of Jericho real estate down to 50 per cent and put our civilizashun back 50 years let's hear what Lish Billings has to say about it."

"What's the question?" asked Lish.

"About Decoration day. Shall we decorate?"

"Decorate what?"

"Why, the soldiers' graves."

"I don't see how you are goin to do it," said Lish as he scratched his ear. "So fur as I know or hev bin able to find out, nobody from Jericho ever went to war. It tharfore follers that no Jericho man was ever killed. It follers, ag'in, that you might look the graveyard over fur a month and not find a soldier's grave to decorate. 'Pears to me that you'd better git yer grave fust."

Two minits later Lish was the only man left in the postoffice. It was as he had said—thar was nuthin to decorate, and all the blowin had bin fur nuthin.

Senator Has No Interest.

Winchester is so far on the outskirts of its Senatorial District that all interest is lost in the question of who is to be the candidate for Senator. We live in the longest shoestring district in this State, be it said to our disadvantage, and to the injustice of those who conceived it.

Neglected Boys.

There are several groups of boys in this town who appear to be going from bad to worse because of a laxity in meting out proper punishment. No one desires a too rigorous enforcement of the laws in the cases of these juvenile offenders, but they should nevertheless be taught a lesson between right and wrong for their own future benefit and for the protection of the public. The main cause of the waywardness of these troublesome boys appears to originate in a lack of parental restraint and not because they are viciously bad. The Chief of Police has done all that he can to curb these boys, but the remedy is beyond him.

A few weeks ago the Chief had occasion to arrest a boy for petty theiving. The boy admitted his wrong doing, but notwithstanding this, his mother declared that he was innocent and proceeded to berate and threaten the Chief with all manner of punishment for even suspecting her boy of wrong doing. Since then another of her boys has committed a more serious offence. We merely mention this to show that the influences of the home in many cases are not what they should be. In such cases the law should step in for the future good of the boy and the protection of the inhabitants.

Estimates From Contractors Will Give Actual Cost.

In the Town Report of 1899, Engineer C. M. Thompson, then town engineer, estimated that the cost of building a street across the pond from Winchester place to Spruce street, not including land damages across the pond, would amount to $20,904.20. A previous report and another since Mr. Thompson gave his estimate, places the expense at a considerably higher figure, but does not give definite sums. The small expense given by Mr. Thompson may have been based on the following, which accompanied his report!

Winchester, Mass., Nov. 13, 1899.

I have made an examination of the possibilities of obtaining material for the filling required to construct a street across Judkins Pond from Pleasant to Swanton street as shown by plan previously submitted, and as a result of my examinations I have the honor to report that there is a piece of land containing about two and one-half acres, lying along the railroad, and two hundred (200) feet north of Swanton street which can be secured. The land belongs to the Sanborn estate, and can be excavated to a depth of twelve feet, down to grade of railroad. This would give over 50,000 cubic yards of material, more than enough to fill the proposed street. The asking price for this land is seven cents per foot or $8,400 but I think a cash purchaser could reduce this price to quite an extent. I think a right of way over which to cart the material could be secured from Mrs. Keith, but a better plan, in my judgment, would be to extend the proposed street from Swanton street across Mrs. Keith's land 200 feet to Sanborn land, thus furnishing direct communication with the centre. As you are well aware, a storage yard must be secured in the near future for use of highway, water and sewer departments, and the land above referred to is, I think, the most desirable and available for that purpose. With the material the new street can be constructed, and doing this would leave the surface of the lot on the same grade as the railroad, when it would be a small affair to connect the yard and railroad by a spur track, thus securing railroad facilities much more convenient to the centre of the town than the present freight yard on Cross street. In the event of this land being secured and the material used for the purpose of constructing the proposed street, it would be worth more for a storage yard than before the removal of the material, consequently its cost might properly be charged to the storage yard, so the material for the proposed street would cost nothing. Contractors have viewed the premises, but none of them have as yet given me any figures as to the probably cost of moving the earth. As soon as I can get their estimates I will submit them.

As there does not appear to be anything approaching a uniform decision reached by the Engineers as to the actual cost of building the street, the only correct way is to procure estimates from responsible contractors stating for what sum they will do the work. The town will then know for a certainty what the proposed street will cost. And in this connection, why not consider the above suggestion of Engineer Thompson?

Re-Echo on the Mill Pond Question.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your correspondent "Echoes" asked some questions and made some caustic remarks in a late issue of the STAR regarding the general appearance of the pond near the Town Hall. I am glad attention has been called to the subject and have taken a little time to find out who causes the nuisances Echoes refers to and why the public allows them to exist. The following is the result of my findings:

I have discovered that the pond is really private property and that the alleged nuisances are caused by trespassers who are such powerful public corporations that possibly the owners of the pond do not care to, or dare not, oppose them as it is very disagreable and expensive to fight the public in court. I find that the town of Winchester runs much of its street drainage into the pond on the easterly side, thus causing the pond to fill up in time of high water with earthy deposits. When the pond subsides and the water is at its ordinary level, the street sweepings or washings, stand out of and above the water and coarse grass and even trees are now growing where once was deep clean water. Of course the pond will fill up in time with this continual wash going on, but until that time arrives I cannot see what can prevent our citizens with aesthetic tastes from having "sore eyes" if they look at the work as it progresses, and I cannot see who is to blame for the outlook except the town itself, unless it be the owners who might bring a suit against the town for filling up the pond. Can not public opinion make them do this?

The "rockery" on the "sand lot" made by the town, I understand can be put into proper shape whenever the town wishes to do it. From investigation, I find that the owner of the rocks was obliged to drop them on this spot because of some action the state and town took whereby he could not move them where he intended. There was a lack of unison and neighborly feeling between the parties at the time but it has blown over since and now the town can do as it pleases with the rocks.

The filling-up nuisance on the Walnut St. side of the pond is the work of the state of Massachusetts, which runs a two foot surface drain directly into the pond at this point which is filling up very fast from the sand and gravel carried in at every storm. The grass has commenced to grow on "Massachusetts Crescent" and no doubt bushes and trees will soon follow. I do not know but what the State has paid for a right to fill the pond, but if it has, it ought not to do it without leveling off the filling in such a way as not to show quite as much of it on top of the water. If it has not paid for such a right, some one should get out an injunction against the Commissioners, as that board would do if the tables were turned and the pond belonged to the state and a private individual drained street filling into it.

The cheap, shabby wooden catch basin at the corner of Main St. and the Parkway is town property, allowed there by permission to prevent the wash of Main St. from filling the pond at that locality. It is in a tumble down condition and the glory of the whole affair belongs to the town. There are several other street gutters emptying into the pond, smaller than those referred to, but each doing its natural and inevitable work of shoaling the pond and making a dirty place of it.

The ancient, slatless fence on old Walnut St. I find is State property and as such is not taxable. What it is for, no one knows as it would not keep a baby, or a butterfly, from falling into the pond should one touch it or the other brush its wings against it. It looks as it it were left there to make things look shabby about the pond. The old stone wall on which the fence rests is also State property. It is as decrepit and "gone by" as its old companion, the fence. It is said to be on the line of old Walnut St., but it so, Walnut St. must have been laid out by drunken men. The wall "bulges out" and "settles in" in spots as if it were tired out and wanted to be at rest from its long weary work of holding up Walnut St. The contrast between this old public servant and the new, spruce, handsome wall built by the State a few feet from it indicates that the State cares but little for the appearance of the pond, but much for its parkway.

The old fence and stone wall on Main St. are town property. The fence is of the same clasic model as the State fence, in somewhat better repair and better painted. The old wall does its work of holding up the fence in a weak, limping kind of a way, but like the state wall it may "drop" at any time and go out of business from sheer fatigue and old age. The mill-dam I find to be of mixed ownership, the town of Winchester owning a right to move and rebuild a portion of it in return for changing the lines of Main St. When Main St. is rebuilt, according to over-due order of the court, the town wall, fence and dam will be put in order, I am assured, within the limits of the street as agreed upon. This action only waits upon the "push" of the town in obeying the order served upon it.

With all this information I place before Echoes, will he kindly tell us what to do to abate the evils he has called attention to? Tell us definately how to get a new wall and fence out of the State and how to move the town to do better things to inprove the pond. As he has called attention to the public use, or abuse, of the mill pond he should prescribe the remedy to abate the nuisances. It is only a cheap doctor, or in plain language, a quack, who glibly describes your ailments and tells you how sick you are, but cannot perscribe a remedy.

RE-ECHO.

Cards for the July cup match are being handed in.

News has come of the interesting wedding on Thursday (the 18th), at Dallas, Tex., of Miss Katarina Van Rensselaer and Mr. Maurice E. Ginn of Winchester, of the well known Boston publishing house of Edwin Ginn. The ceremony, which was at the Cathedral, was followed by a reception. The bride wore a shirred gown of white silk muslin over white taffeta and lace. The veil, which fell to the hem of the long train, was fastened with a diamond aigrette. The eight bridemaids were in white point d'esprit over white silk, with yellow girdle and bows. Mr. Percy Ginn, a cousin, was best man, Mr. Jerry Van Rensselaer of Chicago gave his sister away. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Garrett, assisted by Dean Stuck, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Ginn will spend two weeks with Mr. Ginn's parents at Winchester. Afterward they go to Maine.—[Exchange.

The owner of a dress suit case, who sent it out from Boston on a train Saturday evening, refused to accept it from the baggage master. The dress suit case presented a demoralized appearance, the sides being stained while the bottom looked like a burnt boot, and it smelled like a distillery. The baggage master told the man that the railroad company did not guarantee safety to wet goods unless they had been properly packed and notification of the contents made known. Later he concluded to accept the baggage. Out of a dozen or more bottles only two were found unbroken.

The delay in reporting the tax-rate is common throughout the Metropolitan Sewerage District, the assessors, in the various cities and towns of the district being obliged to wait until the state commission announces the new apportionment.

For using profane and obscene language on a N. W. trolley car between Medford Square and Winchester Common last Saturday afternoon, Judge Johnson fined an intoxicated Winchester man, in Court Monday morning $50 for the profanity and $5 for the drunk. If everyone who conducts himself on the electrics as that Winchester man did last Saturday, could be brought before Judge Johnson, it wouldn't be long before the practice of abusing and disgusting decent passengers would be entirely broken up. Judge Johnson didn't punish that fellow a mite too severely; but, if anything, ought to have given him a little stronger dose; but for what he did do the community thank him. The only way to put a stop to these drunken scenes on the cars is to bring the offenders into the District Court of Woburn and give them all the law allows. In this way they will soon get sick of raising the Old Harry.—[Woburn Journal.

Mr. Chas. T. Whitten has sold his attractive house, 88 Bacon street, to Mr. Chas. E. Barrett, cashier of the Middlesex County Nat'l Bank. Mr. Whitten intends to build soon on Glen road. The transaction was made through the Real estate office of Geo. Adams Woods.

A party of Winchester people, consisting of Mrs. Mary L. Winn, Miss Elizabeth Winn, Miss Margaret Winn, Mrs. T. Lund, Miss May Lund and Mrs. Wm. T. McConaghy left Wednesday, July 31, for Novia Scotia, where they will spend the month of August. They have selected the popular route to the Provinces, by steamer to St. John, N. B., on the International line and from St. John, N. B., to Pictou, Novia Scotia, by rail, where they will be met by Miss Lou McConaghy of Winchester, who is spending the summer in Pictou. Their many Winchester friends wish them a good time, and much needed rest.

Miss Isabelle Emmons of Lynn is visiting Mrs. Charles E. Dyer of Grove street.

Wilder Parkhurst of Oak Knoll, will spend the rest of the summer vacation at Hyde Park, Vermont.

Some young men round Symmes corner whose summer vacation evidently drags somewhat relieved the monotony of a hot evening last Monday by setting fire to a large haystack on Brooks street, belonging to Mr. George A. Weld of Sanborn Place. Fortunately there was no wind at the time and no special danger to adjacent property. Two of the young fellows, supposed to be guilty of the mischief were caught by a citizen in trying to escape and were given a sadly needed lecture for their misdeed, together with a threat that Chief McIntosh's help might be called for if there was a repetition of such mischief in the very peaceable neighborhood.

After games on the lawn and piazza, refreshments, music, a group picture and various other entertainments that go to make up a busy and happy afternoon were enjoyed. Mrs. Hicks, accompanied by Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Braddock took the party for a trolley ride.

Miss Deborah was the appreciative recipients of many beautiful gifts and good wishes.

Those present were Misses Laura and Cora Hicks of Winter Hill, Miss Lillian Fisher, Claire and Grace Wyman, Lillian Hudson, Clara Mills, Ursula Chaplin, Marjorie Braddock, Stella Reenstierna and Master George Everett Hicks.

Their Secret is Out.

All Sadieville, Ky., was curious to learn the cause of the vast improvement in the health of Mrs. S. P. Whittaker, who had for a long time, endured untold suffering from a chronic bronchial trouble. "It's all due to Dr. King's New Discovery," writes her husband. "It completely cured her and also cured our little granddaughter of a severe attack of Whooping Cough." It positively cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Bathing Place for Members of Calumet Club.

Messrs. F. H. Harding, A. Miles Holbrook and F. L. Hunt, serving as a committee for the Calumet Club, have prepared a fine bathing place on the pond in the rear of the club house. A firm bottom has been made with gravel brought from the other side of the pond on a raft, thus enabling bathers to walk out into the pond up to their shoulders without getting into mud. The shore has also been covered with sand, and electric lights have been placed on the veranda of the house for the benefit of the bathers. Towels, etc., are provided, in fact everything to secure a good bath. Members of the club wishing to take a plunge can now do so under better conditions than have heretofore prevailed in this town.

PURE DRINKING WATER.
Colonial Springs.
THESE SPRINGS have long been celebrated in this vicinity for the excellence of the water; and it is now offered to the public for the first time. Knowing this water will stand on its own merit, we only desire people to try it, to be convinced of its superiority over any other.
This water is highly recommended by Chemist James O. Jordan, Dr. Robert Chalmers of Woburn, and many others.

No Flies in Skyscrapers.

"If I was a baldheaded man I would get me an office on one of the upper floors of the tallest skyscraper in town," remarked an attorney. "Why? Because I'd never have to brush a fly from my hairless pate. Flies stay near the ground, seldom getting more than 30 or 40 feet above it. The only flies you get in a skyscraper are the ones that stray up through the interior of the building, and they are mighty few. You will find them on the lower floors, but just keep your eyes open when you are in high buildings, you'll see mighty few of the little pests above the third or fourth floors."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hired by the Hour.

When Remenyi, the famous violinist, was a young man, he was engaged by a parvenu to play at a dinner, the agreement stating that he was to furnish music from 8 o'clock to 11. He began with an andante movement from Mozart, a composition which opens very low and soft.

The host turned to his guests, "That's just like those musicians," he said. "I hired him by the hour, and see how slow he plays."—Kansas City Independent.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The blinds are being put on the north reservoir house a few at a time, so as not to give the neighborhood a shock, as putting them all on at once might do.

How was it that the firemen were so overcome by smoke at the Blaikie block fire when the department has smoke protectors said to be preventive? Were they forgotten in the excitement?

Undoubtedly we will see a great improvement in peoples' tempers when the new rails on the Woburn-Medford electric line are in. Bloodshed was narrowly averted on account of them last week.

Why don't they finish up the work on Manchester Field? What can they be waiting for now? Not money certainly, or weather. They must have just got tired. But what are they waiting for?

Washington street from Lebanon up is in the worst condition of any important street in town and if any new macadam construction is done this year this street should have it, and it should be straightened at the same time, between Lebanon and Forest streets.

If neatness comes in anywhere near cleanliness and godliness, why is it that some churches neglect their grounds so that it is a cause of remark from passers by? It would seem that grounds that are not taxable should be kept in good condition at least.

That arc light for the Common is as slow coming as some other things.

The boat club's illumination was very pretty and a success and relieved the monotony of the mid-summer dulness for the stay at homes who no doubt are much obliged that the event was not postponed till fall as some desired. Very likely there will be another later on when new features will be introduced. Why not then have some floats with local hits.

Now Messrs. Assessors when you give us the tax rate give it in detail and so that we may figure it out. It has been impossible to do this heretofore because some of the items have been left out of the table.

And now swimming is barred at the boat club and also at the acqueduct. Manchester Field cannot be used for a playground and pretty soon the boys will want to know where the advantages of living in the country come in. It does seem pretty tough that there is no place for their amusements either on land or water, and it is not right.

White Ribbon Clippings.

WHAT A BOY COULD DO.

He was small for his age, worked in a signal-box and booked the trains. One day the men were chaffing him about being so small. One of them said, "you will never amount to much. You will never be able to pull these levers; you are too small." The little fellow looked at them. "Well, he said, "I can do something that none of you can do." "Ah, what is that?" they all cried. "I don't know that I ought to tell you." They were all anxious to know, and urged him to tell them what he could do that none of them were able to do. Said one of the men, "what is it, boy?" "I can keep from swearing and drinking," replied the little fellow. There were blushes on the men's faces and they did'nt seem anxious for any further information on the subject.

TEMPERANCE REFORMER.

It is very gratifying to the friends of temperance to note how many agencies are beginning to work for the good cause. Every railroad in the country is a temperance society of the most efficient kind. No man can hold an important place in the service of these great corporations that is known or even suspected to be a tippler. Public opinion rightly approves such a policy as a needed protection for the lives and property of those who travel themselves or transport their goods from one place to another. As to the morality or immorality of drinking, the railroad authorities probably have no definite convictions. The motive from which they act is purely an economical one. They wisely see that they cannot afford to put important interests in the hands of men who are in danger of being out of their wits at any time. The time has come when abstemiousness is a valuable asset to any young man seeking employment.

Some Timely Summer "Don'ts."

The two recent drowning accidents, one in the river and the other in the Upper Lake, have served to reiterate the necessity for care. In these cases, as in many others, the victims are young people, unpracticed and inexperienced, who attempt to do things they do not know how to do. Sometimes the accidents are due to carelessness, and once in a while, as in the case of the Upper Lake accident, to unavoidable circumstances which make death inevitable.

Let Medford parents beware of their children's aquatic pastimes at this season. It seems impossible to teach all children to be careful; to make them understand that there is a physical limit in swimming; that cramps follow quite often when a heated child goes in swimming; that there are currents and undertows which are stronger than men. But slow as people are to learn these facts, the appeal to caution cannot be too often reiterated, with the hope that the number of accidents may be reduced as much as possible.—[Medford Mercury.

The Knights Won.

The lawn party given by Winchester Council, K. of C., on the Linden street grounds last week Thursday evening was very successful, there being a large attendance. The grounds were handsomely illuminated. The principal event was a tug-of-war contest between teams representing the knights, the gardeners of the west side and Montvale. In the first round the gardeners met Montvale, and the latter team won easily. In the finals the knights pulled Montvale all over the ground. The winning team was captained by Daniel J. Daley, and was made up as follows: Edward Murphy, Thos. Gallagher, Wm. Murphy, J. O'Connor and D. McDonald. The prize was $15. The affair was in charge of the following committee: Dennis F. Foley, John J. Sullivan, Henry J. Carroll, Thos. J. Donelly, John T. Cosgrove, John Lynch, Joseph M. Donahoe, Thomas O'Connor, George H. Raymond, Edward F. Maguire, Jeremiah Sullivan, Edward P. Murphy, Michael J. Dennen, Felix P. O'Connor, Frank Leonard, Charles E. O'Connor. Dennis F. Foley acted as floor director.

Trolley Ride to Salisbury Beach.

Every recurring summer finds the trolley car increasing in popularity, and it seems as if at times a third of the population of this section, at least, was out enjoying this cheap and healthy pastime. A person can take a car here in Winchester and ride up into New Hampshire or down to Rhode Island, or even to New York, although in going to the latter place there are short stretches of territory that yet remains to be covered by the electric cars. The number of beautiful and attractive places which can be reached in the country or at the seashore are without number. This method of transportation, because of its cheapness, is a veritable boon to the man of average means who wishes to dispense with the care of a horse, while to the poor man and his family it means an insight into the country that could not be obtained in any other way.

For the past few years Judge George S. Littlefield has been the originator of a number of trolley rides. He is an enthusiast over this method of travel and is well posted in regard to the routes, destinations, attractions, connections and fares, so that under his guidance a great deal of ground can be covered in an exceedingly short time. For variety perhaps the trip to Salisbury beach can safely be counted as one of the most enjoyable, as it can be reached in combination with the trolley and water. This was the trip taken last week Thursday. As was stated last week the rain during the early morning hours and later the threatening weather prevented a number from going. The sun, however, came out bright, early in the forenoon, and the rain thus served to keep the dust down, so that it proved to be a most enjoyable trip. The start was made from the centre on the 7.20 car, which was late in starting and thereby threatened to upset the prearranged plans of the Judge. The run was, however, quickly made to Reading Centre where a special car was kept in waiting to convey the tourists to the South Lawrence station. The ride over this line was at express speed in a modern up-to date car, and the rate at which the car passed over the beautiful route was exciting and exilarating, nine miles being covered in 23 minutes. There was a fifteen minute wait at South Lawrence for the train to Haverhill, where the boat to convey the party down the Merrimac River was ordered to be held back. As soon as all were on board the quaint old stern wheeled steamer, the lines were cast off when the seventeen miles of water journey was entered on. This is perhaps the most picturesque sail to be found in this part of the country. The trip is simply delightful, affording as it does glimpses of some of the handsomest of New England's famous scenery. Ancient and modern architecture are disclosed on the banks of the river at every turn of the boat, and glimpses of pastoral life are frequently met with as the boat glides over the glassy surface. Handsome summer residences perched on commanding eminences afford a striking contrast to the old New England houses of a hundred or more years ago. Expression is given to the scenery from the sweet tones of the harpist and the mind is lost in the enchanting views. The stately home of Harriet Prescott Spofford is passed and the famous old Chain bridge, the first to be built in this country, is soon left in the distance. Newburyport's water front, with its decaying wharves, reminders of more prosperous days, quickly come to view when the boat stands across the river steering straight for the landing at Salisbury beach. Close to the wharf is the quaint railroad, probably the only one in the country as regards motive power. The coaches formally did service during the days of horse cars, while the locomotive is almost beyond description. An upright boiler stands on a housed-over flat car, in which is jealously guarded the machinery which makes the wheels go round and pulls the nondescript procession of cars. Stops are frequent during the short journey, as all a passenger has to do is to reach for the bell rope and signal to the engineer who stops Pegassus as often as the rope is pulled, and furthermore does not lose his temper.

The beach proper is reached at 12 o'clock, and as dinner is not served at the hotel until half an hour later, there is an opportunity for a brief glimpse at the sea as it rolls in majestic waves along the shore as far as the eye can reach.

The fish dinner was all that could be desired. The Judge had sent word in advance of our coming, so the landlord had made extra preparations to welcome the distinguished company from Winchester. Over an hour was occupied in satisfying the demands of the twelve vigorous and healthy appetites, and in trying to comfort Mr. John R. Newman because of the omission from the menu of steamed clams. He tried to bribe the waiters, then threatened; but it was no use. Then he used his persuasive powers on the Judge. Still the succulent bivalves were not forthcoming. He tried to stump the party in digging some, but the menu being served was too attractive to abandon. It was a fine dinner.

As the car for the return trip left the beach at 2.15, there remained but a half hour to watch the ever interesting waves as they broke and rolled up the beach in creamy whiteness. It was decided to return the entire distance on the electric cars, so at the appointed time the start was made for Newburyport, where after a brief inspection of many quaint old buildings the journey was continued through Rowley, Ipswich, Hamilton, Beverly, Salem, Peabody, Lynnfield, North Saugus, Wakefield and Stoneham, the excursionists arriving in Winchester centre at 7.30 after a continuous ride of five hours and a quarter, at a cost of only 65 cents.

The ride across country from Salisbury Beach was most beautiful. The foliage of the trees and the green of the fields and pasture lands were never arrayed in brighter colors. The excursionists were given an insight into the dreamy quietness of these quaint old towns which could not have been possible but for the electric cars. The connections with the other lines were perfect, and at no place was there a wait with the single exception of Salem where there was a delay of some ten minutes. There was plenty of room on the cars.

It is a delight to travel with such a genial lot of men as made up the party. There was fun, and jokes and stories from the time of leaving Winchester until the return, in all of which Mr. John R. Newman was the moving spirit, and which served to make the hours pass all too quick. The Judge is planning for a second trip next week, the objective point not yet having been decided on. Those who made up the party were Judge George S. Littlefield, J. R. Newman, A. E. Whitney, T. S. Spurr, Arthur Littlefield, C. W. Bradstreet, G. H. Carter, G. W. Payne, J. H. Winn, Geo. H. Parker, T. P. Wilson and Selectman Henry R. Skinner of Watertown.

The Boston & Northern.

The change in the name of the Lynn & Boston railroad to the Boston & Northern indicates, it is said, a still further development of that great street railway system. It is controlled by a Philadelphia syndicate of which Widener & Elkins are the head. The successor of the Lynn & Boston has a rich and profitable field of enormous extent, says the Boston Herald, gridironing all Essex county and a large part of Middlesex, operating in fourteen cities besides Boston, and a great number of towns. Its lines extend through Lowell to Nashua, N. H., including the local service of that city. It covers dozens of interesting excursion routes, full of scenic and historic interest.

Great improvements in service are promised under the new regime, including the establishment of various long-distance excursion routes with through cars, and the running of cars between Boston and Lowell and other distant points. The Lynn & Boston possesses one valuable privilege that it has never made use of—the right to carry freight. This right passes to its successor with its charter, but it probably would not apply to leased lines.

Altogether, this change promises to be a very important one in the street railway situation. It remains to be seen what effect it may have in the way of further competition with the steam railways. An interesting indication is the fact that the Boston & Maine is going into the street railway business itself. It is not likely that the steam railways will abandon the local transit field without an effort to develop the great possibilities of their plants in that direction.—[Wakefield Item.

WHY THE LOCAL PAPER PAYS.

Advertisers Can't Do Much Without It, Thinks this Bostonian, and He Shows Why, Too.

Mr. Henry E. Snow, author of the following, is a well known resident of Winchester, a member of the successful advertising firm of Snow—McKay, Boston, and one of the most fetching ad writers in this part of the country:

The suburbanite seizes local news with avidity—families who are known to be peaceable and law-abiding will frequently skirmish with edged tools for the first reading of the weekly paper, says Henry E. Snow, in the National Advertiser. And don't for a moment believe, reader, but what the paper is well thumbed after the last member of the family has absorbed the local news. But that is not all—the paper is filed for future reference! Even the cook is interested, and you won't find her using the local newspapers to kindle the kitchen fire with—she wants to read it also.

There was a time when the tallow candle posed for luxurious lighting, and the town-crier with his bell served as the distributor of news, but that was in the dark ages. What the electric light is to the tallow candle, the local newspaper is to the town-crier to-day—in both cases the evolution has been perfectly natural, and brought about by the law of supply and demand. The gossip of the town, once retailed around the old iron stove at the corner grocery, is just as interesting to-day as it was then—human nature hasn't changed much in the last hundred years, and human nature won't change much in the years to come.

The local newspaper spreads the local happenings of the town for the day or the week in less time than a single item of news traveled by word of mouth years ago. The local newspaper exists because it is a necessity. It will continue to exist because it will continue to be a necessity for all time.

The writer lives in a suburban town and knows whereof he speaks when he states most emphatically that the value of the local newspaper to an advertiser consists largely in the eagerness with which the paper is read from beginning to end—from the top left-hand column on the first page, to the bottom right-hand column on the last page. Moreover, after the first outburst of energy has subsided over the local happenings, the reader falls naturally into the habit of reading whatever else the pages contain.

Advertisers do not use the local paper enough, and if they use it at all they figure its advertising space so low that it scarcely pays for the work of the compositor who sets the advertisement.

The local paper goes into the home—please remember that. There is no waste circulation to it because there can't be—nine-tenths of the people who read it are subscribers who pay their subscription by the year. The local paper is not generally sold in the railroad train or on the electric cars or at the news stands—you must subscribe for it if you want to get it, and when you get it you are in your own home. If you leave it around it is still in your home—if you can't find it when you want it or don't get it when you expect it, there's trouble right away.

Not all local papers are valuable as advertising mediums, but it is very easy to separate the chaff from the wheat. Not all the publishers of local newspapers are conscientious but you must start with the assumption that all men are innocent until they are proved guilty.

Do not forget that the claim is made that the great value of magazine advertising comes from the fact that the magazine goes into the home and offers something attractive in its pages for every member of the family. Do not forget that the local newspaper does the self-same thing! In addition, it possesses a peculiar virtue that the magazine does not, and that is—local news!

Again there are magazines without number to choose from, but there is only one local newspaper—it is the local newspaper or nothing, for the local news.

There's the club and the church and the town meeting—there's the new family that has just moved in. That corner lot has been sold and the paper says, "The finest house in town is going up on it." This all makes mighty interesting reading for the suburbanite—so interesting that he is not going to miss it if he can raise enough money to pay for a yearly subscription to the local paper, and there are few suburbanites who can't do that.

The local paper doesn't suffer from competition because there is no competition to suffer from.

There comes a time in the life of every suburbanite when he wants to see his name in the paper. Perhaps he claims he doesn't, but way down deep in his heart there is an inborn desire to have it there.

And so the reasons grow, why the local newspaper has the strongest kind of claims for real dyed-in-the-wool value to the advertiser. Let us give credit where it is due.

Greetings to Dr. March and the Mother Church.

Rev. E. B. Palmer who represented the Winchester Congregational church at the recent 85th birthday anniversary exercises of Daniel March, D.D., at Woburn brought the following greetings to the beloved pastor emeritus of the old mother church, by saying in part:

Dear Doctor March—In years our father, in vigor our younger brother, all the saints and many others in Winchester salute you. Sixty-one years ago, 94 of the members of this old church left you and formed what is now the Winchester Cong'l church. It is represented here today by a chosen delegation, and by others of its congregation exceeding in number the official body. Forty-four years ago, a classmate of mine in Bangor, and a member of this church, was reading the volume from Dr. March's pen, entitled "Walks and Homes of Jesus," and I remember how he dwelt upon the advantages enjoyed by those who sat under such a teacher. Sixteen years ago I located in Winchester, and this has enabled me to learn how largely and worthily our brother has filled his place. His influence for good has been exerted not only here, but wherever the church of Christ is established. It gives me great pleasure to read the official letter of congratulation from the church in Winchester.

To the First Cong'l Church, Woburn, Mass. Dearly Beloved:—Nothing that touches the vital interests, or concerns the peace and happiness of the mother church in Woburn can be matter of indifference to her sixty-one years old daughter in Winchester. We are of one spiritual blood in a sense beyond the ordinary. Add to this relationship the fact that through a long series of years, the present beloved pastor emeritus of this church has not once failed in the many opportunities of close vicinage to put the service of his physique, in strength of weakness, of his intellect, never weak, of his sweet, strong and steadfast spirit at the disposal of neighborly needs, and our claim to a share in this season of congratulation and rejoicing is complete.

No apostolic injunction to "rejoice with them that do rejoice" can reinforce the spontaneity of our thanksgiving for the blessed record and fruitage of eighty-five years so largely spent in the conscious service of God, or intensify the sincerity of our desire that the years remaining may be rich and glorious with the sunset radiance betokening the presence and grace of the divine Redeemer in the heart that never grows old.

The First Float Night a Big Success.

The first float night of the Winchester Boat Club, which took place last Saturday night, was very successful. There were not as many entries as would have been the case had the event taken place six weeks later because of there being so many members absent from town. Nevertheless it revealed the future possibilities of what can be done in the way of illuminations and decorations.

The scene on the Lake was one of grandeur and splendor and the reflection of the numerous colored lights on the placid waters was beyond description. The night was an ideal one for a float and brought to the Club house and adjacent points of vantage a vast concourse of people. Not since the days of Squaw Sachem has there been such a scene on the Lake and could this dusky maiden and her braves have witnessed the sight from the hilltops of their former hunting grounds great indeed would have been their astonishment.

Steward Morris had the boat house brilliantly decorated with numerous lanterns, while the club totem (the butterfly) stood out clear in a comprehensive arrangement of miniature lamps. The grounds from Cambridge street to the building and amid the trees were a blaze of multi-colored lanterns, while anchored a short distance from the house were the yachts owned by Clifford Talbot, H. C. Jealous, Henry Kellogg and Napoleon Goddu, all handsomely illuminated from stem to stern and to masthead.

The Medford Boat Club had been invited to assist in the festivities. There were 23 canoes in the procession, while there were scores of boats with fair occupants being paddled over the waters, and which did not take part. The line was formed at the acqueduct, and at the signal the procession headed by the canoe occupied by Farnum and Ralph Dorsey swept gracefully by the boat house and the judges' stand. Twice the canoes passed in review before the judges, amid the applause of the interested spectators, and after the decision had been made, the successful contestants were lined up before the judges and the prize winners announced. First prize was awarded to Louis Barta; second, Farnum F. Dorsey.

The judges were Mrs. D. Nelson Skillings, Mrs. Hermann D. Murphy, Mrs. Herbert S. Underwood, Samuel J. Elder, John Murray Marshall.

Edward J. Johnson was chief marshal. The committee of arrangements were: George G. Kellogg, chairman, William D. Richards, Donald M. Belcher, John S. Blank, Jr., Edward N. Wills, William C. Corey, T. Price Wilson, Edwin R. Rooney, William J. Hyde, Edward E. Cole.

Of the more prominent canoes in the float was Louis Barta's Avalon which represented a bower of evergreen and roses. Under the prettily lighted arches was seated Miss May Barta, while the canoe was in charge of Dr. Minor of Boston and Winthrop Barta. It was a dream.

Farnum F. Dorsey and his brother, Ralph, had for a design the club emblem on a large round transparency, while lanterns were displayed from stem to stern. Seen from a distance this canoe was one of splendor.

Paul B. Locke's canoe was handsomely decorated with umbrellas. Miniature lanterns being suspended from dainty poles. His passenger was Miss Carolyn Waldmyer.

William J. Hyde of Arlington had prettily fitted his canoe to represent a pagoda. Miss Miriam Ayer reposed on the cushions.

D. C. Dennett received a great deal of applause for the originality displayed. His canoe was elaborately trimmed with white, and amidships was seated Miss Constance Manchester, the scheme being a calla lily. Ahead of the canoe were four white doves with trailing ribbons. The lighting was by electricity, more of which would have made the effect more pretty.

Walter L. Rice had a fine representation of a Japanese pagoda. The design was very pretty, and at a short distance the effect produced by the lanterns was very natural.

Donald M. Belcher had an exceedingly pretty float, the decorations being quite elaborate, but unfortunately he ran onto a sandbar which wrecked his display, thus compelling him to withdraw his canoe.

George S. Holden displayed a unique set of colored glass lantern arranged along the sides of the canoe. The idea met with much favor on the part of the onlookers. He was accompanied by Mrs. Holden.

Carl F. A. Siedhoff and Miss Sanborn were in a very prettily decorated canoe, as also were Edgar W. Metcalf and Miss Woods. Other decorated canoes were those of W. S. Ball, J. E. Hardy, Maurice Le Bosquet, Frank E. Payne, Charles H. Fletcher, Edward N. Wills, F. Nelson Hawley, Wm. J. Hyde, A. Wm. Rooney, W. A. Tucker, Hunter and Borden of Medford, A. B. Grout, Robert Coit, F. S. Tufts.

Music was furnished throughout the evening by the Woburn Brass Band. The big crowd was easily taken care of by the Arlington and Winchester electrics, two and three cars being run in succession.

Another float night should be given the latter part of September when all the members will be able to participate, and when more time can be had for the arranging of features.

Highland Endeavorers.

The first executive committee meeting of the Highland Y. P. S. C. E., after the election of the new officers was held at the home of Sidney Snow, the president. All of the members except two were present. The meeting was opened by prayer. The different committee work was talked over and it was thought that the associate members and the Junior Endeavor needed more attention. It was recommended that Mrs. Wetherbee's name be changed from associate to active membership. It was thought to be a good plan for the president and the vice-president to oversee the work of the different committes. The suggestion was made that the Chairman of the Lookout committee keep a list of those who did not take part in the meetings, also the way in which the different members took part. The committee decided to get the different chairmen and their committees' work ing before they adopted any new plans or ideas. After the society was in good working order and the absent members returned, there were a great many new ideas and suggestions to be discussed. Each chairman present gave some idea of what he thought his work ought to be, and the others helped by further suggestions.

Flower Mission.

The Flower Mission is carrying on its work this summer in a quiet way. Two large baskets are owned but only one has been filled so far this season. It would be a pleasure to send them both in each week full of flowers.

Mr. Carl J. Dane the florist on Lincoln St., Hillcrest, gives a large quantity of flowers every week, and gives them gladly. He is interested in the work, and has helped much by his kind contributions. A committee from the different churches goes in each week with the flowers to the rooms on Parmenter St., Boston, where they help the children make them into bunches.

Installation of Officers of Wedgemere Lodge, I. O. G. T.

Lodge Deputy Jones of Greenwood installed the following officers last evening: C. T., G. W. Potter; P. C. T., R. T. Dover; V. T., Mrs. T. P. Dotten; Treas., T. P. Dotten; F. S., H. Fisher; R. S., G. H. Arnold; Chap., Mrs. G. W. Potter; Mar., Fred Veinot; D. M., Mrs. Grace Nichols; A. S., Mrs. H. Fisher; Sent., C. Allen; Guardian, E. Knowlton.

There was a large attendance of the lodge members, besides a number of visitors from sister lodges. The quarterly reports showed the lodge on the winning side. At intermission, 26 members from Greenwood Lodge came into the hall, Bro. Jones bringing good company with him. After the installation the good of the order was taken up, when there were two hours of good speechmaking, songs and readings. At 10.45 all said good night.

Don't forget our public meeting Sept. 19, in Blaikie large hall.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by Young and Brown.

Could Not They See?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The judges at the canoe tournament last Saturday evening must be near sighted or located so far away from the boats that they could not see plainly.

The general opinion of the people down near the water was that Mr. Rice and Dr. Dennett or perhaps Dr. Dennett and Mr. Rice were fairly entitled to the prizes. The boat that obtained the first prize was entitled to honorable mention.

It takes the keen edge of enjoyment off from the affair not to have the public satisfied with the award by the judges. Perhaps if they had stood near the water to view the show the award would have been different.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Edmund Sanderson, late of Winchester in said County, deceased:

Whereas, certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament—and codicil—of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Henry A. Emerson and William B. Simonds, of said Winchester, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the third day of September, A.D. 1901, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week for three successive weeks in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this thirty-first day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.

HER MEMORY

IT WHISPERED FOR YEARS.

From where he sat Professor Helfen could see beautiful, ever undulating stretches of green meadows, dotted with the darker green of the trees, and in the far distance the everlasting hills, majestically grand in the soft purple beauty of their vast rolling outline.

"Come back to Erin, mavourneen, mavourneen!" Joyously sweet and clear, nearer and nearer, came the voice. The professor sat motionless, listening with bated breath, lest he lose a syllable of that sweet old song, sung in that sweet young voice. As the voice ceased he looked out. Coming toward the house, balancing in either hand a foaming pail of milk, was a young girl. Even ere the song was finished a harsh, tired voice called sharply: "Come, Beth; don't yell so. You'll wake baby, and I've been an hour getting her to sleep. Hurry and set the table."

The professor grunted scornfully "H'm! Yelling, is it? The voice of an angel! Music; I escape it not even here. I'll wait and listen."

The world was two months older. Into the best parlor shone the afternoon sunshine, playing gleefully on walls that seemed to shrink from the unaccustomed glare. In one of the prim straight backed chairs, at the front windows, sat Professor Helfen, while opposite at the other window sat a weary, sad faced woman, tearing idly at the red woolen curtain tassel that had never before been treated so roughly.

"My good woman, think! She has a fortune in her voice. She has a voice in a thousand—a gem. But it is in the rough. It needs polishing, years of it, and it must be polished gently. Then it will shine—oh, doch!"

Over in the corner a slim, dark eyed girl hung on these words. Oh, to see this world, to have the dreams she had dreamed come true! She found herself listening again.

"Yes, yes, she can go, but bring her back, bring her back. I've seven, but I can't spare her forever." Then somehow Beth found herself in her mother's arms, who for once in her life of habitual self control had given way. And so the ultimatum went forth. Beth was to go.

Out in the garden twilight was falling. The beautiful tender sky colors were slowly fading into the dusk of night. The very air, full of the scent of the hay, was a caress. The very peace of it seemed a mockery to Paul as he stood before her. How could everything be so serenely beautiful while he was tasting the bitterness of life? He could not put it into any fine phrases, this desolateness of his. He felt only that if this love should be taken out of his life the whole worth of his life was gone.

"You say you'll remember, Beth, but you won't—you won't. I know it as if years had already passed."

Only a boy in years, yet a man's pain had aged the stern young face. The pain in his voice touched the girl looking up at him.

"I'll work hard, Beth. By fall I'm going to the city with Lawyer Boote. I heard the professor tell you you couldn't love; art had no room for love. Beth, don't let him teach you to forget me. When he gives you such lessons as that, let what I say now so fill your mind that there will be room for nothing else. I love you, Beth, and some day you will be my wife. Perhaps if you hadn't been going away I should never have had the courage to tell you, at least for years. But I'm glad you know."

"Listen, Paul. I shall never forget. You know my nature too well to believe your own words. Forget you, with whom I have grown up, who have been the best part of my life? Ah, Paul, you know better. This is the hardest part of it Paul—to leave you. It seems but a dream yet that I am really going—going to see the world that has seemed to exist only in books. But the years will soon pass, Paul. We are both young, and no lesson he may try to teach me can blot out the teaching of 18 years of life and with such a teacher. You believe me, Paul?"

And Paul, looking in the soft depth of her soul's eyes, was content.

The two weeks of the opera had begun. A long line of carriages was drawn up before C—— hall, waiting to deposit their burdens—stately broughams smacking of solid respectability, smart landaus with gayly caparisoned horses, while along the streets leading to the hall groups of fortune's less favored subjects moved quickly, meeting at last in front of the hall, where they joined the large, well groomed crowd pushing slowly up the steps to sit in judgment and perhaps ultimately to pay tribute to the new prima donna, Mlle. Armstrong, a daughter of their own land.

In the dressing room before a mirror stood a girl, still in the flush of youth, looking with unseeing eyes at the pale, proud face framed in masses of heavy black hair, in which diamonds gleamed like tears of fire.

"I suppose they'll all be there in the very front, a row of awestruck faces." She smiled as she thought of the six staring faces that had gazed strangely at her on her return home. "Would I have been like them, I wonder, with no taste of the glorious dishes with which the world tickles one's palate? Would I, too, have been content with their and my lot? Perhaps. Poor mother! She hardly dared touch me till I took her bodily in my arms. How horrified she was when I told her I had been on the stage! How she stammered when she asked me if I wore that sort of tight trousers that looked 'as if they growed on!'"

She laughed heartily a second.

"And then I went to the old orchard, Paul. It was just such a night as that one—the night you told me not to forget. I'm afraid the forgetfulness is yours, after all, Paul. Foolish, unworthy of answering though they may have been, those letters came right from my heart. Pshaw! That laughter made my eyes dim for a moment. But you tired of them after a year. I'm afraid the professor was disappointed in me for awhile. But I had my art, and art leaves no room for love. That's the lesson you told me not to learn. Yet for seven long years, day after day, it has been a part of my daily food. Yet 18 years is almost thrice seven, Paul, and habit is strong. I wonder where you are."

In breathless darkened silence the vast audience waited for the opening aria, to be sung by this unknown singer, whose fame, rumor had whispered, would become worldwide. Then into the living silence came a voice so daintily sweet and soft it seemed born of the air. Slowly it rose higher and stronger, like a bird that gathers strength in its upward flight, till, when it seemed almost too heavenly sweet for an earthly voice, into the sight of the breathless audience came the singer. A moment of absolute, dumb silence, then the very roof sent back its echo to swell the triumphant ovation. But as the singer bowed right and left her eyes fell and lingered on the tear stained, happy face of the woman in the front seat.

Only a man in the proscenium box sat motionless in all the excitement. So this was Bertha, this beautiful woman who moved these thousands at her pleasure. This was the Bertha who had stood in the old church, the sunlight powdering the dusky hair with gold as it streamed in the chancel window while she sang "Come Unto Me." Her voice was glorious now. But coming down through the silence of eight years the voice of his memory sounded infinitely sweeter. With the dream of a sunlight shining like opals through the trees, sparkling like jewels in the dusky hair, with the pure scent of God's own air and the unutterable peace of nature, the glare of light, the glimmer of real opals and jewels, the hot perfumed air, the ceaseless rustle of silks, seemed a sickening substitute.

They were all here to see her. All had an equal right to look at and listen to her—her who by rights should be his alone. Well, she had learned her lesson well. Rising like a mocking whisper above the din of sound he could hear the voice, "I shall never forget, Paul."

At the end of the third act, an act of triumph for the little unknown country girl, a note was handed her. She tore it nervously open. "You looked long at me more than once tonight. I knew then memory was whispering to you. Was it faithful, I wonder? Did it tell you all? Did it tell you where and when we last met? Did it repeat the words that were spoken then?" There was no signature.

It seemed ages to Paul before the boy returned with an answer. He opened it slowly, yet with quick fingers. "Memory has been whispering eight long years, Paul. Can I then forget? Ah, 'tis you who forgot; all my foolish little letters unanswered. You were cruel, Paul. Didn't you hear me tell you my heartache in that last song? I was singing to you—not my fierce Italian lover. I'm alone after the opera in my dressing room." Like a flash he saw all; heard the professor's voice saying, "You can't love, child; art has no room for love." And the seven long years of silence grew shorter.

Paul knocked at the door the stage hand pointed out to him. He had evidently been expected.

"Who?" said a voice inside, answering his knock. "I—Paul!" And the door slowly opened.—Chicago News.

Some Useful Measures.

An experienced cook tells me that these are the measures indicated in the books: Two cups mean one pint; one cup of butter is half a pound; butter size of an egg is two ounces; one cup of granulated sugar is half a pound; two tablespoonfuls (liquid) are equal to one fluid ounce; two wineglassfuls are one gill; one teaspoonful of salt is a level teaspoonful; one teaspoonful of sugar is a rounded teaspoonful; four teaspoonfuls (liquid) are equal to one tablespoonful; one heaping tablespoonful of butter is one ounce; two heaping tablespoonfuls of flour are one ounce; two and one-half cupfuls of pulverized sugar are one pound.—New York Press.

THIS IS A MAN'S METHOD.

His Way of Making a Carpet Bargain While His Wife Was Away.

"I want both my upper and lower halls recarpeted," was the remark Charles J. Jones of East Walnut Hills made to a well known carpet man. "And I'm going to move out of the house until you finish the work! I'll leave the choice and color to you! My wife is out of town, you see, and I want to surprise her upon her return. There is only one condition to this bargain—I must ask you, as we are old friends, to give me a small figure in the carpet."

"All right!" said the carpet man.

And Charles Jones staid away from home for two days, while the carpet man's hirelings banged away with their hammers, and he hugged himself as he thought of the surprise that was in store for his wife when she returned. Last Thursday the carpet man called Jones up by telephone and announced that the carpet was laid.

"It's a dark green!" said the carpet man.

"I'm glad of that!" answered Jones.

"And as small a figure as is consistent with the carpet!" roared the carpet man.

"I'm gladder than ever!" said Jones.

That evening he visited his home and was satisfied that the carpet was a peach. The next morning he met the carpet man.

"How much do I owe you?" inquired Jones.

"It is $98.65," said the carpet dealer.

"What!" yelled Jones. "Where's the small figure you and I agreed on?"

"Why, on the border of the carpet!" said the amazed dealer. "It's a morning glory vine with pink and white flowers! You've got a bargain at that figure!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

HOME LIFE ON THE WANE.

English Hostesses Accused of Being Perpetual Gadabouts.

Slowly, but surely, the pride the English hostesses took in their home, in their reputation for hospitality and in their ability to plan pleasant little entertainments for their friends is passing away. The smart young hostess no longer cares to welcome her guests among her Lares and Penates; it is no longer her earnest desire to display her housewifely genius; no longer her ambition to shine as a "clever little woman who so thoroughly understands just what every one likes."

There are too many irons in society's fire to look after nowadays for her to fritter away time in this fashion. Moreover, people want incessant novelty; they are bored with even good menus, they tire of certain surroundings, they must have everything a little in advance, and as little as possible like anything that obtained a decade, to say nothing of two decades, ago. Thus it is we rush with our friends in unhomelike fashion from restaurant to restaurant, like bona fide travelers; thus it is we inhospitably, one might almost venture to say meanly, ask our friends to share expenses with us in the little pleasures we should once have offered them. The commercial spirit is indeed rampant in us in this advanced age. One almost dreads to think what next must be sacrificed to it and what will be the home life and the English housemother of the next generation.—Ladies' Pictorial.

When You Buy Dollies.

A father was commissioned by his small daughter to buy a dozen little bisque dolls. Her instructions were so many and so detailed that the father found himself hesitating to perform the commission.

"See here, Ethel," he said at last, "I'm afraid I'll make some awful mistake. Don't you think you'd better wait until your cold is better, and then you can go into town some day with mamma and pick out the doll babies for yourself?"

"Oh, no, papa," cried Ethel, "I do so want them right off. And, papa, I'll tell you how to choose them. Just pick each one up and look straight into its eyes, and if it looks at you as if it really and truly loved you, why, you buy it."—New York Sun.

Stranger—See here! This flowerpot just fell from your third story window and hit me on the head.

House Owner—Great Scott! And a minute ago I was standing right there!

What Tips Do.

A man who lives on an up town street where the houses cost from $25,000 up was surprised not long ago by seeing a man known to all New Yorkers who patronize a well known restaurant coming from a house several doors below him with an air of proprietorship. This restaurant employee stood on the sidewalk for a few moments and gazed admiringly at his house and then at its respectable neighbors. For many years he has been connected with a certain New York restaurant as an attendant, and his fees have been generous. He knew all its patrons by name, and his politeness and eagerness to render service have made him well liked. Wondering if this restaurant attendant, whom he knew only by his first name, could by any possibility have rented a house on that street, the old resident came out to satisfy his curiosity.

"Hello," he said. "What are you doing up here?"

"Good morning, Mr. Blank," said the restaurant attendant. "How do you like my new house? I have just bought it because I think that my family will like this neighborhood. You are perhaps aware that my tips have been generous for many years, and I can now afford to live in this house very easily."

His questioner had no objection to him as a neighbor, and he congratulated the restaurant attendant on his prosperity. The house had actually been bought by tips, for its owner's salary probably averaged about $15 a week.—New York Sun.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Mrs. Nanny Galleger, of LaGrange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. Scurvy.

Science has come to the conclusion that scurvy is caused by the impoverished condition of the blood, and that, in turn, is caused by poor food, and especially by tainted meat. It used to be considered that scurvy was caused by the want of fresh vegetables or lime juice, but it is known now that the eating of salted or improperly preserved meat or tainted meat in any form can produce scurvy even when lime juice or vegetables are being taken at the same time.

THE SONNET'S VOICE.

[A metrical lesson by the seashore.]

Yon silvery billows breaking on the beach
Fall back in foam beneath the star shine clear,
The while my rhymes are murmuring in your ear
A restless lore like that the billows teach,
For on these sonnet waves my soul would reach
From its own depths and rest within you, dear,
As, through the billowy voices yearning here,
Great nature strives to find a human speech.

A sonnet is a wave of melody;
From heaving waters of the impassioned soul
A billow of tidal music one and whole
Flows in the "octave;" then, returning free,
Its ebbing surges in the "sestet" roll
Back to the deeps of life's tumultuous sea.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 4.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xiii, 1-18. Memory Verses, 7-9—Golden Text, Math. vii, 12—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1-4. Abram went up out of Egypt to Bethel, unto the place of the altar which he had made there at the first, and there Abram called on the name of the Lord; such is a brief summary of these four verses. We do not read of any altar in Egypt, for there Abram was out of fellowship with God, thinking of his own personal safety rather than the glory of God. If you have wandered from God, and neglected the altar and allowed anything to come between God and your soul, return to Him as quickly as possible, for nothing can make up for lack of fellowship with Him, and He is saying, "Only acknowledge thine iniquity; turn, O backsliding child, for I am married unto you" (Jer. iii, 13, 14; Rom. vii, 4). His wife and Lot and all that he had were affected by his wanderings and return; no one liveth unto himself, and we must be careful not to put a stumbling block or occasion to fall in another's way (Rom. xiv, 7-13).

5-9. Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen, for we be brethren. Lot also was rich in flocks and herds and tents, and the substance of these two men was so great that they could not dwell together. They were in the land for God, and the heathen were in the land, the Canaanite and the Perizzite, and before these people they must witness for God, therefore there must be no strife, for "the servant of the Lord must not strike" (II Tim. ii, 24). Who shall yield? For if strife is to cease some one must yield. See the greatness of Abram, the one to whom God had given the land, with whom Lot was sojourning by Abram's consent, who might have said, This is all mine, given me by God, and you and your herdmen must be quiet or else go away to some other land. This would only have been right in the eyes of many, but listen to Abram as he offers Lot the first choice, meekly saying, It will be better for us to separate; choose whatever part of the land you prefer, and I will be content to go elsewhere. This is greatness in the sight of God.

10, 11. Lot lifted up his eyes and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere; then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan, and they separated themselves, the one from the other. This life set before us in Abram consisted of a series of separations unto God; more and more fully unto Him, from Ur, from Haran, from Terah, from Canaan, in which he had only his tent and altar, from Egypt, and now from Lot. It is only as we are willing to be separated unto God from all others and all else that we can know anything of the sufficiency of God, for while we lean on aught else He cannot reveal Himself to us (II Cor. vi, 16-18). Lot, like most people, seemed glad enough to take advantage of Abram's generous offer; he had not the grace of unselfishness. He lifted up his eyes, but not even to the hills, much less to the Lord, from whom every good gift comes (Jer. iii, 23; Jas. i, 17). He saw only the well watered plain of Jordan and its seeming advantages to himself.

12, 13. Abram continued in the hill country, but Lot dwelt in the plain, and not heeding the wickedness of the men of Sodom he even pitched his tent toward Sodom. The stories of the plains in Scripture are not as a rule so refreshing as the stories of the mountains. See the plain of Shinar and the plain of Dura (Gen. xi, 2-4; Zech. v, 11; Dan. iii, 1) and contrast Elijah on Carmel, the transfiguration, the ascension and other hill stories. The air of the hills is better. Sometimes God allows us to be placed among the wicked that we may there shine for Him, making His grace sufficient for us, but if He leaves the choice to us we should remember Ps. i, 1; cxix, 1, and keep as far away as possible from every appearance of evil. Holiness is not as contagious as sin (Hag. ii, 11-13). The men of Sodom may not have seemed very wicked in the eyes of Lot, but they were sinners exceedingly before the Lord.

14-17. Arise, walk through the land, in the length of it and in the breadth of it, for I will give it unto thee. Separations unto God always bring increased blessings and new revelations of God to the soul; having by the grace of God magnanimously yielded and in a sense taken second place, God now confirms to him the gift of the land with a new statement that his seed should be as the dust of the earth. In a later appearing (Gen. xv, 5) the Lord told him that his seed should be as the stars of heaven; then still later (xxii, 17) the Lord combined the two, and in connection with his giving up of Isaac told him that his seed should be as the stars of the heaven and as the sand which is upon the seashore. Afterward the twofold promise is divided and the heavenly part is given to Isaac and the earthly to Jacob (xxvi, 4; xxviii, 14). The first becomes last and the last first and to my mind refer to Israel and the church, through whom as Abraham's earthly and heavenly seed God will yet bless all nations. These two companies of the redeemed may be seen in Gen. i and ii; on the fourth day sun, moon and stars are for signs, and Jer. xxxi, 35, 36 tells us that they are signs or tokens that Israel is always a nation before God; in Eph. v, 31, 32 we note that Adam and Eve are typical of Christ and the church.

18. "Then Abram removed his tent and came and dwelt in the plain of Mamre, which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the Lord." Hebron was a hill country, for Caleb said to Joshua, Give me this mountain, and Hebron became his inheritance (Joshua xiv, 12-15); this plain of Mamre must have been a tableland, a plain among the hills where Abram long continued to enjoy fellowship with God far above and away from the atmosphere of Sodom. There in due time Sarah died, and he bought the field of Machpelah and the cave that was in it as a burial place (chapter xxiii), and there to this day lie the bodies of Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah, Jacob and Leah (chapter xlix, 29-31) awaiting the first resurrection and the fulfillment of the promises. A good work is being done at Hebron today among the Jews and Moslems by the Mildmay Medical mission, in which I am thankful to have a prayerful and financial interest. Hebron signifies fellowship; why not have fellowship with God in this passion? In the study of these lessons I earnestly commend F. B. Meyer's "Life of Abraham" and C. H. M.'s "Notes on Genesis."

WOMEN'S PROGRESS.

The Few Ask and the Many Receive; This Has Always Been the Rule.

Every theory against woman suffrage has been completely demolished in the light of practical experience, until about all that is left for the opposition is the one which is being used for all it is worth: "Women do not want the ballot." "Whenever a majority of women ask for it they will get it." Many opponents frankly admit that this is the only argument worth considering, but still claim that it is sufficient reason for withholding the ballot until such time as a majority of the women ask for it.

To the unthinking this may seem very reasonable, but when one considers the history of all past progress, together with present facts, this excuse (for it is nothing but an excuse for deferring justice) seems meagre indeed. A majority of women have never demanded a single privilege that has been granted them in the past, nor was one of them ever asked for by even a small majority.

The long discussion over "woman's rights" has by no means been confined to the franchise, but has included the right of women to speak in public, to organize, to receive higher education, to enter the professions and industrial occupations, to control their wages and to hold property, all of which have passed exactly the same gauntlet of objections and been belabored with precisely the same clubs that have been used to prevent women receiving the right to the ballot. It would unsex women, it would destroy the domestic ties, it would thwart nature, it would set aside the intentions of the Almighty, are samples of the objections that have been raised to prevent the progress of women in the past. But these privileges have been obtained for women in spite of the stumbling blocks.

The effort for the right to speak in public and to organize was made by less than a hundred women. It was with the utmost difficulty that a few thousand women in the State of New York could be persuaded to sign a petition for the right of women to own property after marriage, and there was practically no petition for it from the women of other States. Most of them expressed themselves satisfied with the laws as they were. If the universities of the country and the founders of the great women's colleges had waited until a majority of women asked for them, not one woman in the United States to-day would be receiving the higher education.

The majority of women have never asked for anything, and they never will do so. In each case a few, far in advance of the masses, made a determined and persistent effort, and secured these privileges for their sex, which, when secured, the great body of women availed themselves of without a thought as to their benefactors.

No persuasion would have induced the majority of the women in any one of the four Western States where they now have full suffrage, to petition for it. There was very little demand for it from the women of Wyoming or Idaho; only a small proportion of the Colorado women petitioned or worked for it, and by no means a majority in Utah; but when it was granted, as large a number of women, pro rata, as of men took advantage of it, and have continued to do so. Thus much can be said: A larger number of women have petitioned for the franchise than ever asked for all the other privileges put together.

Nor is this lack of interest in their own progress confined to women. The whole story of the evolution of liberty is but a sequence of examples where the few have asked and the many received. We should never have had the Declaration of Independence if it had been necessary to have a majority of the colonists declare for it. Why is it, then, that all precedents must be set aside in this one particular of the enfranchisement of women, and this measure of equity be withheld from the hundreds of thousands of women who are progressive enough to demand it, until that impossible time when the whole body shall be lifted up to this level?—Elnora Monroe Babcock.

Prince Kropotkin, the celebrated Russian scientist, author and revolutionist, who has been lecturing in this country, speaks in the highest terms of Russian women, their faithfulness, devotion, and heroism. Princesses have given up rank and fortune to follow their husbands to Siberia. Amid the appalling drunkenness that prevails among the peasantry, the Rusian woman is almost always sober. This has preserved the race. Kropotkin has one child, a daughter fourteen years old. "I tell my girl," he says, "that the battle for equal rights for women is virtually won; you have got everything now, except the voting, and that will come very soon."

More than fifty societies of women, organized for many different objects, united in the great meeting lately held in Carnegie Hall to protest against protected vice in New York city. The New York Herald says: "John S. Crosby received the warmest applause of the afternoon when he remarked that men had no more right to deny woman a voice in the government than to deny her any other right." This is significant. Women of all shades of opinion on other questions are coming to this same conclusion.

In the recent debate on equal suffrage in the Massachusetts Legislature, it was objected that women ought not to vote because they could not go to war. Representative Callender, one of the older members, answered, "I could not go to war myself, yet my vote is as good as anybody's." He furthermore pointed out that among all the signers of the Declaration of Independence, there was only one who ever shouldered a gun, and that was Dickinson, of Pennsylvania, who was opposed to separating from the mother country.

HAS A VARIED CLIMATE.

Curious Meteorological Conditions of the Island of Saghalien.

Saghalien, off the eastern coast of Siberia, presents a very curious anomaly of climate. The island is bathed by two cold ocean currents, and in winter nothing protects it against the icy northwest winds coming from Siberia. At the sea level the snow falls continually and stays on the ground till the end of May, and the seashore is very cold. Farther inland, however, especially as we go higher up, the climate is modified—just the opposite to what is observed elsewhere. It has often been observed in Siberia and in central Europe that in winter the cold is greater in the plains and the valleys and that the highlands have a sensibly milder temperature; it is as if the denser cold air accumulated in the lowlands.

The cold air accumulates in the low regions of the island, and on the coast the higher regions have a more elevated temperature. So it happens that the lower parts have an arctic vegetation, while the intermediate altitudes have the vegetation of a temperate zone, sometimes subtropical. The birch, the pine, the fir, abound in the low regions and form often impenetrable forests, but toward the center of the island appear bamboos, hydrangeas, azalias and other plants that one is greatly surprised to meet, and whose presence can be explained only by the altogether abnormal climatic conditions of the island.—Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an eleven month's old child, says: "Through the months' of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." For sale by Young and Brown.

IS THE GAS STOVE A SUCCESS?

The following figures will convince you that the Gas Stove is a success and has come to stay. Installing the Gas Stove in Winchester is simply introducing an old appliance in a new field. It is no experiment and the following table shows the number of Gas Stoves in use in localities named, June 30, 1900:

Boston, Brookline, Dorchester, Roxbury, South Boston	47,160	Dedham	560
		Fall River	5,333
		Holyoke	1,000
		Lawrence	3,710
		Lowell	4,646
		Lynn	2,200
		New Bedford	2,315
		Salem	4,794
		Worcester	4,578

And South Framingham, with a population of 5,770, had in use on above date 631

A Gas Stove will do any work that a coal range will do and it will do it quicker and cheaper.

Ask your neighbor that is using a Gas Stove if he can recommend one for your use. If he does so, send for our agent to call and give you price for installing Gas Range or Hot Water Heater.

We have put out on our lines over a car load of gas appliances so far this season and are laying pipes in localities where there are no gas mains as fast as applications are made.

Send for our agent and he will call and give you any information that you may desire on gas for ligh ting, cooking, heating and power.

If there are no gas mains on your street, send for him just the same, and if you are within a reasonable distance of mains the gas will be run to your premises.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

A UNIQUE STATE.

Texas Has Paid Allegiance to the Flags of Six Nations.

Scarcely another state in the union has as remarkable and interesting a history as Texas. In one respect at least it occupies a unique position in the history of American states. Since its discovery six different governments have at different times claimed its allegiance, and as many different flags have waved over it, those of France Spain, Mexico, independent Texas, the United States and the Confederate states.

The foundations of Texas statehood were not laid as a British colony, nor under the grant or control of the British crown, as were those of the original thirteen states. Its first settlement dates back more than 200 years, and its first American colonists went there under terms and conditions imposed by a foreign state, to whose language, laws and institutions they were total strangers. There never was, there never could be, any sympathy between these first American colonists and the Mexican government under the old regime. Separated by vast wildernesses from the people of the United States, and unaided save by the individual efforts of sympathizing brethren therein, these colonists declared their independence, established it with the sword, and for nine years maintained a stable republic.

Texas was neither purchased nor conquered for the union. Annexation to the United States was accomplished through a treaty made by Texas representatives and ratified by the free suffrage of the citizens. No other state in the Union has had such varied experience or sailed through such stormy seas into the haven of peace and prosperity.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Professor's Prophecy Failed.

While a student at Harvard university Phillips Brooks was walking in the yard one day with a professor, who asked him what he intended making of himself.

"I am thinking of the ministry," answered the youth.

"Then banish such thoughts," said the professor earnestly. "Your manner of speech would forever bar you from being successful in that calling."

Many years later, when Phillips Brooks was one of the world's great pulpit orators, the most expert stenographer in England took down one of his sermons and said:

"Any stenographer who thinks he has conquered fast talkers should try Phillips Brooks."—Ladies' Home Journal.

What Prompted Him.

A capital story of Rolf Boldrewood, the distinguished Australian novelist, is told. After T. A. Browne had suddenly leaped into fame as Rolf Boldrewood, author of "Robbery Under Arms," he continued for some years as stipendiary magistrate of Albany. One morning there was brought before him a rough bushboy of 14, charged with having held up several other boys on a country road. It was proved that he had presented a pistol at them and compelled them to empty all their pockets for his benefit.

"Dear me," said the surprised magistrate to the juvenile culprit, "what could have prompted you to do such a thing?"

"Reading 'Robbery Under Arms,'" replied the unabashed boy bushranger. —Chicago News.

The Life Line In One's Hand.

There are three prominent lines in the palm—the line of life, that of the head and the heart line.

The line of life begins on the inner boundary of the palm, about midway between the thumb and the forefinger. If we imagine the left hand to be a map, with the fingers pointing north, this line runs toward the southeast, then curves toward the south and in some hands curves finally toward the southwest. It thus skirts the base or "uprise" of the thumb, known as the uprise of Venus. If it is deep, broad, of good color and extends nearly or quite to the wrist and if the rest of the hand indicates vitality and cheerfulness, the subject may be expected to live to a green old age; he has a good disposition and the qualities which good health and good temper usually create.

Crane Island.

In Lake Minnetonka, Minnesota, there is a picturesque island which takes its name from the fact that it is uninhabited by man and given over to the cranes. Generations back these birds decided upon this spot for a summer resort. As times went on and the surrounding islands populated no man had the heart to disturb them, until now Crane island is pointed out from passing boats as one of the curiosities of the northwest.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. How to Cure Bowel Troubles.

One of the best remedies in case of bowel troubles is a partly beaten raw egg taken at one swallow. It is healing to the inflamed stomach and intestines and will relieve the feeling of distress. Four eggs taken in this manner in 24 hours will form the best kind of nourishment as well as medicine for the patient.

How to Make Queen Mab Powder.

Take one ounce of the best rice powder, three ounces of the best powdered oxide of zinc, half an ounce of carbonated magnesia, 20 grains of powdered boracic acid and two drops of oil of roses. Mix by passing through a sieve again and again. Color a faint pink with carmine.

Coughing

"I was given up to die with quick consumption. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hartman, Gibbstown, N. Y.

It's too risky, playing with your cough.

The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.

FOR MY LADY'S DRESSER.

A Dainty Trinket That May Be Easily Made.

A fancy candle holder is a pretty and useful addition to a woman's dressing table. The materials required are a 5 cent tin candlestick, two small rolls of crepe paper, a small sheet of plain tissue paper and a yard or more of baby ribbon. Have the candle the shade of the paper used. Break off the little projection from the tin candlestick which stands out from the stalk of the holder and also break off the handle attached to the rim. Take a piece of crepe paper the length of the stalk plus three inches and three inches wide. Envelop the stalk with it, leaving the surplus paper to extend at the top. Tie it firmly around the stalk just underneath the dripper, then fold the paper up over the dripper and press the remaining paper into the candle pit. Paste a narrow ruffle underneath the dripper.

Next set the candlestick on a circle of crepe paper two inches wider than the base of the rim. Fold this up over and paste securely, then cut a ruffle about 4 inches wide by 16 inches long and glue it to the rim about one inch from the base of the stalk. Make another ruffle the same width, but not quite so long. Gather this with a heading of one inch, or more, if desired. Paste this around the base of the stalk, and when the glue is perfectly dry ruffle the edges of the paper by pulling out the crinkles.

The tiny shade is made from a piece of crepe paper 4½ inches wide by 18 inches long. Gather with an inch heading and tie securely to the groove in the small brass frame. These frames are manufactured for just this purpose and cost a quarter. Ruffle the edges of the shade and tie on a bunch of small flowers with baby ribbon.

BIG PRICES FOR ANIMALS.

A Small Sized Fortune Needed to Buy a Giraffe.

Because of the difficulty of getting it to America and of keeping it alive after it arrives a good giraffe is quoted at $7,000.

Next to the giraffe in the aristocracy of cost come the rhinoceros and the hippopotamus, worth from $4,000 to $5,000 each. If a dealer could breed these animals, he could get rich, but the big mammals rarely breed in captivity. About the only place in America where hippopotami have been known to raise their young is in the menagerie in Central park, New York.

A chimpanzee of size is worth $5,000, and when one reaches the intelligence of the late Mr. Crowley, Chico or Johanna he is beyond a fixed price. The monkey kind are most uncertain property. The animal man says they are certain to die. But the ordinary ones can be bought very cheaply.

One can buy a nice young baby elephant for $1,000 at times, but a really good animal is worth from $1,800 to $2,000. An elephant does not command the maximum price because of the beauty of his countenance, the elegance of his figure, his intellectual endowments or his size, but because of a sweet, sunny disposition. A mean elephant is about the most evil of living things. Sooner or later he has to be killed, usually after he has slain two or three keepers and done more damage than he is worth. Of two animals of equally good disposition the larger and finer commands the higher price, of course, but the most magnificent beast with an inclination for murder isn't worth as much as a very common one that is trustworthy—that is, ordinarily so, for the sweetest tempered have days when they seem inspired of satan.—Junior Munsey.

NATURAL HISTORY.

The pouch of a pelican is large enough to contain seven quarts of water.

For mountain climbing camels are very inefficient and seldom used in Abyssinia and other mountainous countries.

Sparrows begin housekeeping very expeditiously. A pair of them will build a nest and furnish it with an egg inside of 24 hours from the time when the site was selected.

The female red grouse is said to vary its dress according to surroundings. It is a fact worth remembering that the red grouse occurs in no other part of the world but the British isles.

No one has been able to give a satisfactory reason for the formation adopted by the wild duck or mallard in flight. The birds arrange themselves in two converging lines, like a huge V, the leader occupying the point.

The ostrich is a descendant of a genus of bird which in prehistoric times attained an enormous size. In the alluvial deposits of Madagascar evidence has recently been found to show that ostriches 14 and 15 feet in height once lived on the island.

Stevenson's Cup of Misery.

R. L. Stevenson, writing in 1893 to George Meredith, in an epistle quoted in a new edition of his "Letters," says, with heart touching pathos:

"For 14 years I have not had a day's real health. I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary, and I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written in bed and written out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head swam for weakness, and for so long, it seems to me, I have won my wager and recovered my glove. I am better now—have been, rightly speaking, since first I came to the Pacific—and still few are the days when I am not in some physical distress. And the battle goes on—ill or well is a trifle so that it goes. I was made for a contest, and the powers have so willed that my battlefield should be this dingy, inglorious one of the bed and the physic bottle. At least, I have not failed, but I would have preferred a place of trumpetings and the open air over my head."

What most people want is something mild and gentle, when in need of a physic. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets fill the bill to a dot. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by Young and Brown.

The Vacation Season.

Those persons leaving town for a week, a month or a year, can have the STAR mailed to them free of postage by leaving or sending word to this office. Addresses will also be changed as often as desired.

The Tax Rate.

The rate of taxation for this year will be $15.80 on $1000—a reduction from last year of 40 cents. Complete compilation will give an increase of between $40,000 and $50,000 in personal and of $350,000 in real estate during the last year—a most creditable showing.

Important Information.

The attention of the numerous persons who resort to Mystic Lake for the purpose of boating and bathing is called to the communication from Mr. J. Wesley Jones, president and general superintendent of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps, printed on third page. It gives important instructions as to what methods should be used in resuscitating a drowning person, and also hints to boating parties and those falling into the water and unable to swim. This article should be kept for use in case of an emergency.

Valuation and Taxation.

We give below tables of the valuations and the amounts raised by taxation from 1890 up to the present year. It is a very interesting statement and shows a most gratifying growth in the wealth of the town during the past twelve years—the increase being nearly double. In the matter of expense necessary to carry on the business of the town, the increase has been in about like proportion to the valuation. This is most gratifying, as it shows that the increased appropriations from year to year are fully met by the natural growth in valuation, and that the municipal improvements in the way of sewers, parks, boulevards and streets, which go to make Winchester one of the most advanced towns in the State, have not proved as yet to be a burden on the tax-payers and are not likely to. The valuations are as follows:—

VALUATIONS.

1890	$4,667,055.00
1891	5,038,504.00
1892	5,238,530.00
1893	5,750,299.00
1894	6,206,125.00
1895	6,872,150.00
1896	7,017,160.00
1897	7,282,435.00
1898	7,963,840.00
1899	8,219,960.00
1900	8,453,180.00
1901	8,903,404.00

AMOUNTS RAISED BY TAXATION.

1890	$84,972.37
1891	80,176.96
1892	86,870.48
1893	90,190.54
1894	102,468.00
1895	106,440.25
1896	119,179.21
1897	115,673.49
1898	113,350.59
1899	137,715.34
1900	141,617.52
1901	143,367.32

The figures for 1901 in both valuation and taxation are approximately correct, although the Assessors have not closed their books. There may be slight changes but not enough to interfere with the comparisons.

The tax rates from 1891 have been as follows:

1891	$15.40
1892	16.00
1893	15.20
1894	16.00
1895	15.00
1896	16.50
1897	15.40
1898	16.30
1899	16.30
1900	16.20
1901	15.80

Electric Light Charges.

After months of waiting the Electric Light and Gas Commissioners have at last submitted their report on the hearing given to a number of citizens of Winchester asking for a reduction of rates and the abolition of what was known as the "investment charge." This report is printed in full on the third page. The long delay in arriving at the conclusion which go to make up the report of the commissioners has caused the petitioners to lose all interest while the public in general have forgotten all about the matter, it being about eight months ago since the hearing was held.

The principal grievance of the petitioners has been sustained by the Board, and the unfairness of the arrangement later becoming apparent to the company the system of fixed charges was abolished in favor of a graduated scale of fixed monthly charges dependent upon the maximum number of lamps which the customer in his contract states that he will desire to use at any one time. The advantages or disadvatages of this new scheme will not be manifest under a year or so, when, if found inequitable either the current or capacity charges or both will undoubtedly be reduced by the company or the commissioners.

More Information Regarding the Mill-Pond.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For information to certain distressed correspondents, as well as intelligent readers of the STAR, I will state that the Metropolitan Park Commission never asked permission, filed any taking, awarded any damage or paid any money for the privilege of filling the mill pond with its street washings at Walnut St. Neither has the Commission awarded any damage whatever for taking the abutting rights formerly belonging to the owners of the mill pond in Walnut St., now a state parkway. The owners of the mill pond have no right at present, to remove the Park-way washings from the pond by way of old Walnut St. In fact they have no right whatever of entrance, or of passing and repassing to mill pond land from the Parkway which the owners of the land possessed when Walnut St. existed as a town way, the fee in much of the way belonging to the mill property, as the street was originally largely made by filling in the pond land. For taking these street rights, indispensable if the land should be built upon same as Pleasant St. pond land has been built upon by the Episcopal Society and others, no award was originally made by the state and the Commissioners decline to pay one dollar award today. Under these conditions, it is not probable that the objectionable street washings will be removed at once by the owners of the mill pond. For the correctness of the above statements, "Echoes" and all others interested are referred to the records of the Park Commission, or to the Commissioners themselves.

Very truly,
ARTHUR E. WHITNEY.

A Coming Football Player.

Hon. Samuel J. Elder and his estimable wife have the congratulations of the STAR. The following, taken from the Boston Herald of last Saturday, leaves nothing further to be said:

Samuel J. Elder, Jr., was born this morning. This is more than a mere bit of passing information, for it means so much to the happy and expectant father and to an equally happy and loving mother. Three girls grace the family of Mr. and Mrs. Elder and this is their first boy. He is a lusty little chap, and already Mr. Elder's friends in the legal fraternity and elsewhere see visions of a victorious Yale football player, called Samuel J. Elder, Jr., winning the plaudits of an admiring multitude. Good luck to him.

Engineers Visit McKay Plant.

Last Sunday afternoon a large number of members of Woburn Lodge, 27, National Association of Engineers, and their associate members, visited the McKay works. On their arrival at two o'clock they were met by Engineer Potter and his assistants when all were invited to quench their thirst by partaking of lemonade provided by Mr. G. H. Vose and Mr. Wm. H. J. Fitzgerald. Engineer Potter then repaired to the office where Mr. Vose was found buried up to his eyes in papers and letters. He was taken to the engine room and presented to the visitors. He at once took charge of them and the tramp over the building commenced, Supt. Vose taking great pleasure in showing and explaining the different machines. The boys were highly pleased with their visit and the pains taken to make it remembered. The inspection lasted about three hours and came to an end in the main engine room, where Mr. Vose was given a vote of thanks for his courtesy and fine treatment of the visitors. A box of good cigars was then opened, after which all boarded the 5.45 car for Woburn. This visit was one of the features of the organization and all enjoyed the many interesting things seen. These tours of inspection keep the boys together and tend to make better engineers of them. They all take pride in the different plants with which they are connected and knowing that lives and property are in their charge they are doing their best to keep a good, clean record. Long may the organization exist.

One thousand envelopes with your address neatly printed in the corner can be had at the STAR office at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. Herbert Shattuck has had his house moved onto Kendall street. On the old site and facing Mt. Vernon street he will erect a handsome residence.

Police Officer Dotten will commence his vacation Sunday. He will go to Kingston, Me., where trout brooks, fishing poles, rubber boots, etc, await his coming. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Dotten and they will have a most enjoyable time.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Ball of Newbury street, Boston, were guests last week of Mr. George H. Gilbert at his summer home, "The Nutshell," at Little Boar's Head, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Proctor are at Swampscott.

Miss Edith Warren has gone to Sunapee Lake.

Mrs. Wm. J. Stewart and daughter Ellen have returned from Boothbay.

Mr. Alexander Carpenter, of Washington street, went on a trip to Montreal, Quebec, etc., last Saturday. It is 20 years since he had last been in that section of the country.

Last week coal was advanced 25 cents on a ton. There will be an increase in price the first of every month, which commenced last April. The advance represents an increase of $25,000,000 in the revenue of the coal trust.

Dr. Lilley Eaton and Mrs. Eaton went to Southport, Me., Monday for a vacation of three weeks. A pleasant and restful season to them is the wish of the STAR.

Electric fans have been placed in the stack and reading rooms of the town library. They are needed not only during the warm weather but also at times throughout the winter season on account of the bad atmosphere.

Mr. Geo. H. Hamilton has moved into his new house on what was formerly the Prince estate. The location is very pretty.

The Arlington Gas Light Co. last week placed three of its economical and labor saving gas stoves in residences on Stevens street. It is the intention of the company to extend its gas mains in many parts of the town in order that a larger number of the people may participate in the benefits of this latest innovation in gas stoves and cooking.

Capt. P. A. Nickerson is confined to his house with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Owners of an empty house do wrong to leave the lower windows open. Last Sunday a neighbor noticed a number of boys coming out of the cellar window of S. B. White's fine house on Marion street, corner of Washington, at the Highlands. If boys of a mischievous propensity should take it into their heads to set a fire, someone would have to suffer for carelessness.

Mr. E. A. Chase, the station agent at the Highlands, authorizes us to deny that he has any intention of giving up his present position and is at a loss to account for the rumor that he was to be transferred to the agency at South Amherst, Mass.

Mr. Howard J. Johnson, after a week's rest, has resumed his duties again.

Cooked Ox Tongue and Ham at Blaisdell's Market.

The man who was run over and killed by a market wagon in Arlington at the Winchester line Saturday night has been identified as E. C. LeCain of 24 Ash street, Chelsea, an expressman. LeCain attempted to steal a ride on the wagon, which was driven by Charles O'Brien of Burlington, but was ordered to get off, and in doing so fell under the wagon wheels, which passed over him.

Miss Maud, daughter of Mr. Frank Swan, is spending her summer vacation at the Baptist parsonage in East Norton with relatives.

Mr. Harry Kimball, who suffered a broken shoulder by falling from a staging, is getting along as well as could be expected.

The family of Mr. B. F. Mathews are occupying a cottage on the shores of Nutting's pond, Billerica, during the month of August.

A steam wagon loaded with carboys of vitriol passed through the centre Wednesday afternoon, and attracted considerable attention. It belonged to the Merrimac Chemical Co. at North Woburn. The tires of the wheels were massive affairs, and were over six inches in width.

Judge Littlefield had a fine day, yesterday, for his trolley excursion to Marlboro. The party left the centre on the 7.25 car.

Mr. J. C. Adams, the grocer, will close his store Wednesday afternoons for the remainder of the present month.

Mr. John McNaley, the letter carrier, went on his vacation last Saturday.

Miss Edith Richburg is passing her vacation at Long Island, Portland, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cobb Sanborn of Black Horse Terrace, returned this week from that delightful resort, Little Boar's Head, Rye Beach, New Hampshire, where they have been passing a few days at The Nutshell, the summer home of Mr. George H. Gilbert.

Miss E. E. Marston is passing the present month at South Limington, Me.

William and Preston Corey returned last Saturday from Nantucket. Mrs. C. E. Corey and her daughter Mabel will leave the above place Saturday for the Vineyard for a further stay of two weeks as the guests of friends.

Dr. H. G. Farr returned from Niagara Falls last Saturday, bringing with him the runaway horse that performed the unheard of feat of galloping across the railroad suspension bridge at Niagara last November in the middle of the night. The only foot-hold for the horse was the railroad ties, and he succeeded in crossing safely with the exception of losing one shoe and a part of the hoof. On the way over the horse passed a freight train going in the opposite direction.

The heavy rain of Wednesday caused but little damage to the side hill streets. There was a time when a downpour of this kind would have caused the loss of hundreds of dollars. That was before the town gave proper attention to its streets.

Mr. James F. Bunting and family went to the hills of Berkshire last Saturday for August.

Mr. C. T. Main went last week on a vacation. He expects to return the 20th.

Miss Delia Whitney left Wednesday for Louden, N. H., for a rest and to assist Miss Fogg with a concert for the benefit of the church there. Miss Whitney will remain there two weeks.

Mr. C. S. Adams, with Geo. H. Morrill, grocer, has been threatened with typhoid fever.

Mr. Edwin Palmer, clerk at Holbrook's store, is enjoying a two-weeks' vacation.

Mr. Dennis F. Foley, the well known letter carrier, is on his vacation. Thursday he went to Bar Harbor for a stay of a few days.

The Sewer Department commenced the work of building a syphon across the Aberjona river at the foot of Mystic avenue Monday. It is for the purpose of connecting the pipe just laid on the avenue with the main trunk of the sewer which runs parallel with the railroad tracks. A powerful steam pump is being used to keep the water out while work is going on. About two thirds of the pipe will be laid inside the first cofferdam, and when this is done the remainder of the river will be enclosed and final connection made. It is a difficult and tedious piece of work but entirely familiar to Engineer Fletcher, who has superintended the building of several syphons in other parts of the town.

The family of Dr. J. I. French went on a trip to the mountains last week where they will pass the present month.

Mr. Henry Newton, who went to Hudson, N. H., to superintend the building of houses for Mr. Walter Marsh, who recently took up his residence there, was in town Tuesday, and returned the same day.

Mr. Harry Leighton, a popular agent at the centre station, after long service, severed his connection with the B. & M., Saturday night, and has taken a position in the McKay factory.

Rev. C. L. Mitchell, who has been passing the summer with his family at Christmas Cove, Me., came to town last Saturday. He will go back again this Saturday and return with his family on the 17th.

The Calumet Gun Club is arranging for a clam bake at the range on Myopia Hill.

Mrs. John Park of Maple road has been entertaining Mrs. Albert Treadwell of East Boston.

The principal business before the Selectmen Monday evening was a review of the work in progress by the street department, and the laying out of new work for the fall. Two steam rollers are now employed on Main street, which thoroughfare is being repaired along the line of car tracks where new material has been installed. One of the rollers is the property of the state, and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

Postmaster Richardson attended the mid-summer outing of the Postmaster's Association of New England at Bass Point, Wednesday. About 100 postmasters were in attendance who partook of a fish dinner.

Mr. A. W. Quimby and family of Walnut street start Saturday for No. Woodstock, Vt., for a vacation of two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Rice of Eaton street are passing three weeks at Marblehead Neck.

Mrs. F. C. Manchester is at Five Islands, Me.

We recently took a ride over the new electric road from Woburn to Burlington. When the car reached the centre of the town many of the passengers were amused to see that the centre proper of the village consisted of a single house and barn. Years ago Burlington was a thriving village, but the population has continued to dwindle away so that at the present time there is not more than a handful of people in the town. Through electric cars from Woburn to Lowell may now do wonders for this beautiful and heretofore isolated place.

Guy Palmer is at Nantasket Beach.

Mr. Ollis Weld is sojourning at Winthrop Beach.

Miss Lizzie Macdonald is visiting in Roslindale, Mass.

Mrs. Ellis and family, of Clematis street, are at home after spending a delightful vacation at Brant Rock.

Mr. Thomas Morris returned last Thursday from Prince Edward Island, his birthplace, where he has been visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Corliss are at Harwichport, Mass.

Mr. Hugh McCraven, the veteran carriage driver, is able to be out. He is enjoying fairly good health for one of his years and hopes shortly to cater to his numerous friends at the station. He had a long sickness.

Mr. A. H. Bannister, the provision dealer, has sold out his business and moved to Somerville.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mrs. L. A. Dakin left town Wednesday for Digby, N. S., where she will pass the remainder of the summer. Digby is Mrs. Dakin's native town and she has not been there for fifteen years.

Stella Reenstierna received her little friends at her home on Fells Road last Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock on the occasion of her fourth birthday. The children played games on the lawn and in the house, and enjoyed a bountiful repast. The little hostess received a number of pretty gifts. The following children were there: Deborah Hicks, George Hicks, Claire and Grace Wyman, Lillian Hudson, Lea McIntosh, Marjorie Ahlberg, Helen and Anita Bagge, George Sandquest, and Stella Reenstierna.

The Belgian hare is a pet when kept confined and a pest when it gets away. In California a number escaped from the bondage of rabbitries and spread over Sacramento county. They proceeded to increase and multiplied to such an extent that the state board of agriculture is alarmed for the safety of gardens and orchards. No such condition of affairs is apt to exist in this part of the State as there would be found two gunners for every rabbit.

Mr. Carroll Doubleday is spending his vacation at Wood's Holl, Mass.

Mr. Russell and family of Ravencroft Road are sojourning in Maine for a time.

Good Templars.

Wedgemere Lodge, I. O. G. T., met last evening, nearly all members being present, with a large delegation from Washington Elm Lodge of Cambridge, accompanied by the District Councillor, Bro. Robertson of Cambridgeport.

After regular business there was a long list for the good of the order consisting of speeches, songs and recitations, closing with a half hour of social intercourse. The committee on jubilee meeting for the 19th of Sept., reported that the meeting would be held in Blaikie's large hall using their own hall for a reception room. There are five speakers engaged and there will be some splendid readings and good music. Every one come—admission free.

Quite a delegation from Wedgemere visited Melrose Lodge Wednesday evening and had a splendid time and were very pleasingly entertained.

Water Rates.

The following tables give an account of the water rates committed to the collector for the years 1900 and 1901:

1901.

Commitments from Jan. 1, 1901, to date,	$12,388.43
Additional commitments to July 1, 1901,	267.80
	$12,656.23
July 1 to Jan. 1. 1902,	$14,115.77
Additional commitments to date,	131.67
	$14,247.44
	12,656.23
Total,	$26,903.67

1900.

Commitments, Jan, 1, 1900,	$11,980.94
Additional commitments to July 1, 1900,	460.51
	$12,441.45
July 1, to Jan. 1, 1901,	$13,806.79
Additional commitments, July 1, 1900, to Jan. 1, 1901,	570.77
	$12,441.45
Total,	$26,819.01

A comparison of the totals for the two years does not show a very large margin in favor of the present year, but this promises to be larger as there is a certainty of a good increase in additional commitments from the use of hose, etc.—probably $300 before the season is through.

An Enjoyable Fish Dinner.

On invitation of Hon. Fred Joy, Messrs. N. H. Taylor, J. P. Boutwell, E. F. Jones, T. S. Spurr, Geo. H. Carter, A. C. Bell and W. C. Newell enjoyed a fish dinner at the Point Shirley Club House Tuesday evening—formerly the famous Tafts. The menu was made up entirely of fish and bivalves prepared and cooked in the highest style of the art. There are fish dinners and fish dinners, but there are none quite so good as those they serve on order of the members of this club. Mr. Joy, who had previously partaken of dinners here, knew that he had a surprise in store for his guests, so he was all prepared for the commendatory words which followed each course. No pains nor expense were spared in securing and serving the most toothsome of dishes, so that hereafter it will be a task of no mean proportions to meet the anticipations of these gentlemen when they are invited to partake of a fish dinner. When the delicious steamed clams were disappearing, the thoughts of some members of the party reverted back to the disappointment of Mr. John R. Newman at not being able to procure this succulent shell fish at a recent dinner at Salisbury Beach, and then for the first time they knew why his disappointment was so keen—he had eaten them when they were ripe.

The guests at its conclusion pronounced it to be the best fish dinner they had ever partaken of. Stories and jokes caused the feast to spread over two hours.

A Hint to our Local Park Board.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Have you noticed how beautifully the Boston ivy has covered the stone wall between the Ginn estate and the railroad at Wedgemere? The Boston & Maine R. R. Co. keep a few men for just this kind of work and the luxuriant growth within two years time at the place indicated testifies to the skill of the railroad gardners at ivy planting, they having full charge of the planting and care of the vines.

Now, why cannot our local park board influence the Railroad Co. to plant vines to cover the unsightly ledge on railroad land almost in the centre of the town between Rangeley and the play-ground? The ivy could be planted on top of the bank and hang down so as to produce a beautiful effect. The town would certainly be willing to reimburse the Railroad Co. for the small outlay necessary to plant the ivy and it would be worth ten times to the town what it cost. Will this little hint suffice to bring about the desired improvment? We feel sure the park board would be in sympathy with the idea or we would not call the matter to their attention.

A TIP FOR THE JOKERS.

Curious Man Wants to Know About Mingling of Languages.

"It's a funny thing," said the man with the bad cigar, who had been reading day before yesterday's paper.

"What's that?" asked the young man with the phenomenally short coat.

"Why, the way these fellows that write jokes for newspapers get things tangled up," replied the first seaker.

"How is that?" asked the long legged young man.

"Why, look here," continued the man with the bad cigar warmly. "Did you ever read a Dutch joke in the papers where two Germans are supposed to be talking to each other?"

"Sure I did," said the tall young man, yawning languidly.

"Well, did you ever notice that every time the guy that wrote the joke has them jabbering at each other in broken English? What do you think of this?" He picked up the paper again and after hunting a few moments read as follows:

"Leberwurst—Heinrich, vy iss it ven you bock beer drink yet that you vant to yump alretty?

"Schwartzkoppen—Maypie it iss vonce because die beer is mit hops filled up. No?

"Now, that's a good thing, isn't it?" went on the man with the bad cigar. "If those two Germans wanted to talk to each other, do you suppose they would amble around in broken English? No; they would spiel it out in German that they both understand. Suppose you and I were in Germany for a visit and I wanted to tell you about some sight I had seen, would I try to tell you in bum German that neither of us could speak or would I talk English? They make me tired."

"But that would spoil the joke," protested the tall young man.

"Huh!" snorted the other. "Some things are too bad to spoil."

And then the incident was considered closed.—Chicago Chronicle.

How to Make Chocolate Blancmange.

Put in a double boiler one quart of milk. Add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and four shredded wheat biscuits, rolled fine. Cook for half an hour, stirring frequently. Then add half a cup of sugar and three teaspoonfuls of cocoa blended with two tablespoonfuls of hot milk. Stir and add one beaten egg and remove in a minute. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and turn into a wetted mold. Serve cold with sugar and cream.

How to Make Batter Bread.

A pint of sifted meal, three eggs and butter or lard the size of an egg and a little over a pint of sweet milk. Pour boiling water over the meal until you have a stiff batter, stirring it all the time. Put in the butter, then the yolks of the eggs, then the milk and last of all the whites of the eggs, beaten till very stiff. Put in a well buttered tin or dish and bake 45 minutes. This in the south is a breakfast or dinner dish.

How to Roast Bacon.

To roast bacon select a square piece weighing about three pounds. Soak it overnight. The next day put it over to boil, letting it simmer merely for an hour to each pound; then let it cool in the water in which it has cooked. When cold, remove, drain and take off the skin. Rub the fat well with sugar, pour over the bacon two cupfuls of cider vinegar and finish by roasting in the oven till brown.

How to Make Coffee Whip.

To be served in glasses. Place two tablespoonfuls of unground coffee in a pan and brown it; if already roasted, heat until very hot, stirring all the time. Turn at once into one pint of rich, cold cream with two tablespoonfuls of fine sugar and stir a minute. Let it become very cold, remove the coffee and whip to a stiff froth.

How to Wash Gilded China.

Never put soda in the water in which you wash china that has any gilding on it. Soda injures the gilding. Instead use soap, which answers just as well and has no ill effects.

Sewer Assessments.

J. F. Jackson, chairman of the board of R. R. commissioners, L. T. Trull of Lowell, and A. P. Rugg, city solicitor of Worcester, the commissioners appointed under a decree of the supreme court to determine and apportion the amount to be paid annually for the next five years by the cities and towns in the north metropolitan sewerage system, to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements, and also to pay the costs of maintenance and operation, filed their report in the office of the clerk of the supreme court Tuesday forenoon in Boston.

The report came before Judge Hammond later for approval, and the court intimated that it would be approved when all the cities and towns had signified their assent, and had waived their right to appeal.

The proportions which the different cities and towns will be called upon to pay under this report are shown in the table below, the first being for interest and sinking fund requirements, and the second for maintenance and operation.

(1) East Boston and Charlestown districts.

(2) Villages of Centre and East Lexington.

"The towns of Lexington and Wakefield have not as yet connected any local sewers with the metropolitan system. It was contended by counsel that until such connections have been made towns are exempt from assessment for any part of the cost of maintenance and operation. We are of the opinion, however, that the exemptions named in those statutes are binding only upon the metropolitan sewerage comm'rs in making their annual apportionment and do not limit our authority or control us in our duty in dealing with these towns."

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In re-echoes. First find out, by inquiry through town meeting, why Metropolitan Park Board does not act, then act accordingly. Everything is "held up" for reasons that the town does not know, but should, and the only way it can find out is to ask. It would probably be to our advantage to have a town meeting in Septemb r instead of deferring action until the next annual meeting.

Up to even two years ago the steam roads said they would not feel the competition of electrics beyond five or six miles of Boston, now they are feeling it seriously twenty-five miles out. The question is what are they going to do about it. Local rates for passengers and freight have been high for many years.

The Selectmen had an excellent suggestion in their last annual report regarding street signs and guide boards but none have appeared yet. We should arrange with adjoining places and have a guide board at the town line on every street. The statutes say that cities and towns shall establish guide boards but the law is a dead letter. The electric roads are also singularly remiss about their signs.

Getting in a new rail and new cars on the Woburn-Medford line will add a distinct value to the town. It is perfectly evident that the combine of street railroads has been of decided advantage to the public, as it naturally would be.

Is it not about time the town officials had their office hours posted up near the office bulletin in the town building so that people may know when they may be found in and not be obliged to tramp up stairs to find out? There seems to be an air of exclusiveness about the hours of the town officers.

Many people were disappointed at not getting the reduced water rates July first, but it was distinctly stated in the annual town meeting last spring that the rates were not to go into effect until January first, 1902, and the by-laws were purposely not sent in to the court for approval before that date. It would have interfered with this year's appropriation to have had reduced the rates July first.

Echoes of Float Night.

Winchester Boat Club's hospitality was a magnet which drew many Medford men across the lake. It was the first float night of our neighbor's and passed off with a success that encourages other efforts of a like character. The club house decorations were a profusion of glowing Japanese lanterns, which gave out light on all sides and over against the wooded shore four yachts cast a brilliant gleam from their masts and spars. The decorative schemes, one and all, were good, and several were particularly striking in conception and effect. Japanese lanterns and electricity were employed in the different displays.—[Medford Mercury.

Those people of Arlington who knew of the event, participated in the mid-summer carnival held by the Winchester Boat Club, last Saturday evening, on Mystic Lake. No water carnival, held in this vicinity at least, has furnished a more brilliant scene of festivity than that offered last Saturday. The club house is located near the road, which is the thoroughfare through Mystic street, so was easy of approach by the electrics, and the number witnessing the fete was much larger than those included in the club's hospitalities on their own premises. The club house was brilliantly decorated, the water front being a mass of multi-colored lanterns, while a gigantic butterfly, the club totem, was ablaze with miniature lamps.—[Arlington Advocate.

COST OF ELECTRIC LIGHTING

Decision of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners.

The State Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners have given out the accompanying decision on the petition of consumers of Winchester against the Woburn Light, Heat and Power Co.:—

"This was a complaint by residents of Winchester, customers of the Woburn Light, Heat and Power Company, praying a reduction in rates.

"This Company supplies lights for street and commercial purposes in the city of Woburn and in the towns of Winchester and Stoneham. It is the successor of the Woburn Electric Light Company, being virtually a reorganization of that corporation. It has built an entirely new station in a more favorable location and equipped it throughout with apparatus of the most modern types. The present company was chartered in 1897, and has outstanding capital stock of $169,000 with $175,000 of bonds.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, its net rate for incandescent lights to general consumers was twenty cents per kilowatt hour with special rates under contracts with numerous customers on the basis of a monthly charge for each lamp installed. Under this method the company's receipts from commercial incandescent lighting were a little less than forty per cent. of its total income, about one-third of such receipts being from lights by contract.

"Beginning with July, 1900, a wholly different system of charging was adopted. Under this scheme every customer was charged such a sum per month as would amount in the year to three fourths of his bills for the year preceding. This the company called an "investment charge." There was a further charge for all current used of ten cents per kilowatt hour with a discount of fifty per cent., making the net rate five cents.

"It developed at the hearing that the principal grievance of the petitioners was against the system of fixed charges as outlined, and the way in which the amount of these was determined. It was quite clear that this method would lead to wide variations in price, even where the cost to the company and the consumption by the customer might be the same. Moreover, it was particularly objectionable from its arbitrary and unscientific character. As the hearing progressed the unfairness of this feature of the arrangement became so apparent that the company announced its purpose to abandon it, and promptly offered a guaranty that the average rate for the year should not in any case exceed the price formerly charged of twenty cents a kilowatt hour.

"It has since offered to its customers a graduated scale of fixed monthly charges dependent upon the maximum number of lamps which the customer in his contract states that he will desire to use at any one time. This is designated as a "capacity charge" and all current used is to be paid for at the net rate of six cents a kilowatt hour, which is called a "current charge." By the use of an automatic device every installation is to be so arranged that the customer will be unable to use at any one time more than the number of lamps named in his contract, except after notice to the company. As under this plan the fixed charge is in a measure determined by agreement between the customer and the company, it is to that extent at least an improvement.

"Such a scheme of charging is, we believe, absolutely unique in the electric lighting business and there is no experience by which to reliably forecast its results. It is evidently intended to increase the profits of the company by increasing its output and at the same time to reduce the price to a large majority of its customers, enabling them without proportional increase in their bills to use lights much more freely and with increased convenience. It may be expected also in some cases of small consumption to increase the price per unit above that formerly in force, but only in cases where the ratio of hours burned to the number of lamps contracted for is very small. The operation of the automatic device for preventing the use of lamps above the contract number may prove at times inconvenient and offensive, but may also be an essential feature of the plan.

"The name of "capacity charge" and the way in which it was proposed to the public seemed at first to indicate that it was intended to guarantee a definite, perhaps an increased, rate of dividend, but a careful scrutiny of the rates offered and the method by which they have been determined shows that they have been reduced below the amount which they theoretically would need to be in order to accomplish such guarantee.

"Old customers have been carried through the year upon the modification of the scheme first proposed, but new customers have been taken on under the newer plan. The year's operations show a substantial increase in the number of customers, an increase of about ten per cent. in the total output and about five thousand dollars in the gross income, but only about seven hundred dollars in the gross profits with an average price for commercial lighting of thirteen cents per kilowatt hour. Owing to the confused methods employed, these facts afford but little assistance in forecasting the profit under the new scheme which was only put in operation for all customers with the first of the current month. Whether this will increase or reduce this average rate, it is impossible to determine reliably at this time. The whole scheme is so novel and altogether tentative in character that at least, a year's operation will probably be necessary to demonstrate what value it is, if any, either to the company or its customers. There is nothing however, in its nature which removes it from the jurisdiction of the Board. When the results are seen and the operation of the plan is more fully demonstrated, the way will be clear to reduce, if advisable, either the current charge or the capacity charge, or both, or to relieve the plan of any of its features which may seem to be inequitable.

"The principal grievance of the petitioners, as originally presented, seems to have been met by the company as one of the results of the hearing, and the Board does not see its way clear at the present time to require further changes."

For the Board,
FORREST E. BARKER, Chairman.

White Ribbon Clippings.

Miss Kearney, writing to the Union Signal, says: "For two months I have been traveling and lecturing almost constantly in Nebraska. In that time, I have visited 37 different places and given 46 addresses. It has been my good fortune to secure many hundreds of new members for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. On the 16th of June 43 were won at Lexington and last Sunday evening at Wahoo 64 joined our ranks. This has not been an organizing tour with me, but opportunity presented itself for the formation of three W. C. T. U's. As a rule, audiences have been very large; in several places, the churches were unable to accommodate the crowds that attended. The ministers have been very sympathetic and helpful. Every step of the way over Nebraska's hills and plains, beautiful beyond expression, has been an inspiration of the deepest, sweetest nature. The W. C. T. U. is admirably organized and working with intelligent enthusiasm. These Western women are among the noblest heroines that our work has evolved. They have conquered the most adverse circumstances and stand as victors over the hardness of pioneer life with its toil and poverty and the unutterable isolation of earlier days. They are on the top round of the ladder in comprehension and mastery of the W. C. T. U. from every view-point. They have had the best lecturers for years to come to them and have studied and followed out in their lives the heaven-born privileges of the movement.

The people of the State of Nebraska have more throughly solved the question of living than those of any other that I have known. Lincoln is said to be the Athens of the west and the cleanest city of its size in the Union. There is nothing effete out here; there is no stagnation. The air is fraught with power, both for physical and intellectual life. There is no desolate yesterday, but a glorious today and promise of a great tomorrow."

BAPTIST MISSION NEWLY PAINTED.

The Pastor is Also a Painter.

The colored people of Winchester have made some good improvements on their house of worship. Hireing the old school house on Cross St. they have renovated the house inside and out within the last eight months. Last winter the room was papered inside, and the marks and scratches of school children on the walls and the black boards were papered over. This made the inside of the building a suitable place to worship and to hold religious meetings. The Pastor believes in cleaning on the inside first. Having improved the inside, the outside still needed paint. The building had not been painted since 1851, just fifty years ago, and was a pitiful sight. It reminded one of an old lady who had worn one dress 50 years until it was in tatters, not being able to buy a new dress and no one thought enough of her to give her one. The building has been a target for the school children who have amused themselves during recesses by firing stones at the windows and battering the doors, so that it has been a question whether it was worth while to paint it. The people have been much discouraged and unwilling to do anything, but at a business meeting, they granted the pastor's request to paint it if he could,—this he has done. First he begged about $20 00, secondly he bought paint, and he thirdly painted the building himself. The Pastor is Rev. Thos. S. Bruce, a young man, graduated from Bates College 1898, and from Newton Theological School this summer. He has several positions offered him in the South, both as teacher in Home Mission schools and as pastor of churches. He is planning to start for Virginia in Sept.

The income of the Baptist Mission is very small. The pastor has worked a year for almost nothing. Small contributions from friends of the Mission to help pay for repairs and rent are being received by the pastor, at 14 Winchester St. Anything sent to this address will be duly acknowledged and greatly appreciated.

The Mission newly painted white with green doors and blinds reminds one of a young summer girl with white dress and blue or green ribbons tossing in the gentle breeze.

Let the people of Winchester remember that the heathens are not all in Africa, nor China, nor in the Philippines. There are a few lingering yet in beautiful Winchester, and the Baptist Mission is going after these.

Political Calendar.

The calendar of political fixtures for the fall campaign, so far as they effect Winchester, is as follows:

Sept. 25—All Republican caucuses for the choice of delegates to conventions and the nomination in caucuses of candidates for the General Court, must be held on this date.

Sept. 29—Earliest day for calling Republican conventions, except representative conventions.

Oct. 2—Earliest day for holding Republican representative conventions.

Oct. 4—10 a. m., Republican state convention in the Boston Theatre.

Oct. 5—Latest day for calling conventions for nominations of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth. Must be called before 5 p. m.

Oct. 6—Last day for registrars of voters in every city and town, except Boston, to post in each voting precinct preliminary alphabetical list of voters.

Oct. 7—Certificates of nomination for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth must be filed at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth before 5 p. m.

Oct. 14—Nomination papers for nominations of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth must be filed at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth before 5 p. m.

Oct. 15—Last day for appointing election officers in towns.

Oct. 15—Last day for calling conventions for nominations of candidates for state offices, others than those to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth, must be called before 5 p. m.

Oct. 26—Last day for registration in all towns. On this day registrars must hold a continuous session from 12 m. to 10 p. m., when registration must cease.

Nov. 1.—Last day for filling vacancies among election officers.

Nov. 1—Last day for filing complaint against incorrect and illegal registration in towns.

Nov. 5—State election.

Their Secret is Out.

All Sadieville, Ky., was curious to learn the cause of the vast improvement in the health of Mrs. S. P. Whittaker, who had for a long time, endured untold suffering from a chronic bronchial trouble. "It's all due to Dr. King's New Discovery," writes her husband. "It completely cured her and also cured our little granddaughter of a severe attack of Whooping Cough." It positively cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

A Political Buzz.

The candidacy of Samuel W. Twombly for a third term as representative from the 12th Middlesex district has been announced. Included in the district are wards 3 and 6 of Medford, with Winchester, which latter town is Mr. Twombly's home. Winchester and Medford are supposed to alternate in furnishing men for representative and the honor reverts this year to Medford, ward 3. This is according to a tacit understanding among the Republican leaders. Mr. Twombly's desire for another year, therefore, is looked upon with disfavor here, and enthusiasm has not begun to boil. It is believed that a man can be found here who will be able to follow creditably in the path of past representatives, and upon whose shoulders the toga of office will be worn with dignity and honor. Medford will produce him.—[Medford Mercury.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by Young and Brown.

Hints on Boating and Bathing.

In view of the liability to accident on Mystic Lake from the large number of sailing parties constantly out on the water, we gladly give room in our columns to the following communication:

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As the waters are warming for summer bathing, and the summer visitors are gathering at the pleasure resorts on all our rivers, lakes and coast watering-places for recreation and sport, will you not kindly editorially call public attention to a few important points in reference to bathing, boating and swimming, which may awaken caution and save many lives, and the consequent misery to many homes.

First—Impress upon parents the necessary duty of having their children taught to swim, and to all young persons the great importance of knowing how to swim. At every important place on the waters of this State our Volunteer Life-Savers can be found to give them lessons that may ultimately save their lives in some unlooked-for disaster—the ability to even hold one's self up for a minute until help may come every year saves many lives.

Second—Go out in no pleasure boat of small or large dimensions without being assured that there are life-saving buoys or cushions aboard sufficient to float all on board in case of an upset or collision.

Third—With a party be sure you are all properly and satisfactorily seated before you leave the shore—particularly so with girls on board. Let no one attempt to exchange seats mid-stream, or to put a foot on the edge or gunwale of the boat to change seats. This, by rollicking girls, has upturned many a boat and lost very many lives every year in the waters of this State. Where the waters become rough from a sudden squall, never rise in the boat, but settle down as close to the bottom as possible, and keep cool until the rocking danger is past. If overturned, a woman's skirts, if held out by her extended arms, while she uses her feet as if climbing stairs, will often hold her up while a boat may pull out from the shore and save her. A non swimmer, by drawing his arms up to his side, and pushing down with widely extended hands, while stair-climbing or treading water with his feet, may hold himself several minutes, often when a single minute means a life, or throwing out the arms, dog-fashion, forward, overhand and pulling in, as if reaching for something—that may bring him in reach of help.

Fourth—In rescuing drowning persons, seize them by the collar, back of the neck; do not let them throw their arms around your neck or arms. If unmanageable, do not strike them, but let them drop under a moment until quiet, then tow them into shore. If unconscious, don't wait a moment for a doctor or an ambulance, but begin at once; first get the tongue out and hold it by a handkerchief, or stocking to let the water out; get a buoy, box or barrel under the stomach, or hold him over your knee, head down, and jolt the water out of him; then turn him over side to side four or five turns, then on his back, and with a pump-movement keep his arms agoing from pit of stomach overhead to a straight out and back fourteen to sixteen times a minute until signs of returning life are shown. A bellows movement on the stomach at the same time is a great aid. Of course you will at first loose collar and all binding clothing. Let some one at once remove shoes and stockings, and at the same time rub the lower limbs with an upward movement from foot to knee, occasionally slapping the soles of the feet with the open hand. Working on these lines our Volunteer Life-Savers have been successful after two hours of incessant manipulation, but generally succeed inside of thirty minutes. Spirits of ammonia to the nostrils, or a feather tickling in the throat, often helps to quicken, but we rarely need anything more than the above mechanical means. Use no spirits internally until after breathing and circulation are restored, then a moderate use of stimulants or hot teas and a warm blanket or bed is of the first importance.

The U. S. Volunteer Life-Saving Corps of this State has distributed severel thousand of its illustrated "Rescue and Resuscitation Cards," through its life-saving members and, per mail, will furnish them to any one on receipt of the cost of postage and mailing tube, five cents. But if any of your readers will cut out this article from your paper and study its instructions, and carry it with them, they will be able to meet any emergencies that may occur upon the waters.

For the board,
Very truly yours,
J. WESLEY JONES.
President and General Superintendent of U. S. V. L. S. C. for the several States.

Crotch Island, Me., Given to Y. M. C. A.

Miss Frances S. Moody of Bath, Me., has presented the state executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, an island near Friendship, Me., which for the past two years has been the location for the interstate Y. M C. A. camp for boys.

The island, which is some 60 acres in extent, has heretofore been known as Crotch Island, but in the future will bear the name of Moody island, in remembrance of the donor. It is an ideal spot for a camp and the attendance each summer has averaged over 100 boys.

The spacious campus is surrounded by spruce trees and is fitted up with every convenience both for comfort and pleasure. There are 20 sleeping tents for the boys, 12x15 feet each, a large dining tent and a cook and store house. In addition to the main camp, there is a second camp with accommodations for from 60 to 80 boys. A well arranged baseball ground is convenient to the camps and the beach for bathing is only a few minutes' walk.

Moody island lies between Friendship bay and Meduncook river.

A Peril Which Calls for Attention

The alarming frequency of murders by shooting and stabbing which are almost of weekly occurrence among the Italian residents of the North End have become so familiar to the readers of our newspapers, that they nearly fail of exciting more than a passing notice, and even our police seem to lose its grip in the detection and conviction of these cowardly and adroit foreign assassins. They have a way of committing dastardly murders and escaping arrests through their low cunning or by the connivance of friends belonging to the same treacherous race, who skillfully conceal them so that it is next to an impossibility to discover their hiding places. The North End is full of obscure retreats for criminals, and the members of this nationality are adepts in evading the demands of justice. It does seem, though, that this progressive tendency to unpunished crime could be checked.—[Hingham Journal.

Harm They Do, Certainly.

The Somerville Journal says that sensational daily newspapers do a good deal of harm by printing in large type headlines the number of deaths from "heat prostrations" the day before, and announcing that "there is no relief in sight." As a matter of fact, a large percentage of the deaths from "heat prostration" in hot weather are only partly due to the heat. Physicians say that many such cases are those of men who have been habitual drinkers, and whose systems have been heated by alcohol more than by the sun. In a few cases where there is some organic weakness, death by "heat prostration" may be caused, but, as a rule, the man or woman in ordinary health and not a user of alcoholic stimulants has no reason to be afraid, however high the mercury may go.

Flashlight Photography.

Messrs. Blake & Henderson, who have a reputation for flashlight photography, contemplate opening a studio here in a few weeks for that class of work also for daylight sittings. We were shown this week specimens of their work taken at the home of Dr. F. H. Harding and they were the best we have ever seen. The work was truly excellent and of great artistic merit. They propose to take pictures at the homes of customers, when requested, where the surroundings are familiar and where more natural effects are given to the photograph. This work will all be of the highest class, and the success of these artists is assured as soon as the public see the results attained.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Edmund Sanderson, late of Winchester in said County, deceased:

Whereas, certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament—and codicil—of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Henry A. Emerson and William B. Simonds, of said Winchester, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the third day of September, A.D. 1901, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week for three successive weeks in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this thirty-first day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.

HANDSOME MODERN HOUSE

A Commodious Residence That One Can Build For $3,000.

Economy and practical convenience are certainly the leading ideas to be followed in designing a modern house and are attended with more or less success in proportion to the knowledge and experience of the designer. The whole secret of design in architecture may be summed up in the terms proportion and expression, for the differences which mark one style from another are those mainly derived from the form and proportion of the openings. Though a low opening may really be high enough for a doorway, the mind naturally reverts to the human figure as a standard of proportion, or to the fitness of things, and at once condemns the proportions as bad for a doorway. It is true we sometimes see wide entrances to certain public places, but they invariably look out of proportion. Even in some Queen Anne houses we have seen doors of about a square which look contrary to our standard—the human proportions—though for actual use the wide opening may be an advantage in passing large pieces of furniture.

The same disregard of a pleasing proportion is seen in the planning or relation of rooms. It is not by any means necessary in the arrangement of convenient apartments and their application to the wants of the modern housekeeper to employ those technical rules governing the erection of architectural structures of magnitude. With the majority of home builders it is the interior arrangement that receives the most consideration over that of the exterior appearance. We need not speak of the convenience of arrangement. Certainly it must be convenient.

We have here a design for a house which exhibits something unique in arrangement of rooms and treatment of the exterior, with a set of rooms at once commodious and convenient. The reception hall at the front is small, but well lighted and furnished. At one side is a cozy fireplace of neat design in pressed brick. From this room you enter a staircase hall abundantly lighted by stained glass windows located at different heights on the stairway. From the hall you enter either the parlor or dining room, two large, handsome rooms, well lighted, separated by sliding doors and furnished with open fireplaces and mantels. The parlor and hall are separated by a wide opening hung with heavy portieres. A side stoop gives entrance to a lobby and thence into the hall or kitchen.

From the lobby are stairs to the cellar, and from the kitchen a stairway leads to the second story, joining the front stairs on a landing near the top. The passage from the kitchen to the dining room is through a large, well fitted pantry by doors hinged to swing both ways. A closet for dry stores is provided back of the kitchen. The back door is protected by a comfortable porch. The principal rooms are unusually large and so arranged that the hall, parlor and dining room can be thrown together on occasion. In the second story are a large sitting room, four bedrooms and bath, all well lighted and closeted.

The foundation walls are of stone, with cellar under the rear half of the building; building above foundation of wood, sheathed and papered outside and first story covered with half inch siding; second story and porch with shingles, plastered inside, three coats. The reception room, hall and stairway are trimmed in oak, remainder of the first floor in cypress and the second floor in white pine; all interior work finished natural in hard oil; exterior painted three coats; building heated by hot air furnace. A house of this kind, without furnace and mantels, can be built complete for $3,000; in some places for less.

A Lincoln Story.

The Rev. Mr. Alcott of Elgin, Ills., one of Abraham Lincoln's Springfield acquaintances, tells of seeing him coming away from church unusually early one Sunday morning. "The sermon could not have been more than half way through," says Mr. Alcott. "His son, 'Tad,' was slung across his left arm like a pair of saddlebags, and Lincoln was striding along with long and deliberate steps toward home.

"On one of the street corners he encountered a group of his fellow townsmen. Lincoln anticipated the question which was about to be put by the group, and, taking his figure of speech from practices with which they were only too familiar, said, 'Gentlemen, I entered this colt, but he kicked around so I had to withdraw him.'"

Different Breaths.

Down in southern Georgia two widows were condoling with each other over their troubles. In telling of the last sickness and death of their husbands, one said:

"My man, poor feller, jes' suffered and suffered and suffered, and then jes' died for the want of breath."

The other replied:

"Waal, mine didn't. He drawed his breath to the very last."—Argonaut.

LESSON VI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 11

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xv, 1-18. Memory Verses, 5-7—Golden Text, Gen. xv, 1—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1. "After these things the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision." Among the "these things" must be included the Melchisedek story of the previous chapter which the Holy Spirit considered of such importance that He speaks of it and its relation to Christ in Ps. cx and in Heb. v, vi and vii. Let no teacher therefore pass it by. Note the new name of Deity "the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth," and consider its use elsewhere. The blessing of Him who owns all things enables us to rise above the temptation to look at or long for the things or the help of this world. All believers, as children of Abram, must not fail to give at least the tithes to our Melchisedek. Note the suggestiveness of the bread and wine. We have in our lesson today a good many words and phrases used for the first time, such as "the word of the Lord," "fear not," "shield," "reward," "believed," "righteousness," etc., and as the first use of a word helps us to understand its significance, we have a most important lesson. "The word of the Lord" may refer to the message which came to Abram or it may refer to the messenger, the Lord Himself (John i, 1; Rev. xix, 13). When we read the word of God, we must accept the messages as specially for us. This first "fear not" takes us to the many other similar words in this precious book, among which these have been and are a great help, Isa. vii, 4; xli, 10, 13; xliii, 1; Joel ii, 21; Mark v, 36.

2, 3. "And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt Thou give me, seeing I go childless?" He reminded God that he was still childless and seemed to wonder how and when the promised seed would come. His faith was still weak, but growing. Faith cometh by hearing the word of God (Rom. x, 17), and the more of His word we hear and receive the more faith we will have. In the New Testament record the failings are omitted, and only the mighty faith is seen. So when our story is finished it shall be seen that the precious blood has put away all that was of us, and therefore sinful, and only that which was wrought in us by God shall be seen. Note Heb. xi, 8-19; Rom. iv, 18-21.

4-6. "And he believed in the Lord, and He counted it to him for righteousness." Abram is assured that his heir shall not be any one merely born in his house, but shall be his very own child, whom heaven shall in due time give him. How suggestive the words "Look now toward heaven!" This should be the attitude of every believer at all times, never relying upon an arm of flesh nor upon any human device, but upon the Lord alone. The record of the next chapter had never been if Abram had persisted in looking heavenward. In last lesson we noticed the promise that his seed should be as the stars and its probable significance. Abram received the word. Literally he amen'd God or said amen to God. The Holy Spirit has noticed this three times in the New Testament (Rom. iv, 3, 21, 22; Gal. iii, 6; Jas. ii, 23) and strongly emphasizes this great truth, that the righteousness which God requireth can never become ours by any works of ours, but only by faith in Jesus Christ (Rom. iv, 5; Eph. ii, 8, 9; Titus, iii, 5).

7. "I am the Lord." That should settle everything and dispel every fear. Notice how it begins and ends the seven great "I wills" of Ex. vi, 6-8. Notice it as a sufficient reason for all that God requires of them (Ex. xx, 2; Lev. xxii, 31-33; xxiii, 43) and an all sufficient assurance to them that He will do what He says (Ezek. xxxvi, 22, 23, 32, 36), and the great truth that all nations have yet to learn (xxxviii, 23).

8-11. "Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?" Strong and weak, steadfast and wavering, up and down, seems to have been the way with him as he grew in grace and in the knowledge of God. Therefore be not discouraged, weak and trembling one, for the Lord will perfect all that concerns you for His name's sake. The creatures that he took at God's command and prepared as a sacrifice comprised all ever used as types of the great sacrifice of the Son of God. If you ask, "How shall I know?" the answer is, "Behold the Lamb of God." See the love of God in the gift of His dear Son and believe Rom. viii, 32.

12-16. The shadow of coming events casts itself upon him, and the Lord tells him of the coming centuries, of a great bondage and a great deliverance at an appointed time. And so it came to pass. He declares the end from the beginning and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, "My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure" (Isa. xlvi, 10). Compare Ex. xii, 40, 41, and note how all came to pass just as the Lord said. See also I Kings xii, 2, and II Kings xxiii, 16, 17, as an illustration of the literal and exact fulfillment of prophecy. Neither Abram nor his seed could inherit the land just then because the iniquity of the inhabitants was not yet full. One reason why our Lord does not come and judge the nations is because their iniquity has not yet come to a head. There is a proper time to lance a boil. Our Lord will not be too late in attending to the gathering.

17. The smoking furnace and the burning lamp describe the way of the people of God as they journey to the kingdom. There will be the furnace, but His word will prove an unfailing lamp. In the world we shall have tribulation. We must through much tribulation enter the kingdom, but we need not be troubled (John xiv, 1, 27; xvi, 33; Acts xiv, 22; Math. xxiv, 6), for nothing can come to us that will not prove to be the best for us in the light of the glory, and His presence will always sustain us (Rom. viii, 28; Isa. xliii, 1, 2).

18-21. Here we have for the first time the boundaries of the land well defined, not simply what we know as Canaan, but from Egypt to the Euphrates, an abundant possession for all Israel when they shall have returned to their own land from all the nations where they are now scattered, for they are to dwell in their land, a united people under one King, never to be scattered or pulled up out of it any more (Ezek. xxxvii, 21, 22; Zeph. iii, 19, 20; Amos ix, 14, 15). He will yet perform the truth to Jacob and the mercy to Abraham which He has sworn from the days of old (Mic. vii, 20). May we be fully persuaded that what God has promised He is able to perform and, fearing no evil, walk humbly with Him in quietness and in confidence.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN NORWAY

Has Finally Been Granted in Municipal and Communal Elections.

In a few weeks the women of Norway will be ready to take part in local elections as full-fledged voters. A bill conferring the municipal franchise upon women has passed both houses of the Norwegian Parliament (Storthing), and will become a law at the end of the present session.

The Norwegian women are not entirely new to the franchise. Since 1895 they have exercised the right to vote on questions concerning the local regulation of the liquor traffic, and have been a potent factor in shaping the "liquor policy" of their respective communities. Encouraged by their experience and success in this limited field, they have carried on an intelligent, vigorous and persistent campaign for equal rights, and have made headway rapidly.

The adverse majority in the Storthing has grown smaller and less determined with every session, indicating that success would be sure to crown their efforts in a near future. Victory came sooner than expected. They were prepared for just one more defeat and hence were taken by surprise themselves when their bill on May 10 passed the lower house by a vote of 68 to 17.

As might be expected, the news of the victory created intense enthusiasm among the women of Norway. "Is it really true? Is it possible?" exclaimed one of the rank and file of the suffrage army. "It is like a dream. To think that this wall of thousands of years is leveled at last! This sky-high wall that blocked all our efforts and barred out all the good we strove to give to society. There was so much that we wanted to right; our hearts and hands were full of remedies. But no—our advice was spurned. We worked hard for needed reforms. In vain. We had to repress our indignation. We must try to appear indifferent, lest our fruitless complaints should make us ridiculous. All we accomplished by our incessant efforts was to make the lords of creation tired of us. But now! Now we need beseech and beg no longer. Without ostentation we shall simply join hands with all who agree with us to further good reforms. It is incredible. Ye chosen men of Norway, this is the greatest and best work you have wrought during all of your public career. Thank you!"

"We shall immediately begin a campaign of education," says Mrs. Ragna Nielsen, another leader in the suffrage movement. "Perhaps we need a catechism for women voters. But we have already done a great work along this line. Our first duty will be to clean and beautify the city (Christiania). We have already discussed these things at our meetings, and have improved methods to suggest. We shall look after the step-children of society; and we expect to reduce the tax burdens by practicing strict economy. A good housewife is a circumspect buyer and careful with her money; we shall endeavor to apply the same principles and methods to the management of our common municipal household.

The reform was not carried as a party measure. The Liberals were not entirely unanimous in their support, nor the Conservatives unanimous in their opposition. One of the strongest speeches for the bill was made by Francis Hagerup, the Conservative leader of Norway.—Chicago Skandinaven.

Chicago Woman as Police Sergeant.

A record of ten years on the police force and twelve years in the public service as an officer of the city is a pretty good record for a woman. When the rank of sergeant is given and the practical management of the affairs of the special department of detective work to which she is assigned is turned over to that woman the mere fact that she is the only woman in the world holding such a position becomes but a small part of the story. The fact that she does the work so well is of far greater importance to the student of woman in new occupations. In brief, that is the record and standing of Sergeant Mary E. Owens, who is borne on the rolls of the Chicago police department as a sergeant, attached to the office of the chief detective.

Sergeant Owens has for her special duty the task of looking after the truant children on reports sent in to the department of compulsory education of the Chicago board of education. The school law requires that children under 14 years of age shall not work in stores, factories or other prohibited places and that they shall attend school or show a good reason why they do not. In connection with the enforcement of this law there is a great deal of work in keeping track of the employes of the factories and stores where children are apt to be sent by perents for employment or where the children themselves prefer to go rather than attend school. Briefly, the work of Sergeant Owens is to keep this sort of supervision over such places from South Chicago to the northern limits and from Captain Streeter's domain, where the land begins on the lake shore, to the western boundaries of the city. There are frequently filed complaints of neighbors or rival employers which allege that the child labor law is being violated and that children who should be in school are employed in stores and factories, and these complaints are all turned over to her for investigation and report. Taken altogether and considering the territory which she has to cover, her labors are not light and she probably does more riding on the street cars than any other employe of the city. The years of work in this line has given her a familiarity with the subject of employment of children and the reasons which impel the parents to violate the law that is probably not possessed by any other person in the city. Her acquaintance with employers has been made as complete as that of the man who makes the city directory.—Chicago, Ill., Chronicle.

IS THE GAS STOVE A SUCCESS?

The following figures will convince you that the Gas Stove is a success and has come to stay. Installing the Gas Stove in Winchester is simply introducing an old appliance in a new field. It is no experiment and the following table shows the number of Gas Stoves in use in localities named, June 30, 1900:

Boston, Brookline, Dorchester, Roxbury, South Boston	47,160	Dedham	560
		Fall River	5,333
		Holyoke	1,000
		Lawrence	3,710
		Lowell	4,646
		Lynn	2,200
		New Bedford	2,315
		Salem	4,794
		Worcester	4,578
And South Framingham, with a population of 5,770, had in use on above date			631

A Gas Stove will do any work that a coal range will do and it will do it quicker and cheaper.

Ask your neighbor that is using a Gas Stove if he can recommend one for your use. If he does so, send for our agent to call and give you price for installing Gas Range or Hot Water Heater.

We have put out on our lines over a car load of gas appliances so far this season and are laying pipes in localities where there are no gas mains as fast as applications are made.

Send for our agent and he will call and give you any information that you may desire on gas for lighting, cooking, heating and power.

If there are no gas mains on your street, send for him just the same, and if you are within a reasonable distance of mains the gas will be run to your premises.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

A Fish and Lizard Story.

One afternoon I thought I would go down the river and troll. I had on my hook a live minnow and in a little while had a strike, and I hooked my first fish, which seemed to be quite a large one. I reeled him where I could see him and found it was a large pike 25 or 30 inches long. I pulled him up to my boat, but when I lifted him from the water he was as light as a feather. I measured him and found he was just 30 inches long and should have weighed eight or nine pounds, while he only weighed two. He was just skin and bones. I killed him, took my knife and cut him open and found a live lizard, five inches long, in his stomach. The reptile was as black as coal and very lively, living 24 hours after I took him from his prison.—Field and Stream.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an eleven month's old child, says: "Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." For sale by Young and Brown.

Care of Children.

How the Baby Should Be Treated. Things to Avoid.

Beware of trying to take the advice and adopting the methods of all your friends who have lately become matrons. Inexperienced mothers are apt to try too many plans, to their child's detriment.

Beware of overfeeding the baby and ruining the digestive organs early in life by giving them too much work to do.

Beware of underfeeding the baby by sticking too closely to a system laid down in some book that dictates just so much food at so many stated periods of the day. Many children have grown puny and weak by being ruled by the method that has happened to prove successful for some other child.

Beware of breaking your promise to children. They often remember better than you do, and a breach of faith is a great shock to them.

Beware of violent noises and rough shakings or tossings in trying to amuse the baby. They are hurtful to the child and should be avoided as much as possible.

Beware of putting infants in a sitting posture until they are at least 3 months old, when they will probably sit up of their own accord. They should be carried flat in the arms when very young, for if the little back is curved it may lead to curvature of the spine or weak chest.

Beware of a rough comb in caring for the tender scalps. A proper comb for the baby's head is one the teeth of which are even and regular, with points not too sharp, but smoothly rounded. In selecting it, it should be held up to the light to detect any roughening or splitting of the teeth at the sides.

How to Make French Pickles.

To make a French pickle that is excellent with all kinds of meat, slice one peck of green tomatoes and one-fourth as many white onions and let them remain in salt and water 24 hours. Then drain and chop. Add three quarts of vinegar, one tablespoonful of ground cinnamon, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of ground cloves, one tablespoonful of allspice, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of black pepper and one pound of brown sugar. Let the mixture cook slowly for three hours. When it is cold, add one-half pound of white mustard seed.

A Wonder.

"Well, what do you want?"

"Oh, nothin. I was just wonderin how you kept from eatin up all your stock, dat's all."—New York Evening Journal.

Shaves and Colds.

It is not generally known among men that close shaving is apt to bring on a cold. Barbers, however, are acquainted with this fact, and it is rather on account of it than through any desire to bring their patrons back soon again that they do not, unless ordered to, administer close shaves.

How to Buy Oilcloth.

In buying an oilcloth for a floor endeavor to obtain one that was manufactured several years before, as the longer it has been made previous to use the better it will wear, from the paint becoming hard and durable. An oilcloth that has been made within the year is scarcely worth buying, as the paint will be defaced in a very little time, it requiring a long while to season. An oilcloth should never be scrubbed with a brush, but after being first swept it should be cleaned by washing with a large soft cloth and lukewarm or cold water. On no account use soap or take water that is hot, as either of them will certainly bring off the paint. When it has dried, you may sponge it with milk, which will brighten and preserve the colors, and then wipe it with a soft, dry cloth.

How to Make Hash.

[illegible] the vegetables left from a boiled dinner, such as cabbage, potatoes, beets, carrots and parsnips. For one quart of the vegetables about half a cupful of stock and one tablespoonful of butter should be used. Meat hash is sometimes varied by the addition of rice. Often to a beef and potato hash Spanish sweet peppers are added, together with chopped onion. A beef hash is much improved by tomato sauce.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after useing four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. HIS START IN LIFE.

"DOC" HARTMAN AND HIS WONDERFUL GREASE ERADICATOR.

With Soap Candles and Bottles of Rainwater He Fooled the Public and Laid the Foundations of a Substantial Fortune.

"Talk about your self made men," said an old timer among a party of horsemen gathered in one of the speedway inns, "I don't think any of 'em can equal the early experiences of Tim Hartman, who died in St. Louis many years ago, leaving nearly a million dollars to be fought over by his heirs. He made his first good sized pile on patent medicines, then he picked up a great deal more on real estate, and at last he rounded out with speculation in [illegible] as 'Doc' Hartman to the time of his death by his few intimate friends.

"But the story that I'm going to tell, and the one which he often told himself, concerns his very earliest experiences in the accumulation of money. Tim Hartman started life with $1. He kicked around as a barefooted boy—and a pretty mean one, too—in a little town in Connecticut until he was 18 years old, and at that time he had become so fresh and so full of wind and general cussedness that his father one day told him he was no good, never had been and never would amount to a picayune. The old gentleman, just to carry out the bluff, told Tim that he had a good mind to cut him off with a dollar and make him earn his own living. Tim straightened up and called the bluff. He told the old man that he would take the dollar and get out then and there and hustle for himself. The old man handed him a crisp $1 bill and told him that he'd be glad to see him make a fortune with it.

"The first thing that cuss did was to go about in a few back yards that he knew of and gather together a lot of empty bottles which were of no use to anybody. Then, for 10 cents, he bought a large cake of a kind of white soap that was then, and still is, on the market. He melted this soap and, after borrowing an ancient pair of candle molds from an old granny in the neighborhood, made two beautiful looking candles of soap. He next filled his bottles full of choice rainwater. Then he made for himself one of those little three legged tables like the chuck-a-luck and shell game men use outside the circus, and struck out on foot for a county fair that was being held about 40 miles away.

"When he got there, he put up his little table outside the grounds, where the crowd was pretty thick, lighted one of his soap candles and began to extol the virtues of 'Dr. Hartman's Famous Grease Eradicator,' contained in the bottles set before him.

"'Now, ladies and gentlemen,' he would shout in a stentorian but plausible voice, 'this marvelous liquid, so harmless that it can be drunk with impunity by the smallest infant and yet so penetrating that it will seek out and destroy stains and discolorations from the most refractory substance, was discovered by accident by the famous scientist, Dr. Hartman, the eminent scholar, while he was wandering o'er the wilds of Patagonia. It is colorless, you see, as the waters from heaven, and yet observe the effects of its startling properties!'

"At this point Tim would reach for his soap candle and, inverting it, would smear a lot of the grease over the sleeve of his coat.

"'Now, every one of you knows, ladies and gentlemen,' he would continue, reaching over and uncorking a bottle of his rainwater, 'that there is nothing so penetrating and ineffaceable as the grease from a candle, and yet it is a stain that we are all likely to suffer almost every evening of our lives while toying with that common article of the household, the candle. You will observe that my sleeve is smeared with the annoying substance. Behold'—

"Here that country bred fakir would spill a couple of drops of his rainwater on the soap and with a rub or two would produce a beautiful lather. Another swipe and the soap would have entirely disappeared from the sleeve, leaving not a trace.

"'Now, we make this famous eradicator in such enormous quantities,' Tim would continue, 'that in order to introduce it into every home in this broad land we will dispense with it at the absurdly low price of 5 cents, a nickel a bottle. Step right up! Step right up!'

"Then, when the public was surging forward to purchase the rainwater, Tim would pause occasionally to drink a bottle of it, just to show that it was absolutely harmless.

"Well, the stuff went like hot cakes. When Tim's bottles were all exhausted, he bought more, and when the fair was over he went to another and another until he had traveled all over the country. Then, in some way or other, I don't know how, he got hold of some old patent medicine, and, being a genius, of course he made a big go of it. So that's the way Tim Hartman almost became a millionaire."—New York Times.

How to Make Lemon Butter.

Put into a saucepan three tablespoonfuls of butter and a cup of granulated sugar. Beat the yolks of three eggs and the white of one egg very light and add to them the grated peel and juice of a good sized lemon. When the sugar and butter have melted, add slowly the eggs and lemon and stir over the fire until thick, watching carefully that the mixture does not scorch. When cold, spread upon cake layers. This is a delicious cake filling and universally liked.

The Vacation Season.

Those persons leaving town for a week, a month or a year, can have the STAR mailed to them free of postage by leaving or sending word to this office. Addresses will also be changed as often as desired.

To Reform the State.

Mr. Gamaliel Bradford, who has announced his candidacy for the office of Governor, cannot lay claim to modesty. He believes he has a mission to perform and that is to reform the State. He is an exceedingly picturesque person.

Winchester an Ideal Summer Home.

Those people who pass the summer in their own homes in Winchester are not to be pitied. Far from it. Here are to be had all the comforts of life, with no danger of being inocculated with fever germs, and compelled to sleep in eight by ten rooms on beds musty and damp and subsist on wretchedly cooked food. Winchester is an ideal summer home.

Needs Attention.

The glass plot between the walk to the station and Common street is in a very unkept condition. Tall weeds and ragged grass make an excellent catchall for paper and other refuse, which affords a striking contrast to the tidy and well kept common adjoining. A very little attention would make the mall very attractive, not only to the inhabitants but to the numerous passengers on the cars.

Sewer Assessment.

Our sewer assessment, annually, for the next five years will be $6522.08. Considering the great benefit to the town arising from the sewer, this tax cannot be considered burdensome. Only by such a comprehensive scheme as the Metropolitan sewer system, would it be possible for Winchester or the district to properly care for the sewerage. The only fault to be found is that many of the inhabitants are slow to recognize the beneficial effects by connecting their houses with it.

Pushing the Building of Main Street.

The Supt. of Streets and Selectmen are to be commended for the manner in which they are pushing the rebuilding of Main street from Symmes corner to the centre. This street, over which there is so much constant travel, could not well be continued for long in a state of disruption without inconvenience to all using it, and the Selectmen recognized this by employing two steam rollers to hasten the work, and the result has been remarkable progress.

Will Support Majority.

There seems to be a strong desire on the part of many of the substantial men in wards three and six, West Medford, to send Mr. S. W. Twombly back to the lower branch of the Legislature, and this has led to much feeling. Indications point to there being a split among the delegates to the convention over the matter, and should this take place, the question is being asked, what will be the position of the Winchester delegates? It can be said pretty correctly that the delegates from our town will support the majority vote of the Medford contingent, whoever the candidate may be.

Miss Annie Crawford and Miss Jessie Macdonald will start next Monday for Five Islands, Maine, where they will stay for two weeks.

Boat Club News.

Mr. Chas. Fletcher has received a new Morris canoe which is by far the handsomest boat yet put into the boat house. It is of regulation length 17 feet, and finished in mahogany, which with its dark green paint gives it a very handsome appearance.

It has been suggested by some of the members that it would be a good idea if some of those interested in improving the appearance of the boat house, group together and present the club with some marine pictures or other decorations suitable to represent what the club stands for, for the club hall, which is at present rather barren. This is a very good idea and a few pictures and flags would improve the looks of the hall immensely. Many members also think that a piano should be placed in the hall.

Mr. Farnum Dorsey is at Mudlunta Island, in the St. Lawrence River, at the camp of the American Canoe Association. The camp is between the Canadian and middle channel and about two miles south of Gananoque. Cruises will be made to the Thousand Islands and up the Gananoqe River. The camp will be broken up on the 23d. Mr. Paul Butler is also there as well as Mather and Hunter of the Medford club.

R. A. Cutter is attending the A. C. A. camp at Mudlunta Island.

"Charlie" Daly, who runs the public livery at Medford, is having some trouble with parties who hire boats from him and when through leave them at the Winchester Boat Club and take an electric home. These persons have been numerous of late and Steward Morris intends to put a stop to their actions.

The Boat Club will hold another Float night in September. It will be on a larger scale than that recently held, and promises to be a handsome affair.

The latest fad of the Medford boys is a natural shower bath. When in need of such refreshment they now go over to the dam and get under the falls where the water flows over the flash-boards. The "shower" is very thorough in its work and much fun is produced.

A new Morris canoe arrived at the club house this week for Miss Charlotte Skillings.

Golf Notes.

The Winchester Golf Club has issued the following list of fall fixtures:

Labor Day September 2.—At 9 a. m.: Driving contest to be followed immediately by an approaching and putting contest. The ladies are invited to take part in the approaching and putting competition. There will also be a driving contest for the ladies. Immediately following the above will be the regular men's eighteen hole handicap contest; in the afternoon, mixed foursomes.

Winchester Cup Championship (Scratch)

Preliminary rounds to be played between September 14th and 28th inclusive. One week will be allowed for each successive round. Play eighteen holes except finals, which will be thirty-six holes. Entries may be made to any member of the tournament committee up to and including September 12th.

Mixed Foursome Championship to be played during same period and under same conditions as given above for Winchester cup play, except that the finals shall be eighteen holes.

The postponed Ladies' Tournament will be played as follows: Preliminary rounds on Thursday, October 1st, first eight to qualify. All play to be finished by the Saturday following. Entries to all the above matches to be made to some member of the tournament committee.

Members are reminded that there is a handsome cup to be given for the best eighteen continuous holes played during the month of August. Hand'caps apply to this contest.

F. H. Rand, chairman, J. L. S. Barton, J. W. Russell, jr. C. Doubleday, F. L. Hunt, committee.

Are They of Public Benefit.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to ask through your columns, in view of the large sum that Winchester is called upon to pay for parks and boulevards, the practical question whether these have been of public benefit to the town, and if so, in what way.

There is nothing in the boulevards to draw the people there other than those owning carriages, there not even being seats to sit upon, and as for the beautiful Middlesex Fells, they might as well be situated in the Philippine Islands so far as they are of benefit to the public.

The Metropolitan Park Commissioners owe the public (who are paying for the privilege of owning the Fells) a duty in making them of easy access to the people by allowing trolly cars to run through from side to side and end to end. This is the trolley age, for where there is one person riding in a carriage there are thousands using the electric roads.

Let the parks and boulevards be for the use of the greatest number and not solely for the owners of carriages.

NATURE.

Sir Knights Will Go To Louisville, Ky.

Sir Knight Edwin Robinson of Hugh de Payens Commandery of Melrose has been appointed to serve as a staff officer and as chairman of the headquarters committee on supplies at the parade to be held in Louisville, Ky., during the week of Aug. 26. Sir Knight Henry Guy Young has been appointed a committee to look after the ladies of the commandery. The Knights and ladies will leave Boston Saturday Aug. 24. Those who will go from this town are Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Knapp and friend, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Symmes. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Symmes and Mr. Edwin Robinson. The Melrose Commandery will have in line 150 Sir Knights and will be accompanied by a brass band.

The Commandery will proceed to the Masonic Temple, Boston, where they will meet and escort the Grand Commander and staff to the South Station, also they will have with them Sir Knights from St. Omar Commandery of South Boston, and other commanderies.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. W. I. Kendall and family are passing two weeks at Long Island, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stearns of Mt. Pleasant street are at Chesterfield, N. H.

The Boston and Maine expects to spread about 300,000 gallons of crude oil upon its roadbed this season, and the tracks are now being prepared for this work.

Station agents on the Boston and Maine system are making every effort to capture a prize for the best floral display on station grounds. Winchester centre is hardly in it, although there is opportunity for effective work. Wedgemere has a good and artistic display.

Winchester will have six delegates to the Sixth Councillor District Convention. There is promise of a hot fight in the district.

There are no indications of a Trader's day for Winchester this year. The storekeepers appear to take but little interest in it, although the clerks do. Neither is there much interest in a Board of Trade, which might be of a great deal of benefit to the merchants.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Jones have gone to Magnolia, Ill., for several weeks. On the return trip they expect to take in the Pan-American exposition.

While two men were swimming on Upper Mystic Lake recently, one of them became almost exhausted. They started from the float near the Medford boat house and were making for the float at the "annex." When half-way across one of the men was feebler in his strokes and exclaimed that he was tired out. Encouraged by the other, who made for him at once, he tried to keep up, and succeeded until his companion reached him. A canoe was sent out from the "annex," to which the man clung and was towed to the floats. It was his first swim of the season and he had over-exerted himself.

Cars on the N. W. Division of the Boston & Northern Street Railway began making regular trips to Wilmington last week. The only break in the line is at the bridge in Wilmington which has to be crossed on foot, but will probably be completed in the course of a couple of weeks. It naturally necessitates a change of cars, but that annoyance will not last long. The completion of the road to Wilmington and Tewksbury is a great note for Woburn; likewise for the corporation. It makes a straight trolley line from Boston to Lowell and from thence to the four quarters of the earth. The people will do well to watch out for 15 minute trips from Woburn to Medford in the near future.—[Woburn Journal.

Mr. Frank Swan has had as guest this week Mrs. Leonard Phipps of South Framingham.

John Kelley was at the Mass. Gen., Hospital last week, suffering from typhoid fever.

The Misses Caroline and Kate Pond, with their mother are at Falmouth.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pressey and her daughter Helen, are in Exeter, N. H., and they will also visit Littleton and North Conway.

Mr. Arthur Saddler, the genial steward [illegible]

Last Sunday night a conductor attempted to put two ladies between the seats of a crowded electric car bound to Arlington. Two men in the seat objected, claiming that having paid their fares they were entitled to unobstructed seats until they reached their destinations. The conductor did not insist, so the ladies found standing room in another part of the car.

Misses Edith and Marion Marsh, Helen and Harriet Eustis, Helen Armstrong, and Messrs. Morton Seelye and Robert Armstrong have returned from near Frendship, Me., where they had been camping out.

Miss Doris Goddu, who was accidentally shot in the leg last week with an air gun in the hands of another child of about her age, has almost recovered from the wound.

Miss Marion Sinclair is at Sea View.

Miss Florence Plummer started Wednesday for Peabody where she will visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant and family will start the 18th for North Woodstock, N. H.

Mrs. Crawford of Washington street, has returned from Nova Scotia, where she made a very delightful visit to her old home.

Mrs. Chas. White and Miss Viola White have returned home from a fifteen days' trip to the Pan-American Exposition.

Miss Bessie Berry is spending a week or two in New Hampshire.

Miss Lillie Richardson will start Sunday for Buffalo, N. Y. After a brief inspection of the Pan-American Exposition, she will embark on a lake steamer sailing from the above city to Toledo.

Miss Grace Packer of Cambridge has returned to her home after a pleasant visit at the home of Miss Lillian Fisher, Highland avenue.

Newsy Paragraphs

A valuable black and tan dog, a pet, was run over and killed by an electric car on Washington street at the foot of Lincoln street last Sunday evening. The dog was standing on the track back to the approaching car, and the motorman neither sounded the gong nor made any attempt to stop the car, although he must have seen the dog if he had been attending to his duty. The gong should have been sounded when Lincoln street was approached it being absolutely necessary to do this at all side-hill streets to prevent possible accidents from teams coming down the hill. Had this been done the dog would not have been killed.

Mr. S. D. Leland has so far recovered from his prolonged and severe illness as to be able to take a carriage ride the first of the week.

Apparently nothing is being done in regard to the question as to where the permanent location of the plant of the United Shoe Machinery Company will be. It was thought that early in July this matter would be settled and the location determined upon, but up to the present time nothing appears to have been done, and the indications are that the McKay branch will stay in Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Redfern are expected home daily.

Master Carroll D. Newell, who last week took the first prize, (a beautiful silver cup) offered by the "Bay-side Golf club, has gone to Squirrel Island, Me., for the remainder of the season.

The path to Wedge Pond between the Congregational church and the Calumet Club House is being built this week. When the work is completed many of the residents will take the opportunity to witness the grand view of Wedge Pond as unfolded from the shore of the pond. It is a beautiful and restful place and in time will be much frequented. There will remain, however, much to be done to improve the location, and no doubt in time the club and the church will clear and grade their back lands which will give a handsome setting off to the two edifices. The club is contemplating building a driveway from the new path at the head of Dix street to connect with the present one leading from the street to the house. Carriages can then enter the club grounds without being obliged to turn around to get onto the street again.

Mr. P. J. Monahan, who resides on Nelson street, had a narrow escape from being run over by a train at the crossing Tuesday night, indeed so narrow was his escape that his hat was cut in two. He jumped from the train, but luckily escaped with a bad shaking up. It used to be quite common for passengers to ride to the crossing and then jump off but for the past year or two the practice has been discontinued to a great extent.

The work of laying the sewer under the Aberjona river at the foot of Mystic avenue is progressing quite rapidly. The job is very difficult on account of the depth of the water. The Metropolitan Water Board was asked to draw the water down in Mystic Lake so as to lower the water in the river but for some reason it was not done.

Mrs. J. Winslow Richardson and daughters, Edith and Florence leave tomorrow for a week at York Beach, Me.

Recently a lady after writing a message taken over the telephone, laid her pencil on top of the telephone box. Shortly after complaints commenced to arrive at the central station of telephones on that line being out of order. An employee was sent over the line to ascertain the trouble. One after another houses were visited but the cause of the defect was not found until the house of the writer of the message was visited where the employee discovered the pencil. He pronounced that the cause of the trouble. Another instance of throwing a line out of order was the placing of a gold watch on top of the telephone box.

Mr. John Perry, foreman at the Winchester Laundry, went to Waterville, Me., Tuesday night for a vacation of two weeks.

A new feed wire for the Winchester and Arlington electric railroad of 500,000 circle mills (whatever that means) was strung onto the poles this week. Suffice it to say that the new wire is three times more powerful than the old one, and that a much needed power will be given to the cars.

Miss Carrie Rice is at home from South Orange, N. J., where she is engaged in missionary work.

The old Parker house on Forest street has been sold to Mr. Farland.

In returning home from summer residences, the housekeeper may find that disagreeable, noxious odors have collected in the traps and pipes and permeated the house. To simply air out will not be sufficient, one must remove the cause, and this is most easily and safely accomplished by using the great cleanser and purifier, Cabot's Sulpho-Napthol, breaking up the processes of decomposition which result in the propagation of deadly disease germs. A little in the water to cleanse and purify everything and then poured into the traps will work astonishing results. You can obtain Sulpho-Napthol from all dealers or of Sulpho-Napthol Company, 4 Merrimac street, Boston. Be sure you obtain the original package.

The Judge is a Great Trolley Enthusiast.

When Judge George S. Littlefield of Winchester was met near the Woburn postoffice last Tuesday afternoon his face was beaming with happiness. He had tested before that day the virtues of every street railroad within 20 miles of Boston except the Lowell & Boston from Woburn to Burlington and a few moments before he was met at the P. O., he had returned from a trip to Burlington on that road. That, he said, completed the programme. Satisfaction settled serenely on his brow. But there awaited him a surprise which was also a regret, a disappointment, so to speak. It was not in the shape of an electric road exactly, but in that of a steam freight automobile, a new thing under the sun, and the first to appear in the vicinity of Boston. It was built for the Merrimac Chemical Company at North Woburn for the purpose of hauling the products of their extensive plant to Boston and made its first run on Tuesday afternoon. It carries from 5 to 10 tons of freight, and is itself, with its boiler, engine and machinery, a heavy concern. It does not run on tracks, but on the street surface, and as it goes ahead no wonder horses are frightened nearly out of their boots. It is said these cars are common in New Jersey, but not east of there. They are capable of running 10 or a dozen miles an hour loaded. The Merrimac Company propose to make two trips a day to Boston and the same to Lowell, 13 miles distant. They expect to save money by freighting their own productions, but it is a tough looking machine they are going to do it with. Judge Littlefield's disappointment consists in his inability to ride from Woburn to Winchester on that monster freight automobile.—[Woburn Journal.

The Suburban Train Service.

There is no longer an agitation of the suburban fares on the steam roads. The situation has suddenly changed. The popularity of the electrics has changed the whole course of traffic. In the summer the steam roads run at a loss. It is now a question of simply keeping on the present train service. The steam roads are taking off the trains because passengers are too few to pay the cost. Medford has lost her Sunday trains and a number of her mid-day trains during the week. On the other side of Boston, great numbers of trains have come off, because the roads say they cannot run them at a loss. We doubt if the electrics can hold the present traffic through the cold weather. Then we must have the steam roads. Somerville and Charlestown and some other places near to Boston, may get along with the electrics, but as far out as Melrose every effort should be made to have the present fine steam car service continued. The popular notion is that the steam roads can compete with the electrics, but the managers of the roads say that the fares cannot be reduced, and that the trains that do not pay expenses must come off.—[Melrose Journal.

Their Secret is Out.

All Sadieville, Ky., was curious to learn the cause of the vast improvement in the health of Mrs. S. P. Whittaker, who had for a long time, endured untold suffering from a chronic bronchial trouble. "It's all due to Dr. King's New Discovery," writes her husband. "It completely cured her and also cured our little granddaughter of a severe attack of Whooping Cough." It positively cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Play for the August cup offered by the Winchester Golf Club has begun in a small way. The July cup was won by J. L. S. Barton with a score of 77 — 8 — 69. There were no full scores for the month's play. Carroll Doubleday made an 82—8—74 early in the month, and, the fact being generally known, the club members did not try to reach figures below that score. In the later part of the month, however, Mr. Barton made his score, and was awarded the trophy.

Liberty Bell to Be Moved.

The old Liberty bell, familiar to all students of American history, that "proclaimed liberty throughout all the land to the inhabitants thereof" on July 4, 1776, is soon to take a trip from Philadelphia to Charleston. It is to be exhibited at the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition.

HAD NEVER BEEN ABROAD.

But For All That He Had Traveled "Fur and Wide."

"Have you spent all of your life right here in this one place?" asked a stranger of an old fellow he came across seated on a rail fence whittling in front of a log and slab cabin in one of the back counties of Arkansas.

"Not by a derned sight!" was the terse reply. "I been hyar the better part o' the time; but, la, I hev traveled fur an wide!"

"Ever been abroad?"

"Well, not eggsackly to say abroad, onless you call it goin abroad to go from here way over to Petersville. I been over thar twice in the last 40 year. It's 36½ miles to Peterville, an I been furder than that, fur my ole woman an me went clean to Hogback ridge on our weddin tower, an that's 41 mile from here. Then I been over in Pettis county to see my wife's folks twice, an that's twenty odd mile from here. Then I been over to Rocky Hill ez menny ez four times, an that's 18 mile. Ez I say, I been here most o' the time, but then I've traveled fur an wide all the same. I've seen the big four story mill over to Petersville an the engine kyars over to Peaville. I rid three miles on 'em, an it's all I want o' the pesky things. I've seen a calf with two heads an a feller that could eat fire and dance on broken glass in his bare feet. I see a man hung once an a hoss race fur a purse o' $65. Yes, sir; I been fur an wide, an I reckon I've seen the biggest part o' what there is to see in this world, an I don't lot on doin no more gaddin about."—Lippincott's.

The Giraffe's Timidity.

A giraffe is very timid on hearing slight sounds, but is indifferent to loud ones. A writer in The Leisure Hour says: "Noisy sounds, like a man walking by with hobnail boots, it does not notice, but a lady coming in with hardly more sound than the rustling of her dress makes it start, with pricked ears and eyes distended. We remember well, after a terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the canal, asking the keeper of the giraffes of that day how they had taken it, and he said he was surprised how very little notice they took. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once lay down again when they found nothing happened. "But," he added, "if I were at nighttime to creep along that gallery in my socks they would be so scared that I believe they would dash themselves to bits." They fear the lurking foe, and a bing bang scares them less than a faint, rustling sound. They are in that respect very deerlike."

The Bloodstone.

Bloodstone, which is really green chalcedony spotted with jasper, is accounted for by the following legend: At the crucifixion a piece of chalcedony lay at the foot of the cross, and on it dropped the Saviour's blood, from which time the stone is said to have borne red spots, which are supposed to increase and to deepen in color when danger is near. It is also said to revive the spirits and to inspire to great deeds, to check excessive bleeding and last, but not least, to render its wearer invisible at will.

Power Without Heat.

As we watch the world famous plunge of Niagara we are offered an impressive lesson as to the small value in heat of much motive power. In so far as the descent is perpendicular, so that the water leaves the foot of the falls with comparatively little current, the effect of the concussion is simply to warm the water through but one-sixth of a degree F. To heat the water as much as one degree the falls would have to be 777 feet in height.—George Iles in Everybody's Magazine.

When a man is going up hill, people dig ditches in front of him; when he starts down, they get out of his way and give him the whole road.—Denver Times.

HOME COURTESY.

Why should we treat those whom we love and with whom we associate familiarly every day with less courtesy than those who are almost strangers?

A few homes we have seen where pleasant politeness and uniform courtesy was the rule; but usually the more constant our intercourse with a person, the less is the care to be courteous. This is not because we love the strangers more or do not wish to retain the good opinion and love of our friends and family. It seems to proceed rather from an almost unconscious perception that the only opportunity we shall have to make a good impression on strangers is by our courteous manner in the few occasions we have to meet them; while we feel secure in the love of our families, and are not impressed with a need for treating them with even the ordinary forms of politeness. In many families where genuine respect and love prevails, the habitual manner of the members toward each other is such as to seem to visitors really rude. Think over carefully your usual manner of speaking to the members of your own household circle, and compare it fairly with your manner toward those whom you meet elsewhere. Perhaps you may be startled at the contrast. If you are, try the effect of a reasonable and easy adaptation of your "society manners" to the members of your own family. They also may be startled at first, but you may be surprised again to find how well they will like it.

LITTLE KINDNESSES.

You gave on the way a pleasant smile
And thought no more about it;
It cheered a life that was sad the while
That might have been wrecked without it;
And so for the smile and its fruitage fair
You'll reap a crown some time—somewhere.

You spoke one day a cheering word,
And passed to other duties,
It warmed a heart, new promise stirred,
And painted a life with beauties,
And so for the word and silent prayer
You'll reap a palm some time—somewhere.

You lent a hand to a fallen one,
A lift in kindness given;
It saved a soul when help was none,
And won a heart for heaven;
And so for the help you proffered there
You'll reap a joy some time—somewhere.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A few of the side hill streets still have gutters choked with grass and weeds so that the water runs on the street and washes it. It costs much less to keep gutters in condition than to repair the streets. Most of the gutters have been attended to, but there are a few bad ones yet.

Gam. Bradford is right when he says this year's campaign should be fought on state issues, and there are plenty of them. One thing to find out is whether or not the Democratic party believes in the referendum, and if it does, why its representatives in the legislature vote against it. McNary can answer this latter question, but he wont. Why?

Our Common would be of much more use, and I believe the change would be satisfactory to our citizens, if there were numerous settees placed upon it. Now there is not a place anywhere about the centre where people can sit down awhile although many like to go to the centre now and then and watch the passing and meet friends.

Gates are down so much and so long at the railroad crossing that it is about time to agitate their abolition. On account of the large traffic on the electrics the number of people discommoded is very great and as it has got to come the sooner it is abolished the better.

The plan is for the Metropolitan Park Board and the town of Winchester to buy the ponds, and if I owned land under water, which I could neither drain or fill, I think I should sell it if I was fortunate enough to strike a customer. Of course there is value to the water power but it cannot be so very great. But we want Manchester Field finished before we do anything more on this line.

Somehow or other those fire horses improved wonderfully after town meeting, and now tis said they are not to be replaced with new ones. Well, perhaps the board can get five hundred dollars again next year, for as the horses will be older still, then the argument will be stronger. Why shouldn't the insurance companies pay for the fire department? It is all for their benefit.

If the edge stone around the Common was re-hammered it would improve its appearance very much. It has now the color of an old stone wall.

Has the Metropolitan Park Board done all the work it is going to this year on Manchester Field and the grounds below? How about filling in and fixing up the Ginn gift of land north of the Mystic station?

Mr. Twombly of Winchester.

Samuel W. Twombly of Winchester, dean of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, paid a visit to the committee on the Revised Laws at the State House yesterday and exchanged innumerable greetings with his fellow statesmen who have come to entertain for him the warmest affection. It is now talk that the venerable representative will be sent to Beacon Hill for a third term. He is a man of leisure. Notwithstanding that he is one of the oldest men filling an elective State office, he is as spry and useful as any other man. In fact the thought of a third term has been suggested by Mr. Twombly's success in getting through legislation some of which had been hanging fire for years.

His most important work was in connection with the bill for the construction of the Wellington Bridge, a matter which had been in controversy for a long while and which finally was settled to complete satisfaction of the cities interested, Somerville and Medford. Mr. Twombly's district consists of Winchester and wards 3 and 6 of Medford and it is from the Medford men, to whom Mr. Twombly has given such service, that the third term proposition comes. Winchester has had the office two years and will not, of course attempt to interfere with the prerogative of Medford to name the next member, but should the Medford delegates or any of them favor Mr. Twombly, the eleven Winchester delegates will stand by him. The voters of the state are growing more liberal every year in the extension of terms of service, in recognition of the fact that an experienced man, if he has shown any capability at all can do more for them than a new one.—[Boston Transcript.

Sunday Fishing.

The deputies appointed for the enforcement of the laws affecting fish and game throughout the state have been advised by the State Commissioners that they do not feel it incumbent upon them to prosecute offenders against the Sunday fishing laws and that cases now in court will be withdrawn. According to this those wishing to go fishing can do so without fear of being arrested or being hauled into court. Hitherto it was not necessary to be in the act of fishing in order to be placed under arrest. Any fisherman caught in the act of baiting a hook or having bait and lines aboard his boat was subjected to arrest and subsequent fine, not to speak of the inconvenience of being carried to some lockup in a surburban town and the attendant trouble of procuring bail. During the summer months there was hardly a Sunday that large numbers of people were not caught in the act of fishing in some quiet spot along the coast or harbor front.

Changes in Age Limits for Clerk and Carrier. Postoffice Service.

The Civil Service Commission announces that in accordance with an amendment to the rules made by the President on August 1, 1901, applications will hereafter be accepted for the grades of Clerk and Carrier from persons between the ages of 18 and 45 years. By this change a maximum limit has been placed on clerks; the maximum limit for carriers reduced from 21 to 18 years, and the maximum extended from 40 to 45 years.

The age limits are waived in connection with those persons who were discharged from the military or naval service of the United States by reason of disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty, as provided for by Section 1754 R. S.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by Young and Brown.

Senseless Resolutions.

The Arlington Enterprise severely arraigns the at times ludicrous custom of passing resolutions in the cases of violent deaths of departed friends. The paper says:

We now have in mind the introductory resolution recently adopted by the Ancient Order of Hibernians in loving memory to the late Garrett J. Cody. The resolution to which we refer is very like all resolutions adopted on similar occasions. It reads this way: Whereas, the Great and Supreme Ruler of the Universe has in his infinite wisdom removed from among us one of our worthy and esteemed brothers, Garrett J. Cody," and then follows the main body of the resolution so justly expressive of the love and esteem in which the precious dead is held. If it be true that God removed from this earthly life the late Garrett J. Cody, then it is just as true that the prisoner Smith was made His chosen instrument in firing that cowardly and deadly shot, and if this be true, then Smith should at once be released from jail, and go a free man wherever he chooses. More than this—for, as a logical sequence, he, Smith, should be looked upon with favor for becoming the instrument of the Lord in carrying out His will. Let us have done not only with this absolute nonsense, but with this wicked injustice to a God of common sense and of fatherly love. Who in Arlington for a moment believes that God had anything to do in the shooting and killing of the late Garrett J. Cody? Could God's will have been carried out, Garrett J. Cody would unquestionably be living today. This imputing to the Lord whatever may be done, as the doing of His holy will belongs to an age way back in the centuries; and yet we are aware that most of our clergymen will pray alongside the dead that "we may be enabled to bow submissively to the will of God, who, in His infinite wisdom, has removed the dear brother whose lifeless remains now await the grave." What wicked trash is all this!

Horace Mann truly and reverently said in an address given in Boston in the forties, concerning the purposes and will of God, that "the providence of God had no more to do with the fact that one-fourth of the human family die before completing the age of one year than it has to do with picking pockets and stealing horses." Much less has it to do with shooting the faithful servant while in the performance of his duty. Many of the notions concerning God have come down to us from a barbarous and superstitious age, and they unfortunately stick to us. Why not be sensible, and so recognize that God's will in its entirety is not being done here on the earth. God is not pleased with the death of His servant. With Him, the Infinite One, the law of all being is life; death is but a negation of the everlasting fact. That introductory resolution should read something after this manner: Whereas, the brave and faithful patrolman, Garrett J. Cody, was cruelly shot down while in the performance of his duty, against the will and infinite wisdom of God therefore, be it resolved that no lawful means shall be wanting in bringing to speedy justice the perpetrator of the wicked deed by which the brave Cody met his death, and thus seeing that the will of God is done in so far as the penalty of the law is concerned, in its relation to Smith, who fired the shot." And then should follow, as now, those expressions of sympathy and love for the bereaved family. We have a God of love and justice; so let us have a care that we do not impute to Him all the evil devices of men.

A Singular Illusion.

A singular illusion happened one night last week. Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson, who lives on Stevens street, was awakened at about minnight by the excited conversation of two men on the street, one of whom suggested that as Mr. Sanderson had a telephone the quickest way would be to awaken him and send the message. Mr. Sanderson quickly arose and stepping to the window observed that the house of Mr. Thomas Connors close by appeared to be a mass of flame with showers of sparks falling. Without losing any time he called up Central when he soon had the fire station, and informed the men that there was a fire on Stevens street. The firemen quickly responded on the still alarm, and on the way saw the supposed fire. Mr. Sanderson also communicated with the electric light station and asked them to turn off the current as there was a fire on Stevens street. A closer inspection of the supposed fire revealed the fact that an electric light wire had come into contact with a tree close to the house, and the reflection of the flames and sparks had produced a most effective impression that the house was on fire. After the current was turned off the illusion disappeared. A citizen in the centre of the town also saw the bright light and so confident was he that there was a fire that he hastened to the scene.

The limb of the tree that had come into contact with the wire has been removed. It was however a very realistic deception, which caused quite a little excitement in the neighborhood for a time.

Making Steel Rails.

The rail mill presents many pictures that appeal strongly to lovers of the picturesque. Under ordinary circumstances the great strands of iron, each half as long as a city block, slide back and forth smoothly enough between the rolls that are stretching them and pressing them into the required shape, but a tiny obstacle may at any moment turn one of these cables of fire off the beaten track and twist it into a hopeless tangle or wind it like a squirming snake around some unfortunate workman.

When the rolling process has been completed the piece of iron slides along to the great buzzsaws, which cut it into 30 foot rails known to the railway traveller.

Every time the whirling circular saw clips off one of these lengths, sparks radiate in every direction, as though the biggest pyrotechnical pinwheel ever devised had been suddenly set in motion.

When the rail has been cooled and holes have been drilled in it, it is ready to start for any part of the world. The evolution of bars or beams or sheets from the big steel slabs is gained by the same general method of procedure.

It is the size and shape of the grooves in the rolls which determine the form to be ultimately assumed by the steel in their clutches.—[Century Magazine.

Mission Work.

The Highland Bethany Y. P. S. C. E. entertained twenty-one children from the Parmenter street North End Mission, Wednesday. These children were the flower distributors, who came from their homes in the North End to the Mission, to distribute the flowers among the tenement houses where the sick are. The flowers are sorted, the most fragrant being sent to the blind, the choicest to the sick and the rest where they are most needed. The resident worker, Miss Barker, came with them, she is the supervisor over the classes in the winter, and visits the sick and takes the children for outings in the summer.

The pine grove near the north reservoir was the place selected for the grounds. The children came out from Boston in the nine o'clock train, the Endeavorers being at the station to meet them and escorting them to the grove where the children proceeded to make themselves at home. They were all girls ranging from eight to fourteen years of age. They played games and enjoyed themselves generally until luncheon time. Afterwards a walk was taken to Wyman's observatory, and on the way home they gathered a great bunch of goldenrod to take home with them. They are well trained in singing and reciting, having a club for this purpose. Mrs. T. P. Wilson had very kindly planned a suprise for them, before they started for the train, each being presented by her with a flag, a horn, and a Youth's Companion as souvenirs of the occasion. A vote of thanks is extended to all those who helped to make it a success especially to the chairman of the Missionary Committee who planned it.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the children gouped on the hillside, singing, while supper was being made ready down by the edge of the pond. Rachel and Etta Borofsky and Lillie Spiller gave all pleasure with their songs and recitations.

Harrold Prescott Shot.

Thursday noon over on the hill on the west side of the town near the old Myopia club house occurred one of those distressing shooting accidents occasioned by young boys carrying revolvers and which custom is altogether too common. Give a young boy a pistol or a gun and he immediately assumes an air of bravado. Harrold Prescott of Yale street and Masters Bean and Stone and two other boys have a camp on the hill, and Thursday noon as they were preparing to serve luuch, two boys living in Somerville named Albert Cann and Bismark Henderson, aged about 13 years, put in an appearance armed with revolvers. For some cause or other there was a dispute followed by heated argument, whereupon one of the boys whipped out his revolver and it went off, purposely or accidentally, is not certain, however, the bullet passed through the leg of the Prescott boy.

Dr. Church was summoned and dressed the wound, and if blood poisoning should not set in the injured boy will recover all right.

When the boys saw what they had done they were extremely penitent and pleaded not to be arrested.

As soon as Chief McIntosh heard of the shooting he started for the scene, but the boys had departed and could not be found after long search. The chief is after them today, when they will certainly be found.

Lawn Party This Evening.

A grand lawn-party will be held on the McKenzie estate Linden street, Friday evening Aug. 16, for the benefit of the Holy Ghost Hospital, Cambridge, under the auspices of Winchester Branch H. G. A. Society.

The afternoon will be given over to a hurdy-gurdy party and sports for the children. Great interest centres in the tug-of-war contests to be held in the evening for which four strong teams entered. Refreshments and dancing will round out the evening's amusements.

Floor director, Chas. J. Harrold, asst. director, Helen E. Daly, aids Misses Agnes O'Leary, Rose Walsh, Mary A. Lyons, Alice L. Kermode, Mary Gillespie, Hannah Sullivan, Hannah O'Hara, Margaret Lambker, Margaret O'Rourke, Margaret M. Doyle, Josephine Bowler. Messrs. John T. Cosgrove, Benj. F. Matthews, J. J. Sullivan, J. M. Donahue, M. J. Dennen, M. E. O'Leary, D. F. Foley, J. F. O'Connor, W. W. Ledwidge, M. S. Nelson, P. W. Reardon, A. W. Rooney, J. Frank Davis, John Greenhalge.

The September Smart Set.

The September number of The Smart Set fully sustains the reputation of that fascinating magazine for vivacity and cleverness. The number opens with an amusing novelette by Caroline Duer, entitled "A New Bonnet for Mary." The adventures of the ingenuous and unconventional heroine, a society heiress, who assumes to be a dressmaker's assistant for sweet charity's sake, and dramatically assists in the recovery of a large quantity of stolen gems, are diverting to a degree.

Prince Vladimir Vaniatsky contributes a strange tale called "The Queen of the Far Country." Other features of this attractive issue are: "Underbrush," a mystery of the woods, by Julien Gordon (Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger); "His Prophylactic Flirtation," the wooing of a delightful duchess, by Guy Somerville; "The Transmogrification of Dan," a San Francisco story, by H. J. W. Dam; "Brocton Mott, Realist," a $100 prize story, by Kate Jordon; "The Companion to Virtue," by Gertrude F. Lynch; and "The Picture Over the Mantel," an idyllic love story of Paris, by Justus Miles Forman. The leading poems are "The Wish that Came True," by Guy Wetmore Carryl; "Twilight in the City," by Clinton Scollard; "Marionettes," by Theodosia Garrison; "Compensation," by Paul Laurence Dunbar; "The Supreme Hour," by Madison Cawein, and "Fulfilment," by Duffield Osborne.

Political Calendar.

The calendar of political fixtures for the fall campaign, so far as they effect Winchester, is as follows:

Sept. 25—All Republican caucuses for the choice of delegates to conventions and the nomination in caucuses of candidates for the General Court, must be held on this date.

Sept. 29—Earliest day for calling Republican conventions, except representative conventions.

Oct. 2—Earliest day for holding Republican representative conventions.

Oct. 4—10 a. m., Republican state convention in the Boston Theatre.

Oct. 5—Latest day for calling conventions for nominations of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth. Must be called before 5 p. m.

Oct. 6—Last day for registrars of voters in every city and town, except Boston, to post in each voting precinct preliminary alphabetical list of voters.

Oct. 7—Certificates of nomination for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth must be filed at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth before 5 p. m.

Oct. 14—Nomination papers for nominations of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth must be filed at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth before 5 p. m.

Oct. 15—Last day for appointing election officers in towns.

Oct. 15—Last day for calling conventions for nominations of candidates for state offices, others than those to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth, must be called before 5 p. m.

Oct. 26—Last day for registration in all towns. On this day registrars must hold a continuous session from 12 m. to 10 p. m., when registration must cease.

Nov. 1.—Last day for filling vacancies among election officers.

Nov. 1—Last day for filing complaint against incorrect and illegal registration in towns.

Nov. 5—State election.

THE ISLAND OF TAHITI.

It May Be Rightly Termed the Paradise of the Pacific.

Picture an island set in a reef of coral of myriad hues—the lagoon of a light green, outside the white foaming breakers the vast ocean of intense blue. On shore are great bunches of cocoanut palms lifting their plumes in stately magnificence, then there are lanes of trees blossoming in red and yellow flowers, and nestling in their midst are the low thatched houses of the natives. The delightful and healthy climate of the island brings to maturity all the products of the tropics, which are nowhere found in greater fullness and perfection than here. The wayfarer is soothed by the fragrance of sweet smelling flowers and delighted with the abundance of oranges, bananas, breadfruit and cocoanut which give a perennial supply of food to the natives.

Tahiti may be rightly termed the "paradise of the Pacific" or even the world, as in no other place is there so much variety of scenery. At every turn the constant surprises keep the traveler in a delirium of delight. Sometimes the sea lies before him, the waves wreathed in a foam of white breaking the silence in a continuous roar; on the other side the high, steep mountains in forms of towers, domes and steeples pierce the clouds. Now and then a silvery band of water falls from perpendicular heights to the turbulent stream below. Then you pass under the sheltering shadows of tall interlacing trees which excel even the grandeur of our elm. Farther on you pass through lanes lined with bananas, mango and groves of cocoanut.—Overland Monthly.

Where—Oh, Where?

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"Blowed if I know! Ask the calf!"—Boston Globe.

Without a Ring.

A wedding without a ring seems incongruous, but in Cadiz, Spain, no ring is used. After the ceremony the bridegroom moves the flower in his bride's hair from left to right, for in various parts of Spain to wear a rose above your right ear is to proclaim yourself a wife. Thus the rose takes the place of the ring.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Edmund Sanderson, late of Winchester in said County, deceased:

Whereas, certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament—and codicil—of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Henry A. Emerson and William B. Simonds, of said Winchester, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the third day of September, A.D. 1901, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week for three successive weeks in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this thirty-first day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.

A NEAT COTTAGE.

Seven Room Dwelling Designed For a City Lot, to Cost $1,800.

In building small and inexpensive houses simplicity must be the guide. Rich ornaments and details are of necessity prohibited and would really be out of place if used. A good designer must possess the faculty of being able to conceive the proper thing and to put it in its appropriate place. This qualification may really be termed "common sense." Architects are prone to use too much ornament, while a builder's designs usually exhibit a lack of proportion and a barrenness of detail and ornament, which illustrate the intensely practical side of it with a strict view to economy. A happy medium between these two extremes gives the best results.

Here is a little house designed to be erected upon an ordinary city lot of 25 feet frontage. The building itself is 17 feet wide, thus leaving an open space or passageway of four feet on each side. If so desired, the house can be placed nearer to the lot line on one side, leaving a wide passage on the other. This is a matter of taste, however, and can always be arranged to suit the owner.

In the first story of this house are three rooms in addition to the halls, pantry and closets. The second story has one large chamber in front and two good sized bedrooms and a bathroom above the dining room and kitchen respectively, with halls and wardrobe closets. There is one finished room and an unfinished storeroom in the attic.

A two story bay window lights the parlor and second story front chamber and adds picturesque beauty to the building. The main part of the building is gambrel roofed from front to rear, the front slope of same extending down so as to form a roof to the porch, which protects the front door. From this porch you pass into the main hall, which in this case is a mere passage leading to the inclosed stairway at the back. From this hall you may enter the parlor or dining room. The parlor is octagon shaped on the plan, with an open fireplace in one corner.

The dining room is octagon shaped at one end, with a china closet in one corner. A door from the dining room communicates with the kitchen at the back. The pantry is placed in convenient proximity to both dining room and kitchen and is fitted up with the usual number of shelves and drawers for cutlery, meal and flour bins.

A cellar extends under the entire house and has a concrete floor. The foundation walls are of brick. The building above the foundations is of wood. The side walls and gables are sheathed and papered and clapboarded in the first story and shingled in the second story; roofs shingled on shingle laths. The inside walls and ceilings are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar. The handrails of the stairs are of cherry; treads and risers of yellow pine; outside doors of white pine; all floors of yellow pine. All other inside woodwork is of cypress, filled, stained and varnished.

It has all the modern improvements in the way of plumbing, gas fitting and electric bells. All outside woodwork is of white pine, painted in two shades of brown, with moldings picked out in black. This house is very cozy and attractive and would make a comfortable home for a person in moderate circumstances. It costs $1,800 to build.

Log Cabins Ready Made.

One can buy a log cabin of hickory ready made, already marked for the country carpenter to put into position, and it will cost anywhere from a little over $100 to $600 or $700. This will include piazza, latch windows—everything practically but the floor and fireplace. Flower boxes are made in the rustic designs of hickory, summer houses and even reading nests, with accompanying ladders, to be put in the trees.—Philadelphia Times.

Ventilation.

Ventilation is often a great bugbear to people who are planning inexpensive homes. It ought not to be. If your architect does not know and show a willingness to thoroughly explain how it is to be secured, write to or see an expert on the subject. It will not be costly advice, and the benefit to your home will be amply large to fully justify it.

He Was Fresh.

"Have you any nice fresh eggs today?" asked the woman with businesslike ways.

"Madam," answered the man, who has just started in the grocery business, "permit me to remind you that nice eggs are necessarily fresh and fresh eggs are always nice. Moreover, if I have any, I have them today. My possession of eggs yesterday or tomorrow does not in the slightest degree affect the situation. Therefore, time being precious to a business man, I will simply content myself with replying that I have nice eggs."—Washington Star.

Reading, Talking and Writing.

Reading serves for delight, for ornament and for ability. It perfects nature and is perfected by experience. The crafty condemn it, the simple admire it, and the wise use it. Reading makes a full man, conference a ready man and writing an exact man. He that writes little needs a great memory; he that confers little a present wit, and he that reads little needs much cunning to make him seem to know that which he does not.—Bacon.

ADULTERATED COFFEE

GROCER WHITE FOUND GUILTY OF VIOLATING OHIO'S PURE FOOD LAWS.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Roasting of Coffee Brought Out by Scientific Experts—Presence of Bacteria.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 3.—The jury in Judge Meck's court in this city has found James White, a local grocer, guilty of selling adulterated coffee. The prosecution was based on a package of Arbuckles Ariosa coffee.

The State of Ohio, through the Pure Food Commission, prosecuted White. The case was on trial for nearly a month and attracted national attention.

The manufacturers of Ariosa coffee conducted the defense for Grocer White. The best attorneys in the country were retained to defend him, but, after a short consultation, a verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. The State of Ohio considers this a big victory. Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn has been waging a warfare on spurious food articles and the department has been successful.

The complaint of the State of Ohio was that Ariosa coffee was coated with a substance which concealed defects in the coffee and made it appear better than it is. The State charged this coating or glazing was a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria.

Prof. G. A. Kirchmaier, of this city, a well known chemist, was the principal witness for the State. He had made scientific examinations of samples of Ariosa purchased from Grocer White in the open market. He found that each Ariosa berry contained an average of 300 bacteria. Mr. Kirchmaier further testified that other coffees he examined contained few bacteria or none at all. He declared that the glazed coffee was not a wholesome food product.

Chemist Schmidt, of Cincinnati, corroborated the testimony of Prof. Kirchmaier. The State did not present further testimony.

The defense through the Arbuckles, who prepared this glazed coffee, secured some of the most eminent chemists and scientists in the United States to give testimony in their behalf. Prof. H. W. Wiley, of the United States Agricultural Department; Prof. Vaughn of Ann Arbor University; Profs. Bleile and Webber, of the Ohio State University, were called to defend Ariosa. Dr. Wiley had made a careful examination of the method of manufacturing Ariosa. He told of the 19,000,000 eggs used by the Arbuckles yearly in the preparation of this glazing. On this point in cross examination, the State's attorney deftly drew from him the information that these eggs might be kept in cold storage by the Arbuckles for a year or two at a time.

The experts who heard Dr. Wiley's testimony were pleased to be able to "catch" so famous a chemist. The doctor at one point in his testimony explained very clearly how it is that the egg put into the coffee pot by the house wife settles the coffee. He said that the heat coagulates the egg, and as it sinks to the bottom of the pot it carries the fine particles of coffee with it, and thus clarifies the drink. It is the act of coagulation in the coffee pot that does the work. Later on in his cross examination, he had to admit that when the egg was put on Ariosa coffee at the factory it became coagulated, and as egg cannot be coagulated but once, that the coating on coffee was practically no value, as a "settler" when it reached the coffee pot.

Prof. Wiley acknowledged that the glazing might be a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria, although he would not testify positively either way because he was not a bacteriologist.

Prof. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor, also a witness for the Arbuckles, said he found bacteria on Ariosa coffee.

Prof. Bleile, another witness for the defense, found any number of lively bacteria on Ariosa coffee he examined, and he agreed that glazed coffee surely was a more favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria than unglazed coffee.

Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn says: "The State is very much elated over its victory against this corporation. We are now considering the advisability of informing every grocer in the State of Ohio that it is an infraction of the laws to sell Ariosa, and at the same time give warning to consumers that the coffee is an adulterated food article."

The verdict of the jury in this case is of national importance because a great many other States have pure food laws like that of Ohio, and it is natural to suppose that similar action will be taken by other Pure Food Commissioners to prevent the sale of glazed coffees.

Washington's Fastidious Kinsman.

Lawrence, earl of Ferrers, a distant relative of George Washington, had a most tyrannical temper, and one day in a fit of passion he cut down with his sword his steward, an old gentleman named Johnson. The latter had given no provocation for the deed, and the crime was an act of brutality inexcusable save that the earl may not have been well balanced mentally. He was brought to trial for killing Johnson and demanded and received the privilege of being tried by his peers.

The house of lords was thronged during the hearing. The evidence proved to be conclusive, and Ferrers was sentenced to be hanged at Tyburn. Appeals were made to the king for clemency, but in vain. Ferrers met his fate with considerable bravado. He was carefully attired for the occasion and insisted on providing a silken cord for the ceremony. To this whim the executioner agreed, and the earl was turned off otherwise like any other felon.

LESSON VII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 18.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xviii, 16-33. Memory Verses, 23-25—Golden Text, Jas. v, 16—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

16-19. "And the Lord said, Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?" We must suppose that the lesson committee did the best they knew how in selecting the portions which they have assigned to us for study, but how they could be led to omit such a portion as chapter xvii is something of a mystery. We trust that all teachers will think it worth while to look at the portions passed over. Last week's lesson showed us Abram made sure, as we supposed, by the Lord's message that all would be as God had said, yet in chapter xvi we read that he turned from God to listen to an earthly suggestion, which brought much trouble into his household and led to an interval of 13 years in his life of which we know nothing. Compare xvi, 16, and xvii, 1; Jer. xvii, 5. In chapter xvii the Lord appears to him under a new name, the Almighty God (El-Shaddai), the Mighty God who is all sufficient, confirming and stating more fully the covenant and giving him the token which signified death to the flesh (Col. ii, 11); giving him also a new name by putting the principal letter of His own name Jehovah (Jhvh) in the midst of his old name Abram. We cannot know the all sufficiency of God till we are willing to have done with self and walk before Him. Sarai's name is also changed, and Abraham is assured that the time has come and within a year Sarah shall bear to him the promised son. The visit of the Lord and the two other heavenly ones to Abraham in the heat of the day, their acceptance of Abraham's hospitality and the message to Abraham confirmed to Sarah lead us to the beginning of today's lesson. Let the Lord's question to Sarah in verse 14, first clause, along with Jer. xxxii, 17, and John xiv, 13, 14, lead us to expect great things from God.

20, 21. The Lord is a righteous judge and speaks of Himself here as carefully inquiring into matters. He shall not judge after the sight of His eyes neither reprove after the hearing of His ears, but with righteousness shall He judge (Isa. xi, 3, 4). Everything on earth cries to Him, and He hears and will in due time see to it. Note carefully Gen. iv, 10; Ex. iii, 7; Hab. ii, 11; Jas. v, 4; also creation's groans in Rom. viii, 22. God hears it all.

22. "Abraham stood yet before the Lord." The other two visitors went toward Sodom, and their visit to Lot and his rescue by them are recorded in the next chapter, references to which we find from the Lord Himself in Luke xvii, 28-32. Abraham standing before God makes us think of Elijah and Elisha and also of Gabriel (I Kings xvii, 1; II Kings iii, 14; Luke i, 19). To appropriate and live in the power of Ps. xvi, 8, is a very proper and helpful thing to do, remembering that the Lord seeth not as man seeth, for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh upon the heart (I Sam. xvi, 7). He says, "Lo, I am with you alway."

23-26. "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" In the rest of our lesson we see Abraham as the intercessor, as we afterward see Moses, Samuel, Daniel and others, all typical of Him who ever liveth to make intercession for us (Rom. viii, 34; Heb. vii, 25). We read that Abraham drew near, and it is our privilege to draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, and to come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need (Heb. x, 22; iv, 16). We may come not only for ourselves, but for others. We may forget ourselves and live chiefly for others, and the more we renounce self and live for others the more we shall be like Him who never pleased Himself nor sought His own will nor His own glory (Rom. xv, 3; John vi, 38; viii, 50). By His precious blood He has made us nigh who once were far off and has given us access to God at all times (Eph. ii, 13; Rom. v, 2), with such blessed assurances for our encouragement as John xiv, 13, 14; xv, 7, 16; Mark xi, 24; I John v, 14, 15.

27-32. Fearing that there may not be 50 righteous in Sodom, Abraham continues to plead that the Lord will spare the city for the sake of 45, 40, 30, 20, 10, and the Lord said that He would spare the city if ten righteous people were found in it. Six times Abraham pleads. Some wonder how it might have been if he had still kept on, but it would appear that Lot was the only righteous man in the city, and we would not have known that he was righteous but for II Pet. ii, 7, 8. It would seem that his wife and two daughters were delivered for his sake and that he was delivered for Abraham's sake (chapter xix, 12, 29). That the righteous by their intercession can bring blessing to others is evident from the record of the centurion, the woman of Tyre and Sidan, the four friends (Math. viii, 10; ix, 2; xv, 28). That there may be such a state of affairs that even the prayers of the righteous cannot avail we learn from Jer. xv, 1; Ezek. xiv, 14, 20, where we see that such men as Moses, Samuel, Noah, Daniel or Job could not bring deliverance. Abraham did not plead on the ground of any goodness in himself, for he spoke of himself as but dust and ashes (verse 27), but only on the ground of the great need and the righteousness of God. We may learn a good lesson in pleading from Jeremiah, who said, "O Lord, though our iniquities testify against us, do Thou it for Thy name's sake" (Jer. xiv, 7). In Jesus' name is our great strength.

33. "And the Lord went His way as soon as He had left communing with Abraham, and Abraham returned unto his place." How near heaven is brought to earth in these interviews of God with Abraham and others! And it is the privilege of every believer to walk with God in constant communion (Gen. v, 24; vi, 9; Mic. vi, 8). It is to be feared that the majority of the righteous are like Lot in Sodom, so mixed up with the ungodly that they bear no testimony for God, while but few are like Abraham at Hebron, living above the world in fellowship with God, for this is a narrow way, and few there be that find it. Let every child of God remember that He has redeemed us to be a people for His own possession, set apart for Himself, not conformed to this world (Titus ii, 14, R. V.; Ps. iv, 3; Rom. xii, 1, 2), and let us trust Him to make us willing (Ps. cx, 3) to be all that He desires us to be, living no longer unto this world or unto ourselves, but unto Him alone.

WOMEN PROTEST

Against Regulated Vice in Our New Possessions.

The following resolutions were adopted by the National Suffrage Association at its annual convention in Minneapolis, May 30 to June 6, 1901.

Whereas, Judge Taft and the Philippine Commissioners, in a telegram to Secretary Root dated January 17, 1901, affirm that ever since November, 1898, the military authorities in Manila have subjected women of bad character to "certified examination," and Gen. MacArthur in his recent report does not deny this, but defends it; and whereas the Hawaiian government has taken similar action; therefore

Resolved, That we earnestly protest against the introduction of the European system of State regulated vice in the new possessions of the United States, for the following reasons:

1. To subject women of bad character to regular examination and furnish them with official health certificates is contrary to good morals, and must impress both our soldiers and the natives as giving official sanction to vice.

2. It is a violation of justice to apply to vicious women compulsory medical measures that are not applied to vicious men.

3. Official regulation of vice, while it lowers the moral tone of the community everywhere fails to protect the public health. In Paris, the head centre of the system, rigid regulations has prevailed for more than a century, yet that city is scourged to a notorious degree by the class of maladies against which regulation is designed to guard, and the Municipal Council of Paris has repeatedly recommended its abolition. England tried it in her garrison towns, for the benefit of her soldiers, and sailors, and repealed it by a heavy Parliamentary majority, after seventeen years' experience had proved it to be a complete sanitary failure, as well as a fruitful source of demoralization. It has been repealed throughout Switzerland, except in Geneva, and is the object of a strong and growing opposition in every country where it still prevails. State-supervised vice is contrary to the spirit of American institutions, and in St. Louis, the only city in the United States that ever tried the system, it was abolished at the end of four years, with only one dissenting vote in the county council. The United States should not adopt a method that Europe is discarding, nor introduce in our foreign dependencies a system that would not be tolerated at home. We protest in the name of American womanhood; and we believe that this protest represents also the opinion of the best American manhood.

Illegal Voting.

In April a woman in Denver was arrested for illegal voting, and this incident gave the editors who are opposed to woman suffrage the chance they had been watching and longing for. Such hysterics, such emotionalism if displayed by a lot of women would have been seized upon as proof positive that they were unfit to cast a ballot. Take the Milwaukee Sentinel, for instance:

"Thanks to an overwhelming vote, it will not be possible for the police to enter a happy home in Wisconsin, arrest the housewife and take her off in a patrol wagon. Under equal suffrage conditions, a woman may be torn away from her children, even on a baking or a washing day to answer cruel charges preferred by persons belonging to a rival political party. Our legislators have prevented all possibility of such incidents as that just reported from Denver. They may not always exhibit wisdom, but in this case who shall criticise them? They have averted what might have resulted in public calamity."

There was no end of such stuff as this, the papers admitting, however, that it was the first case, although women had been voting in Denver for eight years, but, nevertheless, it was an awful example, as the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette said "of what is liable to happen when a woman leaves the sphere of home and breaks into politics."

Well, the arrested lady was "tried, found innocent and discharged with honor." Now will all those editors hasten to make amends? Oh, no, the case became a closed incident with them as soon as they had their fling at woman suffrage. But isn't it a compliment that men look upon all women as angels and expect them to regenerate the world with their ballots? And, holding this opinion, isn't it singular how hard they try to prevent women from having a ballot? It looks almost as if they did not want the world regenerated.—Ida Husted Harper.

Are Womanly Women Doomed.

In the N. Y. Independent for May, 30, Henry T. Finck adds another article to the series, "Are Womanly Women Doomed ?" While presenting some truths, he sets up images of straw and misrepresents suffrage women as heretofore. In conclusion he answers his own question in the negative, and declares, "The law of natural selection will provide for the prevalence of womanly women, while mannish women, like effeminate men, will always remain abnormal exceptions." That is just what woman suffragists have been saying all these years, and their position is sustained by the fact that the women of Colorado, who, to quote from a recent letter from Denver, "are using the ballot in ever-increasing numbers as they learn its power," are not inferior to their sisters elsewhere in the graces and goodness comprised in the word "womanly."

The scheme of that New Jersey preacher to provide a place where babies can be checked while their mothers attend church solves the problem of what shall be done with the baby when the mother goes to vote.

A CHANCE
For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways of doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. AFTER THE QUARREL.

A single smile from her rosy mouth,
A sudden glance from her soft eyes sent,
And he turned, as the wind veers north or south,
And followed whither her light feet went.
Did she linger and look for a moment then?
Did she lift her face and smile again?
Nay, not so!
The heart of a girl, ah, who may know?

With every pace of his swift pursuit
Her step she quickened nor looked behind.
Eyes were speechless, and lips were mute;
Never a glance or cold or kind,
As if she cherished nor thought nor care
For the eager footfalls hurrying there!
Was it so?
The heart of a girl, ah, who may know?

Did she love him more when look and smile
Silently bade him to follow her?
Did she love him less when she wove her wile
His heart to trouble, his hope defer?
Nay, read you this riddle, strange, but true—
She loved him most when she most withdrew!
Even so!
The heart of a girl, ah, who may know?

LANCEBOATS.

Unique Invention of a German Adopted by the Kaiser's Army.

It has always been a matter of much difficulty to provide bodies of cavalry with vessels for crossing streams. The German army has in the past been using cumbrous folding boats that had to be carried by wagons. But a German inventor, Herr Adolf Rey, has devised a new boat that has revolutionized the transportation system of that army. A description of the contrivance has lately been given by a writer in Uber Land und Meer.

The vessel is called a lanceboat for the reason that its frame is built up by means of the lances carried by German troopers. With 12 or 16 lances six men can build a boat in five minutes. In two minutes they can take that boat apart. In two minutes the frame is spanned with a waterproof piece of canvas, and the boat is ready for service.

Lances suitably covered with canvas are used as oars. The oar blade consists of a strip of canvas two feet long and six inches broad, upon which slats are sewed. Such a rudder blade can be readily rolled up and thrust into one's pocket.

The connecting members and locking devices used in assembling the boat frame, together with the rudder blades, weigh 44 pounds, the canvas 26 pounds, in all 72 pounds. By reason of this small weight a single horse can carry the parts of two boats.

How to Boil Vegetables.

A cooking teacher's directions for boiling vegetables, even onion, cabbage or cauliflower, without filling the house with an unpleasant smell are to cover the vegetables with boiling salted water and stand the kettle aside, where they cannot boil rapidly again, until tender. It is the steam, according to this authority, that is driven off by rapid boiling that carries away not only the odor, but the flavor of vegetables.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an eleven month's old child, says: "Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." For sale by Young and Brown.

IS THE GAS STOVE A SUCCESS?

The following figures will convince you that the Gas Stove is a success and has come to stay. Installing the Gas Stove in Winchester is simply introducing an old appliance in a new field. It is no experiment and the following table shows the number of Gas Stoves in use in localities named, June 30, 1900:

Boston, Brookline, Dorchester, Roxbury, South Boston	47,160	Dedham	560
		Fall River	5,333
		Holyoke	1,000
		Lawrence	3,710
		Lowell	4,646
		Lynn	2,200
		New Bedford	2,315
		Salem	4,794
		Worcester	4,578

And South Framingham, with a population of 5,770, had in use on above date 631

A Gas Stove will do any work that a coal range will do and it will do it quicker and cheaper.

Ask your neighbor that is using a Gas Stove if he can recommend one for your use. If he does so, send for our agent to call and give you price for installing Gas Range or Hot Water Heater.

We have put out on our lines over a car load of gas appliances so far this season and are laying pipes in localities where there are no gas mains as fast as applications are made.

Send for our agent and he will call and give you any information that you may desire on gas for lighting, cooking, heating and power.

If there are no gas mains on your street, send for him just the same, and if you are within a reasonable distance of mains the gas will be run to your premises.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

CAUGHT IN AN EXPLOSION.

A Miner's Description of His Feelings When He Was Blown Up.

A miner who was blown up while blasting a rock describes his sensations thus:

"You see, it's so sudden. It's over just about the time you begin to understand that something is happening. You know, I had the cartridge in my hand and put it down. Then I got afraid of it. All at once everything was light. I don't think I saw the flash. Anyway my face was not exactly toward the explosion.

"But then everything got light, lighter than day—kind of blinding. There was an awful crash. It was just at the same time. I was terrified and wanted to get away. It was just as if I was having the nightmare. Somehow, though, I knew just what the matter was. A man can think faster than he has any idea of. I knew that some of the others were nearer the explosion, and I said to myself, 'They're blown in bits, that's certain.'

"You understand, this was all in a second—all at once, really. Then it was exactly the same as if I had been hit with a stick. I thought it was a big stick, bigger than any man could swing, and that it must be worked by machinery. It hit me on the head and all over. I went sailing into the air a long, long way. My ears roared, and the wind blew into my face. I knew when I struck the ground, for I remember saying to myself, 'Well, I'm done for.'

"I don't know just when I lost my right senses or when they came back, but when they did come back it seemed queer that I was there still. I thought I had been thrown somewhere else. I could feel fire burning me. It was my clothes. They were smoking and almost blazing. I was bruised all over and could not hear very well. My voice sounded as though somebody else were talking. That's all I can tell you about it."

How to Jelly Chicken.

Boil until tender in enough water to cover one chicken. Remove when done and let water boil down to one quart. Cut the meat into small pieces. To the water add three-quarters of a box of gelatin soaked, one tablespoonful worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Slice one hard boiled egg and add to the chicken. Pour over it the strained liquor; mix well and put in square mold and set in cool place to harden.

How to Make Clam Broth.

Procure three dozen Little Necks in the shell, wash them well in cold water, put them in a saucepan, cover with a quart of hot water, boil 15 minutes and drain. Remove the shells, chop up the clams and add them to the hot broth with a pat of butter. Salt if necessary and add a little cayenne. Boil ten minutes and serve hot or cold in cups with toast or crackers.

How to Make Nut Loaf.

Two cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, one cupful chopped hickory nut meats, one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one-half saltspoonful of salt. Moisten with hot water, cover and let it stand ten minutes, then form into a loaf in a buttered bread pan and bake an hour in a moderate oven. Slice and eat cold with butter.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Hawk and Partridge.

In "Reminiscences of a Falconer" Major Fisher describes the tactics of a partridge when pursued by a tame falcon.

The falcon was descending upon the partridge when the partridge stopped short and fell to the ground as if dead. He seemed to be lost in the short stubble of the field. He was far too knowing to trust himself again on the wing, and the hawk had no alternative but to take him on the ground, which he speedily attempted to do.

But on the ground the partridge was far more agile than he, running this way and that with great speed. The hawk would jump awkwardly up and dart after the scudding partridge, who just at the right moment jumped from the ground and over his back, descended on the other side and commenced running harder than before.

Time after time this was done. At every attempt the partridge met the hawk with outstretched neck and raised hackles, in the attitude of a fighting bantam cock, jumping up to avoid being clutched whenever the hawk struck at him. In fact, his whole action was that of a plucky little game bantam.

This went on for some time, until, as I regret to say, I ended the unequal strife by putting the partridge once more fairly on the wing, when, of course, the hawk readily overtook and captured it, not overmuch to his credit and still less to mine.

McKinley's Home Improved.

President McKinley's modest little house at Canton, O., has been improved and enlarged since the crowds of 1896 spoiled the looks of the place. A number of rooms have been added, the piazza has been enlarged and a porte cochere, or entrance for coaches, added. The place, though still quite unpretentious, now possesses an air of comfort and well being.

The sun is about 92,000,000 miles off. The only way of measuring the distance of a fixed star is by parallax, and scarcely more than half a dozen can be estimated that way.

Suppose the sun is here, in space, on Jan. 1. On July 1 he will be 184,000,000 miles over there. This is the base of measurement. The observer who wants to estimate the distance of, say, the star A Centuri notes its position with regard to the next star.

In six months he notes again, and if they are separated by a different distance a so called parallax is established and some calculation can be made of the distance of the nearest one. In the most favorable cases this parallax is extremely light.

High Mountains of the Moon.

The Leibnitz range attain enormous altitudes above the average level of the moon's surface and are sometimes seen projected far beyond the regular curvature of disk, thus destroying the circular contour and giving it a notched or serrated aspect. Several of the peaks of these southern mountains measure 30,000 feet in altitude, while one has been estimated to attain the great height of 36,000 feet.

The Martian Canals.

Considerable doubt has been thrown upon the supposed artificial origin of the Martian canals by the discovery that they cross the polar caps and also by their reported detection in Venus, Mercury and two of Jupiter's satellites.

Insanity Cured by Lymph.

There is considerable discussion among Pittsburg physicians of the cure of a case of insanity recently accomplished at St. Francis hospital. The patient, a woman 53 years old, whose home is in a small Ohio city, was discharged as cured after having been committed to the hospital seven weeks ago as incurably insane. The cure was accomplished by the use of animal lymph, the design being to feed nourishment to the brain.

We May Live In Glass Houses.

That the world is about to see the inauguration of an age of glass is the prediction of Jules Henrivaux, till lately the director of the great glass manufactory at St. Gobain and one of the greatest French chemists. M. Henrivaux is an enthusiast on glass. He believes it to be the material of the future, and claims that it is the best substance known to us for every kind of structural purpose and especially for dwelling houses.

Sepia.

The familiar brown pigment known as sepia is the product of a ten armed cuttlefish found in all European waters and common in the Mediterranean. The fish is of a whity brown color, with red spots, and possesses a sac containing a dark liquid having an extremely high coloring power. When the animal desires to conceal its movements or escape from a dangerous enemy, it squirts this liquid in the surrounding sea water.

Setting a Good Example.

In extending their pipes the Arlington Gas Light Co is showing what care can do in eliminating possible damage to the surfaces of streets and lawns. The company is using every endeavor to prevent the disfiguring of lawns, so that after the pipes are laid there is nothing to show that the lawns had been disturbed in the least. The gas stoves furnished by the company have become exceedingly popular and the demand for them has been in excess of the equipments of the company, which is extending its pipes as rapidly as possible in different parts of the town.

The managers of the company are to be commended for improving and extending the service in town, and in not submitting to the mistaken idea that gas has been supplanted by electricity. There is a profitable field for both, and more especially for gas since the introduction of the improved gas stoves and ranges.

Arlington Theology.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In an article in your last week's issue taken from the Arlington Enterprise, that paper finds fault with the Christian idea that everything in this world happens according to the will of God. The Enterprise writer says such an idea is "absolute nonsense" "wicked injustice," "wicked trash," "barbarous and superstitious."

With the private beliefs and opinions of the Enterprise I do not concern myself; it may believe whatever it pleases. But I should like to say for the benefit especially of your younger readers that the commonly accepted Christian doctrine regarding God's government of the universe is not by any means so stupid and contemptible as this writer thinks. On the contrary it is wise, coherent, thoroughly in keeping with the dignity and tremendous importance of its subject matter, and moreover eminently sensible. I do not expect the Enterprise to believe this but at least it can not deny that the theory has been and is held by countless thousands of men of acute and powerful intellects who have found it not trifling, nonsensical or superstitious but wholly satisfactory to their reason and their common sense.

I wish to be perfectly polite but I can not help thinking that the Enterprise writer does not quite understand just what the Christian doctrine in this matter really is.

It is all very well to be "modern," "up to date," "enlightened," "emancipated from superstition" and all the rest of it, but it is better still to be accurate and to speak of our neighbors' cherished beliefs with fairness and moderation.

CONSERVATIVE.

Murphy Defeated.

Mr. Hermann Dudley Murphy, who was sent to England by Mr. Thos. W. Lawson to race his canoe the "Uncle Sam" for the Royal Canoe Challenge Cup, has not yet been officially heard from. Accounts of his being defeated in races on Aug. 5-6-7 have been received, they may or may not have been the all important races, but were probably the preliminary races to the final cup races.

All three races were won by China, an English racing canoe, which seems to be a wonder for speed. In the first race on Aug. 5 (?), in a light air, Murphy was in second place, being beaten seven minutes. For the second race, on Aug. 6 (?), the wind was fresh, and the "Uncle Sam" was fourth of the five contestants, but only 2 minutes behind the leader. The third race, on the following day, was sailed in a strong wind, and Murphy did not finish, his boat being capsized in rounding the first buoy.

As Mr. Lawson has received no official word regarding the final races, which were sailed last week, it is probable that Murphy was defeated or the races postponed.

Fifty members of Co. E., 1st battalion, Mass. Heavy Artillery, of Stoneham, have died since organization during the war of the rebellion. At the reunion held last week there were but 17 of the original members present.

New Boulevard To Wedge Pond.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Last week the Highway Department were busy constructing the new Boulevard from Dix street to Wedge Pond and the work is practically completed, except for the trees and shrubbery which it is understood the Tree Warden is to furnish as soon as the town grant him a larger appropriation.

The completion of this work ends a controversy that has been before the citizens of this town for more than forty years, and it is sincerely to be hoped that it will prove to be as great a blessing to the public as its promoters have claimed it would be. It is proposed to continue this boulevard across the pond either by a bridge or by filling, thereby giving a shorter route to the West side, and to Wildwood Cemetery. It is understood that plans are being formed to build and place upon Wedge Pond a number of small steamers for the use of the crowds of pleasure seekers who, it is expected, will congregate at this great pleasure resort.

It is also planned to have the Aberjona River widened, the channel deepened, locks put in at the Mystic dam and at Whitney's dam, draw bridges put in at all points where the highway and railroad obstruct navigation, the intention being to run a line of boats from tide water to Wedge Pond and to build a larger landing wharf on the shore of the pond near the end of the new Boulevard.

The Standing Committee of the First Congregational Society have been approached with a liberal cash offer for the society's land lying between the church building and the pond, the idea being to erect a dancing pavilion and summer garden there. The gentlemen who are back of this scheme are men of means and energy and there is no doubt that these plans as briefly outlined will in the course of two or three years, be fully carried out. Surely the voters who forty years ago laid out this boulevard planned better than they then knew, for it is not at all likely that any one of them had any idea of what a boon they were giving to the present inhabitants of our beautiful town.

IMPROVEMENT.

(Contributed.)

Observations.

The boulevard running to West Medford seems to have lost much of its popularity. Few teams seem to utilize its charming scenery. What a splendid drive and panorama of hill and vale, clothed with nature's richest robes would be a continuation of the boulevard from Russell's brook and along the west side of Mystic lake up to the boat house; thence between the lake and Everett avenue to the Wedgemere entrance on Bacon street. Nothing in New England would compare with it in beauty, in classic delight, in inviting grandeur, to a thousand daily patrons.

Why will not some one buy the Crawford (formerly the Everett) estate and open a public house upon the margin of the pond? It would be a gold mine in a short time, while many would seek its forest shades and enjoy its boating facilities.

The entrance from Cambridge street to the new boat house is lacking in beauty and good taste.

Too bad that the "Tyler estate" has gone to decay, while its present princely owner, like Midas, turns all else into gold.

When will the untidy shores of the river from Walnut to Bacon streets be touched with a clean broom? Do it before the fungus growth is multiplied.

Why has not the Ginn gift of $5000 in land been baptised with clean water and dusted over with fresh loam if nothing more? Let it become a parachute of the play ground and receive some attention. The gift was a generous one, and a souvenir of public spirit.

Has the new street to the plains been laid away like a quiet ghost? How deep is the mud and what will it cost to build it is a sum in algebra for some kindergarten pupil to figure out by the time he or she gets into the high school. The selectmen are conservative and wish to do right.

Judge Johnson of the Woburn Court thought the Winchester pig did not squeal like a stolen one, and wisely dismissed the pig and case.

Another lawyer in town has taken the horse fever and bought a pair of high steppers; so clear the track.

How long will it take to fill up the mill pond in the village the way the wash is coming down from Highland avenue? Soon a passageway from the Town House will extend to "Converse place" and then a new street to macadamize.

What an age of accident, death, turmoil and strife do we live in.

A venerable gentleman and a good citizen, F. H. Nourse, has joined the majority.

Selectmen's Meeting.

Aug. 17, 1901.

Board met at 7.30.

Present Messrs. Boutwell, Fitzgerald and Bradstreet.

Records of last meeting read and approved.

Messrs. Wm. M. Mason, Wm. P. Nickerson and Orrin C. Sanborn were present in regard to drainage of water on Fletcher and Church streets near Sheffield road. Voted to take care of the water as soon as possible.

Mr. F. A. Cutting was present in regard to way to Wedge Pond.

Received letter from A. E. Whitney relative to drainage on Walnut street. Referred to Supt. of Streets with full power to remedy the trouble.

The matter of Deputy Collector as petitioned for by the Collector of Taxes was laid over one week.

Issued warrant No. 65 for $2760.30 and No. 66 for $966 25 in payment of bills.

Newsy Paragraphs.

A few young men of the west side, who are active swimmers in Mystic, commenced the erection of a water chute, similar to the one at the Medford boat house, on the high bank just south of the Crowell place on the upper pond this week. The chute was well under way in the process of erection when the Metropolitan Park police stopped the work. The place selected by the boys was the old railroad embankment and which offers every facility for such a chute. It was understood that this was private land and not controlled by the Metropolitan Park, but the question is somewhat vague.

Medford has taken up the rebuilding of Main street where Winchester left off. When it is completed this will give a modern road from Boston to the Woburn line, and later this latter city will rebuild its part of the street too, but at great expense, as the street will have to be widened and buildings probably moved back. It is gratifying to note that where one municipality improves a main highway, adjoining places are willing to do the same.

Word comes to us from Beverly that the Goodyear plant of the United Shoe Machinery Co. in Boston is to be moved to that place. Arrangements are being made to erect a large modern building there. There was talk at one time that this branch was to come to Winchester, but this latest decision settles the matter. The Goodyear factory gives employment to about 500 men.

Mrs. C. F. Lunt is passing two weeks at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Thomas W. Lawson has bought of W. S. Thurlow of Stonington, Saddleback Island, Rockland, Me., and a smaller island near by, paying $6000 for the property. It is Mr. Lawson's purpose to build an elegant summer home on Saddleback.

Last Friday evening about 8.15 p. m., while driving on the Boulevard near Mystic avenue, Mr. Knox's team collided with that of Mr. Tyner's of Arlington Heights. The former's horse received several cuts; the team escaped injury. The latter's turnout was slightly damaged. Fortunately both gentlemen came out of it without a scratch.

Among those who attended a full dress ball at the Wentworth Hall Casino, Jackson, N. H., last Friday evening, were the Misses Mason of Winchester, who were attired in handsome costumes of black lace and white muslin.

It is reported that Miss Enholm, one of the district nurses, will relinquish her present position to become a private nurse.

At the Knights of Columbus picnic held at Centennial Grove, Messrs. Root and Swan won from scratch in the 10 mile bicycle road race. Swan got second time prize, a silver top beer mug. Root and Swan escaped by a few inches hitting the train on the Essex branch. As they were riding at full speed out of the grove at the beginning of the race they crossed the tracks directly in front of the rapidly-moving train and escaped being struck by less than six inches.

Miss Stanley, who will take up Miss Prescott's work, is a teacher in the Normal Department of the New England Conservatory and comes to Winchester recommended by Mr. Porter, the superintendent.

Mr. R. D. McFarland has taken the house corner of Cottage avenue and Bacon street. Mr. McFarland expects his family home on Saturday from their summer outing, when they will occupy it.

Mr. Albert Libbey and son are spending a few weeks at Hough's Neck.

Mrs. J. R. Cobb is passing the week at New Boston, N. H.

Mr. C. H. Spaulding, wife and two sons, of Main street, also G. A. Spaulding, wife and daughter, of Prospect street, are at Boar's Head Hotel, Hampton Beach, N. H.

Miss Bertha Smith is visiting friends from Minneapolis at Magnolia. On Saturday she will visit Miss Margaret Kennedy at Winsor, Vt.

Mr. M. E. Gleason has bought the estate numbered 30 Oxford street, Wedgemere, known as the Packard house, through the office of Edward T. Harrington & Co.

The tax rate of Melrose is $16.20—a reduction from last year of $1.80.

There are 80 berths and 90 lockers now occupied at the Winchester Boat Club.

After the novelty wears off, the whistling on the No. Woburn electric cars will cease to be heard almost altogether. Yet until then they should not be allowed to become a nuisance.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Beggs of Main street were passengers on the steamer Halifax when she struck off Minots Light last week. They were returning from a vacation in Nova Scotia.

Miss Lucy Bishop is taking the place of Miss Malindy, bookkeeper for Geo. E. Pratt & Co.

James McMurray of Irving street was before the Fourth District Court last Saturday on complaint of Chief McIntosh for illegally selling liquor. He was found guilty and fined $50. He appealed.

Mr. Charles H. Sleeper and family and Mr. C. A. Lane and family, with Miss Garry Sherman of Fall River went to Shore Acres, on Lake Winnepesaukee, last Saturday. Many Winchester people go to this beautiful resort, which has been erroneously called Mirror Lake, this being merely the postoffice address. One thing is certain, all who once go to Shore Acres are sure to return the next summer, so well pleased are they.

It is said that only two women in the United States may use the mails without paying for the privilege. These women are widows of former presidents. They are Mrs. Julia D. Grant and Mrs. Lucretia A. Garfield. A franked letter goes through the mails without postage, bearing their signatures, either stamped or written upon the envelopes. All mail matter sent by Mrs. Garfield and Mrs. Grant under their respective written autograph signatures, and all mail matter sent to these two women, will be carried free during their lives. No signature or marks are necessary to the free carriage of mail matter to either of these women, the addresses being sufficient. Mrs. Garfield has enjoyed the privilege since 1881, and Mrs. Grant since 1886.

Francis Henry Nourse.

After a brave fight extending over many weeks, Mr. Francis H. Nourse passed away at his home, 110 Church street, last Saturday evening, after a confinement to the house of eight weeks. He had been in declining health for the past year or two, due to causes incident to old age.

Mr. Nourse was born in Bolton, Mass., on March 16, 1819, where he received his early education. He taught school in Littleton and Boxford for some years, and in 1840 he went to Lowell, where he cast his first vote for the Republican ticket and from that time up to the last election had always voted that ticket. During his long residence in Lowell he was one of the foremost citizens, serving in the council and Board of Aldermen for some years, and might have aspired to the office of Chief Executive of that city, but declined a nomination. While residing in Lowell he was the local Superintendent of the Lowell & Lawrence and Lowell & Salem Railroad, and after faithful and honorable service was promoted to the office of purchasing agent for the Boston & Lowell Railroad about 1870 with headquarters in the Boston station. He furnished the then elegant ladies' waiting room in that station, which was the talk and admiration of all patrons of the road, and for many years purchased all the supplies used by the railroad. Owing to ill health he retired from this position in 1888 and went to California. After a rest and a freedom from business of two years, he entered the real estate and insurance business, coming to Winchester in 1873 after purchasing a house on Central street in which he lived for 25 years, when he bought and lived in the house 110 Church street, where he passed away.

Mr. Nourse was a member of the Massachusetts Republican Club, the Calumet Club, Trustee of the Winchester Savings Bank and a member of the Unitarian Church, in all of which he took a deep interest.

Mr. Nourse was a man of pronounced views, firm in his opinion, and believed in calling a spade a spade. He was deeply interested in town affairs, a constant attendant at all town meetings, and his voice was heard on all prominent questions. A close personal acquaintance with the deceased extending over twenty years, continually proved his integrity and desire to do right by his fellowmen.

In 1847 he was married at Lowell to Miss Harriet Parker of that city, who still survives him, also a daughter, Miss Nellie Nourse.

Funeral services were held from his late residence Tuesday afternoon. Owing to the absence of Rev. W. I. Lawrance, his pastor, Rev. Joshua Coit, as a warm personal friend and associate in the Savings Bank, offered prayer and read the committal service. The burial was private and the remains were laid to rest in Wildwood. The floral reminders were profuse and beautiful, and came from relatives and friends from here and elsewhere.

One of the mourners present was Hon. Levi Sprague of Lowell, aged 90 years, who came to pay his last respects to a deep and lasting friendship extending over many years.

Nantasket Beach Visited By The Mystic Valley Trolley Club.

On Thursday Judge Littlefield and other members of the Club made the annual trip to Nantasket, taking the electric car leaving the centre at 7.25 a. m. The members present were George S. Littlefield, George W. Payne, George P. Brown, George F. Parker, George H. Carter, Henry C. Bagley, Henry F. Johnson, Arthur E. Whitney, Charles W. Bradstreet, John R. Newman, Alexander Macdonald, James McLaughlin, Hiram W. Farr, F. J. Brown and Newton A. Knapp. Several other members of the club were unavoidably detained.

On the way to Arlington Dr. Brown raised a fine point on the game of "roup," which caused considerable discussion, but the suggestions of Mr. Newman were put in practice after arriving at the beach and removed all doubts from the minds of the participants.

Reaching Arlington on good time, a Broadway car was taken to the Sullivan Square terminal, then an L train to Dudley street. The difficulty in handling some of the heavy-weights of the party at this point occasioned a slight delay, but shortly a Neponset Bridge car arrived and the ride to that point was accomplished at 9.15. Here a delay of 25 minutes was taken advantage of in an inspection of the river at low tide and in restocking the cigar cases of the smokers. One or two members suggested proceeding on foot to the first fare limit, but this rebellious tendency was promptly suppressed by the Judge, efficiently aided by one of the robust members who is noted for his respect for the powers that be. The assessors took some notes on real real estate valuations for future use. Hiram told some new stories. John bought some peanuts. Charles studied the method of macadamizing the street, while Newton made some interesting discoveries in natural science.

At 9.40 the car for the beach arrived and in the general rush for seats some of the party were furnished with "standing room only," but all settled down into seats before Quincy was reached. Quincy Point, North Weymouth and Hingham were passed in succession and the Rockland Cafe was reached at 11.15, the conductor having successfully set his 26 block signals with the assistance of Mr. Bagley.

A roller coast ride, a walk on the beach and the game of roup, together with the somewhat rocky experiences of all the members served, with the aid of the pungent breezes from the east, to prepare the party for an excellent and abundant dinner, at which no one was diffident. The number of courses of fried lobster indulged in by one of the town fathers obliged the Judge to issue the only harsh order of the day, by which alone a threatened lobster famine was prevented. Much merriment was caused by a mysterious order served to one of the party in a covered dish.

After dinner, while the cigars "shouted" as a "bouquet" by the genial John, were being consumed, the tickets over the "third rail" were bought and an interesting exhibit of curiosities was planted in a signal box at the station, each member in turn contributing his donation.

At 2.17 the start was made for Braintree. There the Brockton car was boarded, a transfer taken in Quincy for East Milton via West Quincy, passing the granite quarries.

From E. Milton to Milton Lower Mills the trip was over the beautiful boulevard to the chocolate mills.

Here an Ashmont and Milton cross town car was taken by the way of Dudley street and the Back Bay. At Boylston street the elevated train was boarded and with the crowd Sullivan Square was reached. Transferring to a Medford Hillside car Arlington came in sight now and the 6.15 car brought the party safely home unanimously in favor of just one more trip before the adjournment of the club for the season, and leaving a trail of rocks and crackers over the entire homeward route.

It is not sweet 16 now; it is out of date. It is 15.80 that now holds popular attention. May it never be more.

The Winning Farm.

This Farm, which is doing so much good to unfortunate children, by affording them an opportunity to get fresh air and good wholesome food during the summer months, is situated in Winchester, Woburn and Lexington, the greater part of the farm being in our town. It affords a grand opportunity to assist in doing good to some deserving boy or girl.

Five dollars gives three children a week's vacation. One of the latest contributors to this blessed work, was the Lend-a-Hand Club connected with the Winchester Unitarian church which contributed twenty-five dollars. Send your contributions at once to George L. Brigham, No. 397 Shawmut avenue, Boston, Mass. Visit the farm any Sunday afternoon. Woburn-Lexington electrics pass the farm.

Mr. D. W. Pratt of this town, is one of the Board of Directors. The Every Day Church has this to say of the home:

Our regular method is one week of girls and one week of boys. We usually send twenty-two or twenty-three in a group. Thus far the girls have predominated.

The outing season is half over. Already, including this week's group, 150 children have been registered.

Notwithstanding the fact that the groups have included children five and six years old, there have been no cases of homesickness. Every waking minute is employed in making the children happy.

Up to the present time we find that there have been seventy contributors to the Children's Outing Fund for the current year. If our readers could only realize what blessing there is in this work, there would still be many more. Do not think it is too late.

There have already been 135 visitors to the Farm. Visitors are especially welcome Sunday afternoons.

The boys have been indulging in baseball, among their numerous other amusements. Croquet is the competitive game with the girls. But there are no end of other amusements—swings in rich abundance, see saw boards, teeters, joggling boards, etc., to say nothing of blueberrying, rambles over the hills, nature tramps and the weekly barge ride.

The beneficiaries of Winning Farm have thus far included ten nationalities and almost every known denomination and religious creed. Yet all join together happily in making a good time for themselves and the others.

The barge ride of three hours on Monday afternoon to historic Lexington takes in a visit to the old Hancock-Clark house, with its many relics and reminders of the Revolution.

Mr. Barter's capabilities as care-taker and nature teacher are strenuously taxed by the eager, restless children and their clamor for something new. How eagerly many of them beg to be permitted to hunt woodchucks! Happily, however, they seldom find them at home. The fishing resources of Winning Farm and vicinity are not great, though there are plenty of frogs and turtle. On these nature excursions the girls find their chief enjoyment in numberless varieties of wild flower, and in curious questionings about song-birds and insects.

With twenty-three children always at her side and always upon her mind, little wonder that the superintendent, Mrs. J. C. McGarry, often feels like "the old woman in the shoe." But she is happily endowed with enthusiasm for her task, and has made things run thus far like clockwork.

Montvale Won.

At the lawn party held on the McKenzie estate, Linden street, last Friday evening under the auspices of the local branch of the Holy Ghost Hospital Aid Society, there was a good attendance and a pleasant and exciting time.

In the tug-of-war contest the first heat between teams representing Montvale and Winchester farmers was won by the former by one inch. The final heat was between the victors of the first heat and the Foresters of Winchester, being won by Montvale by almost seven inches. The prize of $10, offered to the winning team was generously donated by the Montvale team to the proceeds of the lawn party. Winners of other events were: Fifty yard dash for girls, Chartier Laforte, Blanche Raymond; 50-yard dash for boys, J. Horne, R. Cosgrove; running hop, step and jump, J. Horne, R. Cosgrove; potato race, J. Nowell, J. Horne; shoe race, P. Kerrigan, F. Crowe.

The various committee, printed in last week's STAR, deserve credit for the smoothness with which everything passed off.

Good Templars.

Wedgemere Lodge, I. O. G. T., met last evening with an attendance of nearly all the members. Two new names were added to the roll. After the regular business had been transacted, there was an encouraging report on the Jubilee Meeting to be held Sept. 19, arrangements for which are nearly completed. Barnes' Orchestra will furnish the music, and there will be some good speakers, first class recitations, and altogether a pleasant evening is anticipated. The meeting will be free to all, and it is hoped to have Blaikie Hall full to standing room only. It is hoped that all who care to keep this town "dry," will turn out and see what the order is accomplishing.

Mrs. T. A. Jernegan arrived at her Park avenue home, Arlington Heights, Monday, from a pleasant visit with her daughter, Mrs. Herbert C. Brown, who with her family are spending the summer at their cottage, Georgetown, Me., at the mouth of the Kennebec river. The Jernegans were formerly well known residents of Winchester.

Real Estate Notes.

The real estate business has been very active this fall and Winchester has lured many from the summer resorts who are anxious to be settled when school opens. The following are some of the Winchester sales and rentals which have been made in Winchester during the month of August by George Adams Woods:

Mr. Chas. T. Whidden has given up the idea of building on Glen Road, and purchased the large 12 room house on Everett avenue, recently built by Dexter P. Blaikie, with 13,000 feet of land.

Mr. George Neiley, local manager for the large insurance house of Field and Cowles, has purchased the house on Highland avenue, formerly occupied by Francis H. Bacon. The house is very large and has been remodelled by Mr. Woods, and a new bath room and heating plant added. There is to be an addition to the dining room and kitchen, and with new papering and painting throughout it will make a most charming residence. With it was sold 20,000 feet of land. Near by the house which Mr. Woods is building for Mr. Josef Sandberg, is nearing completion. Mr. Robt. Coit is the architect.

Mr. Marshall W. Jones has an extension to May 1st of his lease on the house which he now occupies on Lake View Road, as his house on the extension of Highland avenue will not be finished until spring.

Mr. W. H. Forbush, who has boarded in Winchester for some time, has rented Wm. J. Mendum's house, corner of Laurel and Fletcher streets, and will bring his family from New York the first of September.

Marcus B. May is now occupying the house No. 1 Cottage avenue belonging to the Newman estate.

The last of the Glengarry houses, No. 7, has been rented on a three years' lease to Mr. A. H. Hazeltine, who is vice-president of the National Shoemakers. Mr. Hazeltine will take possession September 1st.

The house now occupied by Mrs Howe, on Dix street Mr. Woods has sub-leased to Mr. A. G. Wellman of Brookline, who expects in the future to build in Winchester.

The house on Main street which Mr. E. A. Bigelow rented has been released by him to Mr. Maurice Saunders of Pittsburg who will move in the early part of next month. Mr. Bigelow will occupy Mrs. Cate's house on Fletcher street.

No. 84 Church street has been leased to W. A. Batchelor of Buffalo, N. Y., through Mr. Wood's office.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

A Novel Liquor Seizure—with Results.

There was a liquor seizure within the limits of Woburn a few days ago in which the liquor squad did not figure. A party of boys, rowing about Horn Pond in quest of a favorable spot for deep water bathing and swimming chanced upon a floating log. In climbing upon it one of the boys found his limbs entangled in a lot of lines pendant from the improvised raft, and evidently weighted. Curiosity led to further investigation and it was found that at the end of each line there was a bottle filled with liquor. The log also was connected with shore by a cord so that it could be hauled in whenever desired.

It was evidently some one's ingeniously contrived store house. The boys towed the log and its submerged cargo ashore and foolishly sampled the latter which action resulted ere long in the collapse of the youthful imbibers. A party of berry-pickers happening that way found the boys and helped them to their homes where they were attended by frightened mothers and hastily-summoned physicians. The latter detected signs of alcohol, and one who fearlessly assigned this as a cause was threatened with assault by the indignant mother.

The affair got out and the log with its fin keel of corked flasks has been spirited away.—[Woburn News.

Boat Club News.

No Sunday in August of any year in the Medford Boat Club's history has been more active than was last. The upper lake fairly swarmed with all kinds of floating craft from early morning until long after nightfall, and interest was keen throughout the day.

It was a noticeable fact that the members of the Winchester Boat Club spent about all their time in the vicinity of the Medford Boat Club buildings Sunday, a creditable showing in view of the recent statement, ungracefully egotistical from the standpoint of the writer, which said (in the Boston Globe) that all the activity on the lakes was centred about the house of the Winchester Club and "that there are two other boat clubs on the lake, the Shuh-Shuh-Gah and the Medford."

Canoes were so much called for that there was scarcely one left either in the main clubhouse or the annex during the afternoon, and the boat livery was patronized almost beyond precedent.

This summer is proving an extremely successful one at the Medford Club houses and interest is not one whit abated even during the vacation season.—[Medford Mercury.

Electricity Caused It.

The testimony of a man arrested for drunkenness at the North Union L station in Boston the other day demands attention if true, as Judge Wentworth of the municipal court evidently believes it to be. The man who is a well known citizen of Woburn, testified that between ticket window and the box where the tickets are deposited, the floor has been worn down so that the nails protrude and that in walking along he stepped on these and received such a shock that he was thrown down and later picked up as a drunk. He argues that there is a leakage from the third rail through wires and steel girders and that there is a considerable amount of electricity running around looking for trouble. The court accepted his version and declared him not guilty of drunkenness.—[Haverhill Gazette.

Hatch—Chase.

Last week Thursday afternoon there was a quiet home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Hatch, Winthrop street, the contracting parties being Mr. Charles H. Chase of Stoneham and Miss Annie Collamore Hatch. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Augustine Newton in the presence of relatives and close personal friends. The bride wore a handsome white Persian lawn with lace yoke and insertion which gave a handsome setting off to the otherwise pretty young lady.

The house was prettily decorated with sweet peas, woodbine and fern. After the wedding journey, they will reside temporarily in Stoneham. The groom is an instructor in engineering at Tuft's College.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The path to Wedge pond is taking shape, although the shape is pulled and hauled a good deal by the different interests, and soon probably the public will be able to get to the pond in comfort, something it has been debarred from for a long time. This pond is much used when skating is good and would be used a good deal in warm weather, if it were kept cleaned up, as it certainly should be.

The Tree Warden's attention is called to limbs of trees extending into the streets to the annoyance and danger of teams. Fletcher, Cabot and Glen Road have been mentioned.

Unless the grass (?) crop on Manchester Field is soon gathered the "keep off" signs will be out of sight. The growing of the grass appears to be the only thing moving in that place excepting the interest on the bonds.

The condition of the streets about the Centre very quickly indicates the absence of the old man and his wheelbarrow. It would be money well expended to keep him at work all of the time, as the pleasure of seeing clean streets is appreciated by citizens and noticed by strangers.

Few more people walk in the Fells than did before it was a public reservation. What is needed is electric communication and that will soon be demanded by the public.

I am informed that the new horses for the fire department were secured last week. How foolish. Why did they not buy a horseless carriage and save oats?

If the Metropolitan Park people would cut some lanes through the bushes from the roads to the reservoirs in the Fells it would make the drive much prettier. Then if they would clear out the bushes and re-open the old woods roads and put up some guide boards it would add much more.

The town voted that its laborers should have the same pay for eight hours that they previously had for nine. One of the boards has not followed that vote.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by Young and Brown.

BLACK BEAUTY.

A Remarkable Horse Owned in Winchester.

When Dr. H. G. Farr was at Niagara Falls he saw an account published in the daily papers of a wonderful feat performed by a horse in running across the Grand Trunk R. R. bridge on the ties, that spans the Niagara River at the Whirlpool Rapids. This struck the Dr. as being almost incredible but he determined to investigate and if he found the statements to be true, to see the horse possessing the intelligence, nerve and caution to attempt such an unheard of trip.

He found the owner to be Mr. Henry A McMahon who took him to see this remarkable animal and they drove down and the Dr. examined the bridge and found evidences still existing to substantiate the accounts.

The bridge is known as the "Lower Steel Arch or Grand Trunk R. R. Bridge" and is 1080 feet long (would extend from the foot of Mt Vernon street at Town Hall to the Congregational church), is 245 feet high from the water to the top of the ties (or 20 feet higher than Bunker Hill monument) above these seething Whirlpool Rapids. Length of ties 32 feet, with two tracks and no guard outside the rail excepting a timber similar to those on our Elevated R. R. This wild run was taken at night when it was very dark, across the ties from the Canadian side on one track while on the other a train was coming from the American side.

Had she swerved any from her course she would have gone into the Rapids 245 feet below, or had she missed her footing, would have broken her legs, but she came safely over as will be seen by the account published the next day which is here given verbatim. Even her pictures show "Black Beauty" to be full of life, finely bred and just the creature to attempt such an act of daring. She is six years old, 15 1-2 hands high, a beautiful black, coat as fine as velvet, as supple as a fox, a fine saddle and driving horse and very fast. She is gentle and kind if treated so, but quick to resent rough treatment and could be a perfect friend. Her intelligence is almost human and she is perfectly fearless. Only such an animal could accomplish such a feat and it is extremely doubtful if one will ever attempt it again. The Dr. is justly proud of her and considers himself fortunate to become the owner of such a celebrated and beautiful horse. The following was copied from the Niagara Falls Cataract-Journal:

"A most peculiar incident occurred last evening which has been the principal topic of conversation at the North End today. It was most decidedly unique as well as an unusual occurrence. For the first time since the Grand Trunk steel arch bridge was erected a runaway horse succeeded in galloping across the upper, or railroad deck of the bridge, and escaping with comparatively few injuries.

Last evening two prominent young men of this city, Henry McMahon and John Conroy, drove across the river to Niagara Falls, Ont., for the purpose of attending the St. Patrick's church fair which was in progress in that village. They tied their horse in a neighboring stable and paid no further attention to the animal until they were ready to return home. As the fair was brought to a close last night with a dance it was not until an early hour that those present began to leave. When the two gentlemen referred to reached the stable they found that their horse had broken loose, torn the shafts of the buggy and escaped. After making diligent inquiries they learned that the animal had crossed the bridge on the railroad tracks.

At about 2 o'clock last night switchmen on the Grand Trunk were astonished to see a horse, attached to the shafts of a buggy, dashing madly across the upper floor of the bridge. Any attempt to arrest his progress would have been futile. It is said that he passed a switch engine on the way over, and that tended only to increase his speed. As the animal was obliged to run along ties on the bridge, where a single step would have proved fatal, it is inconceivable how he made the journey safely. Dashing past the Customs building he ran out Depot avenue to Tenth street and was caught on Grove avenue by John Mullen."

We Have All Experienced Their Officiousness.

Woburn people who come from Boston by trolley cars are obliged to change at Medford Square. At that point the City Hall steps during the wait are tempting, but a policeman brushes people off almost before they have time to alight. The other day John Jameson, License Commissioner of Woburn, was one of the officer's victims. He sat upon the hallowed steps with a sigh of satisfaction and was stretching his legs when the policeman ordered him to "get up out of that." Mr. Jameson remonstrated, but under threat of being arrested he got up. He told the officer he considered him anything but an agreeable conversationalist. He opened communication with Mayor Baxter of Medford. Mayor Baxter has written Mr. Jameson a letter, in which he says the matter will be carefully investigated. During the tedious waits of anywhere up to 25 minutes, it is a hardship to compel grown people and even children to stand pending the arrival of a car. Sitting on the step does no harm to anyone, but doing so is like unto a crime in the eyes of the Medford police.

Servant Girl Problem.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I send you the following clipping which I think will prove of great interest to all housekeepers interested in the servant girl problem. REFORM.

I've read a great deal lately in these columns on this subject from both sides, mistress and servant. If not too late, I would like to give my view as a housekeeper. I have been housekeeper for some of the best people, besides some of the richest, and I would like to say right here, it is not those with the most money or servants that know the right way of living. In the first place servants have too much false pride and put on too many airs. There are plenty well-educated, well-brought-up girls living out not ashamed of their work. We never hear from those girls. She is too busy doing her work well. Only the ignorant, shiftless ones, who don't care how they do their work, as long as they get it over.

This is the great cause of so much friction between mistress and maid; they shirk their work all they can, lay in bed until the last minute, then complain of not having time to themselves, when they ought to get up and do certain work before breakfast, 8 o'clock breakfast I'm talking about, when the hall and sitting room should be dusted and tidied up. O, no, just because the mistress lies in bed until the last minute, they think they have the same privilege, forgetting the fact that that is what she has a servant for, because she doesn't want to or can't do it herself, and servants forget that they are being paid for it. In 99 cases the mistress will treat you all right if you keep your part of the contract; try it. Of course this is not the case with girls who are born housekeepers like the Swedes and Germans, for instance; it would worry them not to do things thoroughly. I heard one girl complain of dishes she had to wash when she came home from church; that is one reason why some people prefer not to keep Catholic girls, they let their religion interfere with their work which they are paid for. If the time they spent in church every Sunday morning was taken out of their wages the Catholic girls wouldn't be any more religious than the other girls, who can go every Sunday evening if they wish, and it does not interfere with their work.

Girls should put themselves in their employers' places once in a while. If girls will go to church every Sunday morning, and have that privilege, they should do what they can before going, and do the rest pleasantly when they come back. Girls can manage to do their work well and get a rest every afternoon if they want to, and they really don't know what hard work is until they have a house of their own. When you work out there is always some one to take the responsibility, when you have a place of your own you will be servant, housekeeper and every other thing, besides nurse and choreman, but then it will be a labor of love (perhaps ?). There is also a misunderstanding as to the pay they get, 99 out of 100 estimate only the actual money received, quite overlooking the fact that they would have to pay out at least $4 or $5 for a decent room and board, that, with a $4 wage gives them $8 or $9 a week, which is more than the average shop or factory girl gets. When mistresses refuse to keep a girl unles she is competent to do what she is paid for, girls don't seem to understand that by shirking their work they are robbing their employers by taking money they are not entitled to. So I hope the girls will look at it in the right light. Do your duty, it is time to be neglectful and sulky when you're not paid for it.

Remember you always have the privilege of leaving. So, if you can't do your work pleasantly, do something else, but don't think just because you can't do anything else you can do housework, that is the mistake of your life, and the cause of so many poor servants, the maid should be put on the same footing with the clerk or the laborer and treated in a strictly business manner when she is engaged in whatever capacity, define her duties with precision, know and let her know what is to be expected and arrange her hours of labor, that there may be a beginning and an ending of her day. For failure to perform her part of the contract let there be a reduced scale of wages, for breaking of china, etc., let there be payment made.

Put her on a plain business footing, same as the stores and factories treat their help, then and not until then will the servant problem be solved.

Our Criticised Weather Prophet.

A "tempest in a teapot" has been raging around the head of Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau.

WILLIS L. MOORE.

Professor Moore, say some people, has been predicting too much. He is alleged to have attempted to foretell the weather a month in advance.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Mercury's year is only 88 days, that of Venus 225 days and of Mars 687 days.

Cumulus, or thunder clouds, rarely rise over two miles. Seven miles is the outside height for any cloud.

The edge of the moon is so broken by peaks, ridges and valleys that the length of totality during a solar eclipse is affected by them.

The sun's heat raises from the earth 37,000,000 tons of water a minute. To do the same work artificially a cube of coal 200 miles deep, wide and high would have to be burned every second.

The archaic, wasteful "beehive" oven process of making charcoal has been superseded in many parts of Germany by modern methods which save all the ammonia, gas, tar and other products of the wood.

A human body contains some of the small things of nature. The blood, for example, is a colorless liquid in which little red globules are floating. Every drop of it contains about a million of the globules, and they are susceptible of division into smaller globules still.

Making the Blind See.

Success in desperate cases by conservative treatment is the lesson often repeated and yet never quite sufficiently learned by any physician or surgeon. The infinite ingenuity behind the healing processes, the never renounced struggle toward normality, is an ever renewed source of wonder. All that is needed to elicit it is confidence in it, delay in doing anything radical, watchfulness to follow up the hints to action as they begin to show themselves.

We know of a living and happy patient who ten years ago had albuminuric retinitis from long existing Bright's disease despite what all the textbooks say as to "two years" in such cases. "Don't do the irrevocable thing until forced to do it" is the warning that has saved many organs and lives. Above all, never proceed with surgery ("the despair of medicine") until physiologic and medical methods have been exhausted.

The Wiener Klinischer Wochenschrift tells of the success of Herr Heller, director of an asylum for the blind, in educating the remnant of visual power retained by a "blind" child. There was only perception of light in a narrowed field left, but this by education was made to yield such indications to the eager mind that after 14 months of endeavor the boy has very useful vision, can distinguish colors and forms and even can read.

There are possibly thousands of blind people who have renounced vision instead of cultivating it to a degree that would render the blind types useless.—American Medicine.

How to Remove Paint Odor.

To take away the smell from a room that has been newly painted slice up three or four onions into a dish and let it stand overnight in the room, with the doors and windows closed. Next morning the odor will have disappeared.

How to Make Chicken Potpie.

Boil two large chickens, jointed, till tender, season with salt and pepper. Twenty-five minutes before taking off add biscuit made of one quart of flour, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, one teaspoonful of soda and a little salt.

May Be First President of Free Cuba.

Probably the most important candidate for the presidency of Cuba is Tomas Estrada Palma, formerly head of the Junta in New York. Senor Palma is 65 years of age and has given most of his life to the cause of the island. He is favored by General Gomez and many of the conservative elements of the island. He was president of Cuba during one or two of the revolutions.

GRANT'S RETREAT.

The General Went When a Policeman's Club Pointed the Way.

Speaking of nightsticks reminds me of seeing General Grant in his to my mind greatest hour, the only time he was ever beaten, and by a policeman. I told his son, Fred Grant, of it when he became a police commissioner in the nineties, but I do not think he appreciated it. He was not cast in his great father's mold. The occasion I refer to was after the general's second term in the presidency. He was staying at the Fifth Avenue hotel, when one morning the Masonic temple was burned. The fire line was drawn half way down the block toward Fifth avenue, but the police were much hampered by the crowd and were out of patience when I, standing by, saw a man in a great ulster with head buried deep in the collar, a cigar sticking straight out, coming down the street from the hotel. I recognized him at sight as General Grant. The policeman who blocked his way did not. He grabbed him by the collar, swung him about and, hitting him a resounding whack across the back with his club, yelled out:

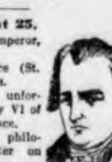

"What's the matter with you? Don't you see the fire lines? Chase yourself out of here and be quick about it."

The general never said a word. He did not stop to argue the matter. He had run up against a sentinel and when stopped went the other way. That was all. The man had a right to be there; he had none. I was never so much an admirer of Grant as since that day. It was true greatness. A smaller man would have made a row, stood upon his dignity and demanded the punishment of the policeman. As for him, there was probably never so badly frightened a policeman when I told him whom he had clubbed. I will warrant he did not sleep for a week, fearing all kinds of things. No need of it. Grant probably never gave him a thought.—Jacob Riis in Outlook.

A CENTER HALL HOUSE.

Skillfully Planned $3,000 Dwelling That Has Many Admirable Points.

We show herewith designs for a center hall house of 32 feet front; hence it could very comfortably be placed on a 40 foot lot. The reception hall plan was originally developed from a desire to build a house having large accommodation at a relatively small cost. The hall was made in the shape of a sitting room or reception room, as the case might be, so that the space which has originally been wasted in a hall was converted into a room. This is the genesis and substance of the reception hall.

In this plan there is an indication of what may be done in a small building built for a relatively small sum of money. There is a connection between the hall and sitting room which in the reception hall idea gives the house the appearance of sumptuousness. On the other hand, there are the means of separation which are often desirable in any room. On the other side of the hall are the library and dining room. They bear their proper relation to the hall, though maybe not their proper relation to one another. In the strict sense a library should probably have no connection with the dining room. However, individual preference and requirements may naturally control matters of this kind. The plan shows a grate in the library and one in the hall.

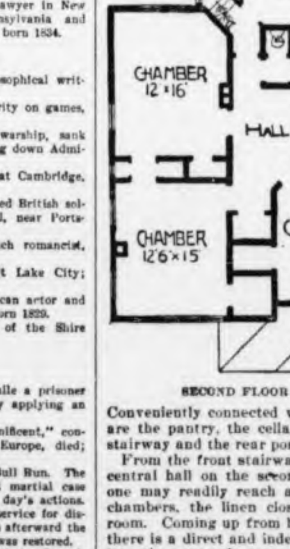

One thing which the development of the reception hall idea has done for all buildings is to make the hall itself of more interest. In former times it was a mere passage, often a narrow one, with a small window, leading to the stairway. In this plan, which is in a measure typical of what may be done, the end of the stair hall is entirely given up to a broad window, which throws great floods of light down into the hall. Thus one coming into the hall from the outside comes toward the light rather than into a dark end, which is so often characteristic of the old stair hall.

The kitchen in this house is almost ideal in its arrangement and completeness. It could not be more satisfactory in a house costing ten times the amount of money. In truth, kitchens are often planned in connection with large establishments which would be a great burden to people of ordinary means. In this plan we have the proper passage, containing china closet, between dining room and kitchen. Plain sheets of cathedral glass in the passage doors would obscure the view, and at the same time they would give light to this passage in an agreeable manner. The kitchen tables, the sink and drainboard are arranged along the kitchen wall in an ideal manner. They are close to the dining room passage and not far removed from the range. One working at the table and sink would be by the range by merely turning around.

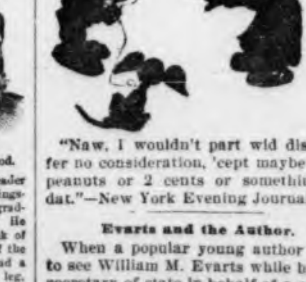

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

Conveniently connected with this kitchen are the pantry, the cellar way, the back stairway and the rear porch.

From the front stairway one lands in a central hall on the second floor, whence one may readily reach any one of three chambers, the linen closet or the bathroom. Coming up from below in the rear there is a direct and independent passage into the servant's room. This hall may be separated from the front stairway by a door. One having a love for a large number of ample closets would be wholly satisfied by this plan.

Such a building could be finished at a cost of from $2,600 to $3,000.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VIII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 25.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxii, 1-14. Memory Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Heb. xi, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1. "And it came to pass after these things that God did tempt Abraham." In our last lesson we looked just a little at chapter xix concerning the destruction of Sodom and rescue of Lot. In chapter xx Abraham went to sojourn at Gerar and fell into the same sin which troubled him in Egypt and was rebuked by Abimelech. His answer in verse 11 was testimony against himself, for he should not willingly have gone where the fear of God was not. In chapter xxi we have the birth of Isaac and the casting out of Ishmael and find Abraham dwelling at Beersheba and worshiping the Lord under a new name, the everlasting God. Note in verse 6 Sarah's testimony, "God hath made me to laugh," and in verses 17 and 18 God's promise to Hagar, with His "Fear not," which is, I think, the second in the book. "God did tempt Abraham" signifies that God tried him (Heb. xi, 17), for "the Lord trieth the righteous" (Ps. xi, 5), but He will not try any one above that he is able (I Cor. x, 13), and patience under trial will bring the crown of life (Jas. i, 12; Rev. ii, 10).

2, 3. "Offer him for a burnt offering." This from God concerning his only son, his well beloved, for whom he had waited 25 years at least. Compare xii, 4, and xxi, 5. Yet see his ready obedience, for he believed that God would raise him up even from the dead, from whence also he received him in a figure. Was ever a mortal man so tried, or did ever man come so near to God in his experience? In Israel all God's promises to Abraham centered, and if they were not fulfilled in Isaac the word of God would fail (chapter xxi, 12), a thing which could not possibly occur. Mount Moriah, where Abraham was to offer up Isaac, was the same as that whereon the temple was builded by Solomon (II Chron. iii, 1), for both tabernacle and temple stood, in a figure, upon atonement, the silver sockets of the tabernacle being made from the ransom money of the people.

4, 5. "On the third day." It is to be a resurrection story, and the third day is the resurrection day whether of Jonah or Christ, whether in Gen. i or John ii, 1, or Hos. vi, 2. When He said, "Surely I come quickly," He may have thought of the 2,000 years of this present age as two days and referred to His coming again on the morning of the third day. Abraham's words to his young men, "I and the lad will go yonder and worship and come again to you," show his strong faith that in some way Isaac would be given back to him.

6, 7. "Where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" Did a sword pierce Abraham's heart as his only son asked him this question? See Isaac bearing the wood and think of the Son of God bearing the cross on which He was to suffer. See Abraham carrying the fire and the knife and remember that it is written, "It pleased the Lord to bruise Him." All that Christ suffered from His enemies must have been as nothing when compared with His agony as He cried, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" (Math. xxvii, 46.) No tongue can tell, no words can describe, what it cost the Father to give Him up to die for our sins or what He suffered as our substitute.

8. "My son, God will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt offering. So they went both of them together." "Behold the Lamb of God!" said John the Baptist as he pointed Him out. The redeemed as they fall before the Lamb sing, "Thou art worthy, for Thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by Thy bleed," and a hundred millions of angels cry, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain" (John i, 29; Rev. v, 8, 9, 11, 12). He had been foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in due time.

9, 10. How the father's heart must have been torn as he built the altar and laid the wood upon it! But what were his feelings as he bound Isaac and laid him on the altar upon the wood and took the knife in his hand to slay his son? Who can tell but God? For no one had ever just the same fellowship with God. How deep the meaning of the words "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son," or these, "The Son of God loved me and gave Himself for me," or "His own self bare our sins in His own body," "Bruised for our iniquities!"

11, 12. "Now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son, from Me." Thus spake the angel of the Lord, the Son of God, the Lamb of God Himself, as He staid the uplifted arm of Abraham. He had tried His servant and had found him leaning not upon Isaac, the gift of God, but upon God Himself. We are apt to allow the good gifts of God to come between Him and us and lean upon them rather than upon Him, so that for our good He oft removes His gifts.

13. "Abraham went and took the ram and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son." As truly was Christ, the Lamb of God, offered in our stead, as our substitute, bearing our sins. There is no salvation by trying to live as He lived, for we cannot live His life except as He shall live it in us, and He is not in us until we receive Him as the One who died in our stead. The redemption which God has provided begins in our experience with the forgiveness of sins, and he whose sins are not forgiven has not Christ in him.

14. "And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh." The margin says that the name signifies "the Lord will see or provide." Since He has given for us His dearest and best, how can we think for a moment that He will withhold aught from us that will be for our good? (Ps. lxxxiv, 11.) Let us adopt these words, if we have not already done so, as one of the mottoes of our daily life and glorify God by unbounded and unwavering faith in Him, withholding nothing from Him, but abandoning ourselves utterly to Him for His good pleasure, that He may glorify Himself in us. This chapter leaves Abraham dwelling at Beersheba (verse 19); in the next Sarah dies at the age of 127 and is buried in Hebron. In chapter xxiv the servant of Abraham, Eliezer, obtains Rebekah from Laban as a wife for Isaac. In chapter xxv Abraham dies at the age of 175 and is buried by Isaac and Ishmael beside Sarah at Hebron. The death of Ishmael is also recorded at the age of 137. Isaac is seen dwelling by the well Lahai-roi, the well of Him that liveth and seeth me (Gen. xvi, 14, margin). There let us dwell while we sojourn in these bodies.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE

USUALLY ATTAINABLE ONLY BY GRADUAL APPROACHES.

Taxpaying and Educational Qualifications are Indispensable in Some Localities; Municipal or Presidential Suffrage in Others.

Experience shows that equal suffrage for women is usually attainable only by gradual approaches. In the Rocky Mountain States, where women are in a minority and as a consequence more highly prized, where class distinctions are almost unknown, and where a general equality of conditions prevails, full suffrage has been attained under favorable conditions. In California, Oregon, and South Dakota, at recent referendums, a majority of men outside of cities have voted in its favor, but adverse majorities in each case were given by the cities—San Francisco and Oakland, Portland, Yankton, and Sioux Falls—these centres of population turned the scale against it, while the farming population voted in favor. This shows the importance of early action by suffragists in agricultural communities, before the growth of manufactures brings with it a debased slum population manipulated by the saloons.

But even in sparsely populated States there has to be a period of preparation. In Colorado, while still a Territory, Governor Pope and others urged the extension of suffrage to women, and John B. Campbell and Margaret Campbell spent a year in pioneer effort. School suffrage was granted to women in the State constitution of 1876, with a provision for subsequent further extension. But in 1877 a full woman suffrage amendment was voted down, and it was not until sixteen years later that it secured a popular majority.

In Wyoming Territory, in 1869, the Legislature extended full suffrage to women, and subsequent experience so endeared it to the people that it has been forever confirmed without opposition in the State constitution.

In Utah Territory, in 1869, full suffrage was granted to women as a protection to the resident farming population against an influx of gold minners and railroad hands—men without families. Experience recommended it, and although temporarily disallowed by Congress, it was restored when the men formed its State constitution. In both these States it was first granted by Territorial Legislatures, and grew with the growth of these communities.

In Idaho school suffrage in the Territory preceded full suffrage in the State.

In Wisconsin and Minnesota partial suffrage has been conferred by constitutional amendments; in Montana and Louisiana, by constitutional conventions. In Kansas municipal suffrage was established by the Legislature. In some fifteen other States and Territories school suffrage has been thus established.

But in every case the exercise of suffrage by women has been preceded by legislative reforms in the personal and property rights of married women. Indeed, it seems hardly possible that full woman suffrage can exist in States where the old English common law of marriage remains unchanged. Until women are to some extent protected in their personal and property rights and in their right to money earned by them outside of the home, political equality would seem incongruous with absolute domestic subjection.

But fifty years' experience shows that under difficult social and political conditions different methods are needful, taxpaying and educational qualifications are indispensable in some localities; municipal or presidential suffrage in others. Nowhere should full suffrage be submitted to the voters in any States until partial suffrage has first been granted by the Legislature and has recommended itself to public approval, so that there is a reasonable probability of a popular verdict in its favor.—Henry B. Blackwell.

Not a Dying Cause.

It is claimed by some that the interest in woman suffrage is dying out. There is no better indicator of the growth of a movement than its receipts. The report of the treasurer at the convention of the National Suffrage Association showed a steady increase each year in the receipts. In 1891 the whole annual income from membership and donations was $2,000. In 1897 it had increased to $14,000, and this year it exceeded $22,000. The membership was doubled during the past year in the District of Columiba, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Mexico and Oregon. In Delaware, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Oklohoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina and West Virginia there has been marked gains in membership the past year. This does not look like a dying cause as some would have us believe.

Women Vote in South Australia.

The late Federal elections were a great event everywhere in the Australian Commonwealth. "Our Federation" of Adelaide, South Australia, says:

"It is a well-known fact that where women vote the elections are more quiet and orderly than is usually the case where men only go to the polling-booths. The women of South and Western Australia voted at the Federal elections, but the women of the former State had the privilege of voting for the Federal delegates who framed the Constitution. Legislators cannot long withhold from the women of other states the right possessed by the women of South and Western Australia, especially as the men who were most opposed to granting the suffrage to women now admit "it has done no harm." We could point to much good legislation as the result of the women's vote."

Fashion's Echoes.

Demidecolletage and elbow sleeves are the smart things for day gowns.

There is no doubt that low styles of coiffure are to be fashionable.

Some of the prettiest sleeves show the undersleeve effect only at the elbows, where the sleeve is slashed and filled in with a lace or mousseline puff.

Traveling dust coats of black taffeta have a place in the fashionable summer outfit. The prettiest are tucked nearly all over. The empire is particularly attractive in lingerie.

The new style millinery would seem to be perfectly flat and round, keeping its place on the head by bandeaux.

Belts and sashes of ribbon will play an all important part this season.

No garment surpasses the tasteful shirt waist.

Fancy boas are one of the season's fads and show great variety.

The trim little pique stock solves the puzzling question of neckwear for the shirt waist in a most happy way. The stock part is made of rather heavy white pique, and the small ties match or harmonize with the waist.

Faint, delicate perfumes are preferred this year.

LIME ANTIMALARIAL.

An Important Discovery Reported by a French Physician.

In France Dr. Roche has discovered that the presence of lime in the soil or in the water helps to exterminate malaria, and it is a curious illustration of the interdependence of widely different industries that this medico scientific discovery was first made in connection with experiments in manuring. This fact is particularly interesting to advocates, in season and out of season, of adding to the fertility of the soil by the judicious use of manures. The disappearance of marsh malaria from Puisaye after lime had been used in the district as a fertilizer led to investigations which are still being carried on, and which reasonably point to the probability that in lime a very effective agent has been found to neutralize the spread of malaria.

Another medical man, Dr. Grellet, has taken up the suggestion, and he has written to the Revue Hygiene that the liming of the soil for agricultural purposes in various provinces in France which were more or less affected by malaria has resulted in the reduction of malaria cases almost in proportion to the quantity of lime used. It is for experts to say whether his statement that in many countries whose conditions favor the existence of malaria the freedom or prevalence of malaria is the accompaniment of a calcareous soil is true.

Tumblebugs as Barometers.

Country folk are firmly of the opinion that the tumblebug (Geotrypes stercorarius) is an excellent barometer and that it takes flight only when a season of fair weather is coming. M. Fabre, a French naturalist, has investigated the question thoroughly and has come to the conclusion that this insect is, in fact, more sensitive than the best barometers and that it can veritably be used to predict fine weather. It is to changes of electric tension that the insect is sensitive.

A Freak Plant In Chile.

A Chilian botanist reports a plant that not only breathes but coughs and also sneezes. The least dust provokes a cough, and the leaf turns red, shakes spasmodically and gives out a sound exactly like that of sneezing.

How to Serve Chipped Beef.

Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan and add some dried beef chipped into small pieces when the butter is hot. Beat up one egg and mix it well with a scant teacupful of milk. Season it with pepper and pour over the beef in the pan. When a thin custard is formed, serve on slices of buttered toast.

How to Clean Silver.

Save the water in which your potatoes have been boiled and as you clear the table lay the silver knives, forks and spoons in the kettle of potato water until ready to wash them.

Wash in hot soapsuds and rub thoroughly on a dry, soft towel. If this custom is followed, the weekly silver cleaning may be extended to a month, the silver meanwhile remaining in good condition.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an eleven month's old child, says: "Through the months' of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." For sale by Young and Brown.

HYGIENE

An English scientist who lately descanted upon the medical value of lemons has inspired several others to point out the virtues of the onion, which is in high favor with many persons. It is with the onion as with the lemon—its devotees regard it as a panacea for a good many ills and as a preventive of many of the disorders to which flesh is heir. Appealing to chemistry, we find the onion is really a very ordinary vegetable, but there is one point which distinguishes it, and that is the somewhat high percentage of sulphur it contains.

Possibly the virtues ascribed to it depend on the presence of this element. Like the lemon, the onion may also lay claim to antiscorbutic properties—that is, to qualities which render it a preventive of scurvy. Its mineral constituents include a proportion of potash salts, and probably its antiscorbutic qualities depend upon these latter compounds.

Contagion In the Schoolroom.

Common means of contagion are these: Kissing, exchanging handkerchiefs, ribbon, chewing gum, whistles, slate and lead pencils, which are almost always, consciously or unconsciously, carried to the mouth. Coins also are treated in the same way. Drinking cups, by their common use, often spread diseases. Schoolbooks are ready carriers of contagion. Then also may be mentioned the dangers from overcrowding the schoolrooms, which leads to the breathing of impure air and the dissemination of germs. Wraps which are not absolutely needed often hang where they dry and are aired in the schoolroom.

Would Have Us Eat Insects.

M. Daguin, a distinguished French naturalist, calls attention to the fact that insects are among the most wholesome and harmless of creatures to eat, because they live almost exclusively on vegetable food. He condemns crustaceans, headed by the lobster, because they live upon dead things.

Make Believe Meat.

Vegetarians particularly will be interested in a "vegetable substitute for meat" which has been newly patented, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. The mere fact that it is declared by the inventor to have the flavor and nutritive properties of meat while actually of purely vegetable ingredients, would amount to little were it not that the chemistry section of the patent office has indorsed the claim as truthful. As a matter of fact, the compound appears to contain protein and other elements utilizable in the body for making flesh and blood and for fuel in about the same proportions as in beef or mutton.

The Gradometer.

An instrument called the gradometer has been designed to enable the occupants of any vehicle to determine at a glance every inequality of the ground over which they are traveling. The new instrument may be attached to the side of the seat of any vehicle or to the top tube of a bicycle, and the grade the vehicle is ascending or descending can be seen in an instant. The instrument consists of a nickel plated casing six inches long, containing a curved glass tube filled with spirits, leaving a small bubble, which acts the same as a spirit level.

Invention of a Motorman.

George Wray, a Pittsburg motorman, has patented a car fender which, he asserts, will make it impossible for a person struck by the forward end of a car to be carried under the wheels. He also says that his device will pick up any object four inches above the level of the rail, and that therefore it would be impossible for a car equipped with it to pass over even a child lying prone on the track.

THE ANIMAL WORLD

A movement has been started in France which has for its purpose the preservation or, rather, the cultivation of the kangaroo, which has been rapidly proceeding toward extermination.

Dr. Brisson, a French surgeon, says that there is likely soon to be an exceptional demand for the animal in consequence of the success attending the use of the kangaroo tendon in the hospitals. It has been employed in scores of instances to tie up the fractured bones of a man's leg.

Disappearance of the Quagga.

The stupid policy of hunters in South Africa has led to the almost total destruction of a host of wild animals, the quagga among them. The blaaubock was exterminated long since, and other allied species are almost all killed off. The gnu, the zebra, the giraffe, are on the way to disappearance, and the quagga has totally vanished. In past times quaggas were abundant throughout Cape Colony and the Orange Free State. They were easily domesticated, and it is surprising that no use was made of them for riding and draft purposes.

The White Rhinoceros.

All have heard of white elephants, but few know that there are also in existence white rhinoceroses constituting a distinct species. These are almost extinct, and probably not more than a dozen or so are left. The Revue Scientifique says of a small herd of these animals in Natal that fortunately they are protected by law.

Lacking In Romance.

"Swigsby hasn't a particle of romance about him."

"I never thought he had. Any new proof of it?"

"Yes. He was calling on Daisy Swinnerton. You know Daisy. Little thing, but full of poetry. Swigsby said he wondered where they met the first time, and Daisy in her poetical way said she guessed it was in the gloaming. Swigsby looked puzzled, and then what do you suppose he said?"

"Give it up."

"Said he guessed she was mistaken, because he couldn't recall any apartment house by that name."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HINTS ON PICKLING.

How to Prepare the Vinegar So as to Get a Good Green.

Cider vinegar is preferable in all cases, not only because it preserves the fruit and vegetables better than other kinds, but because it gives a better flavor. One thing should always be remembered—that the hands must never go into the pickle, either to stir or to remove the fruit. Instead, silver, woodenware or granite spoons or forks should be employed—never tin or steel.

Boiling the vinegar will weaken it. For sour pickles it should be scalded only. A graniteware or porcelain lined kettle should be used for the purpose. For those to be used at once, wide mouthed stone crocks are best. The vinegar should be two or three inches above the pickle. A double cloth over the top and a large plate above that make the best cover to the jar. If the vinegar begins to look white on top, it should be turned off, scalded and skimmed. A small piece of horse radish or nasturtium in each jar will prevent molding and will keep the vinegar strong. A dark, dry place is the best for keeping them.

In pickling small cucumbers, green tomatoes, beans and green plums, turmeric is sometimes used to improve the color, but the best plan, if a good green color is wanted, is to put the fruit into cold vinegar and heat very slowly until the color is satisfactory. A small quantity of alum will make the pickles crisp and firm. Several small muslin bags, in which the spices are tied, scattered about the jar are better than one big one. Pickles that are to be kept for winter use should be turned into cans while hot and sealed airtight.

How to Make Cheese Souffle.

Three cups of cheese, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half cupful of hot water, red pepper. Use the blazer and the hot water pan. Melt the butter and break the cheese in small pieces and add it, with the seasoning. Dissolve the soda in one-half cup of hot water and gradually add it to the melting cheese. Add a little cold water to the yolks of the eggs, beat them and stir them into the cheese. As soon as it is smooth and creamy put in the worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Beat the whites of the eggs separately and whip into the cheese last. Serve at once on small squares of lightly browned toast.

How to Make Soft Gingerbread.

Cream one-half cup of butter and lard, mixed with one cup of sugar. Add a cup of molasses, a cup of sour milk, a teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a little boiling water, two teaspoonfuls each of powdered cinnamon and ginger, a teaspoonful each of powdered cloves and nutmeg and three cups of flour. Bake in a loaf.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

How to Make Salad Dressing.

Half cupful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard, a pinch of cayenne pepper, one cupful of milk, half cupful of butter and three eggs. Put in the double boiler the milk and butter. Beat up the yolks of the eggs together with the mustard, salt, sugar and pepper and add to the melted butter and milk. Heat the vinegar separately and add little at a time to the mixture, adding whites of eggs last of all. When done, it will be thick, like custard.

How to Make Corn Bread.

One-half cupful of flour, one cupful of cornmeal (yellow), one rounded tablespoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix thoroughly. Have ready one tablespoonful of melted butter and one egg, well beaten. Add to the dry mixture one cupful of milk, the egg and butter and beat all until well mixed. Turn into a well greased shallow pan and bake about 30 minutes. Cut into squares and serve hot.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

IS THE GAS STOVE A SUCCESS?

The following figures will convince you that the Gas Stove is a success and has come to stay. Installing the Gas Stove in Winchester is simply introducing an old appliance in a new field. It is no experiment and the following table shows the number of Gas Stoves in use in localities named, June 30, 1900:

Boston, Brookline, Dorchester, Roxbury, South Boston	47,160	Dedham	560
		Fall River	5,333
		Holyoke	1,000
		Lawrence	3,710
		Lowell	4,646
		Lynn	2,200
		New Bedford	2,315
		Salem	4,794
		Worcester	4,578

And South Framingham, with a population of 5,770, had in use on above date 631

A Gas Stove will do any work that a coal range will do and it will do it quicker and cheaper.

Ask your neighbor that is using a Gas Stove if he can recommend one for your use. If he does so, send for our agent to call and give you price for installing Gas Range or Hot Water Heater.

We have put out on our lines over a car load of gas appliances so far this season and are laying pipes in localities where there are no gas mains as fast as applications are made.

Send for our agent and he will call and give you any information that you may desire on gas for lighting, cooking, heating and power.

If there are no gas mains on your street, send for him just the same, and if you are within a reasonable distance of mains the gas will be run to your premises.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

SAVAGES IN JAPAN.

THE HAIRY AINOS AND THEIR RESERVATIONS IN THE EMPIRE.

Odd Customs Practiced by These Aboriginal People of Japan. Unique Styles In Baby Names. Their Resemblance to Our Indians.

The Ainus, generally known to Americans and Europeans as "the hairy Ainos," are the only aboriginal people now living in Japan. They are called "hairy" in contradistinction to the smooth faced Japanese, Koreans and Chinese. Their present home is in Hokkaido, or Yesso, the most northerly part of the empire, although it is supposed that in earlier times they occupied most of the entire country. Ancestors of the Japanese of today found them in possession and by force of superior arms and civilization gradually drove them to the north, much in the same way as the savages were driven back toward the Pacific by the early settlers in America.

The Ainus live today pretty much as the Indians on their reservations in the west. They are still for the most part half savage, and the Japanese name for them, "Yesso," means barbarian. They are very skillful in hunting and fishing, which are their chief occupations. They are under the protection of the imperial government and are entirely separated from the Japanese. The latest census showed that they number very nearly 17,000.

Among the many curious customs of the Ainus perhaps the quaintest is their method of naming their children. They observe a peculiar economy in giving names. The infant must go without a name until it shows itself worthy of bearing one. If it is sickly and not likely to live, it is not considered worth while to waste a name upon it. As each child must by immemorial custom have a brand new name, used by no one in the community, names are scarce and must be guarded. If the child should be given a name borne by some one else, the ghost of the former possessor of the name may come back from the underworld to avenge the slight.

It is customary to take a name from some incident that occurred at the child's birth or it is left to the parents afterward to choose one for it. Should the infant come into the world with a smiling face it might be called Ikishimaburu, which means a smile, or fond parents may call it Kamoissage (a pulling rope of the gods) if they wish their child to be in the special care of the gods.

From the age of 7 to 10 Ainu children of either sex have their heads shaved, but after 11 they are allowed to have long hair and wear the same clothes as grown persons. They wear no clothing unless the weather is very cold.

The favorite and almost exclusive ornament is the earring, usually made of metal. What clothing is worn is made of straw. They never wear shoes or other covering for the feet except as a great luxury and mark of distinction on ceremonious occasions.

The men carry small knives and tobacco pouches, and the women carry small looking glasses and knives. The knife is used as symbolic. The maiden wears it with the blade bare, but when she marries it is worn in a sheath. The women also paint their faces, using a kind of ink for the purpose.

The Ainus live mostly by fishing and hunting. They hunt the bear and deer, catch salmon and other fish and grow potatoes and millet. Whenever they can get it they eat rice, which they regard as the best food, though they do not raise it themselves. Both sexes smoke tobacco and drink liquor.

The marriage customs differ widely from those of the Japanese. The question is first settled between the youth and maiden, who then refer the matter to their parents through a mediator, who should be a relative of the prospective bridegroom. The man must send a present of lacquered ware, which is regarded by them as one of the most precious things in the world. This, however, is reclaimed by him if his wife afterward seeks a divorce.

Ainus live in dwellings of about the same class as those of the American Indians. The rude but has two windows, one of them for ordinary earthly uses, the other reserved for the entrance of the gods.

Woman is fairly treated and held in deep respect. The man is not allowed to enter the house when the woman is in it alone, and he is not permitted to walk behind a woman. When a man meets a woman, he must salute first, by smoothing his beard and rubbing his hands. Then she responds by touching her nose with a finger of her left hand.

During October the Ainus hold a religious fete, which is called the bear festival, because they sacrifice a bear which has been carefully fostered for three years.

Judicial punishment among the Ainus consists of a severe beating with a stick administered to the culprit. The crimes are generally theft—stealing articles or the wife of a neighbor. As there are eight men to one woman the majority of the males are not married, and wife stealing is very common. The accused is subjected to a long examination by the chief of the community and is then compelled to resort to the ordeal of fire. He must take a stone out of boiling water. If innocent, the Ainus think he will not be injured. If the question cannot be settled in this way, the principals in the dispute must fight it out.

The Ainus are polytheists, though they limit their gods to two, a god of fire and a god of water. The first is called Kabekamoi and the latter Hatokamoi. They, also, like most peoples who have a religious system, believe in some sort of heaven and hell.—Japan and America.

Our Tobacco Crop.

There are in the United States 700,000 acres of land devoted to tobacco, of which 11,000 acres are in New England. The annual yield of all kinds in the country is 500,000,000 pounds, of which New England raises about 19,000,000. The average yield per acre throughout the country is 700 pounds, but in New England it is 1,700 pounds. It is interesting that all the tobacco raised in the country belongs to two or three botanical species, yet there are more than 60 varieties grown commercially, all of them quite distinct in shape, color and quality of leaf.

Limewater For Streets.

An English physician writing to a medical journal suggests that the use of limewater, prepared fresh, for watering streets in hot weather would prove to be a practice productive of sanitary comfort. The advantages claimed for the practice are said to be those, first, of aggregating together loose particles of refuse and thus preventing their being diffused by the wind; second, of exercising a certain antiseptic action; third, of preserving wood paving, and, fourth, of rendering wood less slippery.

BOARD OF HEALTH meets last Friday of each month at Town House.

Coal Advancing.

Coal is rapidly inclining upward. Within a few weeks there has been an advance of fifty cents a ton, and the market is so uncertain that the local dealers will only quote prices from week to week. That figures will go higher there is no doubt, as the whole question is in the hands of a few leaders in the great national trust, and they are disposed to squeeze the consumers as much as public opinion will stand. Trusts may be of benefit to the people, but they have as yet failed to see it.

Lawson's Shabby Treatment.

The treatment accorded to Mr. Thomas W. Lawson by the New York Yacht Club has been decidedly shabby from first to last. This club means to be too exclusively exclusive, and this ignoring of Mr. Lawson and the Independence has served to bring about an almost general desire that Sir Thomas Lipton will take the cup to England with him on his return as a rebuke to the unsportsmanlike conduct of the few men who have undertaken to selfishly decide who shall have the honor of defending the yachting supremacy of the entire United States.

Representative Witherell Asked to be a Candidate.

Representative Witherell of Woburn has been asked by many influential men of that city to accept a third term, in the House. It has been customary to give but two terms, but in the case of Mr. Witherell this promises to be set aside on account of his able work in the Legislature and his keen interest in forwarding Woburn's interests, and also because matters that he is familiar with deeply concerning that city are to come up before the incoming Legislature. It is understood he will be a candidate, but will not seek the office.

The STAR wishes this capable journalist and business man a unanimous renomination.

Board of Trade.

It has long been a matter of comment as to why the storekeepers have not organized a Board of Trade for mutual protection and the generation of a more social feeling among themselves. The merchants in town are probably as genial and good-hearted as are to be found in any town in the State, but nevertheless there appears to be a certain something that tends to keep them apart when they should be mutually enjoying the business confidences and experiences of each other. When spoken to on the question of a Board of Trade, all agree that it would prove a good thing. All that appears to be necessary is for some moving spirit to get them together.

Street Drainage.

The estimated cost of properly taking care of the surface water on Church street is $9000, although the actual work may show a decrease. The Selectmen have decided to do this work. The surface drainage in many parts of the town is a most perplexing and expensive question that is certain to come before the citizens if for no other reason than on the ground of economy. During the storm of Saturday night Bacon street from Main street to the river was ruined, sidewalks and all, so much so that it was closed to travel. To properly take care of the water on this street will cost between $2000 and $3000. A large 24-in. pipe will have to be laid, together with numerous catch basins, etc., and as there will have to be a special appropriation made, the work cannot be done before next spring. In the meantime, after the present damage has been repaired, there is the constant danger that it will have to be done over again before that time because of another flood. So that it will be seen that the expense of taking care of drainage on streets similar to this is endless.

Extensive Circulation of the "STAR."

Apropos of the circulation of the STAR. An item in the "Newsy Paragraphs," last week in regard to the convalescing of one of the well known residents of the Highlands from an attack of rheumatism, has brought letters from widely different parts of the country enclosing clippings of the said item from the STAR, and incidentally recommending their "Special Cures" for the affliction of rheumatism and kindred complaints, all of which goes to prove the wide extent of the circulation of the STAR.

In this connection it might not be out of place to also state that the circulation of the STAR in Winchester at the present time is the largest in the history of the paper, a fact very gratifying to the publisher, who has labored long and earnestly to give the inhabitants a clean and newsy publication.

Boat Club News.

Mr. Walter Dotten has sold his steam launch, Rowena, to Mr. Chas. Evans, Jr., of Highlandville, Mass., who will use it on the Charles river. The launch was taken out of the pond Monday.

There will be an informal regatta at the Medford Club, Monday, Sept. 2nd, at 2.30 p. m., consisting of novelty races. There will be an orchestra in the evening.

The West Medford correspondent of the Mercury under Medford Boat Club news says: "Persons who have no connection whatever with the club do not, in some cases, hesitate to act as if their privileges were paid for. Two youths came down from Winchester last Sunday forenoon and made use of the water toboggan for 15 minutes with as little concern as can be imagined. Upon their retirement a sign, 'For members only,' was affixed to the float in front of the annex building. This placard has had the desired effect."

The club will not give an entertainment on the evening of Labor day, as was contemplated. The club will, instead, tender Hermann D. Murphy a fitting reception on his return from England.

Mr. Farnum Dorsey captured a good share of the prizes at the A. C. A. meet, he bringing home a handsome silver cup, or punch bowl, a flag and two shields. He received the cup for winning the trophy sailing canoe race, and is under $500 bonds for its safe delivery at the next meet, it being perpetual. He also received the flag in this race, which he is to fly when defending the cup. This he keeps permanently. Paul Butler came in second in this race. Dorsey also received two shields, one for finishing second in a sailing canoe race and one for second place in a paddling race.

Royal Canoe Club Races.

Word was received from Hermann Dudley Murphy this week regarding the races of two weeks ago for the Royal Canoe Club's Challenge Trophy Cup. In the first race his canoe, "Uncle Sam," came in third, being beaten 11 m, 10 sec. by the winning canoe. The second race was finished 10 m, 56 sec., behind the winner, Uncle Sam being in fourth place. The third race, the report states, was won by Uncle Sam, the winners of the first two races not sailing. Accounts of other races entered by Mr. Murphy show that he won two first, both sweepstakes races for cruisers and canoes. C. Gerry Johnson also entered one race for club prizes, but did not finish as he capsized on rounding a buoy.

Seats on the Common.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think the town authorities will make a mistake if they held the desire of "Echoes" and again place settees on the mall of the Common. Previous experiences were not of the most pleasant kind especially to ladies on their way to and from the station who had to run the gauntlet of rude eyes and insulting remarks from the users of the settees. This is no place for the weary Willies.

In speaking of the Common, why would it not be a good idea to place some shrubbery on the grounds and thus relieve it of its present barren appearance? The grounds at the centre station and at Wedgemere afford a most pleasing contrast. CENTRE.

Newsy Paragraphs

Our most excellent friend, Mr. George H. Gilbert of Sunnyside, Winchester, writes us from Little Boar's Head, Rye Beach, N. H., where, with his fine horses, he has passed a happy summer, as follows: "The goldenrod and the cricket's chirp indicate Autumn. The sea air has done me more good than a chest of medicine." Which latter statement the Editor is exceedingly glad to hear. Brother Gilbert is of the salt of the earth that has not lost its savor, and may he live long and be happy.—[Woburn Journal.

The STAR struck a responsive chord in the heart of many Winchester people when it said that town is an "Ideal Summer Home."—Woburn Journal.

William C. Redfern.

Mr. William C. Redfern, one of the oldest and most respected residents, passed away at the home of his son, Mr. Barnet W. Redfern, at Swampscott, last Friday, where he had been since a year ago last April, during the absence of his son, Charles E. Redfern, of this town, who was in Europe. He was in his 85th year and had resided in Winchester since 1855, coming here from Charlestown. For about 43 years he had been a member of the Congregational church where he was a constant attendant up to the time of declining health and always an active worker in the religious life of that church. Indeed it may be said that his home and the church claimed nearly all his attention. He was quiet in his disposition, never cared for official distinction, took a great deal of pride and interest in the welfare of the town and was a model citizen.

His son, Mr. Charles E. Redfern, was abroad with his family when word reached him of the dangerous illness of his father, when he hastened home, arriving in time to receive the welcome recognition of the sick man.

The father of the deceased came to this country from England in the year 1800, and made his home in Boston. There William C., his oldest son, was born. Later the family moved to Charlestown, where he learned the trade of brass finishing in one of the old foundries that then flourished there. In 1855 he came to Winchester, where he took up this business at Bacon's Bridge in a mill opposite the old Ann Bacon house near the location of the present willow trees. At that time there were two mill privileges there, extinguished when the Mystic Lake was taken for a water supply. With brief intervals he had lived here ever since.

He was married in 1841 to Miss Lucy Jane Hughes of Windham, N. H., who died only a few years ago. Two sons survive him—Charles E. Redfern of this town and Barnet W. Redfern of Swampscott.

Funeral services were held Monday Rev. D. Augustine Newton officiating. The interment was in Wildwood.

Wedge Pond Improvement Endorsed.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Though it was a little startling at first reading, we have now induced ourselves to moderately enthuse over the Micawber-like ring of Improvement's article in last week's STAR on the glorious results which will follow the opening of the "Wedge Pond Boulevard," as he enthusiastically calls the improved path to the pond lately opened by the town. As he is evidently a young man and knows a thing or two, we old fellows should follow up his suggestion and take all the stock we can get in the new company, which he evidently "promotes," and which is to own the pavilion, dance-hall, steamboats, bathing-beach, etc., he is so good to tell us about in such smart language. If the people want these things, let them have them as Improvement suggests and he evidently knows all about such matters. To be sure the proposed site of this Eve's Garden has been land held "for religious purposes" (thus free from taxation) at great expense to the parish, but we parishioners can square that by joining in with Improvement's ideas and get something tangible out of the new order of things. It will not do to "get left" in a trade even in parish matters. As long as this land is held, as heretofore, for the free use of camp meetings, Sunday school picnics, salvation army musters, etc., with all the paraphernalia of such places, it is right not to tax it, although it has cost the parish much hard cash to improve the grounds into their present shape and keep off trespassers, dumpers, etc. We only speak of this so that when the time comes to sell to the new company, we shall not be held to a low price because the world's people may appeal to the assessors to prove we have paid no taxes these many years on our garden.

"It is now understood" (to borrow a handy phrase from Improvement), that the Wedge Pond tide has turned and the parish now looks with favor on the idea of utilizing it's sacred grove as Improvement suggests, for a sort of a general public merry-go-round. Well, "the world do move" and we have got to move with it, but it is a little hard for old stagers to move and change as quickly as Improvement seems to want us. All that the most advanced out-of-doors sport expected a few months ago was to have our beautiful terraced back yard made into a little water park and swimming beach, but Improvement is way ahead of that idea and of course we must all follow him, he is so far ahead of us. It is a little tough, though, to our old-fashioned ideas of consistency after holding land for years "for religious purposes" without paying taxes on it, to now up and sell it for a big price for a pavilion and dance hall! But then we are old and Improvement is fresh and new and that makes a difference, besides, "it is understood" he is a lawyer and whatever they say, "goes" in Winchester! There is one bit of comfort to us economical parish "hard heads" however. It is this, that while we have been holding our religious wood lot, as scoffer's call it, without paying taxes upon it, and at a low cost, St. Mary's Parish, the Unitarian Parish and the Episcopal Parish have all been paying substantial taxes on land they own, or have owned during the past twenty years, not directly connected with church buildings. Perhaps these societies may now learn a lesson from us and improve and use their out-lying land as we have ours more for religious purposes than heretofore. They should not bury their "talent" in the ground and pay taxes on it but make some show of using it as we have done and it may return to them "an hundred fold" as ours will when Improvement's big company gets on its feet. For these practical reasons mixed with others, we have concluded to endorse Improvement's scheme for bringing the parish land into the market, though we have had to "rubber neck" our conscience a good deal in looking around for an excuse for changing our old opinion that our church wood lot should only be used for religious purposes. Under the Bed of the Aberjona River.

The most difficult half of the task of laying the sewer pipe under the bed of the Aberjona River at the foot of Mystic avenue has been accomplished. Work on the other half is progressing quite rapidly considering the difficulties encountered. What made the first part of the work so laborious was because it was not only necessary to pump out the leakage from the river but to take care of the water from the underdrain which was laid under the Metropolitan sewer when it was built. The head of this flow was in Woburn and the volume of water increased as it approached Winchester. It was thought the boiler owned by the town would be of sufficient capacity to furnish the steam for the pump to handle the water, but it was soon found necessary to discard it and procure a bigger one from out of town. This succeeded in keeping the water down. As the trench under the river was about five feet below the bed, it is easily surmised the amount of pumping that was necessary day and night. The present portion of the work will not require so much pumping. It will be at least three weeks before the job is finished.

A Word to the Wise Sufficient.

Now is the time to have your furnaces and boilers put in repair. We are prompt, but we can't fix up fifty furnaces the first cold day. So kindly send in orders early and greatly oblige

Mystic Valley Trolley Club.

This unorganized organization has been in existence for the past three years. It has no officers, no by laws, no dues. Its membership is unlimited, save by the pleasure of its originator, Judge Littlefield. Its sole object is to take trolley trips, and other trips, occasionally, during the summer months. Some thirty different gentlemen, mostly residents of Winchester, have joined in its excursions. There is one unwritten rule, follow the Judge and get "transfers" when he says.

The last trip of this season was taken on Thursday to Salem Willows. Leaving Winchester at 7.20 on Stoneham car, free transfer to Melrose line on the Chelsea car. Transfer at Melrose Highlands to the Salem car, running through Saugus, Lynn and upper Swampscott, paying three fares and taking free transfer to the Willows on the last fare and reaching that point at 10 o'clock. Dinner was ordered at Chase's for 12, sharp. The interval was occupied in bowling and walking around the reservation, which is a part of the park system of the city of Salem.

After dinner the party was employed in watching the ocean from various points of vantage, till the start for home at 2.30. The car was taken for North Saugus, running through Salem, Peabody and Lynnfield, paying three fares.

At North Saugus car was taken for Reading, passing through Wakefield, one fare being paid, with transfer to Reading and Stoneham line at Reading square. Here the Arlington car was taken at 4 15 and transfers were given up, and another fare brought the party to Winchester.

Those present were: Geo. S. Littlefield, George W. Payne, George F. Parker, George P. Brown, Hiram G. Farr, James H. Winn, James McLaughlin, Alexander Macdonald, F. J. Brown, Chas. W. Bradstreet, Stewart Bishop, Henry C. Bagley.

Good Templars.

The Lodge members met in their hall Thursday evening and after routine business, the meeting opened under the good of the order when there were songs, readings, recitations, piano solos and speaking by members, all of which served to make the evening one of rare enjoyment. A big time is expected at the Jubilee Meeting on the 19th of September, to be held in Blaikie Hall. The public are invited to come and hear rousing good temperance speeches by able speakers, also good music.

Passed Away in His 74th Year.

Mr. Trueman A. Doubleday passed away at the home of his son, Mr. Carroll Doubleday, Lakeview road, Monday. He was in his 74th year, and had not been engaged in business for some years, having retired. He was a man possessed of sterling character throughout a long business career, and endowed with a genial personality.

Mr. Doubleday was born in Pomfret, Vt., and resided in that State until within the past 12 years, when he removed to Somerville and five years ago took up his residence in Winchester.

He was engaged in the manufacture of furniture in Burlington, Vt., from 1870 to 1888. He was married 43 years ago to Miss Hannah Hart of Sharon, Vt., who survives him, as does also one son, Carroll. He is also survived by two brothers and four sisters. He was held in high esteem by his neighbors and friends in this town.

Funeral services were held at the late home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. D. Augustine Newton officiating, and which were made as simple as possible in conformity with the life of the deceased. The interment was in Wildwood.

The bearers were Edward L. Baldwin, George E. Snelling, James D. P. Wingate and Marshall W. Jones.

Nearly a Cloud Burst.

The rain storm of last Saturday night was one of the most severe experienced in this town for years. A great deal of damage was done to the streets, more particularly to those on the side hills, and the Street Department men were out bright and early Sunday morning repairing some of the damage and clearing the accumulations of dirt from about the manholes. Monday the entire time of the department was taken up in repairing the damage. Danger lanterns were put out at many points Sunday night. The loss to the town, while scattered in many parts of the town, will foot up to a great deal before the streets are put back to their former condition. The drain pipe at the corner of Washington and Eaton streets was again found to be inadequate to care for the great volume of water which came down the latter street and as a result it flowed across Washington street and over the sidewalks and in places tore up Nelson street.

Bacon and Winthrop street suffered the most from the storm, the former being practically ruined, sidewalks and street, from Main street to the river, so much so that it had to be closed to travel. The street department are now repairing the damage. Winthrop street was put in shape Tuesday with the assistance of the steam road roller.

The Dance of the Hours or the Sober March of Time?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is always undignified and a little "green appearing" in an old thing to try and appear young. Age has a ripened beauty all its own which the gaiety of youth cannot successfully assume. These natural limitations apply to inanimate things as well as to human beings. Nothing sobered with age should try to be unduly gay and festive unless a ludicrous effect is desired.

These remarks are brought forth on observing what a smart and try-to-be youthful ring the old village clock at present assumes when announcing in hurried measure the passing of Father Time. Formerly this ancient crier of the loss of time (a long ago gift to the town of "the best clock which could be made") announced in dignified tones that time was on the wing and it would be well to seriously note the fact. When sitting in the old church, the solemn tones of the town clock added dignity and effect to many a sermon emphasizing the ever true story that the most important business in life is to redeem the time from foolishness and sin, for it will not pass this way again.

Lately some one with over-young and callow ideas of things has changed the mechanism regulating the dignity of the church clock's announcements so that it now rings off a hurried quick-step which Father Time can hardly keep up with, loaded down as he is with the burden of many years. He feels that he, at least, should not be told in hurried tones, "to move on"; that he is not the proper one to represent "the dance of the hours," the pleasures as well as the flightiness of youthful enjoyments. This phase of human life should be represented by some theatrical Puck with scant clothing and gossamer wings flying about the steeple and kissing the face of the old clock every hour, something not real but a creature of fancy and youthful extravagance of feeling.

Does the change from seriousness to gaiety noticed in the tones of the old clock indicate a like change in the habits and thoughts of the people who listen to it? We hope not, and yet no one would think fifty years ago of making a church town clock strike off the hours like a hurdy-gurdy playing a horn-pipe! It may be a little thing in some respects to call attention to, but many people in town would like it if the town fathers or church committee would do a little bit of re-adjustment to the clock works and "turn down" whoever has cheapened the original dignity and rhythm of its announcements. Compare the measured tones of the Town-hall clock, and every other tower clock we know of, with Winchester's most ancient church time piece and if any of them rattles off the hours in such a slipshod, hurried way as our church clock, the writer will hereafter hold his peace and stop his ears when the clock plays its hourly jig to the great discomfort of one old-fashioned churchman speaking for many old-fashioned CITIZENS.

School News.

All the public schools will open on Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Every room in the Wadleigh school will be occupied. Miss Laura B. Sanborn, who substituted a few weeks for Miss Hills at the close of last year, has been appointed to teach a sixth grade in the Wadleigh.

The following teachers have left the service of the schools: Miss Willard, Miss Beard, Miss C. Walker, Miss Fosdick, Miss Baxter, Miss Rich, Miss Curry, Mrs. Briggs.

Transfers of teachers are: Miss Taylor, Assistant Kindergartner at Washington succeeds Miss Willard as principal of the Chapin Kindergarten; Miss Littlefield from Gifford to Washington; Miss Taplin from assistant's position in Wyman Kindergarten to principalship of Gifford Kindergarten.

The following new teachers have been appointed: Gertrude D. Jameson, Gertrude M. Kendall, Susan W. Corbett, Mabel D. Corey, Stella M. Holland, Mercy J. Davis, Elsie Wein. Further information regarding these teachers will be given hereafter.

No supervisor of cooking has been appointed. An assistant for the Wyman Kindergarten is also needed.

Mr. C. H. Dupee has resigned as truant officer and Nathaniel M. Nichols has been appointed in his place.

The taking of the school census by the truant officer will begin Sept. 2.

Miss Hills of the Wadleigh School remains under medical treatment and during her continued absence her duties will be performed by Miss Jameson.

SCHOOL LEGISLATION.

At a meeting of the School Committee held last Monday evening it was voted

1. To require sewing of all pupils of Grades III and IV and of all girls of Grades V and VI.
2. To require all girls of Grade VII to take either sewing or sloyd.
3. To allow girls of Grade VIII to take sewing subject to the approval of Superintendent.
4. To restrict cooking, sewing and sloyd instruction in Grades VII and VIII to afternoons.
5. To discontinue cooking in Grade VII and to make it a required study for all girls of Grade VIII.
6. To require all boys of Grade VII and VIII to take lessons in sloyd.
7. To allow girls of Grade VIII to elect sloyd subject to the approval of the Superintendent.
8. To discontinue Latin in Grade VII and to retain French as an elective study in that grade.
9. To continue Latin and French as elective studies in Grade VIII.
10. To discontinue geometry as a distinct study in Grade VII but to continue it in close correlation with the arithmetic and drawing of that Grade.
11. To discontinue penmanship as a distinct exercise in Grade VIII.
12. To increase the use of good literature adapted to the different Grades.
13. To make use of spelling books or printed lists of words.
14. To lessen the time given to number work in primary grades and to increase the time given to language in those grades.
15. To give more attention to oral arithmetic in grammar grades.
16. To admit to Kindergartens no pupils under four years age.

The introduction of the "one session" system in Grades VII and VIII resulted in a congestion of the time schedules because of the large number of subjects taught in those grades. For several weeks a special committee has studied the problem of relieving that congestion without sacrificing the essential education designed for the pupils of those grades. It was evident that more time is needed for the ordinary English studies but it was not thought expedient to sacrifice the higher branches or to give up manual training. Cooking, sewing and sloyd are considered of great educational value and are more readily adapted to afternoon instruction than are other more purely intellectual branches. Pupils taking the manual course will be held to good work and regularity of attendance. It is hoped that the changes introduced will be immediately productive of visible and beneficial results.

Vacation School to Teach Swimming.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is a refreshing spectacle during these hot summer days to see the boys swimming near their old haunts in Wedge Pond. On a late visit to the locality, standing at the foot of the Wedge Pond Way recently put in order by the town, (thanks to some of the "old boys") two swimming places were in view where quiet and well behaved youngsters were enjoying the natural and ever delightful sport of swimming. Some could swim only a few strokes but were fast mastering the art. Others were bolder and more confident of their powers and breasted the waves almost to the middle of the pond. All wore tights and were as well behaved as one would ask boys to be. One of the swimming places was on the shore of the Prince property and the other on the opposite side of the pond on the shore of the Tennis Club grounds.

An examination of the two places after the boys had gone away, indicated that both had good sandy bottoms but that the Prince place had a steep shore which is not quite so safe for small boys learning to swim as the other place. Why would it not be well to have our day, "stand-around" police officer stationed at the pond at certain hours to look after the boys, thus reassuring timid mothers that their boys could learn to swim in safety and under public auspices? A town that very properly employs teachers to teach by the latest kindergarten methods the art of making paper flowers and boats, the proper use of jack-straws, to say nothing of sewing, cooking and carpentry, should certainly have some sort of municipal control of teaching the boys how to swim, or at least of supervising the matter to eliminate all danger to those who teach themselves. It seems a great pity in a town which is half water, in its center at least, that boys can not enjoy swimming except they trespass on private property and run the risk of being arrested for violating the by-laws of the town! Why cannot the school committee take this matter up and establish a vacation school to teach swimming? Everything this committe takes hold of succeeds and if they would advocate the teaching and supervising by the town of correct swimming methods, it would be a feather in their cap for bringing out another "Winchester idea." The little Calumet boys have their private bathing beach and diving gallows on the shores of Wedge Pond and why should not the village boys who were not born Calumets have a chance to bathe in a public pond (which is good enough for their betters) under inexpensive supervision by the town? The State has "gone back" on the village boys at Mystic Lake and now the town should take them up and give them a chance to learn to swim correctly in some pond the State does not control. No one has yet invented a satisfactory "dry swim" and if it is a fact that swimming is a useful art, it should be taught in wet water some where out-of-doors, notwithstanding a dry swim satisfies many conservatives who never went near the water when they were boys. SWIMMER.

Books to be Examined by Two Winchester Experts.

Mr. G. J. Ries, Supt. of Water for the town of Weymouth, is having his books examined by Messrs. Wm. C. Newell and Thos. S. Spurr, the well known accountants and experts, who reside in Winchester. At a special town meeting recently held in Weymouth a vote was passed directing that the accounts of Ries be examined. After careful consideration it was decided to turn the books over into the hands of the above named gentlemen.

The fact that such men have been engaged suggests that Ries' accounts must be in worse shape than was at first thought.

Mr. Newell, who is our town auditor, has been employed heretofore in many important bank cases, notably the Globe Bank and So. Danvers cases, while Mr. Spurr, town treasurer, is also a prominent expert and accountant, and well known for unravelling many difficult and confusing accounts.

There seems to be a movement among many towns to have the books of the financial departments audited at stated periods the same as is done in all large business corporations. It is surprising the extent of the laxity that prevails in many towns in regard to finances. It would have been impossible under Winchester's financial system to have had such a mix up as has occurred in Weymouth, or recently in Arlington.

Observations.

For comfort, convenience and a beautiful prospect, to look over hill, dale and lake, the estate of D. N. Skillings is not surpassed by any in town; in full view, yet above the dust and travel below, it is a pinnacle, modest and home like.

For solid looks, buttressed with stone and brick, winding paths of finished concrete, inviting with a wealth of shrubs and flowers, over-shaded with thrifty trees, the home of Charles W. Shattuck is unexcelled in this community.

When Edwin Ginn built and laid out "Stratford road" and put into the market some of his land, he did a nice thing for Winchester. He gave enterprise and impetus that has erected some of the finest houses in town, occupied by public spirited gentlemen of high business character.

Who in town has done as much as Capt. Nickerson to build up the west side? His courage and genius has been creative in building elegant and high class dwellings. Where weeds grew, roses now bloom; where stunted bushes were offensive, fine trees and ornamental shrubs harmonize with the landscape — taste and culture find in him a helping hand, his spirit is progressive.

Glengarry, not long since a deep valley shut out from passing view, now wrested from an idle waste and turned into life and thrift by the enterprise of one man, whose industry has brought a fortune, developed upon the margin of Wedge pond. Here dwell men of business, who in Boston toil and spin to feed and clothe their flocks at home.

The last piece of good road in town to drive over is the "State road" on Cambridge street. The crown and grade is perfection.

What a terrible affliction is the "office itch!" How it will break out and make one scratch all over town.

The Highway Dept. tells us in its report how much money is spent on different streets; will the Sewer Dept., in the future, give us some facts of what it costs to sewer some streets, and how it has cost the most and where it is used the least?

How far do the Skillings and Judkins estates extend into the mill pond and who owns "Black Ball" pond? When the Lowell railroad was built in 1831-4 much of the filling in the pond was taken in the winter, on ice, from the rear of the Skillings and Judkins estates.

Why do the laws of nature so operate as that washouts should come on a Saturday night and necessitate working on the streets on the Lord's Holy Day

Has the price of wool become so high that the Park Commissioners are raising sheep on the Chandler farm, where pigs were once so offensive to Winchester water takers? Would not Buffalos be a better investment, and more in keeping with the wild "varmint" that infest the Fells?

With all the gutter paving and catch basins that mark a new era in the Street Dept., no such damages have occurred in the long past as mark those of the rain storm last Saturday night. Science is expensive and experiments cost money. Go onto the Joseph Stone estate and see if you can find the plugged and buried pipes, to carry water where it never belonged, in contravention of right and justice. See the great volume of water rushing down Prince avenue and turned north, where for 200 years it has run south into the mill pond.

A Venerable Trolley Rider.

Mr. John Johnson of Woburn is well known to the older residents of Winchester and the following account of a trolley ride taken by this venerable gentleman appeared in last week's Woburn News:

Mr. John Johnson, our venerable fellow citizen now in his 88th year, enjoyed an outing early this week. Mr. Johnson's advanced age, with its attendant feebleness has kept him near his home for several years, and although he has walked down to his office in the National bank building nearly every day, still he has not ventured upon out of town trips. Mr. Johnson took a trolley trip via Winchester and Arlington to Boston, and thence to Dudley street by the surface route. From there he traveled the entire length of the elevated tracks to Sullivan Square and so homeward. The trip was full of interest and novelty, doubly so because to Mr. Johnson it revealed the wondrous changes of the last score of years. Coupled with a wide knowledge of town affairs gained from years of official experience and of finance as a bank officer for a long period, he has more than average share of mechanical ability, and because of this the wondrous structure of the elevated road appealed strongly to him, and evoked his admiration. The ride through Winchester both going and coming awoke many reminiscences of earlier days when wide-stretching farms, now dotted with pretty homes, made up what was then known as South Woburn. Mr. Johnson stood the strain of the journey very well.

New Rails for Southern Division.

The Southern Division tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad are being relaid with new rails, work being carried on chiefly on Sundays in order to avoid too serious disarrangement of the time cards. The most interesting thing about this is the manner in which the rails are being laid.

Square metal plates about 4x8 inches in size, and provided with four barbed prongs on the under side, are driven one into each end of every sleeper. These plates have a flange on the outside against which one edge of the rail is placed before being spiked.

The rails are held down by square spikes with flaring heads, each spike being driven through an orifice in the plates, there being two holes in each plate. The heads of the spikes clasp the bottom flange of the rails and hold them firmly in place.

Heretofore the rails have been spiked directly upon the sleepers, with the result that in time the spikes are loosened through the medium of the springy motion or vibration imparted by passing trains. The new rail plates are intended to obviate this difficulty, and, it is said do so very satisfactorily.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If the practice of raising the price of coal, one of the necessities of life in this region, every fall so that those who cannot afford to lay in a supply ahead have to suffer from the advance, municipal coal yards will be justified.

I hope that Gam. Bradford will run for governor this fall on some ticket or independently as then we are certain to have a democratic candidate and his campaign will do good. What is needed is very plain speaking.

Have we not made a mistake in not making specific appropriations for things that everybody believes we should have? A great many matters have been referred to boards of late years and that was the last of them. No reports, nothing done. Everything referred to boards or committees at town meeting should be called up at the next meeting and a statement or report demanded.

I hear that the Whitney path to Wedge pond is going to be fought over some more at the town meetings and am glad to hear it, as fights always draw a good crowd. The proposition to start a beer garden back there if the town should go license is rather rubbing it in, however.

There is no doubt but that there are a number of vaults near the centre that need the attention of the Board of Health. The sewers were put in for the public health and nothing else; and if premises that should enter them do not we are not getting the benefit we are paying for.

In Memory of Francis H. Nourse and Edmund Sanderson.

At a special meeting of Trustees of Winchester Savings Bank the following vote was passed:

"Whereas, our esteemed fellow Trustee, Francis H. Nourse, has been taken from us by death, we wish to express our sense of loss.

Mr. Nourse has been a Trustee of this Bank for 22 years and has always been faithful in discharge of its duties and endeared himself to his fellow Trustees by his uniform courtesy and intelligent interest in the affairs of the Bank.

While now for some years he has not been in full vigor of health, yet his patient discharge of the duties of life and brave perseverance in face of difficulties, have commended him to all.

We extend to his family our deep sympathy in their affliction, and hope they may be sustained by the memory of his life so long spared to them and by sure trust in the loving Father of us all."

At a special meeting of Trustees of Winchester Savings Bank the following Preamble and Resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, our co-trustee, Edmund Sanderson, a charter member of the Bank, as well as a Trustee since its organization in 1871, has been taken from our midst by death,

We, his fellow Trustees, desiring to bear testimony to his faithfulness and efficiency as an officer of this Bank during the period of over thirty years, do

Resolve—that in the death of Mr. Sanderson the Bank loses a faithful official, the town an honored citizen, and we an earnest co-worker.

May his long years of faithful service be an inspiration to all good citizens to serve their time and generation, each as he may be able for the good of all.

We express our sympathy with his family in their loss and commend them to the consolation of our Father in heaven who knows and cares for all."

Their Secret is Out.

All Sadieville, Ky., was curious to learn the cause of the vast improvement in the health of Mrs. S. P. Whittaker, who had for a long time, endured untold suffering from a chronic bronchial trouble. "It's all due to Dr. King's New Discovery," writes her husband. "It completely cured her and also cured our little granddaughter of a severe attack of Whooping Cough." It positively cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

With the coming of the trying dog days all the latent irritability of temper usually kept in control rises to the surface, and the jingle of sweet bells out of tune is heard in many an ordinarily peaceful household.

Nerves "worn to a fizzle" with the long continued heat seem no longer under control, and the slightest spark of fault-finding or even argumentation is quite sufficient to kindle a roaring conflagration. We can all of us recall some breakfast table where a difference of opinion in some little matter that didn't amount to a row of pins sent the whole family away unhappy, uncomfortable, unsettled for the day. If Ebenezer feels better to make some assertion that is potently preposterous, let it go at that and do not argue. No logic can convince him against his will, and the woman who condecends to argue is lost.

Solomon was right, and today, as then, the "soft answer turneth away wrath" will be found far more effective in the making of a happy home than the "grievous words" which "stir up anger."

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by Young and Brown.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

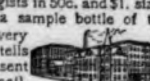

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

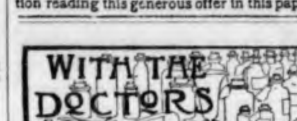

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Dr. William Evart, the well known London physician, says in an article in the St. Louis Star:

Sleep has two offices, both fulfilled in the long sleep of night, which it is our usual endeavor to secure for our patients—namely, that of favoring the slow changes of repair and that of interrupting consciousness by uncoupling the chain of neurons or by relaxing protoplasmic tension or tone. This relief of tension is, it would seem, the only office performed by the shorter spells of sleep, and therefore the two forms of sleep suggest two therapeutic objects. The night's sleep which comes without any drugs may need to be bettered, and in improving the quality of spontaneous sleep our help is often of value. It might also need to be prolonged.

The systematic prolongation of sleep for the cure of disease is one of our opportunities hitherto little used. Prolonged narcosis has also been suggested in excessive wear and tear of the nervous system, and in various nervous affections, including the mental, its renewed trial, combined with suitable methods in feeding, might lead to encouraging results.

Best suited perhaps to our everyday needs is a systematic resort to the shorter sleep. Like the light installments of food which restore the lost function of appetite and digestion, short sleep in the day may be essential to the cure of nocturnal insomnia. Our growing wealth in hypnotics warrants a hope that a suitable agent may yet be found which in that direction would minister to the health of the invalid and might command the luxury of sleep at an opportune time for the convenience of the worker.

Massage For Apoplexy.

The medical profession recognizes today as it has never done before the remarkable aid of massage. It has done marvelous things for paralysis, even for apoplexy, at which doctors once looked on helplessly. Apoplexy is caused by a clot of blood on the brain, and if that clot can be broken up, if an emptying can be effected of clogged veins, recovery is in sight. Constant massage of the forehead and skull will do it (this has been proved over and over again), while paralyzed limbs, by patient, constant kneading, can have new life rubbed into them.

To Turn Negroes White.

Professor Marshall Johnston of the University of Kansas school of medicine has discovered a means whereby he claims to be able to make the negro white. Briefly set forth, Professor Johnston's method consists in innoculating the negro with the serum of leucitis or albinism, a harmless disease which produces those strange oddities of nature known as Albinos. The fact that albinism is the result of a disease is a discovery in itself, the credit of which belongs to the professor.

An Antiseptic Discovery.

An important discovery in the science of antiseptics, upon which Drs. Frederick G. Novy and Paul C. Freer have been working for over a year in their laboratories at Ann Arbor, Mich., has just been made public. The new antiseptics are organic acid hyperoxides. In a water solution five one-thousandths of 1 per cent of active oxygen derived from the hyperoxides is fatal to all bacteria.

For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways-of-doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. A SIX ROOM COTTAGE.

For $1,200 You Can Have a Very Attractive Little Home.

There is a wonderful charm in the appearance of a neat cottage. The amount of room in the plan which we present today is astonishing for a house of its character and cost. One cannot reasonably expect that a cheap house can be as large or present as pretentious an appearance as its more costly neighbor, but by employing a style of exterior neat, but plain, and using good proportions we may obtain a home that is entirely satisfactory on all these points.

It is easy enough to build one that is cheap, but it is another matter to build one that has this feature and a fair share of the comfort and conveniences desired. Of course everything must be done on a more or less reduced scale. The rooms cannot be so large, for we must reduce the amount of ground covered to the smallest amount possible, as it is the entire area of ground covered we must take into the estimate of cost. The height of stories must also be considered. Of course very large rooms require proportionately higher ceilings, but moderately low ceilings are preferable, as they are more easily heated.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

The demand for attractive low cost houses has become so great that architects have been forced to give them their attention. This plan has six good rooms besides accessories. It will be observed that they are all of fair size, both above and below, and that direct access is had to all the chambers from the stairway and hall. The feature of a front hall and staircase as commodious as those shown here is of itself a striking excellence, the value of which will be daily appreciated by the occupants of the house.

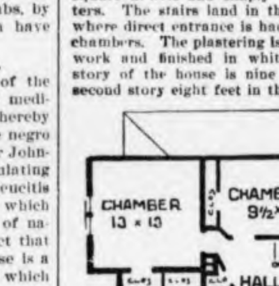

A very general impression seems to prevail among those who build either for rent or their own occupancy the cheaper class of houses that a front hall and stairway are luxuries to which none but the rich can justly aspire. That this is an error we have shown both in this and in former plans of houses costing no more than this. A front hall ought to be regarded, if not in the light of a necessity, at least in that of a very substantial comfort, which amply repays the cost of construction. An outer doorway opening into the room in which the guests are being entertained is an awkward arrangement. So is a main stairway leading from the rear of the parlor or sitting room. Both can be avoided with economy.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The wood finish of this house is of selected cypress in the natural color for the first floor and painted white pine in the second story. An open grate is provided in the parlor, provided with a simple wood mantel of neat design. The pantry is well fitted with shelves and bins. The kitchen is quite large and intended for use also as a dining room. A rear exit is had from the kitchen by a small porch. No cellar is provided in the present instance, but a cellar under part or whole of the house could be reached from the inside by stairs placed under the main flight and going down from the kitchen.

The hall stairway is finished with square newels and simply turned balusters. The stairs land in the upper hall, where direct entrance is had to the three chambers. The plastering is of three coat work and finished in white. The first story of the house is nine feet and the second story eight feet in the clear. The foundation of the building is of good stone laid in lime mortar. The porches have level ceilings of yellow pine. The frame is of sound pine timber, properly framed, raised and secured. The studding, joists and rafters are placed 16 inches from centers and the joists well bridged. The windows are hung with weights. The outside of the frame is sheathed and papered and covered with clear pine siding. All outside woodwork usually painted has three coats hand mixed paint in suitable colors.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The house has been built after these plans for $1,200 complete. In some localities it would of course cost more.

HOUSEWORKERS' HANDS.

How to Keep Them Free From the Marks of Labor.

Housework is rather hard on the hands, but there are some precautions which, if taken, will add greatly to the comfort of the worker and the appearance of the hands, says Maria Parloa in Ladies' Home Journal. Among the things which roughen and blacken the hands the most important are dust, soap, fruit, vegetables and neglect to properly dry the hands. Wash all vegetables before paring. When the hands are stained by fruit or vegetables, be sure to remove the stains before the hands come in contact with soap or soapy water. Remove the stains with an acid, such as lemon, vinegar or sour milk; then wash in clear water. When using soap and water for any purpose, be sure to rinse off all the soap before wiping the hands. Always wipe the hands perfectly dry. Do not change soaps if you can avoid it, and always use a good soap. When sweeping and dusting, wear loose fitting gloves. Have a pair of rubber gloves for use when it is necessary to have the hands in water a great deal. Grease spoils rubber, therefore the gloves must be washed perfectly clean as soon as the work is finished. A little bran and milk or vinegar will make the hands clean and smooth after dishwashing or any other work that roughens them. With a little practice one can wash dishes as well and quickly with a dish mop as with a cloth and the hands. There should be two mops, one for the tableware and one for the cooking dishes. For washing floors have a self wringing mop. To soften the hands use some sort of cream on them at night and put them in loose gloves kept for this purpose.

How to Wash Glass.

Slip the glasses in sideways so that the water touches the outside and inside of the glass at the same time, and there will be no danger of cracking from unequal expansion. Wash one at a time, rolling it around in the pan with the ends of the fingers, or use a dish mop kept specially for the glass and silver. Wipe at once without rinsing or draining. Before washing a glass that has held milk or a glass milk bottle rinse first in cold water. A generous sized piece of old cotton cloth, neatly hemmed to avoid raveling and lint, is the best polishing towel for glass.

How to Wash Cottons.

Modern processes have not devised any surer way to wash blue cottons, calico, muslins and the like than the old fashioned practice of soaking them an hour in a pail of water to which a teaspoonful of sugar of lead has been added. Red calicoes may be soaked in strong borax water. The caution must always be repeated that great care should be taken in the use of sugar of lead, which is a virulent poison.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Mrs. Nanny Galleger, of LaGrange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. It works wonders in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds and Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed by Grover's drug store.

Apple Pie Order.

To feel in apple pie order is a phrase which dates back to Puritan times—to a certain Hepzibah Merton. It seems that every Saturday she was accustomed to bake two or three dozen apple pies, which were to last her family through the coming week. These she placed carefully on her pantry shelves, labeled for each day of the week, so that Tuesday's pies might not be confused with Thursday's nor those presumably large or intended for washing and sweeping days eaten when household labors were lighter. Aunt Hepzibah's "apple pie order" was known throughout the entire settlement and originated the well known saying.

To Wash Wood.

Grained wood should be washed with cold tea, a small surface only at a time and rubbed well with a flannel cloth before it becomes dry.

To Wash Kitchen Walls.

Painted walls of kitchens can be much more easily washed by adding two tablespoonfuls of kerosene to a pail of soapy water.

NATURE'S CURE
TRADE MARK

It Makes Restful Sleep.

Sleeplessness almost invariably accompanies constipation and its manifold attendant evils—nervous disorders, indigestion, headache, loss of appetite, etc. To attempt to induce sleep by opiates is a serious mistake, for the brain is only benumbed and the body suffers. Celery King removes the cause of wakefulness by its soothing effect on the nerves and on the stomach and bowels.

LESSON IX, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 1.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxvi, 12-25. Memory Verses, 24, 25—Golden Text, Math. v, 9—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

12, 13. "Then Isaac sowed in that land and received in the same year an hundredfold, and the Lord blessed him." The previous chapter told us not only of the death and burial of Abraham and his son Ishmael, but also of the birth of Isaac's two sons, Jacob and Esau, and how Esau despised his birthright, preferring a present enjoyment to a future inheritance (Heb. xii, 16, 17). The beginning of our present chapter tells of a second famine and of Isaac going to sojourn among the Philistines at Gerar. The Lord appeared to him and confirmed His promise to Abraham and gave him "the stars of heaven" portion of the covenant. He fell into his father's sin concerning his wife and was rebuked by Abimelech; truly the heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked (Jer. xvii, 9), even the heart of Abraham, and the heart of Isaac, and your heart and mine. All that God does He does for His great name's sake, pardoning our iniquities when we confess our sins (I John i, 9; Jer. xiv, 7).

14, 15. "The Philistines envied him." The majority of mere natural people would be apt to envy one whom they saw blessed and increasing, as Isaac was. It was contemptible to fill his wells with earth, but that was human, too, and devilish, for the merely human is apt to be much used by the devil. To see him prospering notwithstanding these hindrances was more than they could stand and must have made them full of indignation. Envy and strife is earthly, sensual, devilish, and leads to confusion and every evil work (Jas. iii, 14-16; Titus iii, 3). It is bad enough among those who know not God, but when it gets into churches and families it works great havoc and greatly grieves the Holy Spirit (Acts vii, 9; Eph. iv, 30-32).

16, 17. "Go from us, for thou art much mightier than we." Thus they sent him away, as he said afterward when they wanted his favor. "Wherefore come ye to me, seeing ye hate me and have sent me away from you?" (verse 27). The presence of the righteous is often a great torment to the ungodly; they cannot stand the sight; it is too strong for their weak eyes. Isaac might have reasoned and argued with them and have insisted on remaining where he was, and have defied them to send him away, but he was not that kind of a man; he was more inclined to yield for peace sake; he was a man of peace.

18, 19. Unless we know something of the meaning of scarcity of water we shall not appreciate what these wells meant, and the enormity of the sin of stopping them. To many people in India, where they have to go miles for water, a well is an inestimable boon. When in South Africa, spending a day at a mission in Natal, my wife, having washed her hands, was about to throw out the water, when she was greeted with such an exclamation of surprise and fear from several lady missionaries as she will not soon forget. They then told her that water was so scarce that they must all wash in that water. To stop the wells as the Philistines did because of their hatred was about equal to murder. See I John iii, 15.

20, 21. The contention and hatred manifested by these unrighteous and wicked Philistines (see the marginal meaning of the names Isaac gave these wells because of the strife) were certainly hard to put up with, and only by the marvelous grace of God could Isaac have acted as he did and yielded again and again to these unjust people the wells his servants had digged. Make the case your own; put yourself as far as you can in his place, that you may in some measure appreciate it.

22, 23. "Now the Lord hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land." This he said when, after digging a third well, they did not strive for that one. After that he removed to Beersheba. Submission to wrong and oppression for the Lord's sake is not human, but it is Christlike and is a strong testimony for Him as we shall see. If we had anointed ears, we might often hear our Lord say to us, "Suffer it to be so now" (Math. iii, 15), and it would not seem so difficult if we would consider Him who endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself; who, when He was reviled, reviled not again (Heb. xii, 3; I Pet. ii, 23).

24. "And the Lord appeared unto him the same night and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father; fear not, for I am with thee and will bless thee." What a reward for his meekness, a new revelation of God to him that very night with His glorious "Fear not, I am with thee." How small a well, or a dozen wells, and all one could be called upon to bear seem in comparison with such a revelation and assurance! Truly the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is and shall be ours (Rom. viii, 18).

25. "And he builded an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord and pitched his tent there; and there Isaac's servants digged a well." A tent with the Lord is enough; the Lord without the tent is enough, for a believer should be able to say with much assurance, "Lord, Thou art my dwelling place" (Ps. xc, 1). The tent, the altar and the words from God, "Fear not, for I am with thee and will bless thee," are all and more than heart can wish. It must have been the power of the presence of God that enabled Isaac to act so meekly. See in verse 28 the sequel and note the testimony of Abimelech and his officers, "We saw certainly that the Lord was with thee." The Lord was seen in Isaac in his yieldingness, for "yielding pacifieth great offenses," and we are exhorted to let our yieldedness be known to all men, for the Lord is at hand (Eccl. x, 4; Phil. iv, 5). Had Isaac stood for his rights, as we say, in the matter of the wells, God would not have been seen in him. We must contend earnestly for the faith (Jude 3), but when we can avoid strife by a little yielding let us yield in His name, though it may seem a personal loss. Isaac might have sent these Philistines away and have refused further intercourse because of their former conduct, but grace again prevails, and now we see the sequel to this yieldedness. Isaac's servants were digging a well at Beersheba and that same day they came and told Isaac that they had found water (verse 32).

WOMEN AND THE BALLOT

Reasons Why Suffrage Should Not Be Confined to Male Citizens.

I notice in the Independent of May 30 an article against female suffrage by Henry T. Finck.

It thus briefly states Mr. Finck's objections to female suffrage: "First, none of the women need it; second, most of them do not want it; third, if they got it much more harm than good would result to themselves and others."

Permit me briefly to answer these three objections to female suffrage.

First.—Man needs suffrage in order to secure good laws. Woman needs good laws as much as man and therefore needs the right of suffrage for the same reason that man needs it.

Second.—How does Mr. Finck know that most of them do not want it? Has he consulted the many millions of female citizens of the United States and ascertained from them individually that the majority of them do not want the right of suffrage?

Let us suppose that the majority of the male voters do not want the right of suffrage, as being considerable trouble to attend to it propertly. Would that be a valid reason why the minority should be deprived of the right of suffrage? Why apply this rule to female citizens only, when equally applicable to male citizens? Females are citizens of the United States, equally with males, as being born under the same jurisdiction and subject to the same laws, and therefore by the late Amendment of the Constitution, entitled to all the rights and privileges of American citizenship.

Third.—How does Mr. Finck know that if they got it much more harm than good would result to themselves and others? Has it so resulted in some of our Western States that have had the good, practical sense to adopt female suffrage?

He makes assertions with no attempt to prove them and like other old fogies wants the public to take them without proof or even probability. In style he is quite dictatorial and assumes the airs of an acknowledged teacher. Less of assertion and more proof would be much more becoming such a writer. If man has a natural right to say to the other sex "you shall not vote because you differ from us in sex," then by the same right women can say to them "you shall not vote because you dare to differ from us in sex!" None but half a man or half a woman will admit any such sophistry as applicable to the rights of American citizenship.

School Teachers Victimized.

Not long ago the public school teachers of New York City were kept waiting many months for the pay that was justly due them from the city, and were reduced to the most painful and mortifying financial straits. The teachers of Oakland, Cal., are now going through a similar experience.

When the school board last year submitted its estimate of the sum necessary for the public schools, the city council deliberately cut the estimate down to an inadequate amount. Two months before the end of the school year, the money was all gone; and now the school superintendent and a committee of citizens are appealing for voluntary contributions from the parents and the general public, in order that the schools may not be closed and that young men and women who were almost ready to enter the University and the Normal school be obliged to wait a year. The San Francisco Call Says:

"San Francisco and Oakland present a view of municipal administration that should teach and exhort.

"For years in each city an annual deficit has appeared at the end of each year. It is sometimes partly provided for by shutting off street lights, but usually it is made up, or partly made up, by compelling the school teachers to work a month or two without pay. We are not aware that it is ever proposed that any other city employees shall give their services to the public. The pay earned by the teachers is the least for service rendered in any department of the city administration. It goes mostly to women, who have the slightest means of defence against imposition, and therefore are not formidable in the eyes of the practical politicians who run city governments.

"In San Francisco it has been the regular thing to meet deficits by making teachers work for nothing. There is a constantly accumulating debt to the teachers which will probably never be paid. The situation is disgraceful to both cities."

For the sake of both pupils and teachers, it is to be hoped that the sum needed will be raised. But the lesson ought not to pass unnoticed. The money wrongfully withheld "goes mostly to women, who have the slightest means of defense against imposition, and therefore are not formidable in the eyes of practical politicians who run the governments." Is the denial of the ballot a mere abstract grievance, involving no practical hardships?

The Governor of Pennsylvania lately cut a million dollars out of the school appropriation, which was already inadequate. A year or two ago the city of Providence, R. I., was seized with a spasm of economy and did the same.

Such instances are common; the first place where the average city government tries to economize is on the schools. But where women have the ballot, the last thing on which they are willing that the city should economize is the education of the children. Mothers of all nationalities want their children educated. A year or two ago, in the little town of Holland, Mich., where the settlers are largely Dutch, all effort was made to close the high school through misplaced economy; but on election day one thousand Dutch mothers went to the polls, school ballot in hand, and the high school was kept open.

If half the voters of every city were mothers, would the "practical politicians" care to offend them?

JAYNES' INSECT POWDER.

MESSRS. JAYNES & CO., BOSTON. ELKHART, ILL.

"Gentlemen—Having used your Insect Powder successfully I desire to convey to you my heartfelt gratitude for the production of such a wonderful exterminator of horrible insects of all kinds, such as bed bugs and roaches.

"I have tried all kinds of remedies recommended by druggists in many different countries, such as magnetic powder, gasoline, corrosive sublimate and many poisons, and none were ever successful in killing them.

"I had an engagement at the Point of Pines, Revere Beach, last summer and engaged a colored boy to come to Elkhart and live with me.

"On my return home the house was completely running over with roaches and bed bugs. My Boston boy remarked, 'Mr. Levy, there is only one place in America where you can purchase a positive remedy to get rid of these tortures and that is at Jaynes' Drug Store in Boston.' I sent for one pound and it promptly came. I was dumfounded at the rate that these horrible insects were killed. The effect was instantaneous.

"I am more than happy to have found a real reliable and positive remedy to kill roaches and bugs, and the whole public should be grateful to Jaynes & Co. Yours truly,

JULES LEVY."

CONCERNING WRINKLES.

How to Prevent and Remove These Annoying Lines.

The best preventive of wrinkles, according to a physician who has made the matter a study, is a happy disposition which meets life and its trials with a serene countenance. It is worth while, it may be interpolated, if one has not the disposition, to cultivate its counterfeit presentment in the "expression of smiling repose," which, a celebrated French beauty declared, takes away half a woman's years, whatever they may be. Wrinkles are merely expression habits crystallized by practice.

Fall in the way of raising the eyebrows constantly or puckering the forehead between the eyes in troubled perplexity, and soon the lines of latitude and longitude thus produced remain. "Crow's feet" are really pleasant lines caused by smiling and laughing, which is why they usually impart a kindly touch to the countenance.

The lines about the mouth come quickly, for no feature of the face is so mobile and expressive of every passive motion. It is wise, therefore, to go back of the effect to the cause and stifle anger, bitterness and other unlovely feelings, which will speedily write their indelible message. All lines come quickest in a flabby, relaxed skin.

For this a daily douche of water in which a little alcohol or cologne has been put is useful. Bathing the face first in very hot water, then instantly in cold, tends to toughen the skin and keep it smooth. For cheek wrinkles sleep on a small hair pillow. Massage with a good cold cream is also helpful.

How to Fill Fruit Jars.

When canning fruit by the ordinary method, fill the jars to overflowing, then run the handle of the silver spoon down the side, inside the jars and on all sides to liberate the air bubbles, so they will come to the top and can be removed. See that the jars are filled to the brim with the hot sirup. Wipe all the juice off carefully. Put on the rubber bands, adjust the top and screw it down tight. Do this as quickly as possible. Dip a cloth in hot water and fold and place the jars on this. Do not disturb until cold; then try the lids and screw down if they appear a little loose. As the glass contracts in cooling the lids will become loose, and unless care is taken to tighten them it may cause the fruit to spoil. Do not set your jars in a draft after filling them.

How to Make Clam Toast.

Chop up two dozen Little Necks fine; simmer for 30 minutes in hot water enough to cover them. Beat up the yolks of two eggs; add a little cayenne and a gill of warmed milk; dissolve half a teaspoonful of flour in a little cold milk; simmer all together. Pour over buttered toast and serve.

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a summer camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Normantown, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says: "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral.—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by Young & Brown.

IS THE GAS STOVE A SUCCESS?

The following figures will convince you that the Gas Stove is a success and has come to stay. Installing the Gas Stove in Winchester is simply introducing an old appliance in a new field. It is no experiment and the following table shows the number of Gas Stoves in use in localities named, June 30, 1900:

Boston, Brookline, Dorchester, Roxbury, South Boston	47,160	Dedham	560
		Fall River	5,333
		Holyoke	1,000
		Lawrence	3,710
		Lowell	4,646
		Lynn	2,200
		New Bedford	2,315
		Salem	4,794
		Worcester	4,578

And South Framingham, with a population of 5,770, had in use on above date 631

A Gas Stove will do any work that a coal range will do and it will do it quicker and cheaper.

Ask your neighbor that is using a Gas Stove if he can recommend one for your use. If he does so, send for our agent to call and give you price for installing Gas Range or Hot Water Heater.

We have put out on our lines over a car load of gas appliances so far this season and are laying pipes in localities where there are no gas mains as fast as applications are made.

Send for our agent and he will call and give you any information that you may desire on gas for lighting, cooking, heating and power.

If there are no gas mains on your street, send for him just the same, and if you are within a reasonable distance of mains the gas will be run to your premises.

Write for agent to call and give you further information on this Hot Water Attachment.

TABLE ETIQUETTE.

How to Eat Without Transgressing the Rules of Good Manners.

On seating oneself at table gloves, if worn, should be removed and the table napkin opened out and placed on the lap.

Bread may be placed either at the right or left side, according to convenience.

Soup.—Only small helpings of soup are given—half a ladleful is generally considered quite enough—and it is eaten as noiselessly as possible from the side of the tablespoon. It is allowable to tilt the plate slightly away from one while taking the last spoonfuls, but never toward one.

Fish.—This is now eaten with silver knives and forks specially prepared for the purpose. A few years ago fish was eaten off a fork, and a crust of bread took the place of a knife in removing it from the bones. Then this fashion was dropped in favor of two forks, but at the present day fish knives and forks are so general that one seldom has to fall back on such makeshift arrangements.

Only the fork is used for eating rissoles, omelets and dishes made of minced or small cut meat. The knife is reserved for those viands which require cutting.

When eating sweet dishes, the fork is held in the right hand and is used exclusively, as far as possible. It is only for stewed fruits, milky puddings and other semiliquid dishes that the spoon is called into service.

Asparagus is still eaten by some people in the old style of holding the stalk in the fingers, but the younger generation generally prefers the neater way of cutting off the points with the knife and conveying them on the fork to the mouth.

Salad is generally eaten from a separate plate placed at the left hand side of the meat plate.

At dessert apples, pears, etc., are peeled and are then cut up to the right size for eating off a fork. Grapes are conveyed to the mouth by the fingers, and the stones and skins are passed from the mouth to the hand and then laid on the table.

Refinement in eating and drinking cannot be too strongly insisted upon. Even little children should be taught to place quite small portions of food in their mouths, to keep the lips closed during the process of mastication and never to drink while they have food in their mouths. Drinking while eating often leads to a choking fit both alarming and unpleasant to witness.

Crumbling one's bread, fidgeting with spoon and fork, digging in the salt cellar and other nervous tricks in which some people indulge while talking are all bad habits to be overcome.

How to Boil Tomatoes.

Choose tomatoes of even size and arrange them, blossom end downward, in a saucepan. Add one teaspoonful of salt and enough boiling water to cover. Boil briskly. They will be done when they can be easily pierced by a sharp tined fork—anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes, according to size. Take up carefully on a skimmer and lay on a heated platter. Cut two gashes crosswise in each, lay on butter the size of a hickory nut, dust with salt, pepper and a very little powdered sugar and serve immediately.

How to Repress Spasmodic Cough.

For the suppression of the spasmodic cough that often seizes one at the most inopportune time, refusing to yield to cough drops or will power, try this new remedy: Pour a few drops of oil of peppermint on a bit of cotton and put in a small earthen jar or glass bottle, covering tightly. Carry in your pocket. When you feel the coughing fit coming on, inhale the peppermint, holding close to the nostrils. Cover closely again, that it may not evaporate. This has the same effect as the Chinese camphor of peppermint or menthol.

How to Stop Nosebleed.

Where nosebleed is unusually obstinate, refusing to yield to the ordinary remedies, a deruler ressort is to plug the nose with a piece of cotton about the size of the first joint of the thumb, around which a bit of thread is tied. Oil the plug, roll to a point on one end and introduce in the nose with a twisting motion until it reaches the point where the bleeding comes from.

Electric baths have been used by Dr. Armitage, an English physician, in the treatment of chronic lead poisoning, and in 40 severe cases 37 were benefited, some being completely cured. The rapid improvement is attributed to the change of the lead salts in the body into new and insoluble compounds.

The apparatus used consisted of a large porcelain bathtub—carefully insulated and provided with a large carbon negative electrode at the foot and a small movable carbon positive electrode—and a battery of 120 large Leclanche cells, connected in threes.

The treatment began with the use of 84 to 120 cells, but at the close only 24 to 60 were needed. The patient was immersed for 15 or 20 minutes in the water in the tub, and the current was regulated by his sensations, the best results being obtained when the skin was reddened without causing actual pain.

The Osmium Electric Lamp.

It is well known that the higher the temperature of the source the more economical is the resultant light. It is for this reason that the carbon filament of our incandescent lights replaces the coil of platinum wire first employed. A filament of osmium has great advantages over carbon, since osmium has a higher fusion point than any other metal. It was formerly impracticable to obtain osmium in any other form than that of a pulverulent or spongy mass, but Herr Auer von Welsbach has lately devised a method of making osmium exactly suitable for lamp filaments.

Electricity From Coal.

A solution to the problem of how to obtain electricity from coal has, it is reported, been offered by Hugo Jones, a Chicago chemist. He has procured a patent on a battery which he declares will revolutionize modern methods of procuring power, and which will make futile Edison's labors for the last few years in trying to solve the problem. The claim is made for Mr. Jones' battery that it will yield 35 per cent of the energy that is stored up in coal, or four times as much as the present combination of boiler, steam engine and dynamo.

Submarine Telephony.

Advices from France state that an engineer in that country of the name of Maiche claims to have solved the problem of telephoning by submarine cables to great distances. He has been carrying on some exhaustive experiments on the point, and it is stated that at Calais recently M. Maiche succeeded in transmitting a telephonic message with perfect distinctness through a cable 400 miles long.

A Boon to Automobilists.

A Parisian scientist has patented an automatic generator of electricity for supplying current to the automobile as it runs. It is claimed that a few teaspoonfuls of water only are required for generating the necessary motive power and that the French government is so favorably impressed with its operation that it is considering the advisability of its use on naval vessels.

The Value of Teak.

One of the principal industries of Siam is the teak lumber business. Teak is the most valuable lumber for shipbuilding in the world, says Consul General Hamilton King of Bangkok. It does not yield to the influences of moisture and drought; it is not liable to the attack of borers and other insects; it does not split or sprawl, and while it is strong, durable wood, it is easy to work and very light to the water. Because of its peculiar qualities that resist the influences of iron when brought in close contact therewith there is no substitute for it yet discovered as the backing for armor plates in vessels of war.

NEW HIGH EXPLOSIVE.

Cerberite the Name Given to a Powerful Agent of Destruction.

Count Sergey de Smollaninoff, who died in Washington a few months ago in poverty, left behind an invention in perfecting which he spent the last few years of his life. It was a high explosive, to which he gave the name of cerberite, says the Philadelphia Times. Some Washington business men had become interested in his invention, and recently the new explosive was practically tested. The material used was 50 per cent cerberite, the equivalent of 50 per cent dynamite, made up in the usual form of cartridges or sticks. About 70 pounds were placed in nine deep holes drilled in tough blue sandstone ledge. When all was ready, an electric button was touched. Instantly flames leaped out of the nine holes and with a rushing sound an immense body of stone torn from the hillside fell to the quarry floor.

Other experiments were made showing that it is a safe explosive to handle. It may be struck with a hammer, rubbed with sandpaper, burned in a bright flame without exploding. It can be exploded only by the simultaneous action of three things—flame, heat and concussion, which in practice are secured by means of a detonating cap.

It is claimed for cerberite that practically it will not freeze, that water does not affect it and that it can be exploded when in direct contact with water. This was shown recently by the fact that some of the holes contained water anywhere from an inch or two to a foot in depth. Cerberite does not give off when exploded noxious fumes or gases and is smokeless. The new explosive is made in three forms—liquid, gelatin and powder.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for burns, boils, piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Grover.

Mrs. McKinley's Physician.

To Dr. Presley M. Rixey, Mrs. McKinley's physician, is due much credit for her recovery from her recent serious illness. Dr. Rixey holds the rank of medical inspector in the navy. His wife and he are intimate personal friends of the McKinleys.

DR. PRESLEY MARION RIXEY.

How to Make Frozen Tomato Sauce.

Peel and chop rather fine half a dozen ripe, solid tomatoes; season with salt, white pepper, a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar and a tablespoonful of some hot meat sauce, such as worcestershire. Freeze the pulp solid in an ice cream freezer. When hard, pack in fancy molds like tomatoes, pears or apples and let stand two hours in salt and ice; then turn on crisp lettuce leaves. Serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

How to Make Apple Jelly Pudding.

Boil one and a half pounds peeled apples with one quart of water; stir through sieve; then add one-half pound sugar and the juice of two lemons. Soak 15 sheets of white and three of red gelatin for five minutes in cold water; press out and mix with the apple sauce; stir over the fire until the gelatin is all dissolved; then pour into a form and set on ice to get firm; serve with vanilla sauce.

How to Make Ginger Beer.

Twelve quarts boiling water, three tablespoons of cream of tartar, three tablespoons of ground ginger, four pounds white sugar, four lemons sliced thin, one-half yeast cake. Mix the lemons, ginger, cream tartar, sugar in the boiling water. Let cool, then add one-half yeast cake dissolved in one-quarter cup lukewarm water. Let stand 24 hours, then strain and bottle.

How to Keep Preserves.

Keep the jars and cans in a cool, dark closet where you can have ventilation from door and window. This will keep the jars clean and free from the sticky moisture which makes them so unpleasant to handle. If you have no dark pantry or closet, use paper bags or tack newspapers on the edge of the shelves to exclude the light.

A CHANCE

For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways-of-doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. For particulars call or write to NOWELLS' Photo. Studio, 386 Main Street Woburn. s6 tf

BOARD OF HEALTH meets last Friday of each month at Town House.

Steam Roads to Compete.

It is said that the steam roads are preparing to compete with the trolley lines for the suburban traffic, at reduced fares. As it costs but a trifle more to haul full cars than those partially or wholly empty, it is surprising that the steam roads have not recognized this fact before, and made efforts to retain their passenger traffic by running numerous trains at reduced fares.

A Large Mortality List.

The number of deaths during August of persons who worshipped at the Congregational Church has been surprisingly large and causes sadness and sorrow to many homes. Those who have passed away are William C. Redfern, Charles E. Howard, Trueman A. Doubleday and James Burton, and all of them had been prominent in church life and in the industrial world, and were respected citizens.

Should be Straightened and Widened.

It would be a good time to widen and straighten Washington street between Lebanon and Forest streets now that the Selectmen have decided to rebuild that street between those two points. It will not cost but a very little to do this at the present time, while to wait will mean a great increase in the expense. The accomplishing of this work means a big improvement in the appearance of this street.

Gutters Should Be Built.

The town should vote each year a specific amount for the building of gutters for the purpose of caring for the surface water during rain storms. There is not much use in spending money in rebuilding streets, if they are to be badly injured from the first heavy downpour of rain. The recent storm caused a loss to the town of between one and two thousand dollars, which might have been prevented had there been suitable gutters to keep the water from spreading over the surface of the streets.

Decrease of Voters.

There have been 109 names dropped from the voting list since the last anuual election. This is an unusual number and represents those persons who have died and those who have moved from town during the past twelve months. New names will be added to the list between now and the close of registration, but not enough, in all probability, to cover the shrinkage, so that the number of voters this year will be less than one year ago. If there was a prospect of an exciting campaign, the list would, in all probability, exceed that of last election, as there has been an increase of 76 in the number of polls.

For Attorney General.

Mr. Robert O. Harris, of East Bridgewater, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination to the office of Attorney-General of Massachusetts to succeed Hon. Hosea M. Knowlton, who declines to accept another term, has sent a neat circular with portrait to this office giving a brief biographical sketch of his life. He was born in Boston 47 years ago; graduated from Harvard in 1877; was elected District Attorney of the Southeastern (Norfolk and Plymouth counties) District in 1892, a position which he still fills and is a leading member of the Bar. He is said to stand well up in the list of aspirants.

Mr. Wm. S. Richardson has moved into his new house on Winchester street. Mr. Richardson, who works for Rev. J. W. Suter deserves much credit for his hard labor and shows himself an honest, trustworthy man. His family are now settled in their new home and Mr. Richardson is receiving congratulations on his great success.

Voting Qualifications.

The qualifications of a citizen who has the right to vote in Massachusetts are, briefly stated, as follows:

Must be a citizen of the United States by birth or naturalization. The last day for getting naturalized depends upon the different courts, but must be before the close of registration.

Must be at least 21 years old, although one under age can be registered if he will be of age at the time of the next election.

Must unless he had the right to vote in this state on May 1, 1857, or is physically disabled from doing so, be able to write his name and read in English the constitution of the state.

Must have resided in the state one year and in the city or town where he votes must have resided at least six months next preceding election.

Must not be under guardianship, nor a pauper, unless an honorably discharged veteran soldier or sailor.

Must have his name upon the list of registered voters; but one who changes his residence within the state retains for six months the right to vote for national or state offices in the place from which he removes.

Must have been assessed for a poll tax on the preceding first of May. Any person however, whose name is not properly entered on the list of those liable for a poll tax on May 1, 1901, may be assessed by proving to the board of assessors his right to be so assessed. But the payment of any poll or other tax is not a prerequisite for registration or voting in Massachusetts.

Boat Club News.

The Medford club held a few informal races on the pond Labor Day. The sailing race, which was to have been held in the forenoon, was not finished owing to lack of wind. In the afternoon the following events took place:

Novice paddling race—won by Vose, (Winchester) Hall second.

Rowing race—won by Vose (Winchester) and Neilson, Emery and Hutchins second.

Relay race—won by Hunter, Hall and Howard; Teel, Hutchins and Corey (Winchester) second.

Man overboard race—won by Hunter and Howard, Vose and Vose (Winchester) second.

Hand paddle race — won by Corey, (Winchester) Hatch and Leake.

Tilting—won by Hunter and Howard.

Prizes were given for all events, which were participated in by club members only. In the evening the Medford houses were very prettily decorated with japanese and colored lanterns, and music was furnished by a quartette and an orchestra.

Is it Manly?

Is it a manly way of executing the business of the town of Arlington to unanimously re-elect a teacher to a position in our public schools on her promise that she will immediately resign that position on her unanimous re-election to it? And yet, this is just what our school board has done. How unfair and cowardly for our school committee to send one of its teachers out with its apparent endorsement to other school boards, when, as a matter of fact, our Arlington committee has forced her resignation. Why not meet every question concerning our public schools in an open, straightforward, manly way?—[Arlington Enterprise.

This false endorsement is not fair to the teacher or the School Boards of surrounding cities and town, and will only tend to injure and cast discredit on every teacher from Arlington seeking a position elsewhere, no matter how capable she may be.

Golf Notes.

Labor Day was one of interest and good attendance at the links of the Winchester Golf Club. In the forenoon there was a driving approaching and putting contest for men and women. J. L. Barton won the men's driving competition, and the prizes for approaching and putting went to A. H. Dorsey. The women's contests were won by Mrs. E. W. Keyes. There was also a man's handicap stroke competition, won by G. W. Bouve, with a net of 75.

In the afternoon a mixed foursomes competition was won by Mrs. Keyes and G. W. Bouve, with a net score of 108.

The results of the play for the August cup is to be announced in a few days. Arrangements are being perfected for a series of team matches.

Gives a Dinner.

Last week Wednesday Mrs. Stephen Roberts, of No. 123 Washington street, entertained a party of friends and gave a dinner in honor of Mrs. D. L. Donovan, of Charlestown, who has been visiting Mrs. Roberts. Besides friends in Winchester, there were present a number from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston. Mrs. Roberts in her jolly and attractive manner made it especially pleasant for her friends. The dining hall had been daintily decorated in green and arranged something after the "Oriental Dutch" style. J. B. W.

Mr. and Mrs. James Berry and family are at Winthrop for a short stay.

Last Wednesday a little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Smith of Clematis street.

Mr. McEwen of Brookside road has bought the old watch-hand factory and is going to turn it into a dwelling house. It was built twenty-five years ago for a factory by Goodell & Winn.

The colored people of the 2nd Baptist Mission held a lawn party Thursday evening. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns and made a pretty sight on such a dark evening. The tables were decorated with flowers and candles. Ice cream and watermelons were for sale. Miss Elnora Lewis, Miss Roberta White and Miss Mary Squire presided at the tables. Violin solos by Mr. Knapp were very much appreciated by the audience.

Mr. Thos. S. Bruce of the 2nd Baptist Mission will be ordained in Boston next Thursday, Sept. 12, at the Ebeneaer Baptist Church.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Town Clerk Geo. H. Carter went to Lily Bay, Me., today, where he will take a much needed rest for the remainder of the month. In a week or two he will be joined by Messrs. E. H. Stone and W. H. Marsh, whereupon they will go further north into the Roach River Country and camp in the wilderness of the Pine Tree State, and shoot and fish. Mr. A. E. Whitney accompanied Mr. Carter.

Mr. Clyde W. Bell has been appointed acting Town Clerk during the absence of Mr. Geo. H. Carter, who is away on a vacation.

Judging by the pile of trunks left at the centre station by incoming trains Tuesday, the vacation season has come to a close.

Pie apples are scarce and poor this year. Holbrook has some good ones.

Mrs. Jerome Crosby of Webster street has much improved in health the past few weeks from her recent severe illness.

There is probably no place in town that has so handsome a display of asters as has Mr. Frank W. Winn on his estate, Maple road, Highlands. They make a beautiful display which is much admired by the neighbors and passengers on the electric cars.

A locomotive jumped the tracks just this side of Winter Hill Wednesday morning, delaying travel somewhat for a short time. Mr. Henry C. Robinson, assistant superintendent of the B. & M., skillfully directed the movement of the trains from the switch-tower at the junction, North Somerville.

Chief of Police McIntosh went on a two week's vacation to the White Mountains Thursday.

The state convention of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union will be held this year at North Adams on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 15 and 16. It will be an attractive fall trip to the city of North Adams, which is 143 miles from Boston on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine R. R. Details of the railroad routes and rates and suggestive ideas from the programme will be announced in a week or two.

The boys have been interestedly fishing this week for German Carp in the Aberjona river near the Pleasant street bridge, since one was caught last Saturday that weighed over a dozen pounds. Black Ball pond was stocked a number of years ago with these fish by Commissioner Brackett, but they are exceedingly difficult to induce to take the hook. A few years ago, at the time of a freshet a number of them tried to escape from Long Pond, situated off from Highland avenue, down the shallow brook. The result was that the fish got stranded, and were easily captured by the boys. Some of them weighed close onto twenty pounds, and the boys thinking they had struck it rich, tried to sell them but without success. The fish are strong in taste, and are considered a delicacy by some people who know how to prepare them for the table.

Mr. F. F. Carpenter and family have returned from Allerton, where they have been passing the summer.

Mr. John Caldwell and family have returned this week after a few weeks vacation at Lake Sunapee, to their residence on Bacon St.

Boys between the ages of nine and twelve will be received into the choir of the Church of the Epiphany. The organist will be glad to consult with boys or their parents in the choir room of the church on Tuesday or Friday evenings at quarter before seven.

The trouble experienced with telephones from Sunday to Tuesday was owing to changing the system over from the overhead to the conduits recently placed under the surface of the streets in the thickly settled portions of the town. It was arranged to have this done Sunday, but it was found impossible to do so because of the heavy rain which only served in the end to make matters more difficult. Storms will not hereafter interfere with the working of the telephone lines which have been placed in the conduits. But how the telephone was missed during the interruption!

Mr. Joshua Paine of Boston is the name of the gentleman who recently purchased the house 18 Glen road, together with 20,000 square feet of land.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Rev. William I. Lawrance will occupy his pulpit at the Unitarian church, which will reopen next Sunday forenoon, Sept. 8th, at the usual hour. The Sunday School will also reopen at 12 o'clock. Mr. Lawrance writes the STAR from Lake Rosseau, Canada, where he has been passing his summer vacation: "This is a glorious region for a vacation. The land is half water,—to use a Hibernicism,—the lakes losing themselves in windings among islands and beautiful banks. I have not missed a day rowing for over four weeks, and as a consequence am stronger and in better health than ever before in my life."

It is an interesting fact that no arrests for fast driving have been made on the Mystic Valley Parkway since last summer.

Mr. Geo. Adams Woods has returned from Bayside, Hull, where he has been passing several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Wooster have returned from a month's sojorun at North Sutton, N. H.

Now, seriously, do you think our Parks, Parkways, Boulevards, etc., add one jot or title to the beauty of Boston's rural surroundings? Wern't the surroundings in their rustic and semi-primitive settings, really more attractive, more satisfying to the artistic soul, more highly enjoyed in every way, than the costly works of art, landscape gardening, and park architecture, which have been substituted for Nature's own handiwork? Don't all answer at once. —[Woburn Journal.] They certainly will be more popular when a majority of the people can reach them, other than by carriage or bicycle.

The wild turkeys recently liberated in the Middlesex Fells are seen quite often. The state authorities are of the opinion that the birds will rapidly multiply as the pheasants have done.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Assessors' table in last week's STAR was interesting and also valuable as showing the citizens just what their money went for, but if it had been carried out still more fully it would have been better still. How many citizens know why it is that the fire department which had an appropriation of eight thousand dollars only received twenty four cents out of each $15.80, while the police department, for instance, which only had an appropriation of forty-five hundred dollars received forty-seven cents from each $15.80. The figures as they stand are not as clear as they might be. Try it again, Mr. Chairman.

One of the articles in the warrant for that fall town meeting should be to instruct the Selectmen to petition the legislature to amend our sewer act so that debt would come outside the limit as originally intended. That would increase our borrowing capacity a hundred thousand dollars and relieve an embarassment in that direction which has existed for some time and is growing more stringent.

Is there anything in the deed of gifts of the Howe lot that prevents the town from keeping it in presentable condition, or are we running a race with the Metropolitan Park Board to see which will keep things in the most untidy shape in that locality?

If on account of repair of streets costing more than was expected and the macadam work on Main street, which it seemed policy to do in connection with the rebuilding of the street railway, taking an unlooked for large slice of the appropriation there is not money enough to macadamize certain streets that it was expected would be and should be done this year, the thing to do is to call a town meeting and borrow enough money for this new macadam construction, which is the way money should be raised for such work and not by taxation. Washington street from Lebanon to Forest is in wretched condition and should be done this year; then there are Swanton and Church streets which should be completed; but Washington street is pressing.

It is interesting to compare the tax rates of different places, but an important question in connection therewith is what have they to show for it? Some places have a good deal and others but little. Winchester has a great deal to show with a not high valuation.

That rapid striking clock is not a church clock but a town clock, and certainly few of us desire anything slow in this town, and according to reports and communications in the local paper there are to be some particularly rapid doings in the neighborhood of that clock and it undoubtedly is only voicing what is to come.

The weeping willows in Manchester Field are singularly appropriate but the tax-payers should weep more freely, to say nothing about the boys.

The kindergarten age has finally been fixed at four years by the School Committee. This is encouraging as it is the first limitation that has been put upon anything kindergartenish since we started on our career of outstripping every other place in the country on these schools, even if we had to keep down and back much more important ones. Now that some restriction is being placed upon that end and the other schools, particularly the grammar, are receiving proper attention, the school system of this town will be much more successful. Now let us have the entire time of a Superintendent. Next Spring one of the old board is going off and we should see to it that a good man is in line to take his place.

Although Washington street to Forest should be re-built this year it should first be straightened and widened and the car tracks put in the centre of the street. This street has a very sharp curve just north of Lebanon which reverses below Cross making a bad way. It would not be very expensive to remedy this, for as it is a county road the county would undoubtedly pay the land damages. This is an important street and should be done right while we are about it.

I predict that if we have a town meeting this Fall, as we certainly should have, it will be a hot one. There is a lot of pent up heat which needs a safety valve.

THE LIQUOR MENACE.

There is no element, either social, political or commercial, which so seriously threatens the welfare of the people and nation as the liquor oligarchy. This fact should be clearly recognized. The rum power is unscrupulous, determined and vindictive. No person can oppose it without laying himself open to violence. Officials who execute the law against saloons have been shot or if possible, displaced. Ministers who preach effectively against the liquor traffic have been beaten, their lives threatened, and their parsonages and churches burned. Only recently a building belonging to Rev. W. H. Wyman of N. Abington was burned because he has accepted the office of Chief of Police and has efficiently suppressed the saloons. It has come to pass that whoever fights the liquor business with effectiveness becomes a marked man. The general public is opposed to the evils of the rum trade, but is too inactive. Vigorous measures are necessary to suppress this evil which is the most imminent menace to our social life and our political institutions. The liquor element was powerful enough to block the bill in Congress for the reduction of war taxes until the tax on beer was diminished. It invades every branch of our life, and by every lawful or unlawful means seeks to promote only its own interests. It has no moral or political principles, but allies itself with any party which will assist its plans. The men in every community who are fighting this remorseless enemy of good should receive the active support of all moral people. They should not be left to stand alone, but should receive sympathy and help, that the enemies of public order may feel that the power of public opinion is against them.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union cordially invites all friends of the cause to its meeting, Friday afternoon, Sept. 13, at the Congregational church vestry.

A level headed writer in the Star hits the nail on the head when he contends that the State Park Commissioners should take steps to make Middlesex Fells accessible to the public. As he says, the Fells might as well be in the Philippine Islands so far as that charming reservation is of any utility to the people, as where it is. Nobody without a horse and carriage, can reach it, and if, perchance, reached, its beauties cannot be enjoyed. —[Woburn Journal.

Selectmen's Meeting.

There has not been a great deal of business transacted by the Selectmen during the past few weeks owing to members of the Board being absent from town on their vacations and also because there has been little business of importance. Of course urgent demands have been attended to.

The Board met Monday evening, Messrs. Boutwell, Bradstreet, and Fitzgerald being present.

It was voted to concrete the sidewalk on Eaton street abutting the property of Blank Bros.

Also voted to co-operate with the city of Medford in changing the road stone on the division line between Medford and Winchester, provided the said line was not changed.

Voted to rebuild Washington street between Lebanon and Forest streets, and to notify E. C. Foster of the Lynn & Boston R. R. Co. that the tracks must be brought up to grade.

Mortality Statistics.

The Census Bureau has given out some interesting figures relating to mortality statistics. The territory comprised in the total and comparisons include in one table 271 cities of 5000 or more population in which in 1890 the death rate was 21 per 1,000, in 1900 18.6 per 1,000. Another comparison shows the average age at death in 1890 to have been 31.1 years, in 1900 35.2 years. The percentage for Massachusetts is as follows:—

	1900.	1890.
Massachusetts	17.7	19.3
Cities	17.9	19.9
Rural	17.1	17.2

According to this comparison the record for this commonwealth is, as was to have been expected, gratifying. It shows that the mortality rate is less in each instance so far as cities and rural districts are concerned, and also that the percentage for the cities is now nearly as low as that for the rural districts.

Good Templars.

Wedgemere Lodge met last evening and transacted a large amount of business. The arrangements for the jubilee meeting have been completed, and it is hoped there will be a large turnout not only of members but likewise the general public. The speakers are all noted for their brilliancy and good work. An orchestra will furnish the music.

The good of the order consisted of music, readings and speaking by visitors from Crystal Gem Lodge of Stoneham.

The dramatic committee has under way a splendid drama.

The Gypsy Moth.

Next season will witness a prolific crop of the gypsy moths. They are now found in every New England state but Vermont. It is said that they are also to be found in other states. But in Medford there is enough cause for worriment for there are thousands of nests of eggs, each nest having thousands of eggs. In front of the old burial ground on Salem street the trees are covered with nests and the trees in the burial ground are by no means exempt from these clusters of eggs. The old willow trees on Forest street, opposite the residence of Mr. W. N. Homer, are simply covered with clusters of eggs and many passers by stop to see the sight. The indications point to as great a destruction of trees in this city next year unless something is done to destroy these eggs.—[Medford Mercury.

Mistress and Maid.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The article in a recent issue of your paper on what your correspondent calls the "Servant Girl Problem," and signed "New England Housekeeper," is of the kind that does not help, but hinders. No problem is to be solved by any such one-sided presentation of the facts. Moreover, the tone of the article is angry—I may even say spiteful.

That sort of writing only makes matters worse. A real discussion should present both sides and show some discrimination. One would suppose from reading that article that all Irish domestic servants are incompetent and untrustworthy, caring nothing about doing their work well and only anxious to shirk and to get wages that they do not really earn.

It would be easy to match this with a picture of the mistresses, showing them as all heartless and selfish women, bent upon getting all the work possible out of their servants for the smallest pay and treating them with contemptuous superiority and a total want of consideration for their comfort and even for their plain rights.

Of course one picture would be as absurd and misleading as the other. There are careless and incompetent and untrustworthy employees in the kitchen as there are in the office, the shop and the mill. So, too, there are housekeepers who are haughty and stingy and unreasonable, just like so many employers of labor in other lines. But nobody has any business to write or talk as if all the members of either class were open to these grave charges.

This question, like every other, has two sides, and the trouble is that only one side usually gets a hearing. In the first place, when I hear anyone abusing the Irish girls, I am inclined to ask, "what should we have done without them?" I am told that in a certain city in Idaho ladies wear diamonds and keep carriages who yet do their own cooking and dish-washing. If our women have been relieved of that and still heavier labor for the past two or three generations, it is because the girls from Ireland were able to do it and did it for them.

And next I wish to say, "you know and everybody knows the mistress' side of this case, but have you ever heard the maid's side? Do you know the food she is given to eat, the sort of places she sleeps in and the personal treatment she receives in many a 'nice' house at the hands of 'nice people'?" I happen to know something about it and the case is certainly a strong one. Perhaps you who read this do not treat your maid in this unchristian and inhuman manner; I hope that you don't, but there are many who do, and unless you know this fact and remember it you are not fitted to discuss the question.

Again, I would say, "do you not know that there are at this moment, right here in New England, thousands of homes in which are living good, conscientious Irish girls, devoted to their employers, esteemed by parents and loved by the children, and completely identified with the family life and interests?" Within a stone's throw of this place where I am now writing is a household where the children, young and grown up, have for years turned for help and comforting, and sympathy in joy and sorrow to a warm-hearted, loyal, devoted Irish serving maid as naturally as to their mother, and with equal certainty of instant and never-failing response. Are all these good Maggies and Norahs and Katies perfect? By no means—no more than are the other members of the household.

In this life there is but one way to get along, and that is by making allowances and not expecting too much. Even in that closest and best of all human relations, a fitting and successful marriage, the husband and wife who seem "made for each other" have to make allowances and concessions for each other and learn to be patient and to "keep still" at the right time. How much more is this necessary in such a relation as that between mistress and maid? Wholesale and undiscriminating denunciation of either class is a grievous mistake, contrary to truth and justice and only making bitterness in a case where everything depends upon mutual understanding.

One word more I must say about this article of "New England Housekeeper," and I say it with surprise and sorrow. In the course of a fairly long life I have heard my share of complaints brought by angry or unreasonable or unreflecting persons against the young Irishwomen who have played so important a part in the development of the social fabric in our still young communities. The complaints and charges have taken a wide range, from the reasonable to the absurd, but one accusation, contained in the article in question, I have never seen before. So far as my knowledge goes, no living person, even of those inspired by the hateful passions of race, religious and political hatred, has ever before gone so far as to bring the slightest imputation or even the least shadow of intimation of a doubt as to the sincerity of the Irish girls' religious beliefs.

It is not necessary to go into this question. Everybody who knows anything at all of the history of England and Ireland knows that the two great facts which stand out above all else are the passionate loyalty of the Irish people to their country and their profound devotion to their religion. The sacrifices that they have made for it are a part of history and for that matter of daily observation to all who have eyes to see. I do not hesitate to declare that the "New England Housekeeper" in saying that the Irish girls would quit going to church in the morning if they were paid for it, shows a degree of ignorance as to the most vital and important interests in the lives of those so closely connected with her which would be astonishing to us if it were not so common.

The simple fact is that Catholics of all classes go to church on Sunday morning because it is a point of most strict and solemn obligation to do so. For reasons satisfactory to herself the Catholic Church requires this of her members, and the fidelity with which the obligation is met and fulfilled, in face of countless obstacles and in spite of constant temptations of all sorts to break away from it or evade it, is one of the most striking evidences that I have ever seen of the power of real, living religious faith over the lives and actions of its believers. I wish to believe that if "New England Housekeeper" had known as much about these matters as one should know before discussing them in public and pretending to "solve" them, she would not thus lightly and contemptuously have brought so grave, so injurious and so shockingly unjust an accusation against so defenceless a class in our community.

What is needed for the solution of this question of the relations between employer and employed in the household (I confess that I do not like the phrase that your correspondent uses—the "Servant Girl Question"—it grates upon my ear unpleasantly)—what we need, I repeat, is just a little "sweetness and light," a disposition on both sides to do the fair thing, a little patience, and a frank acknowledgement that if "they" are not altogether faultless and perfect, perhaps we, on our side, have our share of the failings and trying imperfections which it is probable that very few human beings thus far in the world's history have managed to escape. BROTHERHOOD.

He Paid a Small Tax.

The Melrose assessors have found one unexpected fortune. In it there is $275,000 in high grade securities that have escaped taxation. The owner lived here, paid a poll tax, and also a tax on a small house valued at $3700. He made no display of his wealth and the assessors never dreamed that he had a taxable fortune. Upon the death of the man, the probate court disclosed the great fortune. It will pay a tax to Melrose this year of about $4400.

The question naturally arises, how many more such cases are there in Melrose.—[Melrose Journal.

LETTER FROM RYE BEACH.

The Closing Days of a Pleasant Summer at Little Boar's Head.

LITTLE BOAR'S HEAD,
Rye Beach, N. H.
Labor Day, 1901.

MR. THEODORE P. WILSON:

My Dear Friend—The summer has passed and I have not before been able to write you, as I had hoped to do. I find this place by the sea just as delightful as it proved to be last year. Rye Beach is a resort in which cottage life predominates over hotel life, and many well situated and beautifully kept estates make driving a pleasure, especially now when the earliest flowers of autumn are in their glory, making brilliant color effects in contrast to well kept lawns. The first hints of autumn are seen in the wild growth in fields, where golden rod, gorse and other things give color to stretches of country. As yet no trees have taken on their autumnal dress, but a few cool nights will bring about changes in the present green freshness of the woods everywhere.

Labor day weather is fine as it has been every year since it was first observed. The day always marks the departure of many who have been here all summer. The old fashioned stage coaches, which still are used by the hotels this way, go lumbering by The Nutshell on their way to the railroad station, all laden with people and trunks, so that Labor day might well be called Exodus Day. A pleasant way to spend a part of Sunday here has been to drive to Rye Centre, an old fashioned country village, which, except that the trolley line to Portsmouth runs through its quiet streets, has changed little in the last century. I was in a house there recently 130 years old that is in as fine preservation as any house of modern structure. In this old town there is an attractive Congregational church standing on a hill. It is of the Colonial pattern, and is one of the oldest in the state. The pulpit is most ably filled by the Rev. A. W. Mills, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y. Each Sunday finds visitors from many far off places attending service there to hear Mr. Mills, an eloquent, convincing preacher. His address is direct, forceful, and extemporaneous. His sermons might really be called orations. This section of country is indeed fortunate in having a clergyman of Mr. Mills accomplishments and marked scholarly ability. Rye Beach of course has its churches, one being St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, a gem architecturally, where the Episcopalians worship, and where Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, D.D., of Philadelphia is the rector during the summer months. The late revered Bishop Brooks has often preached at St. Andrews. Dr. Tompkins has the same church in Philadelphia where Philips Brooks was once the rector.

The summer has brought me health and enjoyment and when I read in the papers that the mercury was soaring to the most unheard of altitudes, in its "hundred thousands," perhaps, like the historical novels, yet here with the shade and the sea we forgot such material affairs as heat and dust. But it is dangerous to write too adoringly of the Atlantic ocean, for the many Chicago people who choose this shore every summer will the next thing want to annex it, and the Bostonese will be despoiled of their most cherished possession. Like other summer visitors, I shall soon be turning my face homeward. Speed on ye passing days and bring the looked for hour when I shall take your hand in mine. May your STAR never grow dim.

Yours wheresoever,
GEORGE H. GILBERT.

Tyranny of Riches.

There is no escaping the responsibility of wealth. I often feel that I would like to be as free once more as I was when I didn't have a dollar.

A man who has made a fortune is never at rest. He begins by driving dollars. He ends with the dollars driving him.

I have less time now that I can call my own than ever before. I am busy all the time, early and late, mornings, nights and holidays. I am on the jump all day, from one thing to another, until I swear that I won't see another man and will stop and go to the hotel. My secretary calls a carriage, watches until the coast is clear, and I dodge out, like a sneak thief, to avoid being buttonholed by people who want to tell me their troubles. I get to the hotel and am waylaid again. I fly from there to my home, order the servant to say that I am not at home and try to get a little time with my family.

It is almost incredible, the number of people who want to come to me for assistance and advice and counsel and loans. The world seems to be full of people wanting somebody else to do their work for them.

I have found that only one person can help a man very much, and that is himself. If a man waits for somebody else to lift him along, he will stay where he is in a majority of cases.—[Thomas W. Lawson.

It has been fully demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is a specific for nasal catarrh and cold in the head. This distinction has been achieved only as the result of continued successful use. A morbid condition of the membrane in the nasal passages can be cured by this purifying and healing treatment. Sold by druggists or it will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. It spreads over the membrane, is absorbed and relief is immediate.

James Burton.

Mr. James Burton, of Church street, this town, died Friday afternoon, Aug. 30th, at 4 o'clock of typhoid fever. Mr. Burton had lived here but a short time, coming to this town from Reading. He was a comparatively young man, being but 39 years of age. Mr. Burton previously resided in Melrose, living there 12 years. He was engaged in the coal business in Boston. He leaves two children, three brothers and a father, his wife being dead a number of years. The funeral services were held Monday from his late residence on Church street, Rev. D. Augustine Newton officiating. Many tender floral tributes were sent by business associates and friends. The interment was at Reading.

How To Gain Flesh
Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.
Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.
A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking
Scott's Emulsion
You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

Observations.

In Winchester live two ladies by the name of Mason. One, on Mt. Pleasant street, the wife of the late John C. Mason, is well known for her zeal in every good work, for her benevolent and noble character; she gives often and freely. Her husband made it a rule to yearly give several hundred dollars for worthy objects. The other, is the wife of the late Chas. R. Mason, she lives on Main street in what is known as the "Fisk house," which her husband bought, coming here from Lawrence a few years ago. She is a lady of refinement with many graces that give impulse to a kind heart. She lives somewhat retired, yet knows the world in cloud and sunshine. Her father, John Sargent, was many years ago a representative in the Legislature from the city of Cambridge, and later, for several years, its Mayor.

Winchester, within a few weeks, has lost four of her most worthy citizens, each above four score years of age. Mr. Wm. Boynton, a man of enterprise and courage, with ability to wrestle with great results and push them through. Mr. Edmund Sanderson, a man of excellent life and industry, moved on and up with the town in her physical, social and business growth. Mr. Francis H. Nourse, long identified with the progress of the town. His habits of life, to do good and work on to the last, are an example fruitful to follow. Mr. Wm. C. Redfern, an honored and esteemed gentleman, whose earnest ways and modest manners, guided by high principle, won him the respect of all citizens. Three of these gentlemen outlived their wives, and I trust are happy and united with them in that spirit world of joy and rest which faith and hope grasp as a reality—yet from eternity, none have returned to verify.

What about finishing up Washington street? For the last two years a good share of the money necessary has been voted, but seems to have slipped away to patch up other localities. Look at the condition of the sidewalk and gutters north of the residence of N. A. Richardson, and see how soon some damage will have to be settled for.

Jas. H. Winn is trying to clean out the mud deposited in the small pond adjacent to the watch hand factory. The canal supplying the water was dug out a hundred years ago by Jeduthan Richardson for the purpose of running a grist mill. By an act of the Legislature right was given to turn the water into the canal. The Catholic's own the adjoining land on the west, and think Mr. Winn is interfering with their vested and deeded rights. Arbitrate, arbitrate, don't go into the law.

How would the heart of the late good Samuel Richardson, who lived at the foot of Forest street, rejoice to see two of his grandsons officiating in the Baptist church services two Sundays ago.

Judge Littlefield seems to have intensified a love for trolley locomotion. He is all the time finding new lines of travel and lots of people to go with him. If the Judge is as good a pilot over the routes as he is manager of the law, he will generally get a verdict of saftey.

When the tornado of Aug. 22, 1851 took place, that caused so much damage in Arlington and West Medford, the writer was driving a horse out from Boston. As he was passing through the hollow near the Gen. Lawrence farm that now is, the wind was sweeping all before it, and in full view tore up an elm tree much larger than a barrel, and leaving walls and fences flat. Mr. Huffmaster, who was killed in the storm, was a descendant of Huffmaster the Hessian soldier, who lived where Capt. Nickerson now lives. Deacon Sanford, whose son lost his legs by a building that was lifted up by the wind, was gate tender in Winchester afterwards.

Regret is felt that Abijah Thompson has taken up his residence out of the state. He has done a great deal to formulate the data for a future civil and church history of Winchester. His fine estate on Church St. is for sale. His good taste and genteel ways have done much to make his home beautiful and attractive. His father did much to build up Winchester. Why will not the setting sun of his son shed his last glow upon the surrounding hills and levels that he has so often admired.

Aaron C. Bell is the most methodical, and correct business tax collector Winchester has ever had, and his books are models of neatness and good penmanship.

The Reason.

The short life of electric cars shows where one great item of expense comes in. It was in 1894 that the Wakefield & Stoneham road commenced operating in Reading and now the cars put on at that time are several removes from the air brake, air whistle, high speed and easy rolling affairs of today. In fact, the difference is so marked that some other papers are calling the old ones "bumping, rattling, jumping, rickety boxes," but this of course is an exaggeration, for really they are not bad cars. With the $217,700 which the Boston & Northern has been authorized to use for new car equipments, possibly an improvement may be soon visible in the lines running into Reading.—[Reading Chronicle.

The trouble with the 1894 cars is that they were built in the cheapest possible manner, for speculative purposes, pure and simple, and that accounts for their rapid deterioration.

First Baptist Church Notes.

Our Monday evening teacher's meetings will be resumed next week.

Most of our members have now returned from their summer outings, and it is a pleasure to see them in their accustomed places and the work of the church resumed.

The interesting, instructive and helpful services of our supplies during August, Prof. Hovey, Rev. Amos Harris and Pres. C. L. White, were greatly enjoyed. Pres. White preached in Tremont Temple last Sunday.

The Peerless Cook Book.

Housekeepers will find the new edition of the Peerless Cook Book, compiled by Mary J. Lincoln, author of "The Boston Cook Book," "The Boston School Kitchen Text-Book," "Carving and Serving," etc., an invaluable aid in preparation of palatable dishes.

Mrs. Lincoln is a recognized authority and these 132 pages of selected recipes with alphabetical index form one of the most practical and compact cook books ever issued. There are a great variety of recipes between the illuminated covers of this little volume, including some additional ones for the chafing dish. As the price of the Peerless Cook Book is but 25 cents, it will undoubtedly find its way into thousands of homes where a reliable collection of the best recipes is constantly needed. The Peerless Cook Book will be sent postpaid to any address by the publishers, Little, Brown & Co., 254 Washington street, Boston, on receipt of price.

Stood Death Off.

E. R. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once told a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50 c at Grover's drug store.

Block Signal System.

The management of the Boston and Northern electric system is introducing the block signal system on the Marblehead division, signals being set at turnouts on single tracks, and it is said that the signals may be introduced throughout the entire system. This will greatly reduce the danger of single track meetings, and the management wisely concludes that dollars spent in prevention are much more profitable than dollars spent in settling for broken limbs and bruised bodies. This is in addition to the telephone connections now in use at important turnouts.

The failure of Mr. Hermann D. Murphy to win the challenge cup from the Royal Canoe Club is another proof that it is harder to win a cup than to defend it. Mr. Murphy found that his canoe, while fitted for the smooth waters and light breezes of the American ponds, was not at all suited to the conditions which he found at Langston harbor. As in canoeing, so it is in yachting, and our designers on this side of the water have always had an advantage in knowing the conditions under which races would be sailed. By this we do not mean that the American yacht has any advantage over her English rival, owing to the latter having to cross the ocean. —[Boston Herald.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Trading Stamps.

The trading stamp companies which began to canvass merchants in this state immediately after the decision by the Supreme Judicial Court that the trading stamp scheme comes within limits of the law, are meeting with a good deal of opposition in a number of cities. The local papers in Springfield, Easthampton, and other cities in the western part of the state apparently reflect a feeling of dissatisfaction existing among the merchants toward the stamp concerns. In Salem and Gloucester definite action has been taken to prevent the stamp companies gaining a foothold. The leading merchants have signed an agreement not to patronize the stamp concerns.

The plan of the stamp people is, briefly, to approach two or three merchants in each line of buisness and make an agreement with them whereby the merchant pays the company a certain amount, ranging all the way from 25 to 50 cents a hundred for the trading stamps. The merchant is then supposed to give one coupon with each cash purchase of 10 cents or multiple thereof. The coupons are exchangeable at the office of the trading stamp company for certain articles whose value represents a fraction of the amount which the merchant pays for the coupons. The difference between the price paid by the merchant for the coupons and the value of the article given by the stamp company represents its profits, and is out of all proportion to the services rendered.

Assuming the merchant pays 50 cents a hundred for his stamps, it amounts to his giving a discount 5 per cent. discount on his cash sales. The customer pays as much for his goods as he would under ordinary conditions and can get no benefit whatever from the 5 per cent. discount without saving up a lot of coupons and exchanging them for some thing he may not want or need, which, as we said, represents in value only a small fraction of the 5 percent paid the stamp company. Clearly the customer has little to gain by the deal.

As for the merchant, his cash trade is supposed to be increased by the scheme, but he is confronted with the question whether the increase in cash trade is sufficient to warrant him paying the stamp company 5 percent on his old business for the sake of the new cash business secured. It is clear that if a merchant doubles his cash business and pays 5 percent. on the whole, it amounts to his paying 10 percent on that part which is new.

It is a question if this is a profitable transaction. If the average customer would give the matter 5 minutes thought he would find that in using stamps he is indirectly contributing to the support of a concern whose only excuse for existing falls flat when its operation is analyzed.—[Banker and Tradesman.

The Decline of Golf.

It would be strange indeed if golf declined as quickly as it came in. At Franklin Park on the public links there is less golf than last year, and the same report comes from other parks. At Lenox the club people have gone back to tennis. The golf clubs will not go out in any event. These out-of-door clubs with their fine houses will be kept up so long as out-of-door sports interest the members, whether it be golf, or tennis, or some new game that may catch the popular fancy. Golf has many charms and here as in England it will be played by those who have the time and the interest. —[Melrose Journal.

A NEW CHAIN STOPPER.

Simple but Useful Contrivance Invented by a Wisconsin Man.

Michael A. Drees of Peshtigo, Wis., has invented a simple appliance by which a chain can be easily and effectively stopped and which can be readily released notwithstanding the strain to which the chain may be subjected, says The Scientific American.

The device comprises a body having oppositely arranged openings. The corresponding openings of the top and bottom lugs are in alignment with each other. These lugs are designed to receive the unequal legs of a stopper bar. The two legs are connected by an eyepiece, through which a rope is passed, whereby the stopper bar can be withdrawn. The one leg of the stopper bar is about twice as long as the other, so that when the stopper bar is withdrawn to open position the shorter leg will be moved out of the space between the lugs.

When the stopper bar is moved to the locked position shown in the general perspective view, both of the legs will lie across the space between the lugs. One end of the chain is attached to the longer leg of this stopper bar, the other end of the chain being provided with a key which can be inserted in an opening in the end of the shorter leg, so as to lock the stopper bar in position. Thus locked, the two legs straddle the chain. When the stopper bar is moved to open position, the chain is released.

A Novel Life Raft.

The navy department is providing some of the warships with a new and novel life raft. It consists of an elliptical copper tube, somewhat flattened, with airtight compartments strengthened by fins. The tube is incased in cork wound with canvas and made absolutely water tight. Attached to this float is a rope netting three feet deep, from which is suspended a wooden slatted bottom. The netting is suspended on the inner side of the float from rings which travel on lashings, so that the bottom rests in the proper position, no matter which side of the float falls upon the water when it is thrown overboard.

How to Restore Soiled Ribbon.

A milliner restores soiled and crumpled ribbon by sponging first with ammonia and water and then pressing with a heavy iron. The iron is not passed over the ribbon, but the ribbon is drawn slowly from beneath it, and care should be taken to put a piece of unused tissue paper between the ribbon and the iron. Shiny streaks in ribbon may be removed by sponging with alcohol.

RAILROADING

The Rio Grande railroad in Colorado has equipped its locomotives with a novel train robber killing device, says a writer in Locomotive Engineering.

It is a means of playing scalding water and steam over the bandits.

There is an extra piece of steel pipe running up from the bottom of the boiler to the back of the engine cab, where it is flattened out fan shaped, the ankle of the fan embracing the front, top and sides of the blind baggage and express. Another device of practically the same kind covers the front, top and sides of the locomotive itself. Other engines have a steam pipe and hose just back of the engineer, where it is handy to grab quickly.

Down near the floor of the cab, in several places where they can be reached easily, are little innocent looking buttons that connect with the air valve fitted to the steam pipe. In less time than it takes to tell it the engineer or fireman can touch a button and send back over the coal pile in the tender the hotest jet of water that any robber ever saw. The boilers carry a pressure of about 225 pounds, so the water near the bottom of the crown sheet will be at least at the boiling point.

The amount of execution one of the "cookers," as they are called, can do in a few seconds is frightful.

Automobile Railways.

The Austrian minister of railways has ordered an automobile railway carriage. It is to be of the dimensions of an ordinary third class European railway carriage, with 32 seats and standing room. Under the flooring will be placed a 30 horsepower four cylinder motor, with the mechanism and supplies necessary to enable the carriage to travel independently at a speed of 30 miles an hour. The car necessitates the services of only one man and will probably be put into use on the Southwestern line in lower Austria.

A COLONIAL DWELLING.

Simple but Effective House That Can Be Built For $3,000.

Sanitary authorities declare that beauty is an aid to health and that ugliness is a hindrance to health. It has been shown by experience in hospitals, when mind and body are enfeebled by bad health, that the introduction of disagreeable objects into the sickroom is painful and injurious to the occupants, while the presence of beautiful flowers, pictures and designs has a curative effect—a kind of mental tonic which invigorates and tones the body. This thought leads us to the consideration of the best forms, having regard to effect on the eye and through the eye on mental and bodily health, and so with all the detail of visible construction and decoration.

In reference to dwelling houses, no part should be excluded from the possession of architectural art, because it is the tendency of the human mind to allow that which is disagreeable, plain and ugly to go without regard and accumulate dirt and disorder. Consequently all the offices of the house should have as much care bestowed upon them as the living rooms to render them bright and cheerful and as obviously clean as the more important salons. Persons possessed of moderate means frequently make the error of building too large a house at the sacrifice of the details of both the exterior and interior finish of the building.

The accompanying illustrations represent a modest and sensible design of a home quite suitable for a small family living in a suburban town or village. The exterior is pleasing, and the low pitched roof makes an admirable contrast to many pretentious dwellings, which seem to consist chiefly of pediments and dormer windows. The front entrance is protected by a good sized porch, which is carried up so as to form a balcony in the second story. There is also a back porch or veranda to shelter the back door of the house. A cellar extends under the whole building, with a cemented floor to make it dry and cool.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

In the first story you pass from the veranda into the staircase hall, which communicates directly with the parlor at the left and the corridor at the back. From this corridor doors open to the dining room, kitchen and den, or smoking room. The dining room is separated from the parlor by an opening which may be closed with folding or sliding doors or curtained, as may be desired. The route to the kitchen passes from the dining room through the pantry in the customary manner in well arranged dwellings. The kitchen is equipped with all modern conveniences, including a range, boiler and kitchen sink.

A large open fireplace, with a grate for burning coal, lends cheerfulness to the den, this most desirable little accessory to the comforts of a home. This den may be used for a library or would serve as an office for a physician or professional man.

In the second story are four good rooms, with a bathroom, closets, etc. The foundation walls of the building are of stone laid in good cement mortar.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

Above the foundation walls the building is of wood, strongly framed, sheathed and clapboarded; roof shingled.

The front is ornamented with triplet windows, pilasters, railings of veranda and balcony, cornice, etc.

Inside the walls and ceilings are lathed and plastered in three coats, in the usual way for best work. The stairs are of cypress, with mahogany rails and balusters. All the other inside woodwork is of cypress, in keeping with the style and finish of the building. The building can be erected for about $3,000.

THE TROUBLESOME CORN.

How to Treat This Painful Growth on the Foot.

A corn is an overgrowth of the horny layer of some portion of the skin of the foot induced by friction or under pressure in one spot by the shoe, says Youth's Companion. It is situated generally on a prominent portion of one of the toes, more commonly the little toe, but may be on the sole of the foot or even on the ankle bone.

The first thing to do for a corn is to get new shoes that are so snug as not to rub the foot anywhere and so loose as not to make pressure in one spot more than in another.

The top of the corn may be pared with a sharp knife, extreme care being taken, especially in the case of the aged, not to cut the sound skin, or it may be filed down to the level of the surrounding skin, or the entire corn may sometimes be loosened with a dull knife blade or by the finger nail and extracted from its bed.

When this cannot be done, removal may be facilitated by moistening the corn every other day with glacial acetic acid, the softened part being subsequently scraped away with a dull knife or a small file. A salve containing salicylic acid applied every night will also frequently loosen the corn so that it can be pulled out. This is the basis of many of the popular corn plasters.

A soft corn, which is merely a corn that is always moist on account of its location on the inner surface of one of the toes, should be treated by keeping a piece of absorbent cotton between the toes so as to prevent masceration and by bathing it frequently with strong alum water.

How to Sweeten Butter.

If one has butter that is not entirely sweet, add to it a little more salt and a pinch of soda and bring to a boil on the stove. When cold, remove the cake of fat, wipe dry, and it will be found perfectly sweet for cooking.

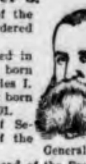

How to Polish Furniture.

When a polished table is stained by a hot dish, one restoring process is to use first wood alcohol and then linseed or olive oil. This treatment is excellent for keeping any polished furniture in order and is one of the few things for which wood alcohol may be used. The latter is cheaper than the pure and for certain domestic uses is quite as good.

TIMELY ANNIVERSARIES.

Some Current Selections From History's Broad Page.

September 8.

General Crook.

1560—Amy Robsart, wife of the Earl of Leicester, murdered by his order.

1650—Princess Elizabeth died in Carisbrooke castle; born 1635; daughter of Charles I.

1828—General George Crook born at Dayton, O.; died 1891.

1855—End of the siege of Sevastopol and retreat of the Russians.

1894—The Count of Paris, head of the French royal family and grandson of Louis Philippe, made heir apparent by the death of his father, the Duke of Orleans, died in London, where he had long resided as an exile; born 1838.

1897—Treaty of annexation to the United States ratified by the Hawaiian senate.

1900—The city of Galveston devastated by a West India hurricane; 7,000 deaths and a property loss of $25,000,000.

September 9.

1087—William the Conqueror died at Hermantrude, a village near Rouen; born at Falaise, Normandy, 1027.

1356—Battle of Poitiers; Edward the Black Prince, with 8,000 men, defeated 50,000 French.

1513—Battle of Flodden; James IV of Scotland, 30 of his nobles and 10,000 of his men were slain.

1822—Prince Napoleon Joseph Charles Paul Jerome Bonaparte, son of Jerome and nephew of Napoleon I, born; died 1891.

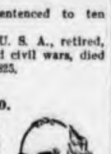

1850—President Fillmore signed the act admitting California as a state. California narrowly missed becoming an English colony. The American flag was hoisted at Monterey in the face of British vessels whose mission in the harbor was to set up some form of protectorate. In this the British were anticipated by Lieutenant John C. Fremont, who conquered northern California while the Mexican war was in progress.

1898—The American peace commission completed, consisting of Senators George Gray (Delaware), William P. Frye (Maine) and Cushman K. Davis (Minnesota), ex-Secretary of State W. R. Day and Whitelaw Reid.

Judge Story.

1787—John Jordan Crittenden, famous for his peace measures, was born in Woodford county, Ky.; died 1863.

1797—Mrs. Goodwin (Mary Wollstonecraft), famous innovator in social matters, died; born 1759.

1813—Perry's victory on Lake Erie. The battle of Lake Erie was among the most important naval fleet struggles ever fought by American ships. Perry counterbalanced the British odds in guns by running in close. He forced the enemy to fight that day. His own flagship was disabled, but after defeating the enemy he returned to her battered and gory decks and there wrote the famous dispatch, "We have met the enemy, and they are ours."

1845—Judge Joseph Story, eminent American jurist and justice of the United States supreme court, died at Cambridge, Mass.; born 1779.

1896—Luigi Palmieri, noted Italian meteorologist, died at Rome; born 1807.

1898—Empress Elizabeth of Austria killed by an Italian anarchist at Geneva. Appalling loss of life in a West India hurricane.

1709—Battle of Malplaquet; Marlborough and Prince Eugene defeated the French under Marshal de Villars.

1814—Macdonough's brilliant naval victory on Lake Champlain.

1894—Pio Pico, last Mexican governor of California, died in Los Angeles; born there 1801.

1897—Justice John Sedgwick, a noted jurist, died at Norfolk, Conn.; born 1829.

September 12.

Com. Foote.

1494—Francis I of France was born; died 1547.

1683—John Sobieski and his Poles drove an army of 20,000 Turks from the siege of Vienna.

1806—Andrew Hull Foote, American naval hero, famous for his exploits on the upper Mississippi in 1862, born in New Haven; died 1863. Foote commanded the navy at Forts Henry and Donelson and at Island No. 10. After accomplishing the overthrow of the Confederate ships around the latter stronghold he received the surrender of the garrison. He was wounded at Fort Donelson and compelled to retire from active service. Having recovered, as was supposed, he was on his way to a command in Charleston harbor when he died.

1809—Mendelssohn born.

1819—Gebhard Leberecht von Blucher, the famous Prussian commander who saved Wellington at Waterloo, died; born 1742.

1885—Guizot, French historian and statesman, died; born 1787.

1892—Rear Admiral John Cumming Howell, U. S. N., died at Folkestone, England; born in Philadelphia 1819.

LESSON X, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 8.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxviii, 10-22—Memory Verses, 13-15—Golden Text, Gen. xxviii, 16—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

10, 11. "And Jacob went out from Beersheba and went toward Haran." The previous chapter tells of the deception practiced upon Isaac by Jacob and his mother, Rebekah, and of Esau's hatred and purpose to kill his brother because he had supplanted him and taken his blessing, and as a result of this the sending of Jacob to Haran to Rebekah's brother Laban for a time. Our lesson is the story of the appearing of the Lord to Jacob as he journeyed to Haran and is a record of the wonderful grace of God, but seems also to imply true penitence on the part of Jacob after he left his father's house, for he would have much time to meditate as he journeyed onward alone. If Rebekah had believed God and had trusted Him to accomplish in His own way His promise to her (chapter xxv, 23), she might have been spared this separation from Jacob. But she seems to have feared that the purpose of God might be frustrated by Esau and his father and that it was necessary for her to act promptly even if not honestly. It is a restful thing to believe that every purpose of the Lord shall be performed both for His people and against His enemies (Jer. li, 29; Isa. xiv, 24) and just abide in Him. As Jacob journeyed from his home the blessing of his father (verses 1-4) and the love of his mother would lift him somewhat above the thoughts of his brother's anger, but he knew he had sinned against God, even though his mother was the most guilty, for she had been his counselor to do wickedly (II Chron. xxii, 3), and there must have been some searching of heart before God. His mother promised to send for him when his brother's anger had quieted, but we do not read that she ever saw him again on earth.

12. Behold a ladder set up on the earth and behold the angels of God ascending and descending upon it. The Lord Jesus said to Nathanael, "Hereafter ye shall see heaven open and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man" (John i, 51), which teaches us that the ladder was typical of the Lord Jesus, through whom alone sinful man can come to God or have any revelation of God to him.

13, 14. Behold the Lord stood above it and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father and the God of Isaac. All things are of God through Christ; salvation is of the Lord. The unchangeable Jehovah here confirms to unworthy Jacob His promise to Abraham and Isaac, giving to Jacob the promise of seed as the dust of the earth, whereas He had given to Isaac the promise of seed as the stars of heaven (chapter xxvi, 4). It is possible that when the kingdom comes we shall see that the promise to Isaac refers to or includes the church, while the promise to Jacob refers to the earthly seed Israel, and by the two righteous companies shall the righteous King of kings and Lord of lords rule all the earth.

15. "And, behold, I am with thee and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest and will bring thee again into this land." This is the fourth "behold" of our lesson; a ladder, the angels, Jehovah and now the assurance of His presence, His keeping power, His guidance and the fulfillment of all His promises. What more could sinful mortal desire? How undeserving is Jacob! How gracious is Jehovah! Can any one else appropriate such a promise, or was it only for Jacob? Why should any child of God hesitate since in Christ God hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings, and all things are ours in Christ? (Eph. i, 3; I Cor. iii, 21.) As one of His redeemed on earth for Him I have often appropriated it and lived upon it, specially in Europe in 1895, around the world in Japan, China and India, and on His great oceans in 1897, and in South Africa and the going to and fro in 1898, as well as in the constant journeyings of every week from October to May.

16, 17. "Surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not." Such were his waking thoughts as he remembered his beautiful dream, and a great sense of his unworthiness and sinfulness filled him as he considered that the God of his fathers had appeared to him also. He probably felt like Job and Isaiah and Daniel and John when they saw the Lord (Job xlii, 5, 6; Isa. vi, 5; Dan. x, 8; Rev. i, 17). Simon Peter had a somewhat similar experience when he saw the great goodness of his Lord and cried, Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord (Luke v, 8). The believer should never be found where he cannot say, "Surely the Lord is in this place," but the precious truth of Math. xxviii, 20, should be an unceasing comfort to us, for He is ever saying, "Fear not; peace be unto you." See also Jer. xxix, 11.

18, 19. His pillow became a pillar, anointed unto God. May it suggest the change in himself that whereas in more senses than one he had recently been prone upon the earth he was now by the grace of God an upright man before God and anointed by His Spirit? One of the promises to the overcomer is that he shall be a pillar in the temple of God (Rev. iii, 12), and Paul wrote concerning James and Peter and John that they seemed to be pillars (Gal. ii, 9), speaking of the time when they gave to Barnabas and to himself the right hand of fellowship. There is one great truth that believers are very apt to forget, and that is that their bodies are temples of the Holy Ghost and that they are not their own, but mansions in which Father, Son and Holy Spirit have come to dwell (I Cor. vi, 19, 20; John xiv, 17, 23). The word "abode" in John xiv, 23, is the same as "mansion" in verse 2.

20-22. "Of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee." Reading this passage just as it is in our A. V., it looks as if Jacob did not quite believe God, but said, If God will do as He has said, then I will give Him the tenth of all that He gives me. Such bargaining would be unbecoming in a child of Abraham who cheerfully paid tithes to Melchisedek (chapter xiv, 20). If we should read it, "Since God will be with me," etc., which translation, some say, the word will allow, then it becomes on the part of Jacob a grateful consecration to the Lord who appeared unto him. We may hope that the latter reading is correct, but let us who are redeemed by the precious blood of Christ see to it that we gratefully and cheerfully and conscientiously give the Lord at least the tenth of all He gives us that we may in our experience manifest the truth of Mal. iii, 10, and II Chron. xxxi, 10, and prove Ps. lxxxiv, 11.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by Young & Brown.

NATION'S DISGRACE.

STARS AND STRIPES FLOAT ABOVE HOUSES OF INFAMY.

Attention Called to the Terrible Vice That is Carried on in the Philippines Under Military Authority by Mrs. Chapman Catt President of National Suffrage Association

In her annual address, Mrs. Chapman Catt, president of the National Suffrage Association called attention to Suffrge Association called attention to the terrible vice that is carried on in the Philippines under military authority. She said:

"That prostitution still influences the status of women as a whole, no one can question. That there is work to do in the United States in this direction is apparent. Upon authority we do not dare to question, we are forced to believe that the Stars and Stripes, the liberty and justice, is floating to-day above houses of infamy in the Philippines, which are under regulation by the military authorities; the women, as Judge Taft affirms and General MacArthur admits, being subjected regularly to certified examinations. We learn that the local authorities of Honolulu, as well, have established that system of regulation of the social evil which has made France infamous for a hundred years. While reputed statesmen are extolling the sacrifices of our nation in extending political liberty to the men of the new possessions, the military authorities are secretly conniving at the sacrifice of health and life of young girls that the bestiality of the army may be satisfied. If these women gave themselves voluntarily, the condition would be black enough to horrify our senses; but we are forced to believe that many of them, ignorant and unsuspecting, have been decoyed, entrapped, and enslaved.

"Terrible as these conditions are, there are as serious problems within the United States itself. In every city in our land where there are Chinese quarters, there are Chinese women slaves. There are upwards of 2,000 in San Francisco. These women are bought for money, and a bill of sale given the purchaser, and they are then held for immoral purposes. This fact, well known for years, offends the moral sense and violates the national constitution; yet in this land of Christian liberty no serious effort has been made to eradicate this institution.

"Again, in the metropolis of the nation, within the past few months, the fact has come to light, by authority which no one questions, that a group of young men found a paying business in seeking acquaintance with ignorant girls, making love to them, seducing them, and turning them over to procurers for money. Think you we would be proud to hear the comments of the 21st century upon these conditions? Yet it must be recorded that in 1901 there are vast numbers of people who believe that such facts should go unmentioned, and that the social evil is a necessary evil. But let the progressive womanhood of our nation declare now and henceforth, in words unmistakable, that no evil is a necessity, and no institution shall be tolerated which demands the sacrifice of human souls to its perpetuity. Prostitution was the first degradation which came to womanhood; and so long as it exists in any civilized nation, it will cheapen the whole womanhood of that nation."

Two Conventions of Women.

There are women and women. This was never more strikingly illustrated than by the marked difference between the election of officers in the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution and in the convention of the National Woman Suffrage Association, just held in Minneapolis. In the former the quarreling and the intensity of the strife for office gave rise to much unfavorable press comment and was even claimed by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and others as proving women's inherent incapacity for conducting business and their unfitness for the ballot.

In the National equal suffrage convention that has just closed, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was re-elected President by 210 votes out of 218. The Rev. Anna H. Shaw, the Vice President at Large, and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, of Ohio, the Treasurer, were re-elected without contest, and Miss Kate M. Gordon of Louisiana and Miss Alice Stone Blackwell of Massachusetts were chosen as Corresponding and Recording Secretaries by an almost unanimous vote. The only contest was over the auditors, and although there was lively interest in this and some feeling over it, not a discourteous word was uttered on the floor and everything was conducted with quiet and decorum.

The inference would seem to be that women are perfectly capable of conducting the business of a meeting when they are trained to it. The Daughters of the American Revolution is an organization based solely on pedigree and made up mainly of fashionable women, with little experience of business methods or of public work. They carry over into their public conventions the frivolity and the petty rivalries in which fashionable society abounds. The equal rights convention on the other hand, is made up of women who are used to conducting the business of a public meeting and who are gathered to promote an object which they believe to be useful and not to seek personal prominence. They differ on many subjects and feel strongly on some of them, but the freedom of their recent convention from any public quarreling was one token, at any rate, of their fitness to vote.

A great bread-manufacturing company is being formed with a capital stock of $25,000,000 to bake bread for all creation. When the women follow the dough and become employees of the factory, we shall hear a great outcry because they are monopolizing the work that belongs to men.—New York Sun.

"Gentlemen—Having used your Insect Powder successfully I desire to convey to you my heartfelt gratitude for the production of such a wonderful exterminator of horrible insects of all kinds, such as bed bugs and roaches.

"I have tried all kinds of remedies recommended by druggists in many different countries, such as magnetic powder, gasolene, corrosive sublimate and many poisons, and none were ever successful in killing them.

"I had an engagement at the Point of Pines, Revere Beach, last summer and engaged a colored boy to come to Elkhart and live with me.

"On my return home the house was completely running over with roaches and bed bugs. My Boston boy remarked, 'Mr. Levy, there is only one place in America where you can purchase a positive remedy to get rid of these tortures and that is at Jaynes' Drug Store in Boston.' I sent for one pound and it promptly came. I was dumfounded at the rate that these horrible insects were killed. The effect was instantaneous.

"I am more than happy to have found a real reliable and positive remedy to kill roaches and bugs, and the whole public should be grateful to Jaynes & Co. Yours truly,

JULES LEVY."

The newest scientific discovery is preventive inoculation for plant diseases, says the New York Herald. It offers to the world a novel means of fighting the numerous maladies which attack the garden, the orchard and the ripening field crops. Hypodermic injections of certain germ cultures are given to the plants, which, being mildly sickened for awhile, presently recover and are thereafter proof against infection—veritable vegetable immunes, in fact.

Plants, like animals, are subject to ever so many diseases, most of them caused by germs of one kind or another. Such micro organisms when they feed on the leaves cause what are called "rusts" and "smuts" and frequently do an immense amount of damage. Often the fruit in garden or orchard rots in the very act of ripening, and this is as likely as not to be occasioned by a peculiar bacterium known to science as the Bacillus putrefaciens.

This bacillus has been chosen as a special favorite for the inoculation work. It grows rapidly on gelatin and is easily utilized in a suitable solution for injections. Wheat, oats, beans, sunflowers and radishes when treated in this way show symptoms of being unwell, but soon throw them off and are thenceforth proof not only against "plant rot," but also against other common maladies due to germs.

The bacillus in feeding on the gelatin multiplies at a great rate and incidentally develops a poison peculiar to itself. This poison, or toxin, as experts call it, can be separated from the germs themselves by a simple process of filtering. Then it may be used by itself in making the injections, and, as far as shown, it has the same effect in rendering the plant immune. It appears to communicate the symptoms of the complaint without the actual malady, but the result is equally satisfactory.

Developing Odor In Flowers.

Accounts from St. Louis say that an enthusiastic lover of flowers has succeeded in breeding an odoriferous race of tulips and that he is now engaged in experiments with the chrysanthemum, to which he expects eventually to impart the fragrance of the rose.

Transparent Mirrors.

Mirrors that one can see through are a new invention already coming into use. They are so called "platinized glass," being backed with a compound made of 95 per cent of silver and 5 per cent platinum, and, optically speaking, they are exceedingly curious and interesting. Looking into a glass of this kind one finds first rate reflection. It is a mirror and nothing more. At the same time a person on the other side can see directly through it.

How Artificial Ivory Is Made.

Artificial ivory makers now use a material prepared from the bones of sheep and the waste pieces of deer and kid skin. The bones are macerated and bleached in chloride of lime for a fortnight, then heated by steam with the skin until a fluid mass is formed, when a little alum is added. The product is filtered, dried in air and hardened in a bath of alum, the white, dough plates resulting being more easily worked than natural ivory.

Human Resistance to Heat.

People recovering from one or the other of the heat waves of this summer may be shocked to know that while the official mercury reached 102 degrees it is quite possible for the human system to tone itself up to withstand 600 degrees of heat. Nowhere on the earth's surface does solar heat begin to approach man's capacity for resistance, and in spite of the laws of physics the blacker the man the more heat he can stand.

Absorbent to Collect Dust.

A German absorbent collecting dust in sweeping is made by mixing 12 parts by weight of mineral sperm oil with 88 parts of roman or portland cement, a few drops of mirbane oil being added. The greasy, sandy mass retains the dust of the surface being cleaned, preventing the rising of the particles, and it may be used repeatedly.

A FRAGMENT.

Sweet as the dewfall, splendid as the south,
Love touched with speech Boccaccio's golden mouth;
Joy thrilled and filled its utterance full with song,
And sorrow smiled on doom that wrought no wrong.
A starrier luster of lordlier music rose
Beyond the sundering bar of seas and snows
When Chaucer's thought took life and light from his,
And England's crown was one with Italy's.
Loftiest and last, by grace of Shakespeare's word,
Arose above their quiring spheres a third,
Arose and flashed and faltered, song's deep sky
How Shakespeare pass in light, in music die.
No light like his, no music, man might give
To bid the darkened sphere, left songless, live.
—Algernon Charles Swinburne.

A CLEVER MAKE UP.

Story of a Fancy Dress Ball.

Henry Apps of Hoxton completed the fixing of the wires on the lawn of Hasleigh court. He looked up at the dim light in the dressing room and chuckled softly as he bent the last yard of wire.

"A trip in time," says Mr. Apps, "saves nine."

He threw the rope ladder gently in the air, and at the first effort it caught the projecting nail.

"Once on board the lugger," quoted Mr. Apps facetiously, as he mounted the rope ladder, "and the girl is mine."

He opened the window very gently and soon stood inside the dressing room. Near the table in the corner of the room was an iron safe.

"Well, I'm jiggered!" exclaimed Mr. Apps. He loosened the flaps of his fur cap and mopped his brow with the back of his hand. "Well, I'm jiggered! If they 'aven't been and left the key in it for me. I might have saved myself a lot of trouble if I'd a knowed."

Mr. Apps swung open the heavy door of the safe and listened to the music down stairs. Young Lady Staplehurst was giving, as Mr. Apps very well knew, a dance, a fancy dress dance, on her return from the continent after her term of widowhood.

"I'll just see first of all," he said, "that the coast is absolutely clear, and then—then for a bagful."

Henry Apps stepped out into the broad passage. He slouched, with his jimmy sticking out of his capacious side pocket, a few steps toward the stairs. Suddenly a girlish figure turned the corner.

"Bless my 'art!" cried Mr. Apps.

"Why, how do you do?" said the young lady, stepping forward. She gave a soft laugh that was very pleasant. "This is really delightful. Do you know, I recognized you in spite of the costume?"

She held the hand of Mr. Apps for a moment, causing that gentleman to gasp for breath, and called one of the maids.

"Just bring me a pencil and a card," she said, "I must arrange for a carriage to take Captain Norman back to his hotel in the morning. I wasn't sure that he would come."

"I can walk," remarked Mr. Apps, with restored self possession.

"I won't hear of it. When shall we say, now?"

"Say in an hour's time," said Mr. Apps. "I can go up stairs again alone, change my togs and do all I want to."

"And can't you stay longer?"

She gave the card to the maid and ordered it to be dispatched at once.

"I've got a busy night before me," urged Mr. Apps excusingly. He thought of his dog waiting on the lawn and feared it might give an inopportune bark. Besides, the safe was still open, and the diamonds were waiting for him. He had noticed with satisfaction that Lady Staplehurst was wearing none.

"You were always an active man, captain."

"Always a-doing something," agreed Mr. Apps. "If it isn't one thing, it's another." He shook his head reflectively. "I often wonder I don't write a book about it all."

"I don't believe you will know anybody here, Captain Norman," she said, as they walked down stairs, "but I couldn't help sending you a card, seeing how friendly we were on the Peshawur. Do you remember those evenings on deck in the Red sea?"

She was really a very fine young woman, and in her costume she looked extremely well.

"Do I not?" said Mr. Apps, with much fervor. "Shall I ever forget 'em?"

"And then the journey from Brindisi, you know, and that funny little German—you remember him?"

"He was a knockout, that German was."

"And the girl who played the banjo, and"—

"It was great," agreed Mr. Apps—"great."

The large ballroom was very full. A small covey of brightly dressed young people flew toward the young hostess to complain of her temporary absence from the room, and a broad shouldered gondolier shook hands with her and took up her card with something of an air of proprietorship.

"I thought I had left the key in the—excuse me." The young hostess took back her card from the gondolier. "I am engaged to Captain Norman. You don't know him? Allow me."

"Pleased to meet you," said Henry Apps. "'Ow's the world using you?"

"That's an original costume of yours, Captain Norman," remarked the gondolier. "I don't know that I've ever seen anything so daringly neat before."

"Well, wot of it?" demanded Mr. Apps, with sudden aggressiveness. "Wot's the odds to you wot I like to wear? You needn't think you're"—

"Captain Norman," interposed the young hostess laughingly, "you must not overdo the part. Look here, I've put your name down for this waltz, but if you like we'll sit it out—that is, if you promise to keep up that diverting east end talk. I like it. Do you think you can manage to do so?"

"Rather," said Apps.

"And it is a capital make up, Captain Norman," she went on. "Do you know that at first, just for one moment, I thought you were a real burglar."

"Fancy that now!" said Apps. He was relieved at seeing an obvious way out of his difficulty. "There's nothing like doing the thing in a proper, strite-forward w'y."

"And," said Lady Staplehurst, with her fan on his arm as they walked across the room, "you have got the east end accent capitally."

"'Tain't so dusty, is it?"

She beckoned to the gondolier.

"Captain Norman and I are great friends," she said in an explanatory way. "He has not been long home from abroad, and he knows scarcely any one."

"Not a blessed soul," echoed Mr. Apps.

"Isn't it capital?" asked Lady Staplehurst of the gondolier delightedly. "How much more interesting it would be if every one would only talk to me in their character!"

"Well, blow me," said Lady Staplehurst, screwing her pretty mouth in her effort to imitate the cockney's accent—"blow me if this ain't a fair take—I mean like dah!" she laughed. "It's no use, Captain Norman, I can't talk as you can."

"It's a gift," said Mr. Apps. "That's what it is."

"You don't want to be introduced to anybody here, I suppose?"

"Not me."

"You have heard of"—

She pointed in the direction of the gondolier.

"All I want to."

"He's really making a big name in the house, you know. I watch his career with great interest."

"Thinks a jolly lot of himself."

"Oh, I think a lot of him, too," remarked Lady Staplehurst pleasantly. "And is that a jimmy sticking out of your jacket pocket? This is indeed realism. You don't know how it works, I suppose?"

"Well, I've got a kind of hidea," said Mr. Apps. "Look 'ere. You put this end in, and"—

Mr. Apps found himself getting quite excited in the explanations that he gave. It was a new sensation to meet one who showed an intelligent interest in his profession, and he could not help feeling flattered. Looking up, he saw the gondolier gazing at him.

"He don't look 'appy, that chap," said Mr. Apps.

"Will you excuse me for one moment?"

"Wot are you going up to?" he said apprehensively.

"I want to speak to him."

"Oh," with relief, "I don't mind that!"

While Lady Staplehurst was making the gondolier resume his ordinary expression Mr. Apps thought and thought. The couple promenading after the waltz looked curiously at him.

"You are in the worst fix you were ever in, 'Enery," said Mr. Apps. "You're 'aving 'em on toast, you are, but you'll be glad to get up stairs agen. You want them diamonds, that's what you want. Time means money to you, 'Enery."

Lady Staplehurst hurried toward the doorway. A murmur of amazement went through the room as the guests saw a new arrival in the costume of a police constable accompanied by a man in plain clothes. Mr Apps, thinking over his exploits, gazing abstractedly at his boots, regretting their want of polish, did not see them until the plain clothes man tapped him on the shoulder.

"What, Apps again!" exclaimed the man.

"Yus," said the burglar discontentedly. "Yus, it is Apps agine, Mr. Walker. And vurry glad you are to see him, I've no daht."

"Always a pleasure to meet a gentleman like you," said Mr. Walker cheerfully, as he conducted him to the doorway. "I've wanted to run up against you before."

Much commotion in the ballroom at the diverting little scene. General agreement that Lady Staplehurst was a perfect genius at entertaining.

"But, loveliest," said the gondolier confidently to Lady Staplehurst, "isn't this carrying a joke rather too far? That's a real detective."

"I know," said the loveliest girl, trembling now a little. "That's a real burglar too."

"A real"—

"Yes, yes. Don't make a fuss. I don't want the dance spoiled. Take me down to supper, like a good fellow."—Columbian.

HYGIENE

A writer in What to Eat gives an interesting summary of the food value of different vegetables. It seems tomatoes rouse a torpid liver and do the work ordinarily of a doctor's prescription.

Lettuce has a soothing, quieting effect upon the nerves and is an insomnia remedy.

Potatoes should be eschewed by those who "have a horror of getting fat," as that is one penalty of eating them.

Water cress is a good all round brace up for the system.

Spinach has medicinal properties and qualities equal to the most indigo of all blue pills ever made.

Parsnips, it is now contended by scientists, possess almost the same virtues that are claimed for sarsaparilla.

Beets are fattening, even a moderately learned man will explain, because of the sugar they contain.

Asparagus is efficacious in kidney ailments to an extent that is not yet perhaps thoroughly appreciated.

A New Vegetable.

Voandzou is the title of a curious plant which is now interesting several European scientists. Of these the most enthusiastic is M. Balland. He recently read a paper about voandzou and pointed out that this plant is the only one which is known to possess in proper proportion all the elements that are required to form a suitable nourishment for man. Voandzou is scientifically known as cycline, or Voandzia subterranes, and is a native of intertropical Africa, where it is widely cultivated by negroes.

Fruit For Breakfast.

A writer in The Pilgrim says: I beg to enter a protest against the habit of serving fruit to adults or children as the first course for breakfast. The condition of the juices of the stomach and intestines in the early morning are, in my judgment, not such as to make fruit very digestible at this time. Serve your grain of whatever kind you please, then some bread and last of all fruit.

A Skater's Daring.

Few feats of skating have ever excelled the exploit of one of Napoleon's officers performed shortly after the fight at Jena in 1806. The emperor dispatched an officer to Marshal Mortier requiring him to seize certain important towns without delay. When the officer arrived at the mouth of the Elbe, where the river is 7½ miles wide, he was threatened with serious loss of time. The river was just covered with ice, therefore to row over was out of the question. He could not cross by the nearest bridge without going 20 miles out of his way on roads heavy with snow, and he grudged the time that would thus be wasted. So he resolved to skate across the thin, freshly formed ice. Had he tried walking he would have sunk at once, but by skimming along on his skates at the top of his speed he got over the river both dry and unharmed. By this daring if dangerous deed he saved six hours, did what Napoleon bade him do and won great credit for his bold and clever exploit.

How to Make Graham Muffins.

One quart graham flour, one tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, one egg, one pint milk. Sift together flour, sugar, salt, cream of tartar and soda, add beaten egg and milk. Bake in muffin pan in a hot oven 15 minutes.

How to Keep Woolens White.

Among the things that are worth remembering is the fact that beeswax, broken in pieces and put within the folds of white woolens and white silks, will overcome the tendency toward yellowness that white fabrics have when laid away for any length of time.

New Theory of Baldness.

A Michigan scientist, Dr. Delos L. Parker of the Detroit College of Medicine, has just published the results of a most interesting series of experiments undertaken to prove that men are bald because they do not breathe properly.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for burns, boils, piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Grover.

A recent issue of The Scientific American contains an account of the pine needle industry, which is becoming a very important one on the Pacific coast. From the leaves of the pine oils are extracted, which are very beneficial in complaints of a pulmonary order.

Two crops are gathered yearly, the later one being always the largest. The leaves of the young trees are preferred, yielding a better quality of oil, it is said. The leaves are stripped from the trees by women and men, who are paid 25 cents a hundred pounds for the needles. Five hundred pounds is regarded as an average day's work.

The leaves are then packed into sacks and hurriedly sent to the factory. Exposure to the sun causes them to wilt and impairs the quality of the product.

The factory at which the essences and extracts of the needles are manufactured has a capacity for handling 2,000 pounds of leaves per day, but it is soon to be enlarged to about four times its present size.

In the extraction of pine oil 2,000 pounds of green leaves are required to produce ten pounds of oil. The process is the ordinary one of distillation.

The oil extracted gives an agreeable flavor to candles. Toilet soaps are made strongly impregnated with essential oil of pine needles.

A Boon For Shipping.

A resident of Sweden, Count K. A. Posse, according to a report of Consul Nelson at Bergen, Norway, has invented a boat stopping apparatus which will prevent collisions and facilitate the maneuvering of large vessels. The new apparatus consists of shutters applied on the starboard and port sides, about one-fourth of a boat length from the stern. These can be opened and shut by means of a lever applied on the deck. Experiments showed that when the launch was going at full speed it could be stopped in 15 seconds at half a boat length by reversing and extending the shutters.

Water Purified by Ozone.

A new method of sterilizing a city's water supply is being successfully operated in Russia. The plan is to sterilize the water by the introduction of ozonized air, and it is contended in its behalf that it destroys all the bacteria in the water and makes it at comparatively small cost absolutely safe for drinking purposes.

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a summer camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Normantown, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says: "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral.—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by Young & Brown.

Chicago's New Fire Chief.

For the first time in 22 years Chicago has a new fire chief. Chief Swenie was recently retired for age, and William H. Musham, since 1880 first assistant marshal, has been appointed to succeed him. Despite his 59 years, Chief Musham is still a man of skill, strength and daring. He is a strict disciplinarian and has been connected with the Chicago fire fighting force for more than 40 years.

Future of Socialistic Parties.

The attempted assassination of President McKinley by an anarchist will have a damaging effect for some time on the votes of all socialist parties throughout the country. They are not entitled to the suspicion put upon them, but nevertheless many people link them with the anarchists, believing they are one and the same.

Caring for the Trees.

Tree Warden Nowell is doing excellent work for the shade trees and his personal attention is only limited by the borders of the town. To properly prune all the trees will take time for it cannot be done in one year or two as his appropriation will not permit of doing this. Besides he is planting many new trees each year. Mr. Nowell believes in replacing the dead wood.

Josiah Quincy.

Mr. Josiah Quincy will doubtlessly be selected as the candidate of the Democratic party for Governor. He is one of the most brilliant and brainy men in the State and if nominated will put up a big fight. There is not much probability of his being elected, as Gov. Crane not only stands exceedingly well throughout the State but has back of him the big Republican vote. Mr. Quincy is, however, deserving of credit in offering himself up as a sacrifice in order to consolidate the Democratic party. He is deserving of a better fate.

Watson is in the Fight.

Mr. Arthur F. Salmon, one of W. S. Watson's managers, issues the following statement: "The friends of W. S. Watson of Lowell were somewhat surprised to see the statement that as Councillor Howe had announced his candidacy for a fourth term that he would probably withdraw. Such is not the fact. W. S. Watson is in the fight to the finish and has nice encouragement from the whole district." There seems to be quite a feeling among the lay people that three terms are enough for an honorary position like the Governor's Council.

Representative Fight.

There is going to be a hot fight over the Representative question in this district between factions at West Medford this fall. Report reaches the STAR from that place of opposition coming from Winchester to Representative Twombly again being renominated. As this fight is purely a Medford affair, and there appears to be indications of a settlement in the selection of Mr. Twombly, Winchester should keep out of it. This year it is Medford's turn to nominate a Representative and if a Winchester man should be decided on, because of the fight, it will not interfere with our town's selecting a candidate two years hence.

A Night of Excitement.

The news of the attempted assassination of President McKinley at the Pan-American Exposition last Friday created intense excitement in town during the evening of that day, and until nearly midnight there were large numbers of people on the streets in the centre anxiously awaiting every scrap of news relating to the dastardly outrage.

It is a source for universal gratification that the President will recover from the severe wounds. A day should be set apart throughout the country as a time for thanksgiving that the life of the President has been spared.

The President is reported to be in a precarious condition this morning, because of his heart giving out.

Mrs. Adda Chamberlin Benton.

Mrs. Adda Chamberlin Benton died at her residence on Summit avenue about 9.30 on Tuesday morning, after a protracted illness. She was born in Newbury, Vt., on March 8, 1835, and was the daughter of Abner and Mary Chamberlin. She was married in 1856 to Hon. Charles E. Benton, formerly a judge and State senator, who died in 1892. The most of Mrs. Benton's life was spent in Guildhall, Vt., but since the death of her husband she has resided in Winchester. Two brothers, Joseph Edgar Chamberlin, the well-known journalist, and P. S. Chamberlin, three sisters, Mrs. H. W. Kimball of Bradford, Vt., and Mrs. J. R. Drake and Mrs. H. W. Drake of Milwaukee, Wis., and two sons, Colonel Everett C. Benton and Jay B. Benton, survive. Her eldest son, Chas. A., died some years ago at the age of twenty.

From her home on Summit avenue the funeral service for Mrs. Benton was held on Wednesday forenoon, and was attended by family friends and neighbors, who joined with the relatives in the service. This was of the simplest character and was conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, pastor of the Congregational church, who read the familiar passages beginning, "I am the resurrection and the life." He further read portions of the Twenty-Third Psalm and also selections from Revelation, and included some simple verses as a part of the service. He referred touchingly to the life of Mrs. Benton and her influence in her home and neighborhood, where she had been much beloved, as she had been in church circles. Especial reference was made to her great love of nature and particularly for plants and flowers, and of her tender care of and success with them; this was suggested to the clergyman because of the many beautiful remembrances which had been sent to the house by friends, including appropriate designs and loose clusters of flowers. There was no singing during the service, which was brought to a close with prayer and benediction. The burial took place on Thursday at Mrs. Benton's former home in Guildhall, Vt.

Died Suddenly.

Miss Bessie M. Clements passed away Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock at her home, 35 Washington street, of heart disease. She was taken ill while at her work in Boston, where she was a telephone operator at the Haymarket exchange, and was brought home at about ten o'clock Tuesday forenoon, and during the few hours of her illness everything was done to prolong her life, but she rapidly sank away. She was in her 22d year and the only child of Mrs. Abbie A. Clements and the late Arah A. Clements. She had resided here but a short time, having come here from North Woburn. The funeral took place Thursday, the Rev. Mr. Tilton of Woburn officiating. The interment was at Burlington.

A Long Bicycle Trip.

Four young men who have taken a long bicycle journey from Winchester, Mass., to the White Mountains, walked up Mount Washington Wednesday morning, having come on their wheels from Ferncliff Cottage to Darby Field Cottage, where they started up the carriage road. They came from home by the Merrimac valley, passing Manchester, Concord, Plymouth and North Woodstock. Coming through Franconia notch, they spent a night at the Mount Liberty House in Franconia, and the next night at the Rosebrook Inn, Twin Mountain, from which place they made the run in one day through the Crawford Notch to Jackson and Ferncliff. Their homeward journey will be by way of Portland. The party consists of:

Guy P. Palmer,
Howard S. Palmer,
Roy H. Allen,
Geo. R. Guernsey, Winchester, Mass.

Sewer Notes.

It is expected the syphon under the Aberjona River at the foot of Mystic avenue will be completed next week. The cost will be somewhere near $1000.

A short piece of sewer will be laid on Wedgemere avenue next week.

A branch of the sewer is to be laid on Wolcott road, formerly the Bacon estate on Highland avenue. This is a new street and the land is being improved for building purposes by a syndicate.

When Washington street is being rebuilt between Lebanon and Forest streets, work on which is to commence in a few days, the sewer will not be laid from Lebanon to Cross streets, as was originally contemplated, as there is not much prospect of buildings being erected between those two points for some years to come.

Important Real Estate Transaction.

Papers have passed through the office of Mr. Marshall H. Dutch for the sale of the "Holbrook property," on the corner of Main and Thompson streets, owned by F. L. Ferguson, to Mrs. M. A. Sanborn, of Nashua. The property will probably remain as at present for a time. Mr. Ferguson has bought from Mrs. Sanborn the property on the corner of Washington street and Park avenue, consisting of a house and about an acre of land.

Registration.

The registrars of voters will be in session at the town hall Thursday evenings, Sept. 19 and Oct. 17, from 7 to 9 o'clock; at the Swanton street hose house, Thursday evening, Oct. 24, from 7 to 9 o'clock, and at the town hall Saturday afternoon and evening, Oct. 26, from 12 noon to 10 o'clock.

Democratic Caucus.

A caucus of the Democrats of Winchester will be held in the Town Hall, Thursday evening, Sept. 26, at 7.45 o'clock, to elect delegates to the several conventions and also to choose a Democratic Town Committee for 1902.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Miss Mary Richards, 4 Black Horse Terrace, will resume her pianoforte teaching on Monday, September 30th.

Miss Helen P. Lane has returned from Woolwich, Me., where she has been passing the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dorsey were recent guests at the charming Lancaster Inn, in beautiful old Lancaster, Mass.

The engagement is announced of Miss Edith E. French to Mr. William A. Tucker, also Miss Marion E. French to Mr. F. Nelson Hawley.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hatch are mourning over the loss of their little son, Kenneth. The little one who was only a year and nine months old passed away last Thursday at Snowville, New Hampshire, where the family were spending a few weeks. The funeral took place from their home on Clematis street last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Miss Edith Richardson and Miss Dasie McLellan sang "Nearer my God to thee," very touchingly. The neighbors and friends expressed their sympathy by sending many floral tributes.

Miss Ruby Simmons has returned from Stoughton, where she has passed several weeks.

Miss Laura Tolman started last Tuesday for Bridgewater Normal School where she will begin a course of study.

Miss Bessie Berry after a pleasant vacation, the last two weeks of which she has spent at Winthrop, returned to Bridgewater Normal School this week where she begins her second year of study.

Miss Ethel Buckley has begun a course of study at Lowell Normal School.

Mr. William Dotten of Dedham spent Sunday at his parents' home on Reservoir street.

Miss Emily Dowd has entered Lowell Normal School.

Miss Alice Crawford has returned to Bridgewater Normal School where she enters on her second year of study.

Mrs. Mary Hinds Squier, who has been convalescing from a severe illness at the home of her mother, Mrs. James Hinds, on Marion Road, expects to return to her home in Boston this week. Later on she will go to the White Mountains for her health.

Miss Mary Campbell has been entertaining Mr. Frank Cotton of Beachmont.

Miss Marion Sinclair after returning from her vacation at Sea View has entered upon a course of study at Burdett's College.

Mrs. A. L. Wyman passed several day's this week resting at Rockport.

The recent lawn party given at the No. Reservoir under the auspices of the Highlands Y. P. S. C. E. netted $14.70. This money will form part of a fund to purchase a new piano for the Chapel at the Highlands.

Mr. Chas. M. Thompson, formerly town engineer, but now engineer of the Cape Cod Ship Canal, with office in Sandwich, Mass., was in town last Friday. He reports that canal matters are progressing quite satisfactorily, and as far as he can see the project will go through.

Tree Warden Nowell pruned the shade trees on upper Washington street last week.

Last Friday evening the turnout of Mr. Roger Hurd collided with an unknown wheelman opposite Thompson street. Otherwise than being shaken up the man was not injured. The front wheel of the bicycle was smashed beyond repair.

Mr. G. H. Hazeltine and family returned last week from Winthrop Beach, where they have been passing the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Apollonio, who have been sojourning at Cotuit, have returned to their home on Pine street.

Messrs. Frank Payne and Fred Abbott will enter the Institute of Technology this fall.

Mr. Ronald Locke will enter Phillip's Andover in a few weeks.

H. D. Murphy is expected home about the 22nd of this month. It is understood that two of the English racing men will come to this country to study the canoes, etc., with a view to competing for the A. C. A. cup next year.

Edgar J. Rich, Esq., has returned from a very delightful European trip.

Spencer Cutting of Oak Knoll left last Tuesday for Worcester, Mass., where he will enter upon his senior year at the Worcester Academy.

Mrs. Henry W. Hight has as her guest Miss Eliza Swan of Worcester, who will pass the winter with her.

Miss Gabriella McCarthy has returned from a vacation passed at Milford, N. H.

Mr. Wadsworth Hight of Cambridge street was among the 300 bank officers who went for a sail down the harbor Saturday. An enjoyable feature was a banquet served on board the boat.

Newsy Paragraphs

Miss Caroline Lincoln Pond will be at the new apartment house, 31 Church street, Monday and Thursday afternoons, after September 28, where she will receive pianoforte pupils. This will be much more convenient for many than to go to her home as formerly. s13,4t

Mr. Henry Winn met with a rather serious accident Saturday evening while riding a horse owned by Dr. H. G. Farr. When driving into the stable of Kelley & Hawes on Park street, the horse slipped on the cobbles and fell. Winn jumped just in time and narrowly escaped being caught under him. Winn fell on his left elbow and shoulder and when the soreness in his arm caused him to consult a physician it was thought that he had broken one of the bones near the elbow. An X-ray apparatus was used Monday night to try and determine whether a break existed or not, but without success. Mr. Winn's friends hope that the accident will not prove serious.

Mr. John Roscoe Carlson, of Irving street, aged twelve years, died at the Mass. Gen. Hospital, Monday, as the result of an operation for peritonitis. Funeral services were held Wednesday, the interment being at Wildwood.

Are the Metropolitan Park people trying to economize by saving gasoline? Judging by the lights on the Boulevard from West Medford to Bacon street, this week, they are. Not more than half a dozen lights during the whole distance were burning properly and some were only seen by a faint spark. People who drive over the Boulevard say that this is the regular illumination now.

The public schools re-opened Wednesday with a small attendance in some of the lower grades, because of the heavy rain. When in full running order it is expected the number of pupils will show a substantial increase over last year.

Mr. Jay B. Benton, city editor of the Boston Transcript, has the deepest sympathy of hosts of friends in the loss of his mother. She was considered an exceptionally fine woman, commanding the respect, and was highly endeared to all by her many amiable qualities of heart and mind. Her brother, J. E. Chamberlin, is the well known "Listener" on the Transcript.

A young man employed in the McKay factory had a narrow escape from a serious accident while riding his wheel around Covell's corner Saturday night. He was on the left hand side of the road and as a carriage came around the corner he attempted to go between it and the sidewalk. The result was that the horse walked on his wheel, pulling the carriage over it, and he just succeeded in getting out of the way himself. He refused to give his name. His wheel was badly smashed.

Perhaps the trustees of the town library might persuade Mr. Andrew Carnegie to become interested in a new library building for Winchester. It is perfectly permissable, however, to call his attention to how much the town would appreciate such a gift.

Cause of the Epidemic of Typhoid Fever.

The Board of Health has succeeded in fixing the responsibility for the recent large number of cases of typhoid fever and from which there were two deaths. The source of the trouble was traced to two wells on a milk farm in Burlington which were found to be badly infested with typhoid germs. It was the milk from this farm that caused the epidemic—the cans and glass jars evidently having been washed in water taken from the wells. The milkman feels terribly over the matter, as he had not the slightest suspicion but what the water in the wells was perfectly pure. The State Board of Health should at intervals inspect the wells in the State, as it is believed that in doing so, the frequent outbreaks of typhoid fever in the different communities with the large loss of life would be prevented.

Rogers—Hall.

Miss Maude Elizabeth Hall and Mr. Albert David Rogers of Boston were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Hall, 22 Stevens street, Tuesday evening, by Rev. William I. Lawrance, pastor of the Unitarian Church. The house was decorated with beautiful flowers and ferns and the wedding was an extremely pretty one, the ceremony being performed under a handsome floral arch. The bride, a stately young lady, looked charming in a costume of mouseline de soie, with chiffon trimming and white applique, and carried a bunch of bride roses. Miss Ethel Worth of Norwich, Conn., was brides aid and carried pink roses, and Mr. Ernest Rogers, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Fred Jordan of Malden and Mr. Walker of Boston.

After a reception and the serving of delicate refreshments, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers took the train for Boston, en route to Montreal, Quebec and Buffalo, and on their return will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple departed in a gaily decorated hack to the music of numerous tin cans attached to the vehicle, and which were removed before the station was reached.

They were generously remembered with a large number of costly presents, consisting of silver and cut glass, table linen, a handsome couch, French clock, card receiver containing $150, candelabra, fruit knives from her former Sunday school class in Norwich, Conn., an oil painting from Mrs. Pierce and son of New York, spoons, forks, knives, etc.—all making a rich display.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Reeves, Mr. J. C. Worth, Mr. F. J. Patterson, Miss Ethel Worth, all of Norwich, Conn., Mrs. A. H. Buxton of Jewett City, Conn., also friends from Boston and elsewhere.

Is it True?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am told that in the cooking school it has been the custom to send little girls to bring hods of coal for the fire. I think that I understand fully the desirability of not embarrassing the School Committee in its work by unnecessary complaints or criticism, but I really must say that I do not see how this practice can be defended. Carrying coal is not a part of the science of cooking, it is not educational, it is not a part of the curriculum in any other school or class that I have heard of. It is not work for little girls, and I do not believe that citizens pay school taxes and send their daughters to school with the expectation that they are to do such work as this. I know at least one child who has done her share of the lugging and who is physically unfit for any such heavy work. If it is true that this has been the practice I protest against it and I suggest that the hard labor incident to our schools should be done in future by the janitors, or at any rate not by little girls.

Important Piano Notice.

Mr. Frank A. Locke, the well known piano tuner, who has spent 30 years of his life on tuning and construction of pianos, and who has been much sought after, on account of his knowledge of pianos, to select pianos for persons about to buy, wishes to notify the people of Winchester and vicinity that, in connection with his tuning, he has been appointed a special salesman for pianos. This means that, if you are thinking of buying a piano, by consulting Mr. Locke you can have his advice, the benefit of his knowledge and a large reduction from the regular prices of pianos, either by cash or easy payment system, saving from $25 to $75.

OLD PIANOS AND ORGANS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

Write at once and he will call and talk over the matter. This will not obligate you to buy through him. Get some points on how to buy a piano; it will cost you nothing to have him call. Send your name and he will send you a beautifully illustrated catalogue free of cost.

Free use of any telephone night or day, to call him up, or to send your name; or you can address FRANK A. LOCKE, Winchester, Mass., or you can call and leave your name at his Winchester office, SCALES, THE JEWELER, 169 Main St.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There are altogether too many high weeds about the principal streets, which makes them look shabby. Let us have attention given to these small things, because it not only pays to do so, but it is right that it should be done.

Why cannot the School Committee give us some free public lectures this winter as the law allows it to do? The expense would not be large and the instruction might be very beneficial as well as entertaining. It is also well to bear in mind that Winchester entertainments have become very exclusive and expensive and the common people pretty well frozen out, and here is a chance to give them some mental food cheap.

The poor lost, strayed, stolen and abandoned Common fountain twins have finally found a resting place presiding over a fountain at the North reservoir, the Water Board having solved the problem of feeding them with aqua pura at a minimum expense by running it back into the reservoir after it has served its purpose of laving the bodies and cooling the heads of the twins. May all great and troublesome problems be as happily settled.

Of course if the citizens are desirous of having the bath house and swimming place at Wedge pond, it will have to be given consideration. The town voted five hundred dollars for just that thing there nearly thirty years ago, but Boston objected as she was then using the water and the money was not so used.

It is as plain as can be that the inspection of milk is not what it should be. If things were as they should be there would be a constant superintendent of that business and not wait until whole neighborhoods are sick and people dying before a move is made. Although there has been great improvement of late years, considering that the matter of health and life is the most important one we have to deal with, it is amazing that we do not pay more attention to surrounding it with all the safeguards possible.

Indifference is a weakness of the American people oftentimes. Indifference permitted the anarchists at Patterson, New Jersey, to celebrate this summer the murder of the King of Italy, an insult to the people of Italy and an outrage to civilization. Indifference allowed the Chicago anarchists to go on until it resulted in the Haymarket riots. Indifference permits Louise Michel, Emma Goldman, Johann Most and other enemies of society to talk, print and circulate their chaotic and murderous doctrines. We all want and demand liberty, but these people have been allowed license. What are we going to do about it?

Our Committee on Commons and Public Plots evidently does not perambulate the town, or it would have something different than a pile of broken stone surrounded by rank weeds on the andiron piece at the junction of Cambridge street and Everett avenue.

The Selectmen have decided to macadamize Washington street between Lebanon and Forest streets on the present lines. In the first place the sewer should be put in, then the street should be widened and straightened and the car tracks put in the middle, and if a larger water pipe is needed put that in, all before macadamizing it. It is surprising that one of the very most important streets in the town should be treated in this fashion. Such streets should be done thoroughly while about it and not in this hand-to-mouth manner.

Unless some action is taken Winchester will soon become known for its dirty ponds. Nowhere do I run across any so dirty and neglected, and as ours run through the central parts of the town, they are in sight of thousands of people daily. How much longer are we going to put up with this neglect from the Metropolitan Water and Park Boards? We have contributed about seventy-five thousand dollars directly, many thousand dollars worth of taxable property, are paying over five thousand dollars a year park tax, and what are we getting in return? Any private corporation that did business the way we are doing this, could not sell its paper for ten cents on a dollar.

One town meeting a year is not enough, it is crowding too much business together and things do not get proper attention. Then again election comes in the spring and that influences some. There are several important matters that should come into a meeting this fall, when they could have full discussion, and it would also clear the way a good deal for the annual meeting, which should be largely given up to the regular appropriations and attendant matters.

The steel strike has petered out and the ex-minister leader with it. They are almost never practical men and should stick to preaching. Undoubtedly Shaffer was honest, but he made the fatal mistake of moving his army without its supplies. Sentiment never has any show against business.

The surface water problem is a large one and calls for very careful consideration and the Selectmen should bear in mind that they have the right to call on the State Highway Commission for advice in the matter. The first thing to look after when the building of streets is contemplated is the surface water and unless that is done your streets are certain to be injured from time to time and with a downpour perhaps some of them ruined. This has been attended to pretty well in the last year or so but there is still a great deal to be done and it will be expensive doing but it has got to come and must be carefully mapped out beforehand.

When men are prevented from working by force, and the authorities do nothing to protect them, what kind of a mongrel breed of liberty do you call it? Isn't it a breed that breeds something like anarchy? This is the Mayor Black breed, and black it is.

Observations.

If you wish to know all that is going on in the four quarters of the globe, read the N. Y. Herald. If you wish to read a live paper, full of news, with very able editorials upon general, special, political and raised questions of national and sectional interest, read the Boston Herald. No paper in the country equals the Herald in the variety and ability of its articles. If you wish to read an able, independent and fearless paper, look over the Springfield Republican. If you wish to know all that is going on in the horse world, take the American Horse Breeder. Its editor stands high and is an authority upon all matters of breeding and educating the horse. If you wish to enter into the field of science and learn of the inventive genius of the age, the skill and perfection of mechanics, read the Scientific American. If you wish to see a bright STAR, that gives light and a feast of local news, subscribe to the Winchester STAR.

It costs the interest of ten thousand dollars every year to clean out the catch-basins, fill up and repair the gutters. What is the matter: too much theory, too little good sense?

The venerable Salem Wilder is seen about town with a bright eye and clear head. Long may he live to do good in the future as in the past.

The town treasurer shows no signs of "mental decay," but his portly form shows good living, with shoulders broad enough to bear up the town seal and leave its impress to give weight to the large sums he picks up.

Marshall Symmes, one of the best farmers in town, employs about fifty hands, has a set of books, keeps debit and credit of his products and sales as precise and correct as a merchant records his purchases and sales.

The Tree Warden seems to be wide-awake among the dead wood in the trees around town. Canker worms, caterpillars and brown-tailed moths are hustling in all directions. Another war of extermination will soon begin.

Is it ice, milk, or poor sewerage that causes the sickness in town? Eat plain food, go to bed early, abstain from foolish excesses and keep well; it's an ill wind that brings no good—what a harvest the doctors have.

George H. Gilbert has come to town. May his shadow never be less or his trotters lose their speed.

Of all men who seem to enjoy life, George L. Huntress is a full pattern. He drives his beautiful bays quietly and gracefully; no frills and feathers, not a bit of spread-eagle in his turn-out.

State Convention of Sunday School.

Few Sunday-schools are closed during the summer. This gives them the start of most other religious organizations at the outset of the church year. Interest has already gathered headway in the coming state convention at Haverhill, October 1, 2, 3. Early returns indicate that this annual meeting of the Massachusetts Association will be as memorable as any of its successful predecessors. The program is to afford large space to practical aspects of Sunday-school work. Teacher training will be the main theme. One of the speakers announced upon that topic is Mr. Marion Lawrence, General Secretary of the International Committee. Other eminent names upon the program are Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Boston; Pres. Mary E. Wooley, of Mt. Holyoke; Mrs. C. M. Lamson, Auburndale; Dr. A. E. Dunning, of the Congregationalist; and Dr. Walace McMullen, of Philadelphia. Primary and junior work will have a special session and service. Conferences are to be held upon various departments, addressed by prominent field workers.

The local committees are actively preparing for the delegates, and the railroads will doubtless make the customary reduction of fares.

First Baptist Church Notes.

A party of twenty-one missionaries, under appointment of the American Baptist Missionary Union, will sail from Boston on Wednesday next for various foreign fields—Burma, Assam and South India. A farewell meeting in their honor will be held Monday afternoon and evening in the First Baptist Church, Cambridge. One of the party, the Rev. Mr. Dickson, will address us Sunday evening.

Our Sunday evening services from now on will be held in the main room. Plans are on foot for making the musical features of these services especially interesting.

Parish of the Epiphany.

The regular order of services will be resumed next Sunday upon the return of the rector.

There will be the service of the Holy Communion at 9.45 a. m.

At 10.30 a. m. and at 7.30 p. m. there will be the usual services.

The Sunday School will resume its sessions next Sunday. The new lessons will be distributed. Teachers and scholars are asked to be in their places for the beginning of the new year.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Just How to Do It.

The best way to chop an onion when you want a very little is to simply peel it down, take off a slice, cut it across one way, then the other way, and it comes off in little squares. In this way the onion is chopped without soiling a board or chopper, says Good Housekeeping.

Speaking of the recent action of President Tuttle of the B. & M. R. R., in notifying all tenants of grounds and buildings belonging to the road, where liquor is sold, that they must stop that business at once, an exchange says: They will probably pay more attention to that notice than to any they might receive from the police authorities. Here is an instance where a corporation, through its official head, does a commendable thing in the interest of public morals, and it is a pleasure to call attention to it. President Tuttle personally is a strong temperance man, but the main point about his action in this matter is the responsibility of property owners for the business conducted by their tenants. The incident recalls the exposure in New York, when in the beginning of the anti-vice crusade, the police department published the names of the owners of the property used for immoral purposes. It was found that the landlords belonged to that class designated as the Four Hundred. The law breakers paid higher rental than the law abiding, hence their occupancy of the property.

The Mammoth Cod Association.

The following, taken from the Hingham Journal, gives a brief history of "The Mammoth Cod Association," a notable Boston club of ancient origin, and of which Mr. W. P. Winchester, whom our town was named after, was a member:

In looking over some old papers I find an official invitation dated in 1882, asking my company to join its annual excursion down the harbor and fishing grounds, signed by several gentlemen eminent in the business circles of Boston at that date, prominent among them being the late Barney Cory, B. F. Tenney and other official managers of the association—Alex. Boyd, John C. Paige, T. C. Stearns, W. W. Keith, D. T. Mills and R. W. Emerson. This was the 145th anniversary of this notable club, it having been formed in 1737, yet old as it was, its menu did not have an "ancient and fish-like smell" when dinner was served on board the good steamer Nantasket; the odor of beefsteak and onions never proving repugnant to the pursuers of the Mammoth Cod after a few hours sail over the fishing grounds.

On this occasion, which was the last one I ever made, will always be treasured in my memory as a rare occasion. The first one with the jolly old club was about 1845, and I shall never forget how I was impressed with the personality of its members. They represented men of the highest grade in Boston society, such, for instance, as James Read, T. C. Amory, R. B. Forbes, W. P. Winchester, John L. Dimmock, Fred Almy, H. K. Horton, John H. Eastburn, Samuel Parsons, S. K. Bailey, and others of note in mercantile, legal and social circles. They were a solid old set financially and otherwise, and happy as they could be, did the fish bite or spurn the bait. They found lively times down below if the weather was unpropitious on deck, in the mysteries of conchology, or other investigations of a more spiritual character, which were pursued under a smoky atmosphere. Those high-toned old boys certainly enjoyed their M. C. excursions.

On this first trip I was amused by a little episode. An old gentleman from Beacon street, Boston, with gold spectacles and beaver hat, was leaning over the railing of the boat and had evidently just been casting overboard a tribute to Father Neptune, when he threw his head back, exclaiming in despairing tones: "There goes my gold teeth!" His vacant mouth well expressed his annoying loss and he received the sympathies of many spectators, but his $100 gold set went down never to appear. Those were good old times, but the association disbanded after the death of Mr. Cory and Mr. Paige, about fifteen years ago.

Prayed for the Recovery of President McKinley.

At the services in the churches last Sunday allusion was made to the dastardly attempt on the life of President McKinley, and fervent prayers were offered that he might recover from the wounds inflicted by the assassin and that he be restored to health again.

The Rev. William I. Lawrance, pastor of the Unitarian Church said:

"This is but a single deed of a single man. But on that same day were done unnumbered deeds of love; while millions of men hold the crime committed in horror, let us turn our thoughts away from the details of the sin, dwelling, rather, upon whatever is of noble import. Thus will the evil effects of the act be reduced to the minimum.

"See in this event a dramatic illustration of our interdependence. Every ruler sits less securely in his office, and every citizen sees a new possibility of bereavement. All our lives are exposed to such dangers, our only safety the good will of our fellows. If we may harm, so we may help; lines of responsibility become avenues of service. What manner of men should we be, who thus carry with us the fate of multitudes!

"Let the event teach us a new lesson in patriotism. Many fear that our free institutions are endangered. No; for here has God, in the fulness of time, ordained a people for the working out of the greatest problems ever committed to humanity. Our future is as safe as our commission is sacred.

"This crime is a symptom. Of what? Of too free welcome to foreigners? Of too much leniency toward anarchism? Yes, and yet there is but one source of all sin, but one cure for crime. The world's need is religion. Let this event be a challenge to the churches to proclaim, by word and act, the gospel of character."

The Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Congregational Church spoke of the horror of the nation at this atrocious act. The black treachery of Judas Iscariot was instanced as like to it, and he declared that there must be eternal war between America and anarchy.

"William McKinley," said he, "is prepared to exchange worlds if God sees fit to call him. If he die—God avert the sorrow—he has won the esteem and love of all the people, North and South."

A Witty Toast.

The following is taken from one of our exchanges:

Amid the dearth of witty toasts on the 4th, the following, delivered at the Winchester celebration, shines out with decided lustre. It was received with screams of applause and laughter: "Old Bachelors. Unproductive consumers: scissors with but one blade; odd gloves; fractional quantities that are never found in the multiplication table; beaux without fiddles; irregular substantives always in the singular number and objective case; unruly scholars who when ordered to conjugate always decline; their only recommendation is that, like the Shakers, they take no pains to perpetuate their own dismal fraternity; if there be any such in Winchester, may they speedily fall victims to a matrimonial epidemic, and thus become integral parts, whole numbers in our flourishing town."—Old Paper.

Oil for the Children.

Give them oil—cod-liver oil. It's curious to see the result.

Give it to the peevish, fretful child, and he laughs. Give it to the pale, anæmic child, and his face becomes rosy and full of health. Take a flat-chested child, or a child that has stopped growing, give him the oil, and he will grow big and strong like the rest.

This is not a new scheme. It has been done for years. Of course you must use the right oil. Scott's Emulsion is the one.

Scott's Emulsion neither looks nor tastes like oil because we are so careful in making it pleasant to take.

Expensive Campaigns.

Massachusetts, the state of ideals, the birthplace of new political principles, and too often, alas, the sarcophagus of old ones, is acquiring such a reputation for the costliness of its political campaigning that the reformers themselves will have to take up the matter for serious discussion.

When the expenses of a campaign reach such an extreme that four and five times the salary which comes as remuneration with the office must be spent in procuring it, the danger point has indeed been reached.

When a body of citizens, honest in every way, are forced to spend close on to $9000 to bring about a change in the school committee it should be a fair warning to all that the tracks are spreading, and that the train is in danger of being derailed.

Yet that is the exact situation in this state today. True at both the republican and democratic state headquarters the officers say that, while the expenses are heavy they are not increasing particularly, and they point to their sworn returns as evidence of the fact.

Beginning back in 1896, the republican state committee admits in its statement spending $51,096. In 1898, an off year, $16,482 was spent. In 1899 the figure went lower, and $12,417 is given as the amount. Last year which was presidential year, the sum of $32,885 was spent, and this would have been vastly larger but for the fact that it was impossible to get more money out of the people. Indeed the big vote cast for the democratic national ticket was attributed to the shortage in the republican money chest.

One of the men who figures closely says that $100,000 would have been none too much to have spent to do the proper thing, and four years from then, at the next national election he estimates that it will take $125,000 if they do all they want. This money, it should be said, is to be spent in the interest of a party so strongly dominant in the state that Massachusetts is always counted in the republican electoral column.

In contrast to these figures the democrats in their state committee returns make a very modest showing, but here again attention should be called to the fact that the smallness of the amount spent results from the failure of the committee to get any more money. Under Russell they had big bills. Even now the finances of the organization are in such a state that a telephone can be procured only after much trouble, and a candidate with money sufficient to pay for a state campaign almost entirely out of his own pocket is a recognized necessity.

The late Senator McMorrow admitted spending $12,000 for his two terms in the senate from South Boston, and out in the country some large figures can also be found. In the western part of the state a special train was hired to bring down some delegates to a senatorial convention who had missed ordinary connections.

It may be set down that it costs from $100 to $2000 for a seat in the house of representatives, and it may cost up to $80,000 for a senate seat.

Independent movements find that their money is eaten up in a similar way. The prohibitionists spent $3203 in the 1900 campaign. The Public School association in Boston spent $8089 in the 1900 school committee campaign, and here nothing went except for legitimate expenses. The charges were small, after all. This year an even bigger bill can be anticipated.

As to the lesson from all this, it must be patent to even the most careless thinker. It is not that it costs the aspirant so much to run, but that by and by the expenses will reach such a figure that few will be able to afford it from their own purses and the contributions of their friends.

The solution of it all is not easy, but the finding of one will have to engage the attention of those who expect to preserve the reputation of the state.—[Practical Politics.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Great Favorite.

The soothing and healing properties of this remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures have made it a great favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief, and as it contains no opium or other harmful drug, it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Young & Brown.

Metropolitan Water Rates.

The metropolitan water board suggests that the rate to be charged for the use of the hose for sprinkling be advanced to $4 per season. This is not a high rate and as the sprinkler is generally regarded as a luxury there will be no complaint, but other rates are as high or higher than they ought to be. It would be a good thing if the extra dollar to be charged for the use of the hose be deducted from the charge made for the single faucet. The present price of $6 for the first faucet is a great burden upon many poor families. It is three times the amount of the poll tax. Any revision of the water rates should be favorable to the small householder and the family using only one faucet. —[Melrose Journal.

The Park Tax.

The comment occasioned by the action of Cambridge, in making its annual tax levy without a provision for the metropolitan park tax, has resulted in an inquiry being sent out from the mayor's office to the other cities and towns in the metropolitan park district as to their policy in the matter. Thus far out of the 38 municipalities in the district, 28 have sent replies. Of these 28 there are 21 cities and towns which have made provision for the two years assessment not yet formerly levied, two have made partial provision, and five no provision at all. Adding Cambridge, the cities and towns which have made no provision are Boston, Cambridge, Lynn, Quincy, Belmont and Wakefield.

To the credit of Melrose it may be said that money cuts no figure in Melrose politics. The political committees do not use much money and they spend only what is needed for printing, notices to voters, expenses of headquarters and an occasional rally. The voters of Melrose have never been and never can be corrupted by the use of money. The poor man has the same chance in politics as the rich man. No man is rich enough to buy public office in Melrose. No man has money enough to buy votes in this city.—[Melrose Journal.

Street Car Lettering.

When the name of the Lynn and Boston Railroad was changed to the Boston and Northern Street Railway Company in July, there was no change made in the lettering of the cars, and to the present day the name or initials of the old Lynn and Boston Railroad can be read on nearly all the rolling stock owned by the corporation. Many of the cars owned by the corporation have the names of the different places through which they run printed over the car windows or on the dashboards, as, for instance, the name "Saugus Centre," "Cliftondale," "Lynn and Salem," "Myrtle street and Glenmere," etc., can be read on cars going through Lynn. There is an intention, however, now that all the electric lines between Boston and the Merrimac river are owned by the Boston and Northern Street Railway Company, to do away with lettering almost entirely and instead to have the new cars known by numbers.

The old local designations that used to be painted on the dashboards are now being dropped, and it is the plan to let the small signs on top of the car tell the story. This gives more elasticity in the use of a car. It can be hurried to any part of the system where it may be needed, and as the cars are being painted all one color, it can be given a suitable designation merely by turning the small sign on top. If no side of that sign is suitable, the whole sign can be lifted out and replaced with a different one in a moment or two, for all the top signs are now constructed on a single standard so that they are interchangeable.—[Wakefield Item.

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

An invention for supplying fresh air for the inside of railway cars carrying fruit, milk or other perishable merchandise has been worked out on a simple basis by Jerry Holly of Chicago, a retired railroad man. No assertion is made that his invention will take the place of refrigerator cars. It is expected only to reduce the temperature to the extent that is possible by propelling drafts of fresh air through a car from large fans under the floor that are operated by power taken from the axle through cogwheels. The force of the current of air will vary with the velocity of the car in motion.

Mr. Holly asserts that the fans will drive out foul air and keep a constant current of cool, fresh air in a car in transit, which will preserve ripe fruit or milk for longer periods than they could be preserved in ordinary closed cars in hot weather. As the device is simple and inexpensive and as the power for operating the fans would be merely nominal, the inventor says he thinks it should prove to be very popular with shippers.

In a model which he has made a casing under each end of the car protects the fans, taking in air from an opening in the forward end and sending it up into the car through a pipe for distribution. The fans and casing are detachable.

Rapid Electric Railway System.

A high speed electric railway has recently been opened between Milan and Varese, Italy. The distance of 50 miles is covered in 50 minutes, the train reaching a speed of 66 miles per hour. The third rail and four motor cars are used. Power is obtained from the Ticino at Tornavento.

Locomotive That Burns Alcohol.

On a private railroad used chiefly to carry coal to and bricks from a brickyard in Prussia a locomotive using alcohol as fuel is used. It was built for a society for the promotion of the use of spirits, which in that part of the world are largely produced in distilleries of large landholders to utilize sirup produced in making beet sugar, unmarketable potatoes, etc.

TESTING OCEAN CURRENTS.

How Russia and America Conduct Interesting Experiments.

One of the interesting scientific experiments of the time is that quietly going on year after year, under the joint direction of the Russian government and our own, for the exact determination of the direction and velocity of ocean currents.

All American and Russian warships and merchant vessels carry with them a supply of empty beer bottles, says the New York World. As they traverse the seas thousands of these bottles are "cast upon the waters," to be recovered "after many days." Each bottle carries a record telling when and where it began to drift. Whenever one is sighted by a Yankee or Russian ship, it is picked up and a record made of where and when it was found. Then it is corked up and again sent adrift, to be picked up again and again and similarly used until perhaps it has indicated the force and direction of the currents over many thousands of miles of sea.

The records of our hydrographic office show that many of these bottles have drifted from 5,000 to 8,000 miles at a speed varying from 2 to 35 miles a day. The accumulated reports of several years have already yielded valuable information. Bottles cast into the sea near the equator tend westward and usually bring up in the West Indies or on the coast of Mexico. Along our Atlantic coast and north of the fortieth parallel bottles generally drift to the northward and eastward and are picked up on the north coast of Ireland or even farther north. A fact not yet explained is that bottles thrown into the stretch of the Atlantic that lies between latitude 25 degrees to 40 degrees north and longitude 30 degrees to 60 degrees west, which is crossed by numerous steamship routes, are very rarely seen again. Only six out of many hundreds have been recovered since 1888.

How to Grill Ham.

Cut cold boiled ham in uniform slices a trifle thicker than if to be served cold. Season them highly with cayenne and mushroom catchup and broil one minute on each side, just enough to warm through, and serve immediately.

HOUSEHOLD ADJUNCTS.

Some Instructions For Building Bookcases and China Closets.

People are for the most part attracted to a house by the conveniences and the attractive detail. One may arrange a building ever so well and fail in its general conveniences through a disregard of the little things which have to do with the completeness of that building. For instance, in the matter of bookcases, in describing house plans, we speak of stationary bookshelves.

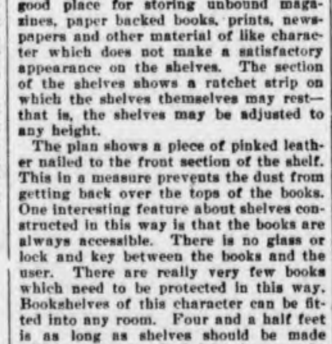

Here is a detail drawing which shows how a bookshelf may be constructed at a relatively small cost—say $1.25 per foot for shelves 5½ feet high. The lower parts of the shelves indicate doors, which are hinged at the bottom and which open down to the floor. This gives a very good place for storing unbound magazines, paper backed books, prints, newspapers and other material of like character which does not make a satisfactory appearance on the shelves. The section of the shelves shows a ratchet strip on which the shelves themselves may rest—that is, the shelves may be adjusted to any height.

The plan shows a piece of pinked leather nailed to the front section of the shelf. This in a measure prevents the dust from getting back over the tops of the books. One interesting feature about shelves constructed in this way is that the books are always accessible. There is no glass or lock and key between the books and the user. There are really very few books which need to be protected in this way. Bookshelves of this character can be fitted into any room. Four and a half feet is as long as shelves should be made without support. In height they may be continued indefinitely. Shelves of this character are not elaborate in any respect. The nicest thing about a bookcase is the books.

In connection with plans which I have prepared great stress has always been laid on the china room, china closet and pantry arrangement, but these details would largely fail of giving proper satisfaction to the housekeeper if not carried out in the proper manner. The china cupboard here shown indicates what the writer usually has in mind when he speaks of "paneled doors below and glass doors above." Doors two sections in width are common when the cupboard does not exceed five feet in width. A greater width would make the doors clumsy, and when width is added beyond this there should be a larger number of doors. Eight feet to the top of the door is high enough under any circumstances. When this cupboard is built into a passage or room, the top should be slanted, as is shown, so that it can be readily cleaned and so that nothing can be put upon it.

The open space between the paneled doors below and the glass doors above is important. One can set a tray of dishes upon the table top, which comes over the paneled doors, and open the glass doors above it. This is a convenient arrangement which facilitates the use of the cupboard. Cup hooks may be placed on the undersides of the second and third shelves and thus add to the attractiveness and capacity of the cupboard.

The pantry cupboard is somewhat simpler than the china closet. No doors are required above. However, the paneled doors and flour bin are indicated below. The upper shelves may be best occupied by tin receptacles and articles, which may be more readily reached without the use of the door. The paneled doors below afford enough space to inclose such utensils as one would wish to conceal in this way. The flour bin is usually pivoted at the point indicated by the arrow, though it may be constructed by using a hinge below. In larger pantries it is not unusual to provide two or three smaller bins of this same general character. The advantage about a bin of this kind is that it closes itself and for that reason is always well out of the way. In a well arranged pantry there should be a space for a refrigerator and kneading board.

SUBMARINE TRAVEL.

Some Interesting Predictions Made by Inventor Holland.

Mr. John P. Holland, inventor of that now famous torpedo boat bearing his name, in a public lecture has made some interesting predictions concerning the future of submarine travel.

He does not expect that transoceanic submarine travel will become feasible, but for short trips on crowded waterways he expects to see submarine packets successful rivals of surface boats. For instance, the trip from Dover to Calais, dreaded by the hardiest sailor, Mr. Holland believes will yet be made with perfect safety and comfort in submarine boats, avoiding collisions by always running one way at a depth of, say, 40 feet and the other way at the depth of 60 feet; no pitching or rolling or seasickness, as the craft will run beneath the troubled waters above; moved by electricity, kept in the course by fixed trolley cables, while the passengers inside enjoy the luxury of dry and quiet cabins electrically lighted and ventilated by tanks of liquid air; neither hot nor cold, but enjoying the even temperature of the deep sea. Fogs and the crowded craft on the surface above will no longer be sources of danger, and most of the discomforts of ordinary sea travel will be relieved.

Speaking of the submarine torpedo boat, the inventor says: "When the first submarine torpedo boat goes into action, she will bring us face to face with the most puzzling problems ever met in warfare. She will present the spectacle, when used in attack, of a weapon against which there is no defense. You can send nothing against the submarine boat, not even itself. You cannot fight submarines with submarines. You cannot see under water; hence you cannot fight under water."

How to Make Turtle Soup.

Scald and scrape the outer skin off the shell of the turtle; open it carefully, so as not to break the gall; break both shells to pieces and put into the pot; lay the fins, the eggs and some of the more delicate parts by; put the rest into the pot with a couple of quarts of water. Add two onions, parsley, thyme, salt, pepper, cloves and allspice to suit your taste. An hour before dinner take the paste laid by, roll them in brown flour, fry them in butter, put them with the eggs in the soup. About half an hour before dinner thicken the soup with browned flour and butter rubbed together. Serve very hot.

LESSON XI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 15.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxxii, 1-32. Memory Verses, 24-28—Golden Text, Luke xviii, 1—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1, 2. "And Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him." In our last lesson the Lord and the angels appeared to him as he was leaving home, and now, after 20 years (chapter xxxi, 38, 41), as he is about to return home with wives and children and servants and much cattle, the angels of God meet him. In what wondrous grace the Lord deals with this man! And He is Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever (Heb. xiii, 8) and has just the same grace for you and for me. In chapters xxix to xxxi, inclusive, between the last lesson and this one, we have an account of Jacob's 20 years with Laban, his faithful service, his marriage, his increase and the Lord's special care of him (chapter xxxi, 11-13, 24, 29); also in verses 44 to 55 the incident of the covenant between Laban and Jacob at Galeed or Mizpah as they separated.

3-8. Jacob sent messengers to Esau, his brother, and on their return, learning that Esau was coming to meet him with 400 men, he becomes filled with fear and distress and attempts to provide for the safety of at least a portion of his company. Notwithstanding all God's gracious care of him these many years, he does not seem to have learned to trust Him without fear.

9-12. In humility he looks to God and pleads His promises to him, acknowledging all His great goodness with gratitude. This is always a right attitude toward God. The assurances of God when he left his home and when he was about to return should have delivered him from all fear concerning Esau's treatment of him. But many believers are not any more trustful now, for with such assurances as John x, 27-29; Phil. i, 6; II Tim. i, 12, etc., there are those who have their fears lest they may not reach home, but be lost somewhere by the way.

13-23. He prepared a great present for Esau that he might therewith appease him—five droves of goats, sheep, camels, cows and asses—580 in all, with instructions to those in charge of the droves as to what they shall say to Esau when they meet him. It looks as if he felt that he must do somewhat to help God in this matter. He evidently believed the world's motto used by many believers, "God helps those who help themselves," but the teaching of Scripture is that God helps those who cannot help themselves, and we must come to an end of ourselves before we can know His power (Ps. lxxii, 12; cvii, 27, 28; Isa. xl, 29, and all His miracles).

24. "And Jacob was left alone, and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of day." The margin says until the ascending of the morning. It is not Jacob wrestling with a man that he might prevail over him, but the man wrestles with Jacob that he may conquer Jacob, and Jacob evidently stoutly resists him until the morning. God is ever seeking to break us down, to humble us, to bring us to the end of ourselves, that He may bless us indeed and show us His strength and magnify Himself in us.

25, 26. Toward morning the man who wrestled with Jacob touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh and put it out of joint, so that Jacob could no longer resist, after which Jacob clung in his helplessness, saying, I will not let thee go except thou bless me. This is the secret of prevailing with God, our helplessness clinging to His power. Consider those who came to Him when He was on earth for us and see how in every case His power was made manifest on behalf of utter helplessness; the blind, the lepers, the woman with the issue, those at the point of death and those who had died.

27, 28. "Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel, for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men and hast prevailed." We cannot get our new name of saint until we confess that we are and have been sinners and naught but sinners. Jacob must acknowledge himself as Jacob or supplanter (chapter xxvii, 36, margin) before he can receive his new name of Israel (margin, a prince of God). The Spirit through Hosea says, "By his strength he had power with God; yea, he had power over the angel and prevailed; he wept and made supplication unto Him; he found Him in Bethel, and there He spake with us, even the Lord God of hosts; the Lord is his memorial" (Hos. xii, 3-5). Then follows the exhortation to turn to God and wait on God continually. This is the secret of prevailing prayer, persistent clinging to God alone, pleading only our need and His great mercy. We will always have occasion to say, "Though our iniquities testify against us, do Thou it for Thy name's sake" (Jer. xiv, 7). When we take the place of utter helplessness and unworthiness and, like Jacob, cry, I will not let thee go, we shall see fulfillments of John xiv 13, 14, and similar promises. This is the first mention of the great name of Israel, a name that always is used to designate Jacob or his posterity. It is never used as a name for the church, not even in Gal. vi, 16, where it evidently means the believers in Israel, who are spoken of in addition to other believers. There is no authority for the term "spiritual Israel," though it may properly be used in reference to true believers in Israel, but should never be applied to gentiles. We must not confound the church with Israel, nor the kingdom with either, though both will be very prominent in the kingdom.

29-32. "He blessed him there." So Jacob called the name of the place Peniel (margin, the face of God), for he said, I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. This and Ex. xxiv, 11; xxxiii, 20, in the light of John i, 18, teach that every manifestation of God is through His Son. In Eden as well as here and in all the other appearances of God we must recognize Him whom we know as the Son of God, our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of hosts, the Lord God of Israel, Jehovah of the Old Testament, who by His precious blood shed for us has provided eternal redemption and a joint heirship with Himself for all who receive Him. It would seem that Jacob carried with him from that time the evidence of that night's conflict, and we must never forget that we have been rebels against God, children of disobedience, and by His grace have been redeemed. We must learn to know that in us—that is, in our flesh—there dwelleth no good thing (Rom. vii, 18) and glory in the Lord alone, seeing no man but Jesus only and coveting above all things His blessing, which maketh rich (Mark ix, 8; Prov. x, 22, R. V., margin).

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by Young & Brown.

ETHICS OF SUFFRAGE

A DISCUSSION AS TO WHETHER IT IS A PRIVILEGE OR A RIGHT.

The Radical Question Ably Handled by Louis F. Post of Chicago at the National American Suffrage Convention in Minneapolis.

It is not the surface question of the issue of woman's suffrage that I intend to discuss, but the radical question of whether the suffrage is a privilege or a right. Is it something which those in power may grant or withhold according to their own notions or what may be wise? Or is it something which every adult and sane member of the community is entitled to as a right?

If the suffrage is a mere privilege, if it can rightfully be granted to men and withheld from women, be granted to those who are white and withheld from those who are colored, be granted to people with red hair and withheld from those with black; if it may be rightfully given to the millionaire and withheld from the day laborer, rightfully extended to those who can read and withheld from those who cannot, or to those with a college education and from those with only the education of the common school—if this is the basis of suffrage, if this is the only foundation on which women claim a share in the processes of government, then the fundamental argument for woman's suffrage disappears. In that case, the best that women who want the suffrage can do, is to kneel before those who already have the power of assigning privileges of suffrage, and beg for it. All they can say, is, "Please, Mister, won't you let me vote?"

For my part, I do not believe that the suffrage is a privilege. I believe that it is a right, which belongs to every sane adult of whatever color, of whatever fortune, or whatever education and of either sex; that it belongs to them in virtue simply of the fact that all such persons are members of the community to be governed. In other words, I place the determination of the question of woman's suffrage upon the broad ground set forth in the Declaration of Independence, that all just government derives its powers from the consent of the governed.

Let us for a moment consider this proposition. There are such things as individual concerns, concerns regarding which each of us has the absolute right to control our own action, free from all restraints of government, except when we infringe upon the equal individual rights of others. As to these individual concerns, it is the business of government to keep hands off. To illustrate what I mean, the government has no right to prescribe for me, or for you, or for any other person, the hour at which we shall eat our meals or the food of which they shall consist. Such things are individual affairs, and even a popular government, managed by a majority vote, has no right to interfere.

But individual concerns are not all the concerns of social life. There are also what we may call communal concerns; that is, concerns in which we are all mutually interested, concerns in which the interest of one is of necessity the interest of all and the interests of all are interests of each. As an example of these concerns, let me mention the highways. There can be no normal social life without highways. Therefore highways are of common concern. They are partnership affairs, and every partner is entitled to an equal voice in their management. It makes no difference whether he is rich or poor, black or white, educated or ignorant, man or woman. So with the land upon which we live. It has been provided by the Creator for the common good of all. It is the right therefore, of every person in the community to have a voice in determining the tenures upon which it shall be held. Land is a partnership asset. So again with those-values that attach to the land in every community simply because there is a community there, those values that are created by the whole community, and not by individuals as such, those values that are due to social growth and not to individual enterprise, those values that are commonly known as ground rent or ground price. These values constitute a common income, and in the expenditure of that common income everybody in the community has the right to an equal voice. It is not a privilege; it is a right.

The right to participate in the management of common affairs, like the right to manage one's own private affairs, is in its very nature not a privilege to be granted or withheld in the discretion of superior power, but a right to be asserted and maintained. And being a right, it is also a duty. He has a right to maintain a duty to perform.

This is the firm rock upon which woman's suffrage must rest. It must be demanded because women are members of the community, because they have common interests in the common property and affairs of the community, because they have common interests in the common purposes of the community as a community, because, in a word, they have rights in the community and duties toward it, which are the same as the rights and duties of every other sane person of mature age who keeps out of the penitentiary.

Booker T. Washington and a committee of twenty-four leading colored taxpayers have presented a petition to the Constitutional Convention of Alabama praying that they be not disfranchised. They say: "The negro is not seeking to rule, but since he is taxed, is punished for crime and responds to calls for public service he asks some humble share in choosing his rulers."

That is just the way white women feel, but they are far more helpless in the matter than negro men.—Ida Husted Harper.

JAYNES' INSECT POWDER.

MESSRS. JAYNES & Co., BOSTON. ELKHART, ILL.

"Gentlemen—Having used your Insect Powder successfully I desire to convey to you my heartfelt gratitude for the production of such a wonderful exterminator of horrible insects of all kinds, such as bed bugs and roaches.

"I have tried all kinds of remedies recommended by druggists in many different countries, such as magnetic powder, gasolene, corrosive sublimate and many poisons, and none were ever successful in killing them.

"I had an engagement at the Point of Pines, Revere Beach, last summer and engaged a colored boy to come to Elkhart and live with me.

"On my return home the house was completely running over with roaches and bed bugs. My Boston boy remarked, 'Mr. Levy, there is only one place in America where you can purchase a positive remedy to get rid of these tortures and that is at Jaynes' Drug Store in Boston.' I sent for one pound and it promptly came. I was dumfounded at the rate that these horrible insects were killed. The effect was instantaneous.

"I am more than happy to have found a real reliable and positive remedy to kill roaches and bugs, and the whole public should be grateful to Jaynes & Co. Yours truly,

JULES LEVY."

M'KINLEY'S PAN-AMERICAN SPEECH

Delivered at Buffalo on the Day Before He Was Shot.

The speech delivered by President McKinley at Buffalo on Thursday, Sept. 5, the day before his attempted assassination, is regarded as one of the best public addresses which he ever made. He was introduced to the vast crowd of auditors which packed the esplanade of the exposition grounds by President Milburn, who said simply:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the president."

When the cheering had subsided, President McKinley spoke as follows:

President Milburn, Director General Buchanan, Commissioners, Ladies and Gentlemen—I am glad to be again in the city of Buffalo and exchange greetings with her people, to whose generous hospitality I am not a stranger and with whose good will I have been repeatedly and signally honored. Today I have additional satisfaction in meeting and giving welcome to the foreign representatives assembled here, whose presence and participation in this exposition have contributed in so marked a degree to its interest and success. To the commissioners of the Dominion of Canada and the British colonies, the French colonies, the republics of Mexico and of Central and South America and the commissioners of Cuba and Porto Rico, who share with us in this undertaking, we give the hand of fellowship and felicitate with them upon the triumphs of art, science, education and manufacture which the old has bequeathed to the new century.

Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement. They stimulate the energy, enterprise and intellect of the people and quicken human genius. They go into the home. They broaden and brighten the daily life of the people. They open mighty storehouses of information to the student. Every exposition, great or small, has helped to some onward step. Comparison of ideas is always educational and as such instructs the brain and hand of man. Friendly rivalry follows, which is the spur to industrial improvement, the inspiration to useful invention and to high endeavor in all departments of human activity.

It exacts a study of the wants, comforts and even the whims of the people and recognizes the efficacy of high quality and new prices to win their favor. The quest for trade is an incentive to men of business to devise, invent, improve and economize in cost of production. Business life, whether among ourselves or with other peoples, is ever a sharp struggle for success. It will be none the less so in the future. Without competition we would be clinging to the clumsy and antiquated processes of farming and manufacture and the methods of business of long ago, and the twentieth would be no further advanced than the eighteenth century. But though commercial competitors are commercial enemies, we must not be.

Progress In the Past.

The Pan-American exposition has done its work thoroughly, presenting in its exhibits evidences of the highest skill and illustrating the progress of the human family in the western hemisphere. This portion of the earth has no cause for humiliation for the part it has performed in the march of civilization. It has not accomplished everything; far from it. It has simply done its best, and without vanity or boastfulness and recognizing the manifest achievements of others it invites the friendly rivalry of all the powers in the peaceful pursuits of trade and commerce and will co-operate with all in advancing the highest and best interests of humanity. The wisdom and energy of all the nations are none too great for the world's work. The success of art, science, industry and invention is an international asset and a common glory.

After all, how near one to the other is every part of the world! Modern inventions have brought into close relation widely separated peoples and made them better acquainted. Geographic and political divisions will continue to exist, but distances have been effaced. Swift ships and fast trains are becoming cosmopolitan. They invade fields which a few years ago were impenetrable. The world's products are exchanged as never before, and with increasing transportation facilities come increasing knowledge and larger trade. Prices are fixed with mathematic precision by supply and demand. The world's selling prices are regulated by market and crop reports.

We travel greater distances in a shorter space of time and with more ease than was ever dreamed of by the fathers. Isolation is no longer possible or desirable. The same important news is read, though in different languages, the same day in all Christendom. The telegraph keeps us advised of what is occurring everywhere, and the press foreshadows with more or less accuracy the plans and purposes of the nations. Market prices of products and of securities are hourly known in every commercial mart, and the investments of the people extend beyond their own national boundaries into the remotest parts of the earth. Vast transactions are conducted and international exchanges are made by the tick of the cable. Every event of interest is immediately bulletined.

The quick gathering and transmission of news, like rapid transit, are of recent origin and are only made possible by the genius of the inventor and the courage of the investor. It took a special messenger of the government, with every facility known at the time for rapid travel, nineteen days to go from the city of Washington to New Orleans with a message to General Jackson that the war with England had ceased and a treaty of peace had been signed. How different now! We reached General Miles in Porto Rico by cable, and he was able through the military telegraph to stop his army on the firing line with the message that the United States and Spain had signed a protocol suspending hostilities.

We knew almost instantly of the first shots fired at Santiago, and the subsequent surrender of the Spanish forces was known at Washington within less than an hour of its consummation. The first ship of Cervera's fleet had hardly emerged from that historic harbor when the fact was flashed to our capital, and the swift destruction that followed was announced immediately through the wonderful medium of telegraphy. So accustomed are we to safe and easy communication with distant lands that its temporary interruption even in ordinary times results in loss and inconvenience. We shall never forget the days of anxious waiting and awful suspense when no information was permitted to be sent from Pekin and the diplomatic representatives of the nations in China, cut off from all communication inside and outside of the walled capital, were surrounded by an angry and misguided mob that threatened their lives, nor the joy that thrilled the world when a single message from the government of the United States brought through our minister the first news of the safety of the besieged diplomats.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century there was not a mile of steam railroad on the globe. Now there are enough miles to make its circuit many times. Then there was not a line of electric telegraph. Now we have a vast mileage traversing all lands and all seas. God and man have linked the nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other, and as we are brought more and more in touch with each other the less occasion is there for misunderstandings and the stronger the disposition when we have differences to adjust them in the court of arbitration, which is the noblest forum for the settlement of international disputes.

Unexampled Prosperity.

My fellow citizens, trade statistics indicate that this country is in a state of unexampled prosperity. The figures are almost appalling. They show that we are utilizing our fields and forests and mines and that we are furnishing profitable employment to the millions of workingmen throughout the United States, bringing comfort and happiness to their homes and making it possible to lay by savings for old age and disability. That all the people are participating in this great prosperity is seen in every American community and shown by the enormous and unprecedented deposits in our savings banks. Our duty is the care and security of these deposits, and their safe investment demands the highest integrity and the best business capacity of those in charge of these depositories of the people's earnings.

We have a vast and intricate business, built up through years of toil and struggle, in which every part of the country has its stake, which will not permit of either neglect or of undue selfishness. No narrow, sordid policy will subserve it. The greatest skill and wisdom on the part of the manufacturers and producers will be required to hold and increase it. Our industrial enterprises which have grown to such great proportions affect the homes and occupations of the people and the welfare of the country. Our capacity to produce has developed so enormously and our products have so multiplied that the problem of more markets requires our urgent and immediate attention. Only a broad and enlightened policy will keep what we have. No other policy will get more. In these times of marvelous business energy and gain we ought to be looking to the future, strengthening the weak places in our industrial and commercial systems that we may be ready for any storm or strain.

Need of Reciprocity.

By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus. A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued and healthful growth of our export trade. We must not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything and buy little or nothing. If such a thing were possible, it would not be best for us or for those with whom we deal. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor. Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established. What we produce beyond our domestic consumption must have vent abroad. The excess must be relieved through a foreign outlet, and we should sell everywhere we can and buy wherever the buying will enlarge our sales and productions and thereby make a greater demand for home labor. The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not.

If, perchance, some of our tariffs are no longer needed for revenue or to encourage and protect our industries at home, why should they not be employed to extend and promote our markets abroad? Then, too, we have inadequate steamship service. New lines of steamers have already been put in commission between the Pacific coast ports of the United States and those of the western coasts of Mexico and Central and South America. These should be followed up with direct steamship lines between the eastern coast of the United States and South American ports.

One of the needs of the times is direct commercial lines from our vast fields of production to the fields of consumption that we have but barely touched. Next in advantage to having the thing to sell is to have the convenience to carry it to the buyer. We must encourage our merchant marine. We must have more ships. They must be under the American flag, built and manned and owned by Americans. These will not only be profitable in a commercial sense; they will be messengers of peace and amity wherever they go. We must build the isthmian canal, which will unite the two oceans and give a straight line of water communication with the western coasts of Central and South America and Mexico. The construction of a Pacific cable cannot be longer postponed.

A Fraternity of Republics.

In the furtherance of these objects of national interest and concern you are performing an important part. This exposition would have touched the heart of that American statesman whose mind was ever alert and thought ever constant for a larger commerce and a truer fraternity of the republics of the new world. His broad American spirit is felt and manifested here. He needs no identification to an assemblage of Americans anywhere, for the name of Blaine is inseparably associated with the pan-American movement, which finds his practical and substantial expression and which we all hope will be firmly advanced by the pan-American congress that assembles this autumn in the capital of Mexico. The good work will go on. It cannot be stopped. These buildings will disappear; this creation of art and beauty and industry will perish from sight, but their influence will remain to Make it live beyond its too short living

With praises and thanksgiving.

Who can tell the new thoughts that have been awakened, the ambitions fired and the high achievements that will be wrought through this exposition? Gentlemen, let us ever remember that our interest is in concord, not conflict, and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war. We hope that all who are represented here may be moved to higher and nobler effort for their own and the world's good and that out of this city may come not only greater commerce and trade for us all, but, more essential than these, relations of mutual respect, confidence and friendship which will deepen and endure. Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness and peace to all our neighbors and like blessings to all the peoples and powers of earth.

Witty Robert Barr.

Robert Barr when asked for his favorite quotation responded with the following verse and its accompanying comment, says The Windsor Magazine:

One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward;
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong
would triumph,
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better,
Sleep to wake. —Robert Browning.

But Mr. Barr can never be serious in a letter, whatever he may be in his quotation. He has long been celebrated as one of the wittiest letter writters of the day. However short his note may be, it is long enough to afford him an opening for some little touch of the humoresque. In the present instance he writes:

"The above is my favorite quotation. Whenever you want something helpful, you know, look up the writings of the talented R. B.'s—Robert Burns, Robert Browning, Robert Buchanan, Robert Bruce or Robert Barr."

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a summer camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Normantown, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says: "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral.—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by Young & Brown.

MINERALS AND METALS

In his recent work on Luzon Dr. Rinne of Hanover gives an interesting description of a visit to the gold diggings in the Candelaria goldfield. In the more elevated portions of the Candelaria district little trouble is given by water, but the air in the mines is often too foul to breathe. Ventilation is secured by lowering into the shaft a basket of burning coals. If there are two connecting shafts, this device creates a good draft down one and up the other.

Dr. Rinne's own shaft had reached the depth of 60 feet. At the bottom nearly naked workmen were cutting galleries by the light of little torches and sending up baskets of ore and refuse. These were hauled up by means of a wooden capstan worked by two men. This is Filipino gold mining as it has been carried on from time immemorial.

The gold bearing ore is then crushed by pounding with stones or on a larger scale ground in an arrasta, or mill, driven by a yoke of oxen. It is then washed in shallow wooden pans to get rid of the bulk of the lighter material. The product of this first washing is again washed in cocoanut shells and yields a quantity of gold in dust and small particles.

A vegetable sap called gogo is used in this process to precipitate the finer dust. Finally the dust is packed in small mussel shells and melted over a charcoal fire. This accounts for the peculiar shell-like form in which Filipino gold appears in the market.

Clothing and Disease.

Does the introduction of civilized clothing among savages breed disease and infirmities? It has been observed recently in the Philippines that the savages who have adopted civilized clothing have suffered in their general health. The wearing of a high silk hat, for example, has produced brain trouble, while even the strain of wearing pyjamas has caused serious nervous disorders. So serious have been the results in some cases that the physicians sent out to care for the soldiers have mentioned the new dangers in their reports.

Great St. Louis Pyramid.

St. Louis is planning for a great pyramid for its coming Louisiana Purchase Centennial exposition. The pyramid, if built, will surpass the Egyptian structures in height. It will be hollow and will be devoted to observation and other purposes.

ST. LOUIS PYRAMID.

Light From Liquid Gas.

Important scientific advances have been made by Walter Scott Strowger, the inventor, in studying the nature of his new liquid gas. He has, it is reported, succeeded in liquefying it at pleasure and in producing it by cold chemical process. It is claimed he can also compress it so that a quantity can be placed in a bottle, and by placing a pipe with a gas burner on top the tap may be turned and a brilliant light will result, as from the regular gas of commerce.

Oil In South Africa.

Consul General Stowe of Cape Town has transmitted a report from Mr. Seavill, mining and land agent of Kimberley, on the discovery of indications of mineral oil in South Africa. The supposed oil belt extends from the Ceres district across the country to Mossel bay, on the coast, 250 miles east of Cape Town. The geological formation is the Devonian period throughout, locally known as the Bokveldt beds.

A Light Wave Phenomenon.

A curious phenomenon has been reported by men on outpost duty three miles from a military station in the Transvaal. On still, silent nights such as come often in the high veldt a distinct purring was heard as the station's searchlight was turned toward them, the sound increasing until the light ray passed directly overhead. The observers were inclined to attribute the sound to light waves impinging against the air.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for burns, boils, piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Grover.

SOME CARNEGIE METHODS.

Quick Work In Unloading Ore From the Cars at the Furnaces.

James N. Hatch in The Engineering Magazine tells how ore is handled at the Carnegie furnaces. He says:

When the ore trains reach the Carnegie furnaces, they must be unloaded as quickly as possible to save cars and save storage track room. The cars are stopped on the platform of a tipple and clamped down to the track. The tipple is then set in motion, lifting a section of the track, loaded car and all, and turning it through a vertical circle until the car is turned upside down and the 50 tons, more or less, of ore are emptied into bucket cars, which stand on a track alongside. This machine is guaranteed to handle 300 cars a day of ten hours.

These bucket cars are hauled away to the side of the stockyard and stopped under the cantilever of the largest bridge tramway ever built. This tramway has a trolley travel of about 500 feet and can pick up the bucket with its load of 22,400 pounds from the car and carry it to any part of the yards. This load of over ten tons can be lifted from the ground at the rate of 250 feet per minute, can be moved across the bridge at a speed of 800 to 900 feet per minute, and the whole machine, load and all, can be moved up or down the yards at a speed of 75 to 100 feet per minute.

A Novel Lightship.

A new departure in lightships, it appears, is about to be inaugurated at Ottor rock, Italy. The ship is to have no crew and is to be worked by the compound gas system. Two large gas holders built upon it will contain as much gas as will light the lantern for several months. As the gas escapes from the holders to the lantern it operates a mechanism by which a bell placed in a belfry on the deck is rung. These rocks mark a particularly dangerous part of the coast, and the experiment will be watched with much interest.

Something About Boils.

Contrary to the common belief, boils are not indicative of blood disease. They are really indications of local poisoning by pus bearing germs, and the boil is an abscess. Every pus prick, every scratch, every abrasion, every cut with a razor or pocketknife, every splinter that enters the skin may cause a boil. Nor need the wound be a serious one. It may be so minute as to be invisible to the unaided eye.

A Photographic Menace.

Blood poisoning from handling bichromate of potash is reported by Mr. W. L. Jenkins, a London photographer. An assistant was affected from time to time with a rash on the hands, chiefly around the nails, and in the hot weather of last August a violent red rash, very painful and irritating, appeared on his face. The victim was sent to a hospital, and it was three months before he recovered.

Will Weigh Uncle Sam's Money.

Warren Johnson, a New Orleans engineer, has invented a machine for regulating the weight of gold and silver money which the United States government will place in operation in the mint there. It is expected to be the means of saving large sums which the government has heretofore been obliged to spend in employing unsatisfactory methods of coining gold and silver.

His Last Speech.

As the speech delivered by the late President McKinley at the Pan-American Exposition on the day he was assassinated, and which defined his policy on important questions before the country, will be the topic for discussion for some time to come, we print it in full on the first page of this issue. This speech of the lamented President is worthy of a careful reading.

The Late President.

There is nothing for the STAR to say in regard to the sad death of President McKinley which occurred last Friday night from the assassin's bullet, but what has already been expressed by the metropolitan dailies. William McKinley, whose death has plunged the world in mourning, needs no epitaph, as his noble life is already indelibly written in the history of the country and in the hearts of the whole people.

Selectmen Not to Blame.

Frequently fault is found with the Selectmen because they do not bring about this or that improvement. No doubt these gentlemen would be pleased to do all that is suggested in the way of improvements in making the town more desirable to live in, but as all thinking men must know this is impossible, for the reason they have not the money. Annually a certain sum is voted by the citizens to be used by the Board for stated improvements and the usual occurring expenses. Therefore to take up entirely new and unlooked for work on a large scale is an impossiblity, if the Selectmen are to keep within their appropriation. It is not neglect and indifference by the Board, it is lack of money.

Attention Arcanumites!

On Thursday evening, Oct. 3d, a special train will leave the North Union Station at 7 p. m., with members of the Royal Arcanum bound for Lowell to visit Lowell Council No. 8. Aberjona Council has voted to go. This train will stop at Winchester, going and returning. The excursion is given under the auspices of Boston Council, and a full brass band will accompany the party. The members of the local lodge, who went to Lowell last year, need not be reminded of the grand, good time enjoyed on that trip. This year will eclipse that of a year ago, both for enthusiasm and a jolly time, as Lowell council has made most extensive preparations for the comfort of the visitors. Don't miss going if you are a member of the order. Tickets are on sale at Fred S. Scales'.

The Howe Lot.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The summer has come and gone; the children who go to school from the hill district have to face the bank on the "Howe lot," looking the same as it has for three years. At the present time it has a most delightful growth of weeds; the sort that are objectionable to those who suffer with hay fever. The chairman of our Selectmen and a member of our Board of Health pass this delightful spot every day. I wish that every resident of the town would take a look at it.

WHITFIELD L. TUCK.

What is the Matter?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Can you tell me what is the matter with the telephone? It appears, as far as my observation goes, to have lost its voice. Is it owing to the wires being buried in the ground? Mr. Superintendent, can't you remedy this trouble? It is now three weeks since the disorder first arose, and it appears to be growing worse.

As managers and owners of the largest milk route in your town we have been included in the examination. Misleading and incorrect reports of the findings of the health boards have been published and circulated and our business has thereby suffered.

Here are the facts. There are two wells upon our milk farm. One of them, and one only, is drawn upon for cleansing milk jars. Our milk was never cooled by lowering into a well. The State Board of Health has analyzed the water of these wells and find it polluted. We have, however, the authority of Dr. Samuel W. Abbott, of the State board, when we say no typhoid germs were found. The board advised us to use other water, and we at once complied with that advice.

The well in question has been used for years by ourselves and employees without resulting sickness. We are confident the typhoid cases in Winchester are not rightly chargeable to our milk, and we can assure you that as far as we are concerned no grounds for alarm exists.

You may rest assured we shall at all times seek to maintain the highest standards.

Respectfully yours,
MCINTIRE BROS.

None Equal the Star.

Our oldest town paper, the STAR, says its circulation is larger now than ever before, and I guess its Editor tells the truth. I get to see quite a good many country newspapers off and on, and it is a fact that none of them, to my mind, equal the STAR, editorially or mechanically, and none go ahead of it in these respects. Editor Wilson is a conscientious worker for the promotion of the best interests of the town; he is an industrious news gatherer and a good writer; and, for one, I am glad to know that he is prospering. [Woburn Journal.

The editor of the STAR sincerely thanks his old friend, Editor George A. Hobbs of the Journal, for the above complimentary allusion. For nearly two score years the Journal was the only paper that kept Winchester informed of the local happenings, and today many of the inhabitants take that paper, as they have continued to for over 50 years. The Journal was established 52 years ago, and has the reputation for being one of the best edited and most reliable papers in this section. It has always been strongly Republican—not of the milk and water kind. You can always tell where Editor Hobbs is to be found on all political questions.

High School Notes.

The High School "Recorder" will be issued in different form this year. Five 16-page numbers will be printed instead of the former ten 8-page numbers. The editorial staff this year is as follows:

Editor-in-Chief, Wilder L. Parkhurst, '02; associate editors, Mildred Gutterson, '02, Lillian O'Neil, '02; athletic editors, Trevor A. Cushman, '03, Clarence Fultz, '02; business managers, Arthur Watt, '02, Robert Adriance, '02; artist, Bremer Pond, '02; exchange editor, Sadie Mills, '02; class editors, 1903, Carlton Apollonio, Elizabeth Kendall; 1905, Harold Prescott, Margaret Kreutz; 1904, Chauncey Heath, May Blaikie; 1906, Marjorie Rolfe, Paul Badger.

The new scholars who have entered the school this fall are: Bessie L. Hopkins, John M. Ferguson, Frank P. Ferguson, Sadie I. Hanno, Howard Snelling, Francis Lord, Margaret Lord, Hattie Cole, William Jetter.

Hon. Samuel J. Elder Will Preside.

Hon. Samuel J. Elder has been selected to preside over the Republican State Convention in place of Col. C. H. Allen of Lowell who has declined because of poor health. A Boston paper says:

It is interesting, as a coincidence at this time, that Mr. Elder is distantly connected with the McKinley family. Mr. Elder's grandfather, the year after the revolution closed, married Esther McKinley, who was a sister of the President's great grandfather. Mr. Elder was born in Rhode Island, and prepared for college at Lawrence. He served in the Massachusetts Legislature in 1885, and although he has been repeatedly pleaded with to be a candidate for political honors, he has persistently refused. He was graduated at Yale in the class of 1875. He lives in Winchester.

Boat Club News.

The directors of the Winchester Boat Club held a meeting at the Savings Bank building Tuesday evening. Owing to the small attendance (a number being away) not much business of importance was transacted. Three new members, Clarence A. Fultz, Irving T. Guild and Edw. A. Gunning were admitted. The directors voted to close the club season on October 21, and Steward Morris will be retained until that date.

Republican Caucus.

A caucus of the Republican voters will be held in the small Town Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 8 p. m., to elect six delegates each to the several conventions and fifteen delegates to the Representative convention, also to choose a town committee for the year 1902, and to transact other business proper to come before the meeting.

At a meeting of the Registrars of Voters held last night, but two names were added to the voting list.

Miss Mary Richards, 4 Black Horse Terrace, will resume her pianoforte teaching on Monday, September 30th.

Miss Ballantyne of Buffalo is passing two weeks with Mrs. W. A. Batchelder of Church street.

Mr. Henry C. Ordway and family have returned from West Hampstead, N. H., where they have been passing the summer.

Judge Pettengill of Malden recently said that Revere Beach isn't fit for children or even for grown people. He said it is a place of public immorality and some of his worst cases in court came from there. A visit there one afternoon last week convinces us that Judge Pettengill knew what he was talking about. The first thing to be done is to request the services of the Board of Health of Revere, and then bring the police onto the scene. The public are entitled to be protected.

Mrs. S. C. Phinney of Woburn, whose success as a teacher of voice culture is by no means local, announces in this issue that she is ready to receive pupils at her home on Warren avenue. Mrs. Phinney is thoroughly versed in the technique of her profession, and ranks high as a careful and painstaking instructor.

The town of Boxboro, this State, with a population of between 300 and 400, has no store, postoffice, doctor nor lawyer. Nothing but a minister and hay scales, says an exchange. There is not even a blacksmith shop, something unusual for any town to be without, no matter how small the population.

Cars on the No. Woburn electric railroad commenced a fifteen-minute schedule last Saturday. The cars should run to the Elevated in Sullivan Square, and this, it is believed, can be easily brought about. Owing to lack of power 15-minute time has had to be discontinued.

The preliminaries of the Winchester Golf Club tournament commenced Saturday. The committee in charge includes Mr. J. W. Russell, Jr., Mr. J. L. S. Barton, Mr. F. L. Hunt, Mr. F. H. Rand and Mr. Doubleday.

The Woburn Golf Club had arranged for a tournament last week with teams from nearby places, but, at the last moment, it was found that the local team could produce not more than three players. So the contest was abandoned. The club members appear to be losing interest in the game, and it is a question if the organization shall continue its existence another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Nickerson and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace N. Proctor sailed for England last week. Their journey will extend through the British Isle and the continent.

One of the most sensible laws passed by the last legislature is Chap. 472 of the Acts of 1901, which amends Chap. 103 of the Acts of 1884 in such a way as to permit the scholars in the public schools to procure of the school committee at cost, such books as they are using in their studies and retain them, whenever cities or towns shall accept the act. This will dispose of much trouble which occurs by scholars of decent tastes and habits being compelled to use text books that have been handled and abused by scholars of careless or filthy habits, or inhabit homes in which infectious diseases have occurred or exist.

In Memory of President McKinley

Memorial services were held in the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, and so great was the desire of the inhabitants to attend that scores of people were unable to even enter the hall, standing room being at a premium. It was the largest and most representative gathering ever held within the walls of the building, all eager to attest by their presence a love and esteem for that noble man of the people, the late President William McKinley. The interior of the hall was beautifully decorated with mourning. The fronts of both galleries were draped and over the clock were the stars and stripes. Suspended from the arch over the stage sombre drapery fell in graceful folds, bordered with white, in the centre being a handsome wreath of evergreen. The stage was banked with potted ferns and palms, and in front of the speaker's desk was a portrait of the dead President. It is doubtful if there was another hall in the State that presented a more appropriate and tasty appearance, and for which credit is due Mr. A. S. F. Kirby.

Monday evening, at the Town Hall, the following gentlemen met to take action looking to this meeting:

Hon. Sam'l W. McCall, Sam'l J. Elder, George L. Huntress, Theo. C. Hurd, Wm. B. French, Lewis Parkhurst, Preston Pond, Arthur E. Russell, Sam'l W. Twombly, Rev. J. W. Suter, Rev. Wm. I. Lawrence, Rev. J. H. Madden, Rev. H. E. Hodge, Rev. D. A. Newton, Rev. Joshua Coit, Harrison Parker, Francis J. O'Hara, Thos. S. Spurr, F. A. Sanborn, Nelson H. Seelye, William C. Newell, Fred Joy, D. N. Skillings, A. B. Coffin, and Alfred S. Hall with Selectmen Boutwell, Bradstreet, Taylor, Fitzgerald and Jones.

J. P. Boutwell, chairman of the Board of Selectmen was chosen chairman and Wm. C. Newell, secretary.

On motion of Mr. William B. French, the following committee of arrangements was appointed:

The chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Geo. L. Huntress, Arthur H. Russell, Preston Pond, Lewis Parkhurst, Francis J. O'Hara, Theodore C. Hurd, F. A. Sanborn, Fred Joy, S. W. Twombly, Nelson H. Seelye.

An hour before the time appointed for the services in the Town Hall the people commenced to arrive. Promptly at three o'clock Chairman Boutwell announced the first number in the order of service, the singing by the congregation of "Our God, Our Help." Sentences were read by Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Congregational Church; the invocatory prayer was made by Rev. John W. Suter, rector of the Episcopal Church; then followed the singing of the hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. W. Bicknell, Mr. W. H. Corliss, Mr. H. F. Bryant, Mrs. William Miller and Mrs. C. H. Mix.

Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the Baptist church, read selections from the Scriptures; after which "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung by the congregation. Prayer was offered by Rev. William I. Lawrance, pastor of the Unitarian church; the hymn "Abide With Me" was sung by a large chorus; at the conclusion of which Congressman McCall delivered a brief address. This was followed by the singing of "America" by the audience, and the benediction by Rev. H. J. Madden, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Seated on the stage were the above gentlemen, and Rev. Thomas S. Bruce, pastor of the Baptist Mission, and the Selectmen.

Through the entire day every store in town was closed with but one or two exceptions, and the day was, if anything, more quiet than on a Sunday.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50 c at Grover's drug store.

Samuel J. Elder To Preside.

Announcement that Gov. Charles H. Allen will be unable, on account of the condition of his health, to preside at the Republican state convention comes as a surprise. It was supposed that he had accepted the invitation, and there was general satisfaction in what was thought to be a happy arrangement. In this exigency, the date of the convention approaching, Chairman Goetting of the state committee has invited Samuel J. Elder to preside, and the invitation has been accepted. This may be regarded as a happy way out of the trouble. Mr. Elder is not widely known as a politician, but he has long had a leading place as a lawyer and advocate in our higher courts, and great popularity as a forceful and witty orator on festival occasions. Bringing him to the front of the political stage as chairman and principal orator at the state convention may signify that he purposes taking a more prominent part in public affairs than he has done hitherto. In that case, it may be predicted that he will be recognized quickly by the public as a man of large ability, brilliant and fascinating popular qualities and strong character, fit for any duty that may be intrusted to him.—[Boston Herald.

Car Should Be On Time.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Perhaps these few lines may reach the management of the Arlington-Winchester-Stoneham electrics and the complaint I make remedied. There is an express train that leaves the centre station at four minutes of one o'clock which a great many residents of Stoneham and the northern part of the town would like to take, but cannot depend on doing so because the electric is almost invariably late in reaching the centre. Some motormen appear to recognize the convenience, but there are others who manifest utter indifference. If the car was brought to the centre on time, it would be all right as then there would be ample opportunity to catch the train, but when it is two and three minutes late there is disapointment. What is wanted is that the Superintendent shall instruct the motorman to at least make an effort to have his car at the centre on the time advertised.

VICTIM.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Twombly's Chances.

Representative Twombly of Winchester is still advancing his desire for a renomination to the extent at least of denying that he has retired from the field. The senior member of the house kindly admits that the nomination belongs to the Medford end of the district, but he confesses he would like to go back if the Medford people allow it. He also says that the Winchester delegates will not take any hand in the matter.

While in Medford there is a considerable sentiment favorable to give him a third term, yet candidates are announcing themselves so as to be sure, if nothing else. They are Lewis, Lovering, Alderman Dodge and Councilman Williams. Indeed, besides being waiting candidates, they have already developed a contest which promises a split in the Medford delegation. Twombly's nomination is a strong possibility under the circumstances.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The congressional campaign next year will be based on the ex-President's last speech at Buffalo, in favor of lower duties on imports, and it will be a great battle.

The feelings of the people who will buy the New York Journal to read its eulogies on the late President cannot be very deep, for it has continually represented him for the last five years as a simple minded old man, merely a dummy.

There is no danger of the newspapers closing up, although they demand that everybody else should.

What is needed is more public spirit in public affairs. One great trouble in the country today is that citizens neglect their political duties and let the professional politicians run things. Even in this town it is very difficult to get the most desirable men to take office, simply because they are so taken up with their own business and social affairs that they are too selfish to give the town the benefit of their services even for a single term. Agitation would probably arouse their public spirit so that citizens would not resist a call to duty.

I am creditably informed that the majority of the Whitney heirs are willing to talk price for the entire property. Why not then call a town meeting this fall and appoint a committee to see what can be done? Manchester Field, Main, Bacon and Walnut street bridges, grading and fixing up of those streets, street across the pond, care of the ponds and other things are all being held up for a settlement of the first question. How much longer are we to fold our arms and wait for the spirit to move?

It has cost the town up to the present time about one hundred and fifty dollars for each building that has entered the sewer and apparently it is left to the owners own sweet will whether he will enter the sewer or continue his cesspool. It might be a good idea to interest the Sewer Board to report in print the location of all cesspools so that we might see where they are. Sewers are built for the benefit of the public health.

The building of the bridge will not be in it with the building of the path if things keep on. The committee is now two feet apart and the gap is widening. Too many cooks, some members say, too little Christianity, others. No doubt it will be a burning issue for some time to come with so many adding fuel to the flames.

The town lot on Eaton street looks exactly the same as it did last year, still a nuisance. The only kind of vote to pass about it is instructing the Selectmen to clear it off and bring it to grade and appropriating the money to do it. We have got to have more specific votes instead of leaving it to boards, if we want to rid the town of nuisances and impositions. There are altogether too many things hung up now.

Tom Lawson never wrote such a slop-over letter before as that of last Monday, when he not only urged but insisted that the America cup races should be abandoned.

Why cannot the Boston & Maine give a general time table similar to the N. Y. N. H. & H. folder instead of a separate one for each division and very awkward also?

How can citizens expect the reduction of water rates to take effect July first, when they voted to appropriate the receipts for the entire year based on old rates, and the new ones will reduce that all of a third? Put your thinking cap on.

Parish of the Epiphany.

Choir rehearsal this Friday evening at 7.30.

Sunday will be the fourth Sunday of the month, and there will be the usual celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 a. m.

Meetings of parish societies will begin with October. The first Wednesday afternoon service comes Oct. 2 at 5 p. m.

The Guild of St. Cross holds its first meeting of the season with the secretary, Miss Weeks, in Rangeley, Tuesday, Oct. 1. The business meeting will be promptly at 8 o'clock. There is business of importance in connection with the Shakespeare lecture by Mr. Clapp, to be given next month. The speaker for the first meeting is to be Professor Carl Siedhof.

Mr. Van Buren, who was formerly Archdeacon of Lowell, and is now in Porto Rico, in charge of our church in that island, will be in Winchester Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, and will give at the church a talk on Porto Rico, illustrated by the stereopticon.

October Smart Set.

The Smart Set for October opens with an amusing novelette entitled "The Career of Mrs. Osborne," by S. Carlton and Helen Milecete, the latter the author of "Miss Vandeleur, Pirate," one of the successes of last year. The present story narrates the adventures of two charming young women who escape from tiresome country relatives and take an apartments in London under the fictitious chaperonage of "Mrs. Osborne." Their escapades, their many devices to avoid detection and their final disposition of "Mrs. Osborne," are highly diverting.

Richard Le Gallienne contributes a masterly short story to the number.

Julien Gordon (Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger) a regular contributor to The Smart Set, writes for this issue a singular and piquant story. Edgar Saltus contributes a surprising tale, and Clinton Ross a bright story. Beside these features there are thirty or more other signed contributions of varied interest, notably the poems by Myrtle Reed and Charles G. D. Roberts. All in all, the number is the most notable and entertaining yet issued by the cleverest of the popular magazines.

In What Does True Happiness Consist.

The following was written and spoken by Mr. N. A. Richardson at a school exhibition more than 60 years ago, and when he was but 16 years of age. No doubt if he was to re-write it after his long life's experience, he would add to it and change it somewhat:

Perhaps from the hour when the morning stars first sang together, proclaiming peace on earth, and good will to man, up to the present time, there has been no other subject upon which the comprehensive genius of man has more widely differed. Now as we take into consideration the nature of man, connected with the varied faculties, propensities and sentiments which the great Author of his existence has implanted within his breast, let us be not confused at the diversity of views and acts which are manifest in the lives of our fellow men to secure happiness here, and salvation hereafter, but rather by our example and a wise exposition of truth, warn him to guard well the fatal rock whereon many a towering ambition has been dashed in pieces. The philosophers of antiquity have declared our passions to be the source of an equal amount of misery and happiness, and a more modern class have asserted our "passions alone are the source of all enjoyment." But in order that we may not violate the principles of true philosophy, so adverse to correct ethics as the above, let us pass them by as blots upon the escutcheon of true reasoning.

Let us draw our inference from the premises upon which we started, not from fanciful utopian visions, not from the skeptical ideas of men deeply inbued in every species of vice who wish to palliate their errors; but rather from axioms drawn from the experience of those who have rendered themselves a blessing or a curse in the past, rather than the prophecies of an uncertain future, the reward of fatalism. Then in what does true happiness consist? Go reanimate, and ask the soul of her who once rambled in the bowers of heavenly Eden, and who might forever satisfied her Heaven longings from that crystal fountain which eminated from God. Whether true happiness consists in listening to the wiles of that captivator of souls, or obeying the commands of the great Jehovah.

Go ask Lucifer his feelings as for the last time he cast a parting look from the portals of Heaven, and he will answer, to be happy, be good and virtuous. Read the page of history, inscribed with the moral weakness of intellectual power, seeking comfort, listening to the vagaries of Sybaline oracles, and the uncertain response of the delphic Apollo.

Muse upon the thrilling narrations of a Herodatus, of a Xenophon and the mind surfeits in the school of human depravity where wickedness has sought happiness. Embrace the rich strains of a poetic Homer or an enraptured Milton,—they give pleasure and life but not the joy of confirmed happiness.

Demosthenes, so eloquent to enliven or hush his hearers, Cicero with the splender of language and the charm to sentiment sought happiness in the glittering gems of oratory, but fell victims of treachery. Socrates, the classic masterpiece of moral greatness, serene, noble and benign in his life, sought happiness and found it in the bitter chalice.

Neither in the rigid enactments of Lycurgus or the mild institutions of Solon flow pure happiness; it comes from contentment and goodness, the fruit of patience and hope.

Alexander and Cæsar sought happiness in conquest, the sword of their ambition dripping with the blood of innocence that had crimsoned a hundred battle fields. Kingley purple and royal eagles could not save them. Alexander wept for other worlds to conquor, and Cæsar had his Brutus.

"More true joy Marcellus exiled feels,
Than Cæsar with a Senate at his heels."

Rome once so proud and happy in corruption—the mistress of the world, her glory departed. Only history and the buried moments of her greatness tell of her splendor and power. Vitelicus and Nero with brutal hearts, and the love of persecution to turn happiness into sorrow—mark her military grandeur with the blight that follows conquest and victory when executed by unprincipled rulers.

Did happiness exist beneath the veil of ignorance and superstition, which for fifteen centuries bound Europe in chaos and darkness. Did man find happiness in the heretical legends of the "Alcoran," or in following the advance of an impostor who promised a paradise of sensual pleasure. Go over the plains of Asia, bleached with the bones of millions, who with blind adoration joined a crusade of ignorance and fanaticism to seek a shadow of happiness.

Think of the misguided happiness of the deluded followers of pagan ceremonies who offer themselves victims to the advancing car, or the waters that swallow up the infant victim to superstition.

Behold modern civilized Europe, with all the philosophic and scientific knowledge possessed for rendering herself the theatre of peace and happiness, yet peace is unknown in the great struggle for conquest and victory.

France and England, joyous only when the arms of one has dimmed the luster of the other. Is England happy under her present political and religious policy. The flush of national pride glows upon her cheek, reviewing the trophies of Agincourt and Blenheim, which float from the rafters of her armories—then her ear is disturbed by the cry for bread of a hungry populace clamoring at the gates of the capitol, demanding of Parliament their long with held rights. Has the "Sea girt isle," yet received from the hands of Cromwell the promised fruition of freedom and happiness; or has it beheld the swords of his stern warriors unsheathed in the name of liberty, and returned to their scabbards in the name of a tryant.

If you would see those who sought in vain for empty happiness, go wander in the vaulted halls of Westminster Abbey, where lie in mournful silence entombed in marble, the long line of Plantagenets, Tudors and Stuarts divested of the stars and garters, hallow emblems of their primeval influence. There sleep the lion hearted Richard, the bloody Mary, the haughty Elizabeth and the unfortunate Charles, alike bound in the icy fetters of death. Could their ashes speak, they would cry, unhappy," uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." There repose the dust of the eighty princesses of the blood, who fell in the wars of the "White and Red roses" of York and Lancaster. Once so proud and kingly, seeking happiness in the ruffled path of conflict. If you would see an example of the absence of peace and happiness upon a nation's morals and humane sensibilities, go to revolutionary France, a volcano, upturning all Europe, where under the guise of liberty she ran ankle deep in Bourbon blood; where such political infidels as Robespierre, Marat and Dante with brutal hands, murderous hearts, and impious voices, shouted the song of liberty, in halls and streets where freedom and innocence begged for protection; desecrating the altar of God as necessary to strengthen and maintain selfish government.

Ask the decrepit veterans who followed the eagles of Napoleon, if they were happy in their marches and triumphs, or only bedizened with the din of war. Restore to life him, at the touch of whose wand, crowned heads turned pale, ask him if all the glory and victory which inspired and cheered on his imperial eagles on Marengo's field, could atone for the carnage of that fitful day. If the blazing sun of Austerlitz, which warmed his insatiable brain, could make happy the wounded and dying of that terrible conflict. Question his sentiments of happiness when despair chilled his hopes in view of a Russian winter. Listen to his dreamings in the kremlin of all the Czars,—of his ambition to grasp empires and build a throne upon the fragments of liberty—trace his retreating footsteps, steeled with a belief in destiny, to rule the world; up to Leipsic, where the fates proclaimed "the conquering hero must be conquered." How inscrutable are the paths of fortune, often how wise the decrees of providence. But for the propitious sun that gleamed on the field of Waterloo you and I might have been cringing at the footstool of usurped power. Well might Wellington sigh, "oh for Blucher or night." Oh for the "happiness" be felt, when the Prussian drum beats and the bugle strains foretold the coming aid. But alas, he at whose bidding the moral universe bowed its head in awed submission, he whose legions ravaged the fairest portions of Europe, causing her sons to drink deep in the cup of human misery, he who aspired to universal dominion, was destined to close the eve of his eventful days on "Helenas lonely rock."

"Leaving a villains name on the scroll of fame."
"Linked to no virtues, but a thousand crimes."

Still with all this bitterness has the world produced no sweetness; yet it can show a constellation of good and great names to adorn and harmonize life, whose pure zeal and unselfish example hath lit up the moral and religious world, whose personality and goodness have wrought a life picture of exquisite happiness to reflect high motive and principle.

The names of Wickliffe, Luther, Melancthon and Calvin are engraved upon the christian heart, enduring as time. Knox, Howard, Wilberforce, Scot, Brainard and Payson are sealed to virtuous hearts, men whose deeds are examples, whose words are wisdom, who lived to elevate man as a social being and fit him to enjoy that bright sunshine where God reigns kir of nations. Then if the result of these lives be not happiness, the world affords but little comfort to man. The charm of life is largely a bubble that floats away when approached by reality; its imagery is fictitious, its substance changeable only when governed by high and noble purpose that exalts life and fills the soul with hope. The eye often ravishes what the heart rejects when realized.

In life sorrow and happiness are so blended that joy pure and undivided is hoped for in eternal life to come. Man when traced in his pursuits of earthly pleasure, is often an example of human folly and inconsistency—when in the full possession of millions, or world wide fame the retrograde of fortune, or the monster death, receives his commission—wealth, fame and life ends in "Here he lies."

Fraudulent Use of U. S. Mails.

The following editorial was taken from the New York Morning Telegraph, and is of interest to the readers of the STAR, who read of this case recently in the Boston papers under big and startling headlines:

Something of slight interest is excited by the arrest of a young Harvard student for using the mails with intent to defraud. His offence, while it may be regarded as criminal by the Postoffice Department officials, really looks to be nothing more than an excellent method of enriching others while enriching himself. The fraudulent use of the mails, charged by the postoffice inspector, seems to have consisted of the insertion of an advertisement in a number of newspapers and the receipt of answers thereto.

"Any boy can make $10 to $20 a week by addressing ——— Company, with fifteen cents enclosed in letter."

To answer the Harvard student sent a formula for making mucilage and a few directions as to how to place it on the market. Just wherein the fraud lies is hard to discover. This young man of Harvard may have been a trifle optimistic in his estimate of the returns per week, but there are certainly many men who make at least twenty dollars a week making and selling mucilage, and the advertiser may not have overdrawn the prospects of trade in the slightest. Really the Postoffice Department seems to be overlooking tigers and elephants in hunting snipe and railbirds. A larger use of soft-nose big game bullets and a more discriminating use of number twelve shot in sixteen gauge guns would entitle them to something of sympathy. Spreading throughout the land far and wide are to be noted advertisements bearing evidences of fraud in every line of type. One Neeley, of Havana, is as yet unconvicted; from a dozen telegraph stations in New Jersey green goods literature is being sent to every State in the Union, and not a newspaper in the West but is printing columns of advertisements of oil fields from which not enough crude petroleum will ever be taken to spoil the taste of a salad. Noting these wild creatures of bulk skulking in the underbrush, why is it necessary to flush this puny partridge of the fields and knock out his feathers with both barrels? And, moreover, only a bad case is made against him. His formula may have been good and the mucilage made therefrom of excellent quality. Moreover, it might be sold in such fashion as to net $10 a week. If ten dollars a year be netted from the investments being made through mailed advertisements in those oil fields it will excite the wonder and dismay of the promoters.

When the grand jury suspended this case last week, it was noticed that the big headlines were absent from the Boston papers. They dislike to spoil a good story, even when fair play and justice are at stake.

An Important Decision About Taxes.

Massachusetts statutes permit assessors to "doom" citizens who do not bring in lists of their personal property. In other words, if a man does not give the assessors a written statement of the value of such property they can tax him for whatever they think he is worth. The supreme court has recently been asked to say that the law is unconstitutional, on the ground that the citizen is deprived of an opportunity to be heard on the matter.

The court refuses to take this view of the matter. Assessors by public notice call upon the citizens to bring in their property lists. The court holds that gives them the opportunity "to be heard" which the constitution guarantees. If a man refuses to avail himself of this opportunity he must hold his peace and pay what the assessors guess he ought to contribute for the public use.—[Cambridge Chronicle.

Bird-Shot For Tiger.

No use to hunt tigers with bird-shot. It doesn't hurt the tiger any and it's awfully risky for you.

Consumption is a tiger among diseases. It is stealthy—but once started it rapidly eats up the flesh and destroys the life. No use to go hunting it with ordinary food and medicine. That's only bird-shot. It still advances. Good heavy charges of Scott's Emulsion will stop the advance. The disease feels that.

Scott's Emulsion makes the body strong to resist. It soothes and toughens the lungs and sustains the strength until the disease wears itself out.

THE BROWN-TAIL

Forestry Association Sounds the Alarm and Tells What to do.

Property owners in the towns around Boston have just discovered that their trees and shrubs are being attacked now for the second time this year by the caterpillars of the all-devouring brown-tail moth. This pest is comparatively new to us, having been in the country only a few years, and until last year the gypsy moth committee of the State Board of Agriculture fought the pest in the metropolitan district. Hence property owners see the swarms of caterpillars eating their trees and do not know what to do.

In an interview the secretary of the Massachusetts Forestry Association, J. Woodward Manning, who is a horticultural expert and familiar with the caterpillar in question, says that now is the very time to fight the worms, especially on fruit trees. The brown-tail prefers to feed on the foliage of the pear, but will thrive on the peach, apple, plum, cherry, quince and, in fact, on any fruit tree, or when there is not enough of this kind of food at hand it will eat with avidity any shade or ornamental tree. If the caterpillars are allowed to eat the foliage at this particular period of the year the fruit will be affected inasmuch as a tree with diseases or defective leaves cannot mature good fruit. The future growth of the tree, whether it be fruit or shade, will also be seriously affected if it is not permitted to properly ripen its foliage.

Unless this pest is checked promptly it will result in the destruction of the orchards in this vicinity. It every individual who owns a tree will at once take pains to examine it with a veiw to discovering the caterpillars and will then employ the means suggested by Mr. Manning he will not only save his tree but will be doing the community a service by thus helping to check the evil. Just now the eggs which were laid in July have hatched out into a brood of small caterpillars.

They feed upon leaves during the day and retreat into a web at night. These webs are now composed of a thickly matted white tissue partially surrounding a bunch of leaves at the end of branches.

Each web protects several hundred caterpillars, so that by cutting off these tips bearing the webs and burning them promptly, a great many birds may be killed with a single stone, so to speak.

This work should be done during this week or before the caterpillars have extended over the entire tree. What can be done now with little expense or trouble may save thousands of dollars to the community later on.

Provided that the insect has spread out over the tree, spraying should be resorted to. For this purpose use paris green in the proportion of a spoonful to a pail of water, or arsenate of lead in proportion of one pound to twenty gallons of water. Either of these sprays will kill the feeding caterpillars.

For cutting off the webs the handiest tool is a pole pruner, which can be bought in the market from six to ten feet in length and costing from 75 cents to one dollar. This tool can be worked from the ground on the average fruit tree while with the aid of a ladder or by climbing the outermost tips of large shade trees can be reached and cut.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The board of directors met Monday evening for the first time since the vacation season. In the absence of Mr. Hale, Mr. Harrison Parker presided. Some important votes were passed in reference to evening classes for the season which opens with October.

The special committee on bathroom improvements were authorized to go ahead at once with plans as reported. This will give the Associction three good shower baths instead of one poor one. New and well constructed lavatories and higher pressure of water for all. It was also voted to put a telephone into the office giving local and suburban service. It is now in and ready for use. The number is 71-2.

The annual prospectus will be out early next week. It will be a very attractive booklet. Will have the full winter's programme outlined showing what is offered in the various lines to the young men of Winchester and adjoining towns. The busiest season in the history of the Association is expected. Join now at the very outset, any time now and your ticket will be dated October 1, 1902.

Committee meetings are being held nearly every night. New men are becoming interested for what they can do others, and others for what they can get. Both are wanted and needed.

The fifteen boys who attended Camp Durrell this summer met on Wednesday afternoon and organized the "Camp Durrell Brotherhood," an organization for mutual helpfulness and for the study of the Life of Christ. It will hold weekly meetings.

The meetings for men on Sunday afternoons will begin next Sunday, when Dr. Scudder of Woburn will begin a series of four addresses. A string orchestra will play at all these meetings. Large attendances are expected. It is the desire to make these meetings the most popular place in town on Sunday afternoons for men.

The Association basket ball team has been honored with an invitation to go to Brockton during the "Great Fair" and play an exhibition game with the Brockton Association team in the open air. The invitation was accepted in a hurry.

The opening reception to young men will be held on Thursday evening October 3. All young men in Winchester are invited to this reception.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

The long delayed re-building of Washington street has begun: a great mistake that it has not been widened to feet; little or no damage would have been asked. Crooked and narrow in places, soon it will have to be widened.

How much travel is there over Highland avenue south of Madison avenue? Speculation prompted its building.

What has been done about cleaning up the town ledge lot? Some of the near-by owners of land are uneasy and want to sell their land.

What earthly use are the Middlesex Fells when the great mass of outside people do not know how to get to them, and if they do get there do not know how to get out again. More signs of where the paths lead to is what is wanted.

The Sewer Dept. has shown good sense in not laying the sewer pipes north from Lebanon street, as no one would use it up to Cross street.

Washington street, formerly "Richardson's Row," has a more interesting history than any street in the town. One hundred and fifty years ago, when the rest of South Woburn was dim and dull, Richardson Row was quite well settled, and the side hill above the avenue had several houses, long gone to decay. On the Joseph Stone estate stood an Indian fort, into which the inhabitants took refuge from the tomahawk of the red man.

Very many years ago, a great and prominent farm, with numerous outbuildings existed above the junction of the avenue and Mt. Vernon street. Where the Bacon estate is, was a large orchard known for its excellent fruit. Still further north was the large farm of "Ben" Richardson, who owned many acres, also several pews in the meeting house on Woburn Common, and one-third of the school house near the common, on the Montvale road. He had several daughters who were of a romping nature.

A great deal has been written about the location of the Edward Converse house which was said to have stood in the rear of the Brown and Stanton block. This is a mistake; there is no evidence that it stood there. It has even been claimed that the old Abel Richardson house was first the Converse house. This too is an error. The Abel Richardson house, torn down in the forties, was far more modern. A part of its frame went into the Joseph Hunnewell house, built on the Blanchard and Kendall lumber yard grounds.

Two or three rich men in town have died within a short time who left very large amounts which they were not taxed for; if they went to heaven were they doomed in their taxes? Many poor men in town pay taxes upon what they never owned and never will, free and clear.

Socialists wish to divide and hold all property in common; anarchists wish for no government and every one for himself, and the devil for them all.

Good, better, best, but "GOOD" Pure Soap stands the test. 1

Prior to the assault upon Mr. McKinley at Buffalo three presidents of the United States had been attacked while in office with murderous intent. Of these three the first, Andrew Jackson, escaped unharmed, while the other two, Lincoln and Garfield, died from wounds inflicted by their assailants.

On the afternoon of Jan. 30, 1835, President Jackson was in the capitol at Washington in attendance upon the funeral of Hon. Warren R. Davis, deceased member of congress from South Carolina. As the president, with Secretary Woodbury of the treasury on his arm, was retiring from the rotunda to reach his carriage at the steps of the portico he was confronted by Richard Lawrence, who stepped from behind one of the columns and pointed a pistol at the president, who was less than ten feet away. The percussion cap exploded with such a noise that several witnesses supposed the pistol had fired. On the instant Lawrence dropped the pistol and transferred another from his left hand to his right. He pointed the second pistol at the president and pulled the trigger, but again the cap exploded without discharging the pistol just as Mr. Jackson, with upraised cane, made for his assailant. Lawrence, however, was knocked down and secured by others before the president could reach him.

That Mr. Jackson was uninjured by the attack upon him was little short of marvelous, and his escape was discussed at the time by many in a tone of superstitious awe. Tests were made with the pistols of Lawrence after his attempt, and they were found to be an elegant pair in most excellent order and loaded with powder and ball almost to the muzzle. The powder was of the highest quality, and the percussion caps found on his premises when tested proved to be of the very best of that time. In fact, the two pistols, with new caps taken from Lawrence's box, were fired at the first attempt in each case by the officers who tested them.

Richard Lawrence was a painter and had a shop in a thickly settled part of Washington. He was about thirty-five years of age and, though small in stature, was a handsome man. His father, an Englishman, had died some years before, but young Lawrence had a sister and other relatives living in Washington. At the trial it was shown that Lawrence was insane, that he had been unbalanced mentally for about two years. In justification of his act he claimed at his trial that President Jackson owed him money; in fact, that the president was his clerk and was withholding money that belonged to him. He also claimed to be king of England and America and made other wild assertions, some of which it was shown he had been making for a year or more before his attempt to kill the president.

Lawrence was adjudged insane and was sent to an asylum, where he remained an inmate for upward of thirty years, when he died.

Partisan feeling was running high at that time, and at first many, including the president himself, thought that Lawrence was the tool of others. So great was the excitement produced by the affair that some of Jackson's political opponents, including Clay, Calhoun and Poindexter, were in the frenzy of the moment suspected of having conspired to get rid of the president, but it was soon discovered that this suspicion was unwarranted and unjust, and that the crime was hatched and matured in the brain of a lunatic.

Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth president of the United States, was shot while sitting in a box in Ford's theater in Washington on the night of Friday, April 14, 1865, by John Wilkes Booth, an actor.

Washington was celebrating the surrender of Lee at Appomattox and the termination of the war of the rebellion. The streets of the capital for days had ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN BY JOHN WILKES BOOTH.

[At Ford's theater, Washington, April 14, 1865.]

resounded with the music of bands. The inhabitants were hoarse with cheering.

At about 8 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln started for the carriage. As soon as they were seated in the carriage the president gave orders to the coachman to drive around to the home of Senator Harris for Miss Harris. A few minutes later the presidential party of four persons—the president and Mrs. Lincoln, Miss Harris and Mr. Rathbone of Albany, stepson of Senator Harris—arrived at the theater and entered the front and left hand upper private box.

The play, "The American Cousin," was being presented by Laura Keene, the famous actress. From the story of that great crime as told in the life of Lincoln by John Hay and John G. Nicolay the following is taken:

> The president had been detained by visitors, and the play had made some progress when he arrived. When he appeared in his box, the band struck up "Hail to the Chief," the actors ceased playing and the audience rose, cheering tumultuously. The president bowed in acknowledgment of this greeting, and the play went on.
>
> The moon rose that night at 10 o'clock. A few minutes before that hour Booth called one of the underlings of the theater to the back door and left him there holding his horse. He then went to a saloon near by, took a drink of brandy and, entering the theater, passed rapidly through the crowd in rear of the dress circle and made his way to the passage leading to the president's box.
> He showed a card to a servant in attendance and was allowed to pass in. He entered noiselessly and, turning, fastened the door with the bar he had previously made ready without disturbing any of the occupants of the box, between whom and himself there yet remained the slight partition of the door, through which he had bored the hole.
>
> The murderer seemed to himself, it was afterward thought, to be taking part in a play. Partisan hate and the fumes of brandy had for weeks kept his brain in a morbid state. He paused as if expecting applause.
>
> Holding a pistol in one hand and a knife in the other, he opened the box door, put the pistol to the president's head and fired. Dropping the weapon, he took the knife in his right hand, and when Major Rathbone sprang to seize him he struck savagely at him. Major Rathbone received the blow on his left arm, suffering a wide and deep wound.
> Booth, rushing forward, then placed his left hand on the railing of the box and vaulted lightly over to the stage. It was a high leap, but nothing to such a trained athlete. He was in the habit of introducing what actors call sensational leaps in his plays.
> He would have got safely away but for his spur catching in the folds of the Union flag with which the front of the box was draped. He fell on the stage, the torn flag trailing on his spur, but instantly arose as if he had received no hurt, though in fact the fall had broken his leg.
> He turned to the audience, brandishing his dripping knife and shouting the state motto of Virginia, "Sic Semper Tyrannis," and fled rapidly across the stage and out of sight.

The wounded president was borne to the house of Mr. Petersen, across the street from the theater, where everything within the powers of surgery and medicine was done to save his life.

It was at 7:22 Saturday morning, April 15, that President Lincoln breathed his last, closing his eyes as if falling asleep, his features bearing the repose of perfect serenity. There was no indication of pain and only the gradual cessation of his respiration to show that the end had come. The Rev. Dr. Gurley, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, knelt at the bedside and offered fervent prayer, again voicing his grief a moment later in the adjoining parlor, where there were waiting Mrs. Lincoln, Captain Robert T. Lincoln and Mr. John Hay, the private secretary.

John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of the president, made good his escape. A reward of $50,000 was offered for his apprehension and $25,000 for each of his accomplices.

It was on Thursday, April 27, that the news came of the death of Booth while trying to escape from a burning barn near Port Royal, Va., where he and his accomplice, Herold, had been brought to bay by a party of troops under command of Lieutenant Edward Doughty. Booth was shot by Sergeant Boston Corbett and lived two hours. Herold was arrested.

The conspirators who were responsible for the assassination were tried by court martial at Washington, and four—namely, Payne, Herold, Atzerodt and Mrs. Surratt—were hanged. The stage carpenter at Ford's theater who turned out the lights to facilitate the escape of Booth, the man who held his horse at the stage entrance and Dr. Mudd, who set the limb which Booth broke in jumping from the box, were sent to prison for long terms.

At almost precisely the time the president was shot an attempt was made to assassinate Secretary Seward, who was lying ill in his home. The would be assassin, one of those in the plot with Booth, the assassin of Lincoln, entered the secretary's house by a subterfuge, fought his way to the room of the invalid and stabbed him as he lay in his bed. He then escaped from the house.

James A. Garfield, the twentieth president of the United States, was shot while in the Pennsylvania railroad station in Washington on the morning of Saturday, July 2, 1881. He had just entered the station, accompanied by James G. Blaine, secretary of state in his cabinet, to take the train for Long Branch.

As they entered the street door of the station Charles Jules Guiteau stood waiting near the center of the women's reception room. The president and Mr. Blaine walked through the room, while the assassin circled about until he was behind them. He drew a revolver and fired. No one seemed to realize what had happened. The president half turned, with a bullet through his left shoulder. An instant later Guiteau fired again. This time the bullet struck Mr. Garfield in the back, over the left kidney. He staggered forward, sank to his knees and then pitched to the floor.

Mr. Parks, the ticket agent, saw the shooting through the window of his office and as the second shot was fired ran out and grabbed Guiteau as he dodged to get into the street. He held him until a policeman ran up. In his hand Guiteau waved a letter, which he shouted was for General Sherman and explained everything.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT M'KINLEY BY CZOLGOSZ.
[At Buffalo, Sept. 5, 1901.]

The president himself was the first to realize his condition. In the station, after Dr. Townsend had made a hasty examination, he asked his opinion. The physician replied that he did not consider the wound serious.

"I thank you, doctor," said the president, "but I am a dead man."

All that day the president talked calmly and courteously to those about him. He was suffering great pain and was partially under the influence of opiates. In the evening the course of the ball was traced. It was found to have fractured the eleventh rib and penetrated the liver. It was seen then that the condition of the president was exceedingly serious. It was believed that he could not live beyond midnight. The next day Mr. Garfield was worse, and from that time, during the three months that life lasted, he improved and failed intermittently.

For a time his physicians were hopeful, and the bulletins for a period led the public to believe that the president would resume his duties, but when the torrid weather of midsummer came the patient failed perceptibly, and, although it was done at great hazard, he was removed on Sept. 6, 1881, by a special train to Elberon, N. J. The invigorating sea breezes seemed at first to have a beneficial effect, but on Sept. 15 unmistakable symptoms of blood poisoning were discovered, and on the 19th, after a few hours of unconsciousness, he died.

Charles J. Guiteau, who had fired the pistol at the railroad station, had been promptly seized and taken into custody. He had been a persistent but unsuccessful applicant for an appointment to office, first as minister to Austria and then as consul general at Paris. He described himself as a lawyer, a politician and a theologian.

Guiteau was sentenced to be hanged after a sensational trial, in which his sanity was one of the main points involved. The leading insanity experts in the country testified. The sentence of the court was carried out, although by many it was believed Guiteau was crazy.

How New Zealand Punishes Crime.

New Zealand fits punishment to crime more nearly than most countries. Thus, at Wanganui, when certain sawyers troubled their neighbors by their drunken freaks, the delinquents were made to pay the fines imposed in such labor as they were accustomed to and were set to saw wood with which to build a prison. The result was that, rather than transgress again, they vanished from the locality as soon as the edifice was complete.

How to Make Hop Tonic.

This is more suitable for a spring tonic, but is a good homemade beer. Put into a deep boiler one pound of hops, a handful of thoroughwort, a small bunch of dandelion root and two gallons of water. Boil for one hour, then strain. When lukewarm, add four pounds of sugar and one cake of yeast dissolved in lukewarm water. Pour into a crock and let work, then put into bottles and cork tightly and set in a cool place. Do not drink too much of this at a time. A small glass three times a day for a tonic is sufficient.

How to Make Cream Puffs.

One-half cupful of butter melted in one cupful of hot water. Put in a small tin pan on the stove to boil. Stir in one cupful of sifted flour while boiling; take off and let cool. When cold, stir in three eggs, one at a time, without beating them. Drop on buttered tins and bake in a hot oven 20 or 30 minutes. Filling, one cupful of milk, one egg and one-half cupful of sugar. Thicken with cornstarch and flavor with vanilla.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Grover.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON XII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 22.

Text of the Lesson, Prov. xxiii, 29-35. Memory Verses, 26-31—Golden Text, Prov. xx, 1—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

29. "Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes?" The committee have again asked us to meditate upon this familiar portion as a temperance lesson, which is certainly a better selection for such a lesson than the story of the new earth which they suggested as a temperance topic last quarter. The only cure for intemperance, which is self indulgence, is to be found in self control which can be accomplished in us only by the Lord Jesus Christ, who is able to subdue all things unto Himself (Phil. iii, 21). In this lesson, as in all lessons on sin, we may see not only the sinner, but the sinner's substitute, Him who, though He knew no sin, yet was made sin for us (II Cor. v, 21). We know that the drunkards and also some other sinners are apt to have quite a full share of the six forms of suffering here enumerated, and no one can deliver but He who was a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief, who so patiently endured the contentions and babblings of His enemies, who was wounded for our transgressions and who after His weeping in Gethsemane must also have had redness of eyes. See Him, O sinner, as the one who loves you as you were never loved by even father or mother or dearest on earth, great as their love may have been, for He suffered before God for your sins and offers you full salvation from the consequences of your sins and deliverance from the power of them if you will only receive Him (Isa. liii, 5, 6; Heb. v, 7; I Thess. i, 10; Math. i, 21; I John i, 9; Jude 24).

30. "They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine." These are the people who experience the sorrows of verse 29, but let wine suggest all the pleasures this world can offer, and they are very many of their kind. A great king tried them all and found them all vanity and vexation of spirit (Eccl. ii, 1-11), and what can the man do that cometh after the king? But see what the same king learned to say: "Thy love is better than wine. We will be glad and rejoice in Thee. We will remember Thy love more than wine" (Song i, 2, 4).

31. "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright." Commands to an unsaved person to do right are only provoking, for all his nature is against the right; the carnal mind is enmity against God, is not subject to His law and cannot be (Rom. viii, 7). God gave no law to Israel till He had redeemed them from Egypt. The one only thing He asks the sinner to do is to accept His salvation, receive His Son. Then, and only then, does He give commands to be obeyed. Notice in verses 15 and 26 and so often in this book the command is to "My Son," and we are not sons of God till we receive His Son as our Saviour (John i, 12; I John v, 12). Having become children of God and partakers of the divine nature (II Pet. i, 4), we are to let Him possess our whole being, look through our eyes, hear with our ears, work with our hands, walk with our feet, speak by our mouths. In this way He will not look where He should not, and when tempted we must, like sinking Simon, cry, "Lord, save me!"

32. "At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." There is a last of all things sinful; they come to an end, and then there is the eternal reaping. Those who sow to the flesh reap corruption, and those who sow the wind reap the whirlwind (Gal. vi, 8; Hos. viii, 7). There may come a time when Prov. i, 24-31, shall be the experience of many, when because they would not listen to God they shall call, but He will not answer, and finally they shall have to hear Him say, "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels!" (Math. xxv, 41.) In the case of those who are redeemed by His precious blood, in whom He has come to live, the last on earth is only a step to greater glory, to die is gain, to depart and be with Christ is very far better (Phil. i, 21, 23).

33. "Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things." Woman represents the worst as well as the best in Scripture. The true church is the bride of Christ and is espoused as a chaste virgin to Christ, while the false church is compared to a harlot (Rev. xix and xvii and II Cor. xi, 2). If drunken with wine, we behold the evil, but if filled with the Spirit we shall see Jesus only (Eph. v, 18). The heart is the great center from which evil or good proceeds. See in this chapter verses 15, 17, 19, and then verse 26 as the only way to be right.

34. "Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast." This certainly suggests the saying of David, "Truly as the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth there is but a step between me and death" (I Sam. xx, 3). Inasmuch as life in this mortal body is so uncertain how foolish it is to continue a moment longer in sin when God is beseeching us to be reconciled to Him and to accept the redemption which He has so fully provided and which He bestows so freely! (Isa. i, 18; Math. xi, 28; II Cor. v, 20; Rom. iii, 24.) The God in whose hand our breath is and whose are all our ways (Dan. v, 23) is very gracious. He is slow to anger and not willing that any should perish (II Pet. iii, 9), but He will by no means clear the guilty unless they accept Him.

35. "They have stricken me, I was not sick; they have beaten me, I felt it not. When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again." Just as before the deluge, so now. The imagination of the thoughts of the heart of man is only evil continually (Gen. vi, 5). They regard not the work of the Lord, neither consider the operation of His hands (Isa. v, 12). They become dead or indifferent to all the Lord's pleadings, and their one thought is how to gratify their desires. A father has been known to become so inhuman as to take his children's clothing with which to obtain that which his cravings desired. A mother may forget, nature may fail. Man left to himself is only a beast (Ps. xlix, 12), and often worse than many; his great thought is himself and how to gratify himself. When Christ takes possession of a heart, He who when on earth pleased not Himself (Rom. xv, 3) will live again in that soul His own life, making the person more and more like Himself until they awake in His likeness (II Cor. iii, 18; Ps. xvii, 15).

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by Young & Brown.

JAYNES' INSECT POWDER.

MESSRS. JAYNES & CO., BOSTON. ELKHART, ILL.

"Gentlemen—Having used your Insect Powder successfully I desire to convey to you my heartielt gratitude for the production of such a wonderful exterminator of horrible insects of all kinds, such as bed bugs and roaches.

"I have tried all kinds of remedies recommended by druggists in many different countries, such as magnetic powder, gasolene, corrosive sublimate and many poisons, and none were ever successful in killing them.

"I had an engagement at the Point of Pines, Revere Beach, last summer and engaged a colored boy to come to Elkhart and live with me.

"On my return home the house was completely running over with roaches and bed bugs. My Boston boy remarked, 'Mr. Levy, there is only one place in America where you can purchase a positive remedy to get rid of these tortures and that is at Jaynes' Drug Store in Boston.' I sent for one pound and it promptly came. I was dumfounded at the rate that these horrible insects were killed. The effect was instantaneous.

"I am more than happy to have found a real reliable and positive remedy to kill roaches and bugs, and the whole public should be grateful to Jaynes & Co. Yours truly,

JULES LEVY."

WILL REGENERATE FOUL AIR

Novel and Important Invention of Two French Scientists.

It appears from an article in a recent number of La Nature that some time last year Desgres and Balthazard called attention to a substance which is used in dyeing and which in contact with water becomes decomposed into oxygen and soda. The substance is called binoxide of sodium, and in some experiments performed at the Faculty of Medicine lately it was shown that animals could be kept alive for hours in closed vessels by regenerating the exhausted air with this chemical. This led to the discovery that by throwing binoxide of sodium in small quantities into water in a hermetically sealed vessel a sufficient quantity of oxygen was disengaged for respiration, while the soda simultaneously formed fixed the expired carbonic acid of the air, and that at the same time a destruction by oxidation of the toxins in the gas from the lungs took place.

Following up these discoveries, Messrs. Desgres and Balthazard have succeeded in devising an apparatus that will insure life in a medium otherwise irrespirable, in mephitic gases as well as in water, and, though this has been done by a number of devices, in all of them it has been necessary after a short time, say an hour, to employ a pump to re-enforce them with air. But in the arrangement of the above named inventors the appliance itself suffices, for it manufactures new air as it is needed without the intervention of any auxiliary machinery.

The apparatus is composed of three distinct parts combined into one. There is a prismatic steel box to contain and distribute the binoxide of sodium as it may be required, which is divided into compartments by ten horizontal shelves, one above the other. Each of these carries a supply of the chemical. With them there is connected a clockwork movement which causes each one to tilt in succession at definite intervals of time. This causes the contents to fall into a cubical steel box containing water, and a small fan actuated by an electric motor operated by accumulators produces a continuous circulation of the vitiated and regenerated air in the apparatus and in the small space inclosing the subject. As the air becomes somewhat heated in the process of its regeneration it is made to pass in its exit through a refrigeratory, which reduces it to its normal temperature.

MISS MABEL McKIM.

The Kitson Oil Lamp.

The Kitson oil lamp, which seems to be meeting with some favor in London, Portland place being now lighted by means of it, uses petroleum stored in cylinders partly filled with air under 40 or 50 pounds pressure. From the cylinder a narrow bore copper pipe is carried to a vaporizing tube over the burners. When the cock is opened and the burner lighted, the oil and air which are forced by the pressure into the heated vaporizer are vaporized and are then burned as a gas for heating an ordinary incandescent mantle—like the Welsbach, for instance. The makers claim that the Kitson lamp is for equal candle power the cheapest form of illumination known.

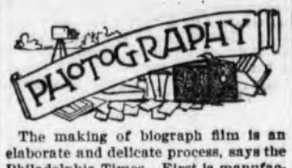

The Camphor Tree.

The camphor tree (Cinnamomum camphora) is an evergreen, a member of the laurel family, belonging to the same genus as the tree whose bark furnishes the spice called cinnamon, and is related to the bay and to the sassafras of the United States. Of symmetrical proportions, it is one of the noblest objects in the forests of eastern subtropical Asia. In its native habitat it attains gigantic dimensions, notably in girth of trunk, some specimens measuring 10 to 15 feet in diameter. It is said they have been known to reach as much as 20 feet, and they may be 60 to over 100 feet high, and live to a great age.

As a rule, they rise 20 or 30 feet without limbs and then branch out in all directions, becoming a mass of splendid and luxuriant foliage. Their leaves, broadly lanceolate in form, are of a light green color, smooth and shining above and whitish or glaucous on the undersurface. Small white or greenish white flowers are borne from February to April and by October ripen into berrylike, one seeded fruits about three-eighths of an inch in diameter.—Good Words.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for burns, boils, piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Grover.

The making of biograph film is an elaborate and delicate process, says the Philadelphia Times. First is manufactured a celluloid ribbon of the required width and transparency, coated on one side only to an invariable thickness of one-thousandth of an inch. It is sensitized in an immense dark room in an absolutely dustproof factory. The emulsion consists of a solution of bichloride of gold floating on great glass tables 100 feet in length.

When dried, the film is wound on spools in boxes, and no gleam of light must strike it until at the proper moment it is held behind the camera lens for one-seventieth part of a second every two inches of its entirety. Even then it must be guarded from stray beams until developed and fixed in the biograph factory.

Very Costly Camera.

During the sojourn of the sultan of Morocco in London an English firm made for him a camera at a cost of $10,500. It differed in no way from the ordinary quarter plate size (2¼ by 4¼) except that all the metal work was constructed of gold, including the screws and the holders for retaining the plates.

A Mammoth Plate.

A photographic plate 8 feet long by 4 feet 8 inches wide has recently been made. This plate, which is said to be the largest ever made, is to be used in making a photograph of St. Paul and Minneapolis from a balloon.

The Inquisitive Antelope.

An antelope is as curious as a woman. If the hunter will lie down in the grass and wave a red handkerchief, a band of antelope will keep circling around until within reasonable distance for a safe shot. After completing a circle the antelope halt suddenly and bring down one fore foot with a vigorous stamp on the ground, and at the same instant they make a sort of snort that sounds like a half whistle. That is the propitious moment for peppering them with rifle balls.

I learned this trick when a frontiersman came along and found me crawling for miles on the level prairie endeavoring to get a shot at one of the timid creatures. The man asked me if I thought I could get him. I answered: "Get him! I've got to get him. I'm out of meat." He then posted me about lying still and flirting with the handkerchief, and I found they liked that better than chasing, and I made an entry right there that an antelope possessed some of the characteristics of a woman.—Exchange.

Gold In California.

The Society of California Pioneers determined after careful investigation that Jan. 28, 1848, was the exact date of the discovery of gold in California by James W. Marshall. The gold was found in the rocky bed of the tail race of the Sutter sawmill at Coloma, on the south fork of the American river.

The highest clouds lie at 27,000 feet; Mount Everest is 29,002 feet. The highest recorded balloon ascent is 36,000 feet.

Women were first permitted to become employees in government offices in 1862.

ADVICE—MASCULINE.

While Cupid sways this mundane sphere
And men are only human,
She is most wise who won't appear
Too reasonable a woman.

Alack that fate ordained it so!
'Tis passing melancholy;
But naught that reason e'er can show
Is half so sweet as folly.

In arrant whims some witchcraft lies
That logic ever misses,
And common sense looks plain to eyes
That seek capricious blisses.

While unto every lover's fire
It adds a wealth of fuel
If she who doth his love inspire
Is sometimes rather cruel.

Know what you will, mesdames, but know
The acme of all knowledge
Is tact, albeit we cannot show
Its chair in any college.

Keep some small foibles—for I deem
You have them, being human—
And so be what you do not seem—
A reasonable woman.

A TROOPER'S SECRET

It Was Only Revealed After He Had Fallen.

Copyright, 1900, by Ervin Wardman.

Maybe you have served in the ranks and know all about it; but, if not, let me tell you that war develops strange things in men. In a company of 100 men you will find more love, romance and sorrow than you would hear of among 1,000 men at home. It was a comrade's pleasure and duty to share these things with a comrade. At home a man would not have talked of his love, his hopes and fears even to a brother. Down there in the enemy's country, in hut or tent or lying under the same blanket after the day's fight or march, man turned to man and whispered his secrets. It was because we marched together, fought together, ate together and the shadow of death covered us all alike.

You like a man who has shared your hardships; you love him when he has shared your dangers. So it was that one might sit down with the company roster before him and tell of those who had left wives behind them, and those who had left sweethearts, and those who had found correspondents and were mingling romance with war.

It was known, as if it were a family matter, that the orderly sergeant's wife had died since he left home, leaving four children motherless; that Private Hayes had quarreled with his sweetheart; that Corporal Johnson's farm was going to rack and ruin since he enlisted. We heard these things and a thousand others, and we stood always ready to congratulate or sympathize with each other. I have known the big sergeant to come rushing into a winter hut occupied by six men and wake them all up that he might read a letter from home telling that the baby actually had taken three whole steps all by himself. We were men as to war, women as to gossip, children as to trifles.

It was so with all of Company G except in one single instance. Trooper Haskins was a stranger among us when he enlisted. He continued to be a stranger to his last hour. When we sized him up, as men size up each other, we knew that he had some secret in his life which he did not care to lay bare to the world. One could see by the stoop of his shoulders, by the look in his eyes and by the wrinkles on his face that he had been hard hit and would suffer to the end.

As men we respected his secret and praised his courage in bearing up under his sorrows, but as soldiers we felt that his lack of confidence in us was an imputation. We stood ready to condole and sympathize, but he kept us at arm's length. We felt sorry for him at first that he received no letters—that there was not one single person in all the world to write a word of cheer—but his careless indifference soon provoked our indignation. We gave each other the gossip of country and village as we marched; we read each other's letters as we smoked at the campfire; we whispered our confidences in the darkness—all except Private Haskins. He had no friend. He had a comrade, but only in the sense that he shared the same fly tent and the same rations. When the comrade had failed to discover whether Haskins was married or single, divorced or a bachelor, a man who had been deeply wronged or a cynic—when he could get nothing whatever from him as to his past—he turned away from him and said to us:

"Boys, I can't make him out, and I'm not going to try any further. If he don't want to be one of us, let him slide."

We got down on Private Haskins to the extent that he was socially outlawed. That meant more than I can explain to you. We gave him credit for his soldierly qualities—and it was useless to deny that he was a brave man—but he was forced to live alone, as it were, in the midst of thousands. He noted every move made against him, and many of them must have hurt his feelings and added to his burdens, but no one ever heard him complain. I believe he secretly was glad of his isolation. It gave him time to think and meditate, and he would do this by the hour. We didn't misjudge the man, I am glad to recall, but we simply ostracized him in a social way, just as society crowds out the man who tramples on the conventionalities. On his part he must have felt that no words of sympathy from us could have made his case better, or he would have "chummed up" and been one of us.

By and by, after two or three battles, strange whispers were circulated about regarding Private Haskins. He courted death. He had gone down into the fray with shut teeth and flashing eyes and taken such chances that he was called a devil on one hand and a fool on the other.

Men who watched him closely denied that he was looking for promotion or a record. He was seeking to end it all on the battlefield. There was nothing more in life for him, and it would be better to die with saber in hand than to snuff out his own life like a coward. Our respect for the man increased, but yet he was still outlawed and we still carried a feeling of resentment against him.

One day, in the depths of the forest, while winter still held its grip on the land, I came across him lying at full length on the ground. He was moaning and weeping. For ten minutes he sobbed as a man does only when some great sorrow has wasted his strength, turned back his years and taken him back to childhood. Awed and frightened and wondering, I crept silently away and left him with his grief. Two hours later I met him to find that he had conquered himself. It seemed as if there was a new line of care in his face and that there was a new touch of silver in his hair, but he was not to betray his secret. He did not know that his struggle had been witnessed, and I was dumb as to what I had seen.

A week later Troop G was sent out on a scout and rode into a tight place. It was reported that all of us did our duty in the half hour's hot fighting, but there was only one hero. Even with the pistols flashing and the sabers whirling I watched Private Haskins as he waved his saber on high and thundered into the thick of the melee. He fought to kill and be killed, but death passed him by.

We whispered to each other that he was a hero, deserving of a medal of gold, and we esteemed and exalted him, but the circle did not open to let him in. He was not of us—he had not been for a year—and no act of his in battle could make him so. He knew it as well as we did, and he made no advance. He had our respect and admiration in the fullest, but he did not have and did not wish for our comradeship and sympathy. We knew that there are things which must lie buried in the human bosom forever and ever, no matter what the cost, but yet we resented it when our sympathy was refused.

It was two weeks after our fight when I was detailed on vedette duty with Private Haskins. We were to take the post together. In the winter camp behind us there was the hum of preparation for the spring campaign. In the quarters of the enemy, a dozen miles away, there was the same excitement. We rode to a post on the highway and dismounted under a tree. I remember that the sun shone warm, the buds were starting, and here and there a robin was raising his glad song. Little was said between us, and by and by Private Haskins fell into one of his moods.

From the corner of my eye I watched his pipe puff at longer intervals until it finally died out. He looked straight ahead of him across the field or the wall as his ears drank in the notes of the birds. He forgot that I was near. His thoughts went back to the old grief, and I saw the changes in his soul written on his face. There were joy and gladness; there were grief and pain; there were wavering and determination. At the end of a quarter of an hour he suddenly sobbed in his throat. Then he rose up and started across the field toward the wall.

"What is it, Haskins? What do you see? Hold on!" I called to him, but he never halted or turned his head.

"Come back!" I called. "A sharpshooter may be hiding behind the wall! Come back!"

I heard him gasping and sobbing as he pushed forward. I would have run after him and caught him, as one might a somnambulist who was approaching the edge of a precipice, but just then our horses reared and snorted and required my strongest efforts to prevent them from breaking away. When I could look around, the man was nearly at the wall. I was about to shout at him again, when he stopped, threw up his arms and sank down, and he was lying on his back on the frostbitten grass before I heard the report of the rifle which had slain him. Then a squad of cavalry dashed out and tried to capture me, and I went thundering up the road toward the reserve picket with bullets singing louder than the robins.

Half an hour later I was back with a squadron. We charged past the dead man on the grass and up to the stone wall, but no one was in sight. All that we saw was the peaceful farmhouse beyond; all that we heard were the voices of the birds.

The enemy had been to view the man they had slain. From one of his pockets, in searching for what might be worth carrying away, they had taken an old letter—a letter dated years before and in a woman's hand. They had read it, or at least a few lines of it. Then they had spread it out on his breast and left him with body unsearched, perhaps lifting their hats in reverence as they turned to ride away.

We saw the letter and lifted it up and realized that therein was the trooper's secret.

"Let no man read it!" commanded the captain. "It belonged to him. He is dead." And, holding it aloft in his hand, he touched the letter with a lighted match, and as the paper shriveled and curled and became ashes, to be carried away by the breeze, we uncovered our heads and said:

"It was his secret—his and God's!"—New York Press.

Peculiarities of Footpaths.

Footpaths are what roads are not, natural productions, just as the paths made by hares, deer and elephants are. No one really makes a footpath—that is, no one improves it. What is true of central Africa is true of England.

"The native paths," wrote Professor Drummond, "are the same in character all over Africa. Like the roads of the old Romans, they run straight on through everything—ridge and mountain and valley—never shying at obstacles nor anywhere turning aside to breathe. Yet within this general straightforwardness there is a singular eccentricity and indirectness in detail. Although the African footpath is, on the whole, a bee line, no fifty yards of it are ever straight. And the reason is not far to seek.

"If a stone is encountered, no native will ever think of removing it. Why should he? It is easier to walk around it. The next man who comes by will do the same. He knows that a hundred men are following him. He looks at the stone a moment, and it might be unearthed and tossed aside; but, no, he holds on his way. It would no more occur to him that that stone is a displaceable object than that felspar belongs to the orthoclase variety. Generations and generations of men have passed that stone, and it still waits for a man with an altruistic idea."—Spectator.

The right arm is always a little larger than the left, but the left foot is almost always larger than the right, presumably because while nearly every man uses his right arm to lift a weight or strike a blow he almost invariably kicks with his left foot, while the lounger stands on his left leg and lets his right fall easily, because he has learned by experience that this is the best attitude he can assume to prevent lassitude and fatigue.

This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on the street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see that in laced shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.

A Tussle With English.

The pitfalls of the English tongue to a foreigner are many. A Frenchwoman who has undertaken housekeeping in New York thought she had a good working knowledge of the language, but soon discovered her mistake.

One day she called a carpenter and planned with him to have some work done about the house in the way of putting up shelves, etc., and she went over the ground with him as carefully as possible to get from him an estimate of what it would cost.

After the work was done the bill submitted was considerably in excess of the sum first named. The Frenchwoman endeavored to remonstrate, but only succeeded in making the following remarkable statement to him:

"You are more dear to me than when we were first engaged."—New York Sun.

Almonds.

The world's almond crop, exclusive of those raised in California and the west, comes from Italy, Sicily, Majorca, Spain, France, Portugal, Morocco and Algiers. The highly prized Jordan almonds come from Malaga, Spain, and not from the Jordan river, as many people suppose. The common almond is the most indigestible of all the nuts and contains very little nourishment. There are many ways, however, in which it is advantageously used as a dessert or as a flavoring. One peculiarity about the almond tree is that its leaves contain prussic acid and are therefore poisonous, while the fruit may be eaten with impunity.

A Sure Thing Sport.

A well known politician on setting out for a day's sport with a friend pointed to a large spaniel which lay apparently asleep in the hall and bet his friend a guinea he could not attract the dog's attention.

The bet was readily accepted, and after the failure of a shrill whistle and a blank cartridge to cause the slightest movement the guinea was delivered up.

"That's my old dog Mahatma I had stuffed a few weeks ago," laughed the politician, "and that's the tenth guinea he's brought me."—London Tit-Bits.

Italian Bees.

Italian bees are more hardy than the native and more profitable. They are more energetic and will gather honey in partial droughts when natives will do nothing. They will gather honey from blossoms that natives will not touch. They are stronger on the wing, will fly more directly and swiftly and are not so irritable.

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a summer camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Normantown, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says: "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy." Moral.—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by Young & Brown.

For You to Earn Money at Home

We are starting a class in this town, teaching to a limited number, the practical art of finishing crayon portraits. Lessons can be taken at will, day or evening, and we teach you until you are satisfied that you can do the work as well as you can desire. We have had years of experience in this work and can teach you all the time-saving, and easy ways-of-doing devices. You can then finish pictures for your relatives and friends, or, if you so desire, finish them to order for cash. We furnish all materials and lessons for the small sum of $15. BOARD OF HEALTH meets last Friday of each month at Town House.

Officiated at John Brown's Funeral.

I wonder how many of my readers remembered, when they saw the name of Rev. Dr. Joshua Young of Groton the other day among those who had passed their golden wedding, that he is the man who dared officiate at the funeral of John Brown of Harper's Ferry fame.

Dr. Young was then pastor of a Burlington, Vt., church, and in spite of inevitable public censure, in spite, too, of the cold midwinter storm raging, made his way to North Elba, N. Y., to pay tribute to the memory of the anti-slavery enthusiast. In consequence of this he and his family were annoyed and even insulted by the Burlington townspeople, and he was forced to give up his church there. —[Boston Journal.] Dr. Young is father to our well known druggist, Mr. H. G. Young.

Swedish Fair.

The Lutheran church of Woburn has hired the Town Hall for Oct. 24-26.

Through the aid of an affluent friend of the church, well known for her charities, the society will be enabled to arrange a fair on a grand scale. The young ladies of the church will appear in the national costumes of the various provinces of Sweden. A Swedish cottage will also be one of the features. The programs for each evening will be of unusual excellence. Thus Thursday Conrad Oström, a graduate of Leipzig, will render piano solos. Friday evening Swedish Glee Club of Boston, 25 voices, will sing. Complete program will be published later.

The church has quite a membership in Winchester and is gaining steadily. It is therefore believed that the people of the town will kindly respond to the call. The Swedish American colony of the north end near the McKay factory will no doubt come to a man.

Trouble in this Representative District.

There was a hot Republican caucus at West Medford Wednesday evening in regard to who shall be nominated for Representative. The district comprises wards 3 and 5 of Medford and the town of Winchester. Each ward has a candidate, the fight being between Lombard Williams of ward 3 and Barker B. Howard of ward 6.

Williams carried his ward delegation by a large majority, and Howard carried his ward over Williams by a large plurality. As Winchester is pledged to abide by what Medford selects, and as the delegations are split, the fight will come up at the convention, which will be held on Oct. 12 in the Medford City Hall, and promises to be as interesting as it will be bitter.

High School Notes.

The members of the foot-ball team have not been chosen yet, but Trevor A. Cushman, the captain, expects to choose them soon from the candidates who have been practicing for the team the past week.

Robert Adriance, '02, has been confined to his home on Mt. Pleasant St. with a severe attack of malaria the past week.

The first debate of the junior class will be held next Monday. The subject of the debate is: "Resolved, that slang is justifiable." The chairman of the debate is Trevor A. Cushman. The principal disputants for the affirmative are Amy White and Roy Pratt. For the negative, Emma Punchard and George R. Guernsey. The Judges have not yet been chosen.

Trolley Riding.

A writer in the Advertiser complains that "in coming on the electric road from Methuen to Boston he had to change five times, viz., at visited Lawrence, Andover, Reading, Wakefield and Melrose, involving delays of from 5 to 15 minutes in making connections at each point."

This matter of delays in making connections with the different lines is the great drawback to the pleasures of trolley riding. Managers of the different roads should do all in their power to promote expediency and the comfort of passengers, for if this is not done then pleasure riding will cease to be popular.

A Chance to do Good.

If any reader of the STAR has a baby carriage that is no longer needed it will be gladly received by a worthy woman, who is personally known to the writer of this notice and who has a number of small children beyond her power to provide for.

Please notify Mr. Wilson at the STAR office and it will be called for.

We wonder if certain newspapers will have the decency hereafter to let Senator Mark Hanna alone. He has been a much maligned man and has not been deserving of the abuse that has been heaped upon him.

Republican Caucus.

A caucus of the Republican voters was held in the small Town Hall Wednesday evening, and considering that there were no contests for delegates to the several conventions, the attendance was quite large, about 40 gentlemen being present.

Owing to the absence of the chairman of the Town Committee, Mr. J. Murray Marshall, Mr. Theo. C. Hurd called the caucus to order when Mr. George Chandler Coit, secretary, read the call. Judge Geo. S. Littlefield was then chosen chairman of the meeting and Mr. Coit secretary, but owing to his being a member of the Town Committee, he stated that he was ineligible, and so, too, for the same reason was E. H. Rice barred out. Hon. Fred Joy was then chosen as the secretary.

Mr. Theo. C. Hurd then moved that the ballot box be opened for the election of delegates to the several conventions. When this had been done, Mr. Hurd moved that the chair appoint a committee of five to bring in a list of delegates and also names for Town Committee. The chair appointed Messrs. Theo. C. Hurd, C. D. Rooney, J. T. Wilson, C. W. Bradstreet and N. H. Taylor as the committee, who retired and after deliberation reported the following list of delegates and who were declared unanimously elected after the ballots had been counted by the tellers, Messrs. F. F. Carpenter and J. W. Richardson:

State Convention—S. J. Elder, W. B. French, G. L. Huntress, Preston Pond, S. W. Twombly, E. J. Rich.

County—J. T. Wilson, H. T. Dickson, P. W. Swan, G. W. Payne, C. W. Bradstreet, S. J. Elder.

Councillor—J. P. Boutwell, N. H. Taylor, F. L. Ripley, Fred Joy, C. F. A. Currier, F. F. Carpenter.

Senatorial—A. S. Hall, G. S. Littlefield, Emmons Hatch, H. S. Underwood, N. H. Seelye, T. P. Wilson.

Representative—Lewis Parkhurst, C. W. Bradstreet, Preston Pond, Fred M. Symmes, A. Macdonald, E. J. Rich, Franklin W. Perry, James H. Winn, Geo. W. Blanchard, Franklin L. Hunt, Geo. P. Brown, Emmons Hatch, Charles D. Rooney, Edwin Robinson, Benj. T. Morgan.

Town Committee—J. Murray Marshall, H. T. Dickson, C. D. Rooney, N. H. Seelye, E. H. Rice, F. L. Ripley, Theo. C. Hurd, F. F. Carpenter, Geo. Chandler Coit.

While the committee were preparing the list of delegates, Mr. H. S. Underwood addressed the meeting in reference to the selection of delegates to the Representative Convention. While he had the greatest respect for Mr. Twombly and the good work he had accomplished in the Legislature, he believed it would be a mistake for Winchester to send a delegation to that convention to vote for Mr. Twombly before West Medford had a chance to select a candidate of its own. He then moved that the delegation go unpledged.

Mr. Twombly said that the whole matter of selecting a candidate to the lower branch of the Legislature was in the hands of the voters of West Medford, and whoever the man selected by them might be, the Winchester delegates would heartily support him.

Some of the leading Republicans of that place had asked him to serve again, and he would do so if he was made the choice of the majority of the West Medford delegates.

Mr. Underwood's motion, that the delegates go unpledged, was unanimously passed.

The meeting then adjourned.

Democratic Caucus.

A Democratic caucus for the purpose of electing delegates to the various conventions and also a town committee was held in the small Town Hall last evening. There was a fair attendance, and a number of gentlemen were noticed in the hall who have not attended caucuses for the past four years, having kept away since the memorable split in the party at that time. The party is now united and hereafter there is promise of active and interesting campaigns.

In the absence of Chairman P. G. Gray of the Town Committee, Mr. W. J. Daly called the caucus to order, and later he was chosen chairman and Mr. W. L. Tuck secretary. Mr. Daly on taking the chair said it gave him pleasure to see gentlemen present who had not attended caucuses for some years past. It was a good sign and would result in much benefit to the party. He extended to them a hearty welcome.

The chair, on motion, appointed Messrs. P. W. Reardon, T. S. Spurr and M. E. O'Leary a committee to bring in a list of delegates to be balloted for for the several conventions. They reported the following who were declared elected, the tellers being Messrs. J. F. O'Connor and Dr. C. F. McCarthy:

State Convention—Thos. S. Spurr, P. G. Gray, J. I. French, W. L. Tuck.

County—J. F. Holland, E. F. Maguire, P. Dowd, H. Bishop.

Representative—J. H. Roach, J. T. Cosgrove, M. E. O'Leary, J. E. Flynn.

Senatorial—J. J. Foley, G. R. Brine, F. J. O'Hara, John Moore.

Councillor—C. W. Currier, F. W. Abbott, M. S. Nelson, H. J. Carroll.

On motion, Messrs. J. T. Cosgrove, W. C. Newell and J. J. Foley were appointed by the chair to bring in a list of names for town committee for 1902. They reported the following, who were then elected:

Town Committee—J. T. Cosgrove, W. L. Tuck, J. J. Foley, James Roach, Wm. C. Newell, P. W. Reardon, J. I. French, P. G. Gray, F. W. Abbott, T. B. Cotter, C. F. McCarthy, J. F. Holland, J. F. O'Connor, J. H. Carter, M. S. Nelson.

There was considerable discussion in regard to reducing the town committee from 15 to 9 members, but after voting in favor of the reduction it was finally voted to keep the number 15.

The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Stephen Francis Harris, one of the men engaged on repairs at the residence of Mr. Theo. C. Hurd, corner of Main and Chestnut streets, died suddenly while at work Thursday. The cause was heart disease. He was 48 years old and a resident of Melrose Highlands, where he leaves a widow and one son.

Court Chambly, Foresters of America, will give a social and dance in Lyceum Hall, Monday evening, Oct. 7. All who have attended these socials will welcome this announcement.

Mr. John Swan left at the STAR office this week a curiosity in the form of a last year's potato, with a growth of ten small perfectly formed potatoes growing from the side of it. In size the tubers run from a small egg to a pea, and present a remarkable freak. Several old farmers who have looked at the curiosity, say they have seen nothing like it in their experience. The potato can be seen at the STAR office.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Miss Emma Willard was married Monday, the 23rd inst., to Dr. Daniel B. Nye at Yokohoma, Japan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Deering, a Baptist missionary, whose wife will be remembered here as the eldest daughter of Rev. Henry Hinkley, some years ago settled over the Baptist church. Miss Willard was for several years a kindergarten teacher in the Rumford school and resigned her position last summer. Miss Willard has hosts of friends here where she was very popular, who wish her much happiness in her far off home.

A Carnegie library building on the Howe lot would not only be appreciated but would show up to advantage. Probably a portion of this land will be asked for at the next annual meeting as a site for a new High School house. The question has been in the air for some time.

Mr. F. L. Ferguson, the owner of several houses on the old Unitarian church lot, has purchased the Rolfe house, together with a large tract of land on Highland avenue. He will develop the property.

The dwelling house with 11,400 feet of land at No. 14 Harrison street has been sold by Arthur W. Haines to M. O. Rolfe, who takes possession at once for a home. The sale was made by M. H. Dutch.

Mrs. General Corse and her son, John Murray Corse, will go abroad in October. They intend to pass the winter on the Continent.

The beautiful and appropriate decorations at the memorial service in the Town Hall last week are still the theme of conversation among all who saw them. In addition to Mr. Kirby, credit is due Mrs. W. B. French, Miss Charlotte Skillings, Miss Bertha Smith and other ladies who rendered valuable assistance in arranging the drapery. Mr. John R. Newman is also deserving of praise not only because of the handsome display of potted plants and ferns, but also for his generosity in furnishing them free of cost, a matter of $25.

The Hill District is one of the most beautiful places to be found in Middlesex County, also one of the quietest. The good citizens attend strictly to business and their farms, and occasionally come down to the centre. They do, however, keep in close touch with town affairs, and their superior intelligence entitles them to representation on the Board of Selectmen once in a while. The scholarly Lester F. Smith would give dignity and wisdom to the Board if elected. He is employed in the publishing house of Edwin Ginn, our well known townsman.

The machine that was toppled over into the river at the rear of the Whitney machine shop the night before the glorious Fourth, still lies in the river bed. Considerable time and trouble will be required to get the machine out, which ought not to be very pleasing to the boys who were responsible for throwing it into the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hoyt have returned from Lakeport, New Hampshire, where they spent a few weeks.

Miss Marion Rice was soloist at the Union Services in the Methodist Church at Stoneham last Thursday.

Transferring the telephone wires from the poles to the conduits, and also rearranging the switch board at the central station has interrupted the service to a certain degree. This, the Superintendent informs us, will be quickly straightened out. It is no small matter to make so radical a change and at the same time continue the service, and when one stops to consider this there should be no ground for complaint. The new Superintendent appears to be the man for this office, and will do all in his power to give Winchester the best of service.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Thursday evening the Baptist Sunday School held its first social of the season which took the form of a reception to the teachers. The vestry was tastily decorated with ferns and cut flowers. The program consisted of violin duetts by Mr. Walter Rice and Miss May Winn, accompanied by Miss Lora Winn at the piano; a well rendered tenor solo by Mr. Glidden of Stoneham, and readings by Miss Nichols of Allston. Miss Emily Blank presided at a prettily decorated table where punch was served, with cake, by a number of young ladies. There was a large attendance and a very pleasant evening was passed.

Mrs. Frank J. Wills, 126 Highland avenue, will give instruction in piano playing and singing.

Every room in the Wadleigh School building is occupied. To relieve the Rumford and Chapin schools, many pupils of the sixth grade were transferred to the Wadleigh, but notwithstanding this the demand for room in these two schools continues urgent. New desks have been placed in the High School to accommodate new pupils. At the last annual town meeting a well known citizen remarked to the School Board when the appropriation for schools was up for consideration: "You furnish the children and the citizens will provide the schools." It now appears to be up to the citizens.

Mr. James Haley and Miss Celia Higgins were united in marriage Sunday evening by Rev. H. J. Madden. The best man was Mr. Edward Donahue of Railroad avenue, and the bridesmaid was Miss Delia Higgins of Winthrop street. After a short honeymoon they will take up their residence in Winchester.

The Calumet Gun Club held a team shoot and clam bake on Myopia Hill last Saturday, the event winding up a very prosperous season for the new club. About 30 were present and after the shoot a genuine Rhode Island clam bake was enjoyed and many good things, including clams, lobsters, corn, watermelon and cucumbers were disposed of.

Funeral of Eliza A. Daniels.

Funeral services were held over the remains of Mrs. Eliza A. Daniels at her late home on Church street last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Daniels was 83 years of age and the cause of her death was heart disease from which she had been a sufferer for nearly two years. Her early life was passed in Manchester where her husband Darwin Daniels was a prominent citizen and an ex-Mayor of that city and after his death she came to Winchester. There were two children, one of them dying many years ago, the other, Mr. Frank Daniels, passing away about three years ago. This latter left a substantial bequest to the Old People's Home.

Mrs. Daniels was a life member of the corporation of the Home for Aged People in Winchester.

Hoosac Mountains and the Berkshire Hills.

What stories of praise and admiration have been related about the beautiful district lying among the Berkshire Hills and the Hoosac Mountains; what a magnificent aspect is presented to the view of the traveler during the month of October; a time which nature has chosen to array in her autumnal garb the woods and fields.

October then is the month in which to visit the mountains and the country, and no prettier place than the Hoosac Country and Deerfield Valley can be chosen. The mighty passage hewn through the rocks of the mountains, and known as Hoosac Tunnel, is one of the interesting sights, then the trip via the trolley cars which run over the mountain and through the valley, a beautiful view of Mt. Greylock and the surrounding mountains, and North Adams, an ideal resort attractive and pleasing and situated close to the mountains.

An excursion from Boston reaching all these points of interest will be run on October 5th. Special train will leave Boston, Union Station at 8.15 a. m. Returning, train will leave North Adams at 4.25 p. m., stopping at Hoosac Tunnel station. Tickets will be good returning on special train October 5th, or on regular train October 6th or 7th. Special train will stop at Waltham in both directions, but tickets will only be on sale at Boston, Union Station or at Boston, City Ticket Office, 322 Washington street.

The round trip rate is only $2.00.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is not easy to secure locations for the portable stone crusher as people do not like the noise and dust. It never should be located close to the street on account of the latter. When it was in operation near the foot of Webster street last year the travelling public got an awful dose of dust which was very annoying.

Are we to have that town meeting this fall, or are we to let the Manchester Field completion drift along at the will of the Metropolitan Park Board? The Board must be waiting to hear from the town or something. What can it be? Why not find out?

Those who use the electrics between the North and South depots congratulated themselves that when the Atlantic avenue line of the L road was completed they would be able to make quick connections between those two points. But it is no improvement, with six minutes schedule between trains, which is oftener ten, and the numerous stops, the street cars are more certain still. Rapid transit in Boston is still anything but rapid and the management could be greatly improved in many directions.

It would be interesting to know what we have for town plans and what they have cost. I have heard it stated that their cost approaches ten thousand dollars, but what their value is is another question. Certain it is they would be more valuable if in different form for use. The Assessors now say they ought to have some plans and must have them to do the best work.

If the first day at all the large Fall fairs is to be children's day it would seem as if the fakirs with their various gambling games should not be allowed to do business upon that day. It is a question if there is any educational value in these fairs the way they are run now anyway.

The setting of street poles at an angle of forty degrees is anything but an improvement to the appearance of the streets and surroundings and should not be permitted.

It is strictly a state election this year and yet it will be fought on national issues as usual, as if there were no state issues, as this suits the politicans best and the people do not seem to know any better. Some day they will.

Speaking of the influence of the corporations at the State House is it not surprising that when a bill clearly in the interests of the public and also fair to the corporations is defeated that the representatives of the people who vote against them are not called to account and not allowed to quietly sneak away and feather their nests with the boodle? One of the greatest dangers of the times is the way the corporations are controlling more and more the press, printing at length their side when it suits their purpose and at other times suppressing all news. The people are honest and want what is right, but many of their representatives are controlled by corrupt influences and should not be re-nominated.

It is all very well to say the Selectmen were not given money enough for street purposes but the trouble was that they did not put an article in the annual meeting warrant under which any money could be borrowed for the new macadam construction and the meeting thought eighteen thousand dollars was as much as we could well afford to raise by taxation this year, as it was very desirable that the tax rate should be kept down.

First Baptist Church Notes.

At the 6 o'clock service next Sunday, we shall be favored with an address by Miss Ackles, of Corea, who has been a missionary there for five years, and who returns next month to her far away field. This will be an interesting service. She is well known by many of our people.

Our quartet, consisting of Mr. Harry C. Sanborn, bass and director; Miss Della Underhill, contralto; Miss Elizabeth Macdonald, soprano; and Mr. Guy P. Palmer, tenor; resumed their work last Sunday morning, and added greatly to the worship.

The Yacht Race.

T. W. Lawson now advises an indefinite postponement of the cup race. He is a disappointed man and justly so, so far as his dealings with the snobs of the N. Y. Yacht Club are concerned, yet it looks like "biting his own nose off" to destroy his costly yacht to spite such foes, yet we cannot agree with him in regard to calling off a contest for marine supremacy and treating gallant Sir Thomas Lipton so discourteously after his great expenses and his kindly feelings toward us. The recent national calamity which has befallen us should not paralyze our efforts to keep cheerful and hopeful.—[Hingham Journal.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Gruver's drug store.

Observations.

One of the most genial, intelligent and highly respected citizens who ever lived here was George T. Littlefield, father of Judge Littlefield. He moved away a few years ago and soon after died in Lexington. He was a school teacher in Charlestown for many years; was a ripe scholar, extensive reader of general and local history and did much to build up and extend the Historical Society of Winchester. A gentleman of the old school, dignified and winning in manners.

The audience that assembled in our town hall to mourn the death of the late President was one of the most impressive and magnificent gatherings that ever congregated here. The solemn look and tearful eye will long be remembered by all present and a story of pathos to tell to those who come after us; the whole scene was heartfelt. Mr. McCall spoke in soft and mellow tones, with deep emotions of a nation's sorrow, as he paid a beautiful tribute to the simple, yet grand character of the martyred President.

There is a good deal of grumbling about town by some of the tax payers because their valuation has been raised. It ought to be raised in many instances to equalize the valuation. The assessors have done well in their work; glad they had the judgment and courage to do it. Next year squeeze a considerable more out of some of the wealthy ones and go on to more equality.

Has the Board of Health or any other board found the cause of the recent sickness in town? It seems the more we do, and the more we spend for sanitary purposes, the more the sickness and oftener we die. The Board of Health seems to be industrious and painstaking, what is the trouble? Has the whole sewer problem been wisely and safely constructed? Is the offensive, foul wash and air that is often forced back into dwellings, conducive to health or disease? Are the pipes large enough? Is not the grade altogether too level—1-25 of an inch fall in two feet? Is the sickness where the houses have been connected with the sewer, or where they have not been?

Samuel J. Elder is to preside at the Republican state convention. Samuel is a scripture name of vivid recollection—the Lord's anointed. He will hold the convention to dicipline and enchant it with the music of a sonorous voice; eloquence and story will burnish his sentences like dew drops sparkling in the morning sun, or diamonds dropping from his mirthful lips.

The steel and iron trusts have come off conquerors; the laborers have laid down the sword and taken up the hammer, toil and sweat go on, money and power held the winning card.

Several parties have been in town lately to purchase houses or lands and pay a fair price, but the owners ask such bloated prices that they have turned away. Land is held so high there is no chance for investment; sell your land for what it is worth, stop paying interest and live comfortable.

I rode over the hill district the other day and I pity the farmers up there. Few privileges, poor roads, far away from school, tugging and toiling to raise and sell their products to feed and clothe their families. They come down to Church street and see the ease and comfort manifest, and ask is God, man, or destiny responsible for their condition of life.

George S. Littlefield, Esq., gave an interesting talk last Sunday evening at the Highland Bethany Chapel upon the subject of intemperance, illustrated by his observations in professional and civil life. It gave good satisfaction and was listened to by a full house.

The Highlands are growing and next year will be heard from in a demand for some of the plums that have been bestowed upon other parts of the town—selectmen, etc.

Is it good judgment to run the "old ladies' home" with only three inmates? Spread your net and take in more objects of need, sell the house and buy another for less money away from the noise of busy streets. The house was never worth what it cost, and unfit for the object.

White Ribbon Clippings.

"PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE."

The greatest peril connected with the use of intoxicating liquors is not that those who are already drunkards will obtain liquor, but that the young and those who are not yet drunkards will be drawn into the habit. In such cities as Boston and New York, as three young men are walking along the street, it is easy for one to say "Let's go in and have some beer;" and when in company like that it requires great strength of character to be able to resist the invitation. More young men have taken their first drink through the evil custom of treating than in any other way. Multitudes who would never buy the first glass of liquor for themselves have taken it when offered by others. The saloon must go, not only because it is the easy avenue of temptation, but because of its degrading effect upon the people of the community. Even cities where the sale of intoxicating liquors is free or licensed, prohibit saloons within so many hundred feet of school houses and churches. Could any testimony to the degrading influence of saloons be more eloquent than this? Not even those who countenence the sale of liquor wish it to be about the school houses where their children gather on week days, or about the churches where themselves and their children come to worship God or learn of him in the Sunday School. Those who approve the legal sale of liquor, by this limitation condemn their own actions.

Another reason why the saloon must go is because it is not only the recruiting office of the army of drunkards, but it is the central office of conspiracy against morality and social order. It is in the saloons that thieves, burglars, and other criminals gather to concoct their schemes of crime.

In short, there is hardly a type of evil which does not find a fertile promoter in the saloon. No cause needs more the efficient and active effort of the Christian young people of this country than a crusade for the downfall of the saloon.

Last Excursion of the Season to Lake Winnipesaukee.

The last opportunity to visit New England's most desirable resort, Lake Winnipesaukee, at the very low rate of $2.00 is presented on Saturday, Oct. 5th. A sail of 60 miles over the clear, cool waters of this popular lake during the month of October affords a pleasure and enjoyment to the excursionist which cannot be found elsewhere.

The towering mountains, Mt. Belknap and Ossipee, together with the distant peaks of the snow-capped White Mountains, can be seen distinctly from the decks of the swiftly gliding steamer which connects with the train at Alton Bay.

The ride in the train to the celebrated spot is replete with scenery both attractive and fascinating, and any one who has ever enjoyed this trip will surely want to take advantage of this last opportunity.

Special train will leave Boston, Union Station, at 8.20 a. m. for Alton Bay. Returning, train will leave Alton Bay on arrival of steamer. Tickets will positively be limited in number and will be on sale at Boston City Ticket Office, 322 Washington street, up to 5 p. m. on October 4th, and at Union Station after 5 p. m. October 4th.

About Printing.

The STAR does not pretend to do better printing than is done in Boston, but fully as good, and at as low a price is all we claim. We are ready at all times to submit figures and guarantee satisfaction even to the extent of meeting the wishes of the most fastidious. We have done business in Winchester for many years and expect to for a long time to come, therefore it is to our interest to do good work at moderate prices and promptly. All that is asked is an opportunity to bid on your printing.

American Penal Colony.

The following communication to the Boston Herald was written by a well known resident of Winchester:

Why would not the present time furnish a good opportunity for making a radical change in our criminal code by establishing a penal colony? We have in the Pilippines a thousand or more islands, and without doubt could find one that would be suitable for such a purpose. These islands, all contain mineral wealth of some kind or other, the developing of which would serve not only as to the enhancement of the value of these islands to the United States, but also as a means of inflicting punishment on criminals of the type of the man now in jail in Buffalo. The guarding of one of these islands would be comparatively easy, and we have the examples of England, Russia and France from which to draw.

The advantages of such a penal colony are obvious and the isolation of prisoners sent there should be absolutely compiete, and the plan for carrying on the colony should be on a basis to make it self-supporting. England, with her establishment of the colony of Botany Bay, has laid the foundation of what might be called almost an empire. Russia, in spite of the cruelty inflicted on the prisoners sent to Siberia, has certainly developed the resources of that country as they would never have been developed but for this deportation of criminals.

Of course, the establishment of such a colony would be to confine it not to any special sort of criminals, such as Anarchists, but should include all kinds of criminals who are under life sentences. It seems only rational to suppose that every state in the United States would be only too glad and willing to furnish its quota of such criminals. As regard to punishment meted out to Anarachists, this mode of punishment would certainly be one that would have a salutary effect. The worst punishment for criminals of that class is to be forced to work for their daily needs or starve. By imprisoning such criminals in our state prisons, we are continuously subjected to plots, one kind or another, for their release which would be obviated by the establishment of such a colony. It is a "far cry" to the Philippines. CARL KREUTZ.

For the best on earth, get Peirce's "GOOD" Pure Soap. 2

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The men's meetings opened last Sunday with a very good attendence. Dr. Scudder gave a strong address. The second subject of Dr. Scudder's series will be, "One more good time." The orchestra proved a great addition to the service. All men are invited to these meetings.

The boys who were at Camp Durrell this summer organized the "Durrell Brotherhood" last week. Thirteen boys were present. Trevor Cushman was elected president and Roy Pratt secretary. Meetings will be held every Friday afternoon from three to four o'clock.

The annual prospectus is now out and ready for distribution. Call at the office and get a copy. Leave the names of any young men whom you think would like to receive one and it will be mailed to them.

The work on the new bath room is now progressing rapidly. It is expected to be ready for use the first of next week. No job of improvement was ever done that will be more appreciated than will this one.

The opening reception takes place next Thursday night. Mr. Nixon Waterman is on the editorial staff of the Boston Hearld, was the editor of the "magazine called Good Cheer" while it was published. He will give an evening of his own widely praised writings. The Association will take genuine pleasure and justifiable pride in introducing Mr. Waterman to the Winchester public. All young men and people in general who are interested in the Association are invited. The Association orchestra will furnish music during the evening.

Peirce's "GOOD" Pure Soap will please the ladies. 8

Stood Death Off.

E. R. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50 c at Grover's drug store.

Parish of the Epiphany.

Choir rehearsal this Friday evening at 7.30 p. m.

The Ladies' Guild will hold its first meeting of the season next Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 1st, at 3 p. m., at Mrs. Kelley's, Fletcher street.

The Executive Committee of the Ladies' Guild is asked to meet the same afternoon at the same place promptly at two o'clock.

The first meeting for the season of the Guild of St. Cross will be held at 42 Rangeley next Tuesday evening, promptly at 8 o'clock. There is business of importance to transact, after which the Guild will be addressed by Professor Siedhof.

The first of the Wednesday afternoon services next Wednesday at 5 p. m.

The rector will be at the church as usual Wednesday afternoons.

Mr. Van Buren will give a talk on Porto Rico, with stereopticon illustration next Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, at 8 p. m., at the church. All are invited.

Let it Alone.

Scott's Emulsion is not a good medicine for fat folks. We have never tried giving it to a real fat person. We don't dare. You see Scott's Emulsion builds new flesh. Fat people don't want it. Strong people don't need it.

But if you are thin Scott's Emulsion is the medicine for you. It doesn't tire you out. There is no strain. The work is all natural and easy. You just take the medicine and that's all there is to it.

The next thing you know you feel better—you eat better—and you weigh more. It is a quiet worker.

Transportation of Freight over the Old Middlesex Canal.

Following is a description of how freight was carried between Concord and Nashua via the old Middlesex Canal which passed through Winchester, the old bed running through the west side of our town has long been a serious menace to health because of the stagnant water and the dumping of all manner of refuse into it

Capt. H. E. Parker of Nashua has issued a pamphlet, "Sketch of the Old Middlesex Canal," which gives some facts concerning the transportation of freight from Concord to Boston during the first half of the last century that are intensely interesting and very suggestive of the enormous development of the business since the advent of the railway locomotive.

Prior to 1815 horse and ox teams were the means of transportation on this route. They made regular trips, taking to Boston farm produce, which was about all the people of the state had to sell, and carrying back groceries and general supplies of the country stores.

The ordinary charge for this service was $20 per ton. The journey was necessarily a slow one and in order to save time and lessen the cost a canal, which was dug from Boston through Charlestown, Medford, Winchester, Woburn, Wilmington, Billerica and Chelmsford to the Merrimack river, a distance of 27 miles, was completed in 1808, and did considerable but not a very profitable business.

The remains of this ditch, which was known as the Middlesex Canal, can now be seen alongside the steam railroad from Boston to Lowell. It soon became evident that in order to pay, the boating must be extended farther into the country, and the "Merrimack Boating Company" was formed for this purpose, constructed the locks and equipment and June 15, 1816, issued public notice that it was prepared to carry all kinds of freight. The charges were as follows for primary merchandise: From Boston to Concord $12.50 a ton; from Concord to Boston $8.50 per ton; from Boston to Manchester $9.25 per ton; from Manchester to Boston $6.50 per ton, and in proportion to the distance to and from other points. Furniture was charged from $24 to $30 per ton, empty hogsheads at 50 cents each and barrel staves at $6 per M.

As time went on these rates were reduced until 1838 when they were five up and four dollars down. The largest number of boats used at any one time was 20, each of which had a crew of 3 men and a capacity of 15 tons. The average time of a round trip was nine days, 5 up and 4 down. Much of their business came from Northern New Hampshire and Vermont, being taken to Concord with teams. Its volume is not given but from 1815 to 1842, when the opening of the Concord railroad ruined the company and sent its boats to the scrap heap, a period of 27 years, the total charges were $689,696, of which $180,611 was paid for canal tolls and $7108 was bad debts. No dividends were earned until 1827, after which they were paid regularly. Some passenger business was also done by these boats, the fare being about three cents a mile.

The Boston & Lowell railroad which paralleled the Middlesex canal, was opened to Lowell in 1835 and Nashua & Lowell to Nashua in 1838, but required several years of argument to induce capitalists to furnish money to extend the line to Concord. During this waiting period there was much calculation as to cost and prospective business and the report of the railroad commission of New Hampshire contains abstract of a report by Peter Clark, an engineer who had surveyed the route, in which he said that 29,000 passengers were carried between Concord and Lowell annually by boats and teams and that in 1839 the freight between Concord and Boston was 32,162 tons.

From this he reasoned that a railroad would carry between Concord and Nashua 60,000 passengers at one dollar each and 30,000 tons of freight at two dollars a ton annually, and that the business would grow when the water powers on the Merrimack were developed. Manchester, which was of little account then, he thought would eventually furnish 50,000 tons a year and Sewall's and Garvin's Falls as much more.

On the Fourth of July, 1842, he was gratified by seeing the road opened to Concord and soon after the assets of the Boating company were sold at auction.

His estimates were not far out of the way at first for the total receipts of the Concord road the first full year were but $72,799 from passengers and $65,420 from freight. How low rates and speedy service have multiplied these figures we all know.

Frozen Facts.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As many are asking for an abatement of taxes, will you please give these "Frozen facts." JUSTICE.

"The Columbus Press-Post makes an interesting presentation under the headline—"Some Frozen Facts Concerning Perjury." In 1893 for instance, a committee of investigation reported that while the tax returns showed that the people of Cleveland had only $1,800,593 in cash, there was on deposit in Cleveland banks nearly $63,000,000. According to the tax returns the people of Toledo had in cash $253,087, while the banks had on deposit $8,120,121. The tax returns showed that the people of Columbus had something more than $1,000,000 in cash, but the Columbus banks had on deposit $4,357,352. The Post-Press made an examination of the statements filed in the assessor's office and these are some of its conclusions.

"A great manufacturer who lives in one of the largest houses in the city and on one of the most fashionable streets, thinks that all that he has in the way of horses, carriages, jewelery, household furniture, books, pictures, etc., is worth no more than $440.

"A leading broker, reported to be worth a quarter of a million, thinks his possessions ought not to be taxed to a greater extent than $667.23.

"A leading banker who lives generously in a large house which is filled with beautiful and valuable things, and whose family diamonds are noted, finds that he is worth in all about $400.

"The Press-Post calls attention to what is conceded to be a growing evil in all parts of the country—the evil of misstatement in returning property for taxation. That newspaper says:

"It is evident that our high tax-rate of nearly 3 per cent. is the result of the grossest fraud and perjury committed every year by all classes of persons, and especially by those who ought, on account of their success or fortunate condition in life, to be perfectly willing to bear at least their full share of the burdens of maintaining the government."

"There are many men who would not make a misstatement under oath concerning ordinary things of life who do not hesitate to make misstatements concerning the property they hold subject to taxation Every community in the United States suffers because many of its citizens have fallen into the bad habit of making a deliberate misrepresentation to the tax assessor.

Two remedies suggest themselves for this evil: One is the persistent cultivation of a public sentiment that will frown upon misrepresentations of this character that will condem the tax dodger to a discreditable position. The other is that Assessors use every effort to have all property listed for taxation, and to expose any man, high or low, who adopts the roll of the tax-dodger. Both remedies ought to be employed."

Drying preparations simply developed dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell it at 50 cents or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, N. Y.

The City Beautiful.

When all intelligent people in a city desire a beautiful city they will have one. Beauty is not a question of expense, it is a question of intelligent good taste and judgment. The citizens of a municipality cannot show their respect for themselves to a better purpose than by using every means and opportunity at their command to make their urban home attractive for themselves. The municipality should be made comfortable and attractive for those who live in it.

WORK OF THE LUNGS.

THE NECESSITY FOR PURE AIR AND PROPER BREATHING.

Respiratory Gymnastics Tend to Strengthen the Resisting Force of Nature to Disease—The Lesson of the Black Hole of Calcutta.

To my mind the part of the physical man upon which depends all the possibilities of mental resource is that part which has relation to respiration and which for its perfect work depends upon the quality of the air we breathe, the quantity respired and the method thereof. The apparatus for respiration consists of the lungs, which are double, the one on the right side having three lobes, the other on the left only two. We must always bear in mind that nature is generous in her provisions, and she has given us so much of lung tissue that a large part can be quickly exhausted and become inactive, yet life endure for its legitimate threescore years and ten and its duties and activities continue unhindered by any conscious lack. Under the microscope the lung tissue shows an infinite number of tiny cells or ultimate lobules. Some have estimated these at five or six hundred million, and, wonderful to relate, only with the first breath that the infant draws are both lungs ever filled with absolutely new air. All through life there is necessarily what we call a residual air, which may be of a greater or less amount, according to the breathing habit of the individual. It is said that the extent of surface through which the air breathed passes is approximately about 1,300 square feet, and the excretion from the lungs daily is over two pounds of poisonous matter. In fact, it is certain that at least one-third of the waste and poisonous matter caused by the activities of the organism, its growth, repair, decay, is excreted through the lungs.

Unfortunately, a great majority of mankind breathe very superficially, using only part of this large area of lung tissue. Even if persons are out of doors, unless by wise activity, the deep cells of the lungs are not aerated for the simple reason that very few men or women know how to free the lungs properly. Dettweiler states that "deep breathing not only ventilates the lungs and aids the circulation, but in many cases is able to strengthen the muscles of the thorax, especially those about the upper part of the chest." And I believe that we have a right to expect from respiratory gymnastics a real strengthening of the resisting force of nature to disease. Even if the lungs have begun to break down, honest effort in this direction will supplement medication.

One of the methods of correct breathing is to put the hands lightly on the hips, fingers backward; throw the shoulders well back, hold the chest up, chin in, and then inhale slowly through the nose as long as possible. When the lungs are filled, retain the air until some discomfort is experienced, then, forming the lips in the shape of a letter O, exhale as slowly and evenly as is consistent with comfort, making a slight blowing sound. Such an exercise for five minutes, clad only in one garment or, better, with no garment at all, night and morning, in a well ventilated room, will do very much in man, woman or child to develop the lung capacity, improve the carriage of the body and enrich the quality of the blood, which depends upon the activity of the lungs for its purification.

It is no wonder that so much care has been given by nature to the apparatus for the respiratory function, for we know perfectly well that man has lived as much as sixty days without food, he has been forced to exist for some time without water; but, alas, without air death must come in a brief space of time!

For instance, in 1756, 146 persons were confined over night in a small space not larger than 5,900 cubic feet, with only two little windows on one side. Within an hour all broke out in a profuse sweat. They were tortured with thirst and difficult breathing, and in three and a half hours the majority were delirious. Then when the morning came forty-three only lived to tell the tale. Another extreme case was at the battle of Austerlitz. Three hundred captured soldiers were confined in a small cellar, and within a few hours all but forty were dead. The reason is self evident. The air was insufficient for the demands of each individual, the poisonous exhalations from the body were thrown off through the lungs, and a most agonizing death ensued. It behooves us, then, most carefully to consider in arranging for the ventilation of homes, hotels, hospitals and jails not only that a proper quantity of pure air shall be allowed free circulation, but also to be watchful lest this pure air shall be vitiated by retained impurities.

A great many investigations have been made to ascertain the relation of air to disease, and perhaps the simple statement of the fact that among all industrial classes those are healthier and have the lowest death rate who are gardeners, farmers, agricultural laborers and fishermen—in other words, those whose occupations are carried on in the open air—will be a truth all can understand.

What a lesson, then, to all who may have families of children to rear! How important that every effort should be made to secure the largest amount of air space about the dwelling, plenty of room for the children to play out of doors, and by all means avoid having little ones sleep in an apartment which the winds of heaven do not visit.—Julia Holmes Smith, D. D., in Pilgrim.

How Good Manners Saved Him.

This anecdote proves the profitable character of good manners and was told to me by a descendant of the gentleman who owned them: Mr. M. of —— was a rebel in 1745. He was taken and was being brought to the tower with Kilmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried, "You tall rebel" (Mr. M. was 6 feet 4 inches), "you will soon be shorter by a head!"

"Does that give you pleasure, madam?" said Mr. M.

"Yes, it does."

"Then, madam," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."

Lady —— was moved. She made interest for Mr. M. There exists a paper in the hand of George II. to this effect: "Let Lady —— [the name is obliterated] have access to her tall rebel and be hanged to her."

The royal clemency was extended to Mr. M. I saw his pardon, beautifully engrossed within a decorative border and framed, on the wall of his descendant's study. It is fair to add that practically the whole county of Ross and also the Earl of Sutherland petitioned for the life of the courteous Mr. M.—Andrew Lang in Longman's.

How to Grow Short.

If you climb a mountain, your height decreases by three-quarters of an inch, and it may even diminish, exceptionally, by a full inch.

This is a fact known to all experienced mountain and Alpine climbers. On reaching the summit of the heights that form the pleasure ascents of holiday makers in the Alpine districts the stature of the climber is found to have become less to the extent already mentioned.

Doctors think that the attitude assumed of necessity in ascending is the cause of this diminution. Some persons believe that the pressure of the atmosphere produces this shrinking. In favor of the medical theory there is the other unquestionable fact that the decrease of stature is greater in those who carry a heavy pack during the climb.

When the Alpinist has descended to the ordinary level, his height begins to increase, but the normal length of the body is not attained until several hours after reaching the regular surface of the earth.

King of Virginia.

Apropos of the British royal titles a reference to colonial possessions appeared in an English sovereign's designation so long ago as the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The poet Spenser dedicated his "Faerie Queen" to Elizabeth, and then he described her as "queen of England, France and Ireland and sovereign of the Dominion of Virginia." It may also be remembered that the Virginians refused to acknowledge Oliver Cromwell's protectorate until he sent a fleet to compel them to do so. Charles II., in return expression of the colonists' loyalty, had himself proclaimed in Virginia on his restoration as "king of Great Britain, Ireland and Virginia." The further statement has been made that Charles caused the arms of Virginia to be quartered with those of England, Ireland and Scotland. Certain it is that they appear so on English coins struck as late as 1773 by order of George III.—Liverpool Post.

A Turkish Bank Note.

The bill is on imperial green paper, a color held sacred in Turkey, which the government alone is permitted to use. On the top and sides are the following words in Turkish, "To be paid to the bearer, without interest, 20 piasters." At the top of the note is the sultan's toghra, surrounding which is a quotation from the Koran. Underneath are the words, "Twenty piasters, paper money, to be used in the place of gold at the Bank of Constantinople." At the base of the note is the seal of the mint and on the back the seal of the minister of the treasury. The toghra is considered sacred and is guarded by the three highest officials of the mint, whose sole duty is to watch it.

Getting at a Fact.

The colored witness, being asked his age, said to the court:

"Well, suh, I wuz a young man w'en freedom broke out."

"What year was that?"

"Hit wuz de year de Yankees come in, suh."

"You do not seem to have a very accurate idea of time."

"Oh, yes, suh! Hit wuz 'long 'bout hog killin' time."—Atlanta Constitution.

Nut Foods.

Nearly all nuts contain large percentages of nitrogenous constituents and fats. In the nut kernel there is very little waste—in fact, the nourishment is in a concentrated form, and for that reason nuts are best combined or taken with other foods. They are especially valued for their fine, meaty flavor, which is found in no other vegetable food product.

Turks and Coffee.

Coffee reached Constantinople about 1554 and was of universal use in Mohammedan countries befort the close of the sixteenth century. So essential was it deemed to domestic happiness that a Turkish law recognized a man's refusal to supply his wife with coffee as sufficient ground for her claiming a divorce.

Worse Still.

Todd—And I can't ask you because we have one.—Detroit Free Press.

You can find almost any kind of boy except the one whose sympathies in a fight between a cat and dog are with the cat.—Atchison Globe.

Changing the Subject.

An original method of closing a conversation was adopted by a host at a dinner party the other day. A young man had turned it to a topic which he did not care to discuss, and angry glances failed to make any impression. "Now, then," said the host at last, "let's change the conversation. 'For what we have received,'" etc.—London Globe.

Patience.

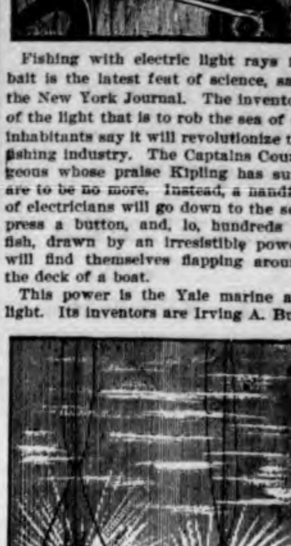

Her Mother—You must be patient with him.

The Bride—Oh, I am. I know it will take time for him to see that he can't have his own way.—Puck.

Fishing with electric light rays for bait is the latest feat of science, says the New York Journal. The inventors of the light that is to rob the sea of its inhabitants say it will revolutionize the fishing industry. The Captains Courageous whose praise Kipling has sung are to be no more. Instead, a handful of electricians will go down to the sea, press a button, and, lo, hundreds of fish, drawn by an irresistible power, will find themselves flapping around the deck of a boat.

This power is the Yale marine arc light. Its inventors are Irving A. Burdick and Francis G. Hall, Jr., Yale boys, who were graduated last year. The practical possibilities of the light were explained to W. S. Mead, the millionaire, and the building of four boats designed specially for this kind of deep sea fishing is now under way.

ELECTRICAL FISHING DEVICE.

On each of the boats there will be four electric lamps on cables 200 feet long. Each light will be lowered in a net which will be automatically opened. The weight of the fish will close it. Each boat will be equipped with a complete electric lighting plant, and wherever possible wood will be used to deaden sound. For night fishing the decks will be brilliantly lighted.

The lamp consists of an upper mechanism chamber solenoid and other mechanism. The lower chamber is inclosed by a glass globe, which is hermetically sealed to the upper chamber by rubber gaskets. Inside the lower chamber are placed an inner globe and the carbon. The lamp is 22 inches over all and is encircled by a handle seven inches in diameter. The metal parts are of gun metal. The glass globes are designed to withstand a pressure of 500 pounds, insuring safety at a depth of 1,000 feet. The greatest depth to which any diver is known to have descended is 204 feet. The feeder cable is led into the mechanism chamber through a rubber packed stuffing box, and when immersed the lamp is, of course, water tight.

A Chance For Electricians.

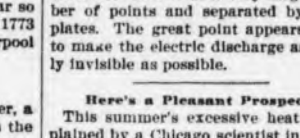

A Berlin tramway company offers prizes of $750 and $375, respectively, for the best speed indicators suitable for use on their cars. An additional royalty will be paid to the owner of the successful instrument.

To Make Ozone by Electricity.

A patent has recently been taken out in Germany for the production of ozone by the electrification of the air by a process which reduces the heat generated and, therefore, the formation of oxides of nitrogen to a minimum. The apparatus to be preferred has its electrodes covered with a very large number of points and separated by glass plates. The great point appears to be to make the electric discharge as nearly invisible as possible.

Here's a Pleasant Prospect.

This summer's excessive heat is explained by a Chicago scientist in a way calculated to give both chills and fever to that part of humanity which accepts his explanation. He asserts that the earth in its annual revolution about the sun is approaching nearer and nearer to that orb every summer and getting farther and farther away every winter. The ultimate result, he avers, will be that the inhabitants of this sphere will be alternately baked and frozen until no living being is left.

The use of gas to make the hair grow is one of the latest medical discoveries. The gas employed is oxygen. A large cap fits tightly round the head and is supplied with oxygen from a bag which is slung over the patient's shoulders. It is worn for a few hours every day and even in cases of absolute baldness is said to produce a more or less luxuriant crop of hair.

The discovery was made at the Oxygen hospital, London. The gas is used for the cure of quite a number of diseases. A woman was undergoing the oxygen cure for skin disease, and one of her arms had for many days been placed in a light airtight box filled with the gas. It was soon noticed that on that part of the arm that was unaffected by the disease the growth of hair was much stimulated, and this naturally suggested oxygen as a cure for baldness.

The first experiment was made upon a woman who had completely lost her hair, and it was found that after a few weeks' treatment there was quite a strong growth.

How to Remove Gloves.

In taking off the glove never begin at the finger ends, for that stretches them. Turn the glove over at the wrist and pull gently, as though peeling it off. After the glove is removed from the hand turn it right side out, smoothing and straightening the fingers into place. Blow into the glove gently and then let them air a few moments, after which wrap them in tissue paper.

How to Make Veal Loaf.

Chop very fine three pounds of veal (the leg is best for this purpose) and one-half pound of salt pork, one cupful rolled cracker crumbs, two eggs; season with pepper, chopped parsley, lemon juice and a little salt if needed; mix well together and roll into a loaf; use white of egg with a little water and roll in cracker crumbs; bake one hour; eat cold.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Grover.

LESSON XIII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 29.

Text of the Lesson, a Comprehensive Quarterly Review — Golden Text, Ps. ciii, 17—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

LESSON I.—God, the Creator of all things (Gen. i, 1; ii, 3). Golden Text, Gen. i, 1, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." To my mind one of the greatest and most precious truths in the first two chapters in the Bible is that of God working unhindered; God, the Creator of all things in heaven and on earth, to whom nothing is too wonderful (Jer. xxxii, 17). When He who commanded the light to shine out of darkness shines in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ (II Cor. iv, 6), we are from that time on earth for and in partnership with Him that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ (I Pet. iv, 11).

LESSON II.—Beginning of sin and redemption (Gen. iii, 1-15. Golden Text, Rom. v, 20, "Where sin abounded grace did much more abound." Here is the entrance of the great enemy, the devil, the adversary of God and man, who continues as such all through the Bible story to Rev. xx, where he goes to his own place forever. In verse 15 we have the promise of a Deliverer who, though He shall suffer at the hands of the adversary, shall finally conquer him. In verse 21 we have the most simple illustration of the way of redemption, and in verse 24 the glory of the redeemed in paradise restored is taught by the cherubim.

LESSON III.—Noah saved in the ark (Gen. viii, 1-22). Golden Text, Gen. vi, 8, "Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord." Chapter iv tells of the division among those who worshiped God as set forth in Cain and Abel, the one refusing God's way and the other accepting it. As years passed on the increase was on the side of those against God till all flesh became so corrupt that God destroyed all with a deluge, sparing only Noah and his family, through whom to people the new earth. The great practical question is, Am I in the ark, the true ark, Christ Jesus, in whom alone is redemption?

LESSON IV.—God calls Abram (Gen. xii, 1-9). Golden Text, Gen. xii, 2, "I will bless thee and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing." Hatred of God is again specially manifest at the tower of Babel, where God stopped them in their rebellion by the confusion of tongues. Notwithstanding this, men fall away into idolatry, and from the mass of idolators God calls Abram to be a man wholly for Himself and the father of a people whom He can separate from all other people and bless them that through them He may bless others (Ex. xix, 5, 6; xxxiii, 16).

LESSON V.—Abram and Lot (Gen. xiii, 1-18). Golden Text, Math. vii, 12, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them." It became necessary because of the wealth of these two men in flocks and herds that they should separate. Their men who kept the flocks were striving among themselves in the presence of the heathen, and this was a dishonor to God; so Abram, to whom God had given all the land, magnanimously gives Lot his choice.

LESSON VI.—God's promise to Abram (Gen. xv, 1-18). Golden Text, Gen. xv, 1, "I am thy shield and thy exceeding great reward." This is the chapter in which so many words are used for the first time, such as "fear not," "believe," "righteousness," etc., and here is the first promise of the seed as the stars of heaven. Abram is becoming increasingly separated unto God, and God is becoming increasingly real to him. The adversary is ever suggesting doubts and fears and seeking to turn his eyes to the circumstances, but "I am thy shield" should dispel all fear.

LESSON VII.—Abraham's intercession (Gen. xviii, 16-33). Golden Text, Jas. v, 16, "The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." He who had dined with Abraham and now talked with him was none other than He whom we know as our great High Priest who ever liveth to make intercession for us, and the ministry of intercession, as set forth in Rev. Andrew Murray's book with that title, is one of our greatest privileges.

LESSON VIII.—Abraham and Isaac (Gen. xxii, 1-14). Golden Text, Heb. xi, 17, "By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac." This is the most remarkable type of the sacrifice of Christ in the Scriptures. Abraham and his only son are so suggestive of God and His only begotten Son. Isaac submissively bearing the wood on which he was to be offered, and the father, with the fire and the knife, make the picture complete in every detail. The ram suffering in Isaac's stead, taking his place on the altar, reminds us of Christ as our substitute, dying in our place.

LESSON IX.—Isaac the peacemaker (Gen. xxvi, 12-25). Golden Text, Math. v, 9. "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." Abraham would not strive for that which was rightfully his, but rather yielded to Lot that God might be glorified. Isaac in like manner yielded to the Philistines property that was rightfully his, and God was glorified in him, and the Philistines said, "We saw certainly that the Lord was with thee" (xxvi, 28). By meekness and submission and yieldedness God is glorified; not by asserting ourselves and our rights.

LESSON X.—Jacob at Bethel (Gen. xxviii, 10-22). Golden Text, Gen. xxviii, 16, "Surely the Lord is in this place." Great was the grace of God to this penitent but unworthy man, opening heaven to him and giving him the most precious assurances of forgiveness and constant care and future blessing. All the promises and purposes of God shall surely be kept and performed (II Cor. i, 20; Jer. xxi, 29), for He is faithful. He cannot deny Himself.

LESSON XI.—Jacob a prince with God (Gen. xxxii, 1-32). Golden Text, Luke xviii, 1, "Men ought always to pray and not to faint." Our heavenly Father is ever longing to do great things for His people that His power may be seen, that He may be glorified, but we are not to be so full of ourselves that we hinder Him by our planning and striving and doing.

LESSON XII.—Temperance lesson (Prov. xxiii, 29-35). Golden Text, Prov. xx, 1, "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." There is no salvation from the sin of strong drink or any other sin except in Him who was made sin for us, who bore our sorrows and carried our griefs, who for us was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by Young & Brown.
